Mr. Isaac W. H. White, mining and civil engineer, Woodlesford and Leeds, said he was engineer to a number of collieries in the West Yorkshire field, and was familiar with the conditions under which that field was worked. The want of railway accommodation between the West Yorkshire field and the port of Hull had often been brought forcibly under his notice. Last year, indeed, looking to the advantage that would be gained by the South Yorkshire field under the Hull and Barnsley Act of 1880, it became very evident that something must be done to relieve the West Yorkshire collieries from the disadvantages they were under if they were to carry on their business any longer. After a good deal of discussion it was decided to promote the present scheme for a line that would open up the West Riding manufacturing towns. In 1877, some collieries at Woodlesford had to be stopped because of the impossibility of working them at a profit on account of the high rate of carriage to Hull, even though the coal was of a kind that would suit the Hull trade well if it could have been conveyed at a reasonable rate. The whole plant of these collieries was removed, a loss of £109,000 was incurred, a large number of colliers' houses were pulled down, and some ninety were still standing empty, and great distress was caused to the mining population. He did not say that these collieries would be re-opened with better railway accomodation, because the trade had largely gone into other channels; but the shafts were still there, and it was possible that something might be done in the way of working them again. The communication between the collieries in the district and Leeds, Bradford, Halifax, and other manufacturing towns would be greatly improved; the distance would be reduced and the rate of carriage would be less. At present they were at a disadvantage, in regard to western traffic, of 9d. per ton as compared with their competitors who had direct access to the Midland and Great Northern systems. This was a very important question in the present state of the coal trade, especially as the chief coal that went westwards was the lower class of coal, used for manufacturing purposes. On this coal the difference of 9d a ton in the rate was practically prohibitory. He believed that the proposed line would entirely relieve them of these disadvantages, both as to the trade with Hull and with the western towns. The accommodation at Leeds for the coal trade, as provided by the North-Eastern Railway, was totally inadequate, and that company set their faces against anything like free trade, putting the trade in the hands of about four traders. The rate from Allerton Main Colliery to Marsh-lane Depot, Leeds, was 1s. 8d., and to Wellington-street 2s. 3½d.; but since the present bill was deposited the North-Eastern had offered to reduce these rates to 1s. 4d. and 1s. 6d. respectively. This reduction would be of little benefit, because, whatever the rates were, the accommodation was so bad at the coal depots that it was impossible to send the coal there profitably. He had no doubt whatever that the new line would attract a very large traffic in minerals, as well as in agricultural produce. Witness produced a table showing the rates charged by the North Eastern Railway in 1866 and 1867, and the rates charged at the present time, showing that there had been a very general increase in the charges.

Wednesday.

Lord Mount Temple, examined in support of the bill, said the proposed line would run for two miles miles through his estate at Fairburn, and it would be a great advantage to his property in giving further accommodation for the coal and limestone traffic, and affording a readier access to Hull and Leeds.—Cross examined; He was not a promoter of the line, nor did he intend to take shares, but he considered the line would be a great benefit to the district. The coal on his estate was being worked by the Frystone Colliery Company.

Mr. White, of the firm of Mammott and White, engineers, Leeds, was re-called, and further cross examined by Mr. Bidder. He considered the Humber agreement had operated very disadvantageously to this particular district, although, on the face of it, it did not relate to the carrying of coal. Messrs. Bower had two depots at the Wellington Station, Leeds, but they were not worth a penny, because, owing to the present rates, they could not be used. The present scheme originated not with himself, but was the outcome of joint conversations with friends and clients. At first, they wished the Hull and Barnsley to take it up; but Colonel Smith, the chairman of that company, said he had already quite enough on his hands, and he refused to do so. He reported the result of his interview to Mr. Charlesworth and Mr. Bower, and they then decided to promote a scheme of their own, independently of any other company. The gradients of the proposed line were very fair.

By Mr. B. Browne.—The line would have a junction with the Great Northern near Ardsley. He was aware that the Great Northern line at that point was a busy line, but he did not think any appreciable inconvenience would be caused to the traffic by the proposed junction. Witness had made a calculation as to the amount of traffic that was likely to accrue to the line, and he believed there would be enough to make the line profitable.

Mr. G. Tatham (Mayor of Leeds) said he was Chairman of the Lofthouse Colliery Company Limited. These collieries turned out from 1,000 to 1,200 tons a day. The new railway would pass close to the siding of these collieries. Witness described the numerous industries carried on at Leeds, and said there was an extensive import trade by way of Hull. The Leeds Corporation had petitioned in favour of the bill on the ground that the new line would provide an alternative line to Hull, and it was believed that it was desirable that there should be some healthy competition. Leeds did not get all the advantages and conveniences from the existing lines that they ought to have. He believed the proposed line would do much to revive the coal trade in the West Yorkshire district.

Cross-examined.—When the Hull and Barnsley line authorised in 1880, was opened, it would no doubt afford an alternative route to Hull, though not so good a one, so far as Leeds was concerned, as the proposed line would be. But, in his opinion, the more competition the better; he would have as many lines as people would put their money into, because wherever there was competition the public derived benefit.

Mr. John Marshall, flax spinner and manufacturer, Leeds, and President of the Leeds Chamber of Commerce, said that the Chamber had petitioned in favour of the bill, and had desired him to give evidence in support of it. It was the general opinion among mercantile circles in Leeds that there ought to be a line between Leeds and Hull independent of the North-Eastern Company. It was held that the present rates for carriage of goods between Leeds and Hull were too high, and that the effect of the new line would be to bring them down.

Mr. Leak, Mayor of Hull, gave evidence in support of the bill.

Mr. W. L. Jackson, M.P., examined by Mr. Richard, said that he carried on business as a tanner and currier of leather at Leeds. He regarded Hull as the natural port of Leeds, and he considered it of great importence that there should be additional railway facilities between the two places. He believed that was the general feeling in Leeds, and the petition he had presented to Parliament in favour of the present scheme from the traders and others of Leeds was one of the most important and influential he had ever seen.

Cross-examined by Mr Saunders.—The Midland Company carried a good deal of witness's goods, and did their business very well. To some extent the Midland competed with the North-Eastern; but it appeared to him that the more competition there was the better for the public. No doubt that the Midland company would carry what traffic was handed to them for as long a distance on their own line as they could, and would not hand it over to any other company any earlier than they could help. The same would no doubt be true in reference to the Hull and Barnsley Company. It was not easy always to understand how one railway route was better than another. He had a curious instance of this in his own experience. His firm had to send goods from Leeds to London; and they actually found that if they wanted prompt delivery they could be better served by the Great Eastern than by any other, although the company had not the shortest route, and had no direct communication with Leeds. That showed that it was not always the case that the traffic was best carried when it was in the hands of one company only.

By Mr Pembroke Stephens: His support to the bill was grounded on general considerations of the advantage of competition.

By Mr Balfour Browne: He came to support the petition that he had presented, and because he knew that a very large number of his constituents were in favour of the scheme.

Mr. E. West said he was an Alderman of the Corporation of Bradford, and was senior partner in the firm of Ellis and Co., corn millers. The Corporation of Bradford and the Chamber of Commerce of Bradford had petitioned in favour of the proposed line. Witness was acquainted with the trade of Bradford, and was also acquainted with Hull, and he certainly thought it would be an advantage if they could have another line to Hull in competition with the North-Eastern. He did not think that Bradford was fairly treated in the matter of rates. Thus the rate for grain from Leeds was 6s 8d. but from Bradford, which was only ten miles farther than Leeds, the rate was 8s 9d. He thought if they had a competing line there would be some reduction in these rates. But it was not only on account of the rates that he thought another line desirable; as a matter of the convenience of the traffic, a competing line would be of great advantage. There was a considerable trade between Bradford and Hull in wool, manufactured goods, stone, &c., and he thought the new line would be a great convenience. It would not be an altogether independent line, but it would enable the Midland to have a route between Bradford and Hull shorter than any other, with the exception of the North-Eastern, and would open up a communication with a new set of docks. The witness having been cross-examined, the Committee adjourned.

Thursday.

Mr. Smith Feather, wool merchant, Bradford, and a member of Town Council, stated that the Council had unanimously given their support to the bill. He imported wool from the Baltic ports, but at present it came to the port of Newcastle. The freights were lower than to Hull on account of the chance of getting a return cargo of coal. Then the carriage rate from Hull to Bradford was the same as from Newcastle to Bradford, which was fifty miles further. A petition lying in the Exchange in Bradford in favour of the bill was numerously signed by the merchants.

Mr. Henry Bentley, brewer, Woodlesford, said he was one of the promoters of this line and a provisional director. He had had constant communication with the North-Eastern Company about rates. He got a good deal of foreign barley from Hull, and the rate for Hull was 6s 8d per ton. The rate from Hartlepool was the same. He complained some time ago that the rate from Thirsk, 8s 4d per ton, was too high, and immediately afterward it was raised to 10s 10d

Mr. Robt. Vigers, land surveyor, Old Jewry, agent for Lord Beaumont, said that he received a representation from his Lordship's tenants urging that he should give his support to this railway, and he was present to give evidence with Lord Beaumont's consent. There was boring for coal going on at present on his Lordship's estate, through which the line would run. He was prepared to recommend his Lordship to take shares in the line.

Mr. Wm. Firth, Chairman of the West Yorkshire Coal and Iron Company, said that this line was well laid out for serving the district.

Mr. R. B Mackie, M.P., said that Rothwell was a thriving village, but the people were much inconvenienced for want of railway accommodation. He had petitions from the Town Council and Chamber of Commerce of Wakefield in favour of the bill, and his constituents were decidedly favourable to it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bidder, Q.C., for the North-Eastern.—The advantage of the line to Wakefield would be that it would give additional access to Hull.

The Mayor of Wakefield (Mr. F. Milthorpe) said that the petition of the Corporation in favour of the railway was agreed to unanimously.

Mr. R. H. Ellis, of Southport, formerly Mayor of Dewsbury, said that he was the owner of an estate at Birkin on the route of this railway, and he was one of the promoters. There was a general desire in Dewsbury in favour of the line.

Mr. Wm. Hargreaves, mining engineer, and Vice-Chairman of the Rothwell Local Board, having given evidence in support of the bill, the Committee again adjourned.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS THIS AFTERNOON.

House of Commons, Friday, 2.25.

The Committee of the House of Commons on the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway met again to-day. Mr Hopkins, one of the joint engineers of the line, said 18 out of the 24½ miles of the line were absolutely straight, and owing to this part of the line could be made at the exceedingly cheap rate of £22000 a mile. If the line were made, it would necessitate Messrs Charlesworth rearranging and in some instances pulling up many of their private lines. The Union would be perfectly ready to meet the wishes of the Great Northern and Midland Railway in regard to the formation of junctions.

House of Commons, 3 p.m.

The opinion is that the Bill is as safe as one can be that has not actually passed. Arrangements with other companies as to details are the chief points to be dealt with.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—The wheat trade remains quiet, and prices are unaltered. Maize 6d to 9d easier. Beans and peas without change. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—There was a good attendance of butchers, and as the weather still continued very cool for midsummer, they purchased somewhat more extensively than they would have done if the weather had been warm. The fat beasts on offer included 24 pens of Canadian beasts, 14 pens of Irish bullocks, 3 pens of Jutland cattle, and the remainder were north country animals. There were 400 more sheep and lambs than were penned last Wednesday; but notwithstanding this, trade ruled somewhat more active, and choice small sheep made last week's quotations. Prices for milch cows ruled very heavy. A good number of pigs, but buyers were scarce and sales were slow at late rates. At the close of the market a good clearance had been effected in all classes.

No. of	this week	last week
fat beasts	1680	1840
sheep	5590	5190
milch cows &c	70	70
Pigs	820	850

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts	7½d to 9d per lb.
Fat calves	8½d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts	£10 to £17 each.
Milch cows	£14 to £26 each.
Sheep, wethers	8½d to 9d per lb.
„ clipped	8d to 9d „
„ small	9½d „
Lambs	1s per lb.
Pigs, small	15s to 20s.
„ store	30s to 60s.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

It appears from last week's Rothwell Times that there is a vacancy for a schoolmaster at Woodlesford but the paragraph containing the information is remarkably vague as to the why and wherefore of the change, and enquiries in that direction fail to elicit anything much more definite. People seem to have arrived at a pretty uniform conclusion about the business, and where so much unanimity prevails it is difficult to imagine that so many can be wrong. The salary of the new master is placed at a lower figure than at present, and although one would think that there may not be such a rush for the appointment as was the case at the commencement when the inducement was greater, still, £100 a year and a pleasantly situated and convenient house, is not amiss for the work to be done.

The cricket match between Woodlesford Brewery and Oulton was a closely contested affair, and the issue hung on the balance a long time; but the final result completely upset the prognostications of the partisans of the Woodlesford party, and a lesson on the inadvisability of enumerating juvenile fowls, previous to the completion of the process of incubation was given them. On the other hand, the Oulton men did not have things entirely their own way as they perhaps expected, and the return match will be looked for with great interest by both parties.

The evidence on behalf of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway has continued all through the week, and is read by those who take daily papers with considerable interest As yet there have only been three or four witnesses from this locality; it is thought more may turn up today. The feeling is very strong, and gaining ground that the Bill will be passed, notwithstanding the fierce opposition manifested. The Leeds Express man created quite a furore in Rothwell yesterday evening by the way he announced the 'Rothwell New Railway'; people got the idea that the Bill was passed, and his papers were bought up with avidity, only to find that the information about the line, was simply an abridged copy of the Mercury of the same morning. All is fair in love or war, however.

It was not stated at the last Board meeting what was being done about watering the streets, nor did the clerk supply the cost of watering last year. Both these pieces of information were promised at the previous gathering of our august council, but promises made are not always kept. It would be very satisfactory to the ratepayers to have these two little matters gone into before they get completely suffocated with dust.

QUID NUNC.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may by gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Diseases of the skin, ringworm, scurvy, scorbutic eruptions and swellings, sore heads, and the most inveterate skin disease to which the human frame is subject, cannot be treated with a more easy and reliable remedy than Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which act so peculiarly on the constitution and so purify the blood, that those diseases are at once eradicated from the system, and a lasting cure obtained. They are equally efficacious in the cure of excoriations, burns, scalds, glandular swellings, ulcerous wounds, rheumatism and contracted and stiffened joints. These medicines operate mildly but surely. The cures effected by them are not temporary or apparent only, but complete and permanent.

Dr. Bernays, Public Analyst for Southwark, on Cocoa "When does Cocoa cease to be Cocoa? What are we to say to Cocoas containing only 12 to 20 per cent. of Cocoas? If the public would receive advice, a slice of bread and butter with a thin drink of genuine Cocoa would be both wholesomer and cheaper than when thickened and sweetened." To ensure a cup of pure Cocoa use Cadbury's Cocoa Essence, which is thin, refreshing, and three to four times stronger than these adulterated articles

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson, has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Prof. Billroth, of Vienna, which, wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this terrible operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. There is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all-gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy their peculiar faint sensation, but on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable. gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whistling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels become costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening into the intestines becomes closed, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not be nervous, for nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia or indigestion, a disease easily removed if treated in the proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A J White, Limited, 21, Farringdon Road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. The genuine has "A J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp.

THE ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, COVENT GARDEN, LIMITED.

The scheme to amalgamate the two Italian operatic houses of London, and to concentrate this form of entertainment within the walls of Covent Garden is about to be brought forward under the most favorable auspices. Practical men of business have taken the matter in hand, plans have been fully discussed, and the details of the prospectus well digested. Some of the highest personages of social life have expressed their acquiescence in the scheme which has already been supported by the promise of large sums of money by intending shareholders. Another Season has paved the way for the accomplishment of the views of those who believe amalgamation the best course to pursue in the interests of both enterprises. It is an open secret that the Italian Opera Season last year at her Majesty's Theatre was not a success, nor did Mr. Mapleson care to risk an Italian Season in the autumn. It has been thought better that Mr. Mapleson, reinforced by certain members of the splendid troupe of Covent Garden, shall confine his energy to the United States, where his experience of American affairs will be at the service of the Royal Italian Opera Company, Covent Garden (Limited). Freed from the limited competition of Her Majesty's Theatre, the whole staff of the Italian Opera singers, and the entire body of Italian Opera goers will be drawn towards Covent Garden, the Prospectus of which house for the forthcoming Season includes the names of the most attractive artists the Italian Operatic Stage can boast. Competition has always been disastrous to Italian Opera, both commercially and from the point of view of art. A large amount has been already subscribed to the Opera Company, Limited, and the Directors have now decided to issue the Prospectus to the public. The Scheme promises to pay from 11 to 16 per cent., and may be worth the consideration of every class of investor, small and large.

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c., &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame.—These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing, and when neglected, dangerous complaints. Let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

TOWNSHIP OF ROTHWELL.

APPOINTMENT OF POOR RATE COLLECTOR.

The Guardians of the Hunslet Union will at their meeting to be held on Wednesday, the 5th day of July next, proceed to the appointment of a Collector of Poor Rates for the Township of Rothwell in the said Union, vacant by the death of the late Mr. Price.

The salary will be £50 per annum, and the person appointed will be required to reside within his district and to find security to the amount of £200.

The appointment will be made subject to the approval of the Local Government Board.

Applications in Candidate's own handwriting endorsed 'Application for Collector,' stating age, and previous occupation, accompanied by four testimonials of recent date as to character and competency, must be sent to me the undersigned, not later than Monday the 3rd day of July next Selected Candidates will have notice to attend a meeting of the Board, and none need attend unless written to for that purpose. Canvassing the Guardians is strictly prohibited, and will be deemed a positive disqualification.

By Order.
THOMAS SCHOFIELD,
Poor Law Offices, Clerk.
Glasshouse St., Hunslet, June 22nd, 1882.

THE Rothwell Local Board is in want of a Collector of Rates, at a salary of £65 per annum.

For particulars as to the duties of the office apply to the Clerk.

Security (in two sureties) for the faithful execution of the office will required in the sum of £200.

Candidates canvassing members of the Board will be disqualified.

Applications (endorsed 'Rate Collector,') accompanied by testimonials of recent date as to character, ability, &c., to be sent to me the undersigned, not later than Saturday the 1st of July next.

By Order,
SAML. HARGREAVES,
Rothwell, June 22nd, 1882. Clerk.

HURRAH for Rothwell, and for the pluck and push of her sons! The Railway Bill has passed the Committee of the House of Commons, and though all has not been got that was asked for, (and who expected it) yet the main line is approved, the great object of railway connection with the "big world" outside our sadly isolated territory has been attained, the death knell of our active little town has not been tolled, a bright and prosperous future may now be in store for us. The fact that the compulsory running powers have been struck out as well as the junctions, need cause no great alarm to those interested in the line. Both these matters are subjects with which the several companies concerned will be prepared to treat with the Union line; no opposition is offered to the principal junction at Drax, so that the run from Ardsley to Drax is clear, securing the object of the colliery owners for an outlet to Hull and continental ports. This is, after all, the most important item for Rothwell; what we want is more call for our coal, and therefore more work for our people, a larger circulation of money, and an advance in population and influence. The Midland Company have shewn no disinclination to effect a junction at Woodlesford, but they desire to secure as good terms as possible, and we doubt not, reasonable terms. The objection of the Great Northern as to the Ardsley junction is more serious, but doubtless, a way will be found out of the difficulty by making the connection so as to interfere in a less degree with the busy traffic at that point. These two junctions mainly affect us, and the good fortune and hard work and wise counsels which have brought us through the "small sieve" of the Committee, and the sturdy opposition of the North-Eastern will, we have no fear, land us safely over these obstacles.

Although not "out of the wood," and a solitary person sometimes grumbles forth the old adage of which these words remind us, we are quite aware of the possibilities which may damage or overthrow the Bill yet, but at the same time we do not care to believe these possibilities are very great, and we heartily join in the jubilation of which Rothwell was the scene on Wednesday evening. We look forward with new hope to the future of Rothwell. Even her best friends have felt that should a railway not be obtained, either this line or some other, that the days of our brave little town were numbered, and that her death sickness had commenced. Now, all this is vanished; with direct access east, west, north and south, with many acres of freehold land suitable for building purposes, with water, gas and drainage arrangements complete, a new lease may be taken, and sanguine hopes realised.

While much has been done in the way of money and work and interest among the people, we look to those who, sparing neither time nor expense nor talent, have worked untiringly to promote this scheme, and carry it to a successful issue. The unremitting labours of Mr. Jos. Charlesworth, Mr. W. Hargreaves, and other gentlemen deserve the highest praise and thanks, while the professional services of Mr. White, Mr. Teale, and Mr. Weatherell have been given ungrudgingly and with an interest and zeal which have far surpassed that for which they may be recompensed. Not the less to be honoured are those, who, though willing and prepared to assist in every way for the furtherance of the special object in view, have not come prominently before the public. These will certainly feel most satisfaction who have earnestly and honestly done their best to forward this great work, and their own conscience will be their best reward. All honour to the men who have tried their utmost to raise our town and advance her interests, and this will we shew when the time comes for shouting. Till then we wait, and work.

On Wednesday afternoon, about five o'clock, telegrams reached Mr. James Hargreaves and Mr. James Steel, announcing that the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway bill had passed the committee of the House of Commons with certain modifications as regards junctions and running powers.

As the news spread from mouth to mouth the excitement increased. Very shortly, bills were issued 'Railway Bill passed Committee,' and that which had only been rumour became confirmed.

The Rothwell Model Band, and the Temperance Band, each headed by placards to the above effect, turned out and paraded the streets during the evening, playing jubilant selections, and fanning the excitement to fever pitch. Several flags were displayed in the street, everybody turned out to congratulate everybody else, and the utmost rejoicing was manifest on all sides.

When the bill is finally approved, it is proposed to hold a general festival, including perhaps a banquet, and other tokens of satisfaction and pleasure.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The fortnightly meeting of the Board took place on Monday, present.—Messrs. J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Sanderson, J. Batty, J. Oliver, S. Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, treasurer, and surveyor.

The chairman and vice-chairman being both in London on behalf of the Railway Bill, Mr. Holmes was unanimously elected to occupy the chair.

Before proceeding to the business of the meeting, the chairman expressed the sorrow and regret he felt on account of the mournful event which had called them together a short time before. He was sure he spoke the feelings of every member when he referred to the late Mr. Price, their collector, as a gentleman of whom the Board might be proud, highly eulogising the kindly and straightforward manner in which he had done his work. He begged to move that a vote of condolence with the family of the late Mr. Price, be presented by the Board.

Mr. J. Hargreaves, in seconding the motion, endorsed every word the chairman had just uttered, and felt the Board had lost one of the best and most faithful of public servants in Mr. Price.

Mr. Batty also desired to support the motion, as did all the members present.

The motion having been carried, Mr. Turner was requested to accept it on behalf of the family, and in replying, felt extremely obliged for the kind manner in which the late Mr. Price had been spoken of, and would convey the vote of condolence to the other members of the family.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

HEALTH REPORT.— Dr. Glaister, medical officer of health, reported as follows;—

To the chairman and members of the Rothwell Local Board.

Gentlemen,

I have to report 20 births and 14 deaths registered in the district during the past 4 weeks, for the corresponding period of last year we had 15 births and 9 deaths.

The causes of death have been one male, 2¼ years, 5 years and 5½ years; and one female, 5½ years and one 7 years, from scarlet fever: one female, 9 months, from convulsions; one female, 11 days, from convulsions; one female, 2½ years, from nephritis; one female, 59 years, from mitral disease; one female, 75 years, from old age; one female, 68 years, from phthisis; one female, 59 years, from hip joint disease; one male, 5 hours, imperfect nutrition; one female, 4 years, marasmus.

It will be seen 5 deaths are referred to scarlet fever, which with six previous deaths, make 11 deaths in all due to this disease since Christmas. Though we have still a considerable number of cases in the district, I am glad to be able to report a diminution of the number as compared with the previous fortnight. At present, we have little more than half the number I had to report at the last meeting of the Board. Disinfection by the nuisance inspector is being carried on as usual, and signs point we hope, to a subsidence of the epidemic.

JOHN GLAISTER, M.B.,
Medical Officer of Health.

The clerk was instructed to ask for definite information whether the Board might expect to receive one half of the medical officer's salary from the Local Government Board for the current year.

HIGHWAYS.—There were several tenders for the team labour required by the Board, and that of Mr Sewell was accepted at 6s. for one man, horse and cart, and 9s. for two horses and carts and one man per day.

Some conversation ensued on the state of the highways, and as it was deemed advisable to put on the roads what material may be necessary in summer, it was resolved on the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves, seconded by Mr. Bramley, that discretionary power be given to the clerk and surveyor to purchase 200 tons more of stone, if required.

WATER.—The clerk had received another communication from the Local Government Board in reply to his application for the Board's orders as regards the water supply of Mr. Lawton, but the present letter does not answer the question to be settled, and it was unanimously agreed that further definite information be asked, whether the Local Government Board will grant the special power they have for allowing the laying of water mains.

There was also a discussion about the Royds' Green supply, which finally resulted in an appointment of the Waterworks Committee to meet Mr. Sanderson on the spot on Thursday (yesterday.)

ROTHWELL SEWAGE.—Mr. J. Hargreaves brought forward the nuisance caused by the smell from the sewer grates in Wood Lane which was referred to the Sanitary Committee.

FINANCE.—Arrangements are in progress for the borrowing of £4750 from the Public Works Loan Commissioners at 3¾ per cent for 30 years, and the repayment of the temporary loan received a year ago.

COLLECTOR.—The chairman said it was now their mournful duty to take steps for the appointment of a collector in place of the late Mr. Price. Mr. J. Hargreaves asked whether it was necessary to do this at once. The chairman thought that, as the thing had to be done, and the work was standing, they would do no good by waiting, and it would be advisable to take steps at this meeting. This was agreed to by all the members present and a resolution was moved by Mr. J. Hargreaves, to advertise in the Rothwell Times and Leeds Mercury twice for a collector at £75 a year. After some conversation this amount was reduced to £70 and seconded by Mr. Bramley. An amendment was moved by Mr. Oliver, seconded by Mr. Sanderson for £65 a year, which was carried, Mr. Holmes and Mr. Batty joining with them; while Mr Turner voted with Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Bramley.

It was further resolved that Mr. C. Bennet carry on the duties till an appointment is definitely settled.

At the Committee Meeting above mentioned held yesterday, Messrs. Batty, Sanderson, Holmes, Oliver, and Turner present. It was proposed by Mr. Oliver, seconded by Mr. Holmes, that a covered tank and pump be made at Patrick Green to provide a water supply for that that district. Mr. Turner proposed that the committee take professional advice before proceeding, but as this was not seconded, the original proposition was carried by the votes of the other four members.

STOURTON.

The half-yearly festival in connection with the Stourton Wesleyan Band of Hope was held on Saturday last. The members of the Band of Hope met in the afternoon in the school, and marched round Stourton, headed by the Rothwell Temperance Band, (which caused quite a sensation in the neighbourhood) the scholars singing at various places; on returning to school, the juvenile members took tea at 4 o'clock; the adult members and friends sat down to tea at five o'clock; altogether there were over 300 partook of the good things provided.

After tea, a miscellaneous entertainment was given by the members, presided over by Mr J Hanforth, of Knostrop, who opened the proceedings with a short and interesting address, urging the young people to save their money and buy good books to improve their minds.

An address was also given by Mr. D. Ledgard, of Carlton, who spoke in a very encouraging manner, narrating several interesting anecdotes, and pointing out the spread of the Bands of Hope from the year 1847.

Several recitations, melodies, solos, duetts, quartetts, &c., were given by the members. The singing was conducted by Mr. T. Kaye. Master F. Fatkin presiding at the harmonium. Songs were given Mr. and Mrs. A. C Smith, Mr. Jenner, Misses Nash, E. Smith, C. Booth, and Ward. Recitations were also rendered by Messrs. J. Wormald, Crockett and Ambler, Misses Gardiner, E. Booth, and Ramsden.

Votes of thanks to the chairman and speaker brought the meeting to a close just before 10 o'clock, a very pleasant and enjoyable evening having been spent.

ROTHWELL GAS BILL.

Yesterday, the above Bill passed the Committee of the House of Lords without alteration or modification, so that in the course of a week or two, the much discussed Bill will become law.

AURORA BICYCLE CLUB.

Last Saturday the members of the above club ran to Pontefract, where upwards of 100 cyclists congregated, representing about twenty different clubs. The castle and other places of interest in the ancient borough were visited by the votaries of the 'wheel.' The majority started for home about eight o'clock, after spending a pleasant afternoon.

WESLEYAN CIRCUIT MEETING.—Last Monday, the usual quarterly meeting of the Wakefield Circuit was held in the Upper School-room, the Rev Jas. Hughes presiding, the Revs G W Russell and C A Collingwood, Messrs Cookson and Skelsey (circuit stewards) and a number of other members being present. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and confirmed, the superintendent read the report of the number of members, &c., from which it appears there are 1622 fully accredited members, with a large number on trial and in junior classes. Mr Cookson's financial statement was satisfactory, the income about meeting the expenditure. The Rev C A Collingwood gave the returns of the Sunday and day schools and gratifying condition, the Sunday schools generally flourishing in most departments. Provisional arrangements have been made for a successor to Mr Hughes in the superintendency of 1883. Certain alterations were also agreed on as regards the rent of one of the minister's houses at Wakefield, and also respecting the Rothwell house. It was decided to hold the next annual circuit society tea meeting in September next.

THE LATE MR. PRICE

ow that the truth of the sad, sudden h of Mr. William Price is actually and fully realised, we may look back on his and character with a mournful pleasure, think calmly of the man who for so y years has gone in and out among us, has so faithfully and well performed public duties.

he deceased gentleman was born March , 1810, in the city of York, where his childhood was spent. He afterwards e to Leeds, where he was in the office of Henningway, Albion St., for a number ears.

n the year 1846, Mr. Price came to well, and shortly afterwards commenced rivate school for boys in the School- at Churchfield. From this academy, gone forth a number of our best and htest young men, many of whom are occupying the foremost positions in our and other towns in trade or profession, le some of the later scholars in his school rising in the social scale and doing credit heir teacher and their birth place.

n the death of Mr. John Clarkson in 4, Mr. Price accepted the office of stant overseer for Rothwell, Rothwell gh and Royds' Green, which post he has with honour and credit to himself the day of his decease. On the formation of the Local Board, Mr. Price was ointed collector of rates, and this duty as also faithfully fulfilled as long as he d.

he brief and sorrowful details of his h have already been told. During day morning he had been collecting in neighbourhood of the Marsh, chatting the people in his usual happy way. went home to his dinner, entered up his ks, and then, having finished his work, in his own house, and died instantly. suddenly and strangely did he pass away. fact of his death could not be credited ll, until all doubt was removed by many ens which were only too speedily observed. At the inquest on Monday, before Major lor, coroner, the verdict returned was ied from natural causes," deceased ng several times before complained of ptoms which were now understood.

he funeral took place at three o'clock, was very largely attended by friends and w-townsmen of the deceased officer. re were present most of the members and ers of the Local Board, the chairman and k of the Hunslet Union, the trustees of Mechanics' Institute, most of the tradesmen of the town, and other gentlemen. The n was of oak, with brass mountings, and covered with floral wreaths. The Rev. . Lees officiated at the funeral, the service being of the simplest character.

he removal of one who has been so long so prominently before the public creates ank which cannot easily be filled up, and left vacant the two important offices of stant overseer, and collector for the Board. Price's universal politeness and gentlely demeanour to everybody was most ked; his urbanity and kindly attention ll who sought his advice or assistance, ired a respect for him which few men in position could hope to enjoy; while, ng some private means, he was able and ng to render substantial aid to those who e in temporary difficulties. His affable generous help to the poor will not be tten by many an aged woman and sickly in Rothwell, and the blessing of him was 'ready to perish' follow the memory ur late friend.

uring the afternoon of the funeral, every in the town was closed, as a mark of ect to the memory of a well tried public ant, the utmost desire being manifested recognise the loss sustained, and the rd in which he was held.

very touching and appropriate reference made on Sunday evening, to the death Mr. Price, by the Rev. James Hind, in Wesleyan Chapel, as also to the loss of children which had recently occurred in y homes.

are requested to state on behalf of the friends family of the late Mr. Price, that they appreciate the many tokens of respect sympathy manifested by the tradesmen general public of Rothwell on the occasion his funeral; and they desire publicly to owledge the very kind letters of condolence ved from the Rothwell Local Board and the Board of Guardians

AST AND WEST YORKSHIRE UNION RAILWAY.

Parliamentary Committee, for the consideration this bill have received evidence as follows, Mr. , presiding:—

Friday.

George Hopkins, joint engineer of the line with Mr. Patterson, said the estimate of the was £507,626, or £22,000 a mile. The share was £510,000, and the debenture capital 0. Out of the total length of 24¼ miles, 18 lutely straight. The estimate was quite for making the line, allowing 10 per cent ingencies. No junctions could be made with lines without some inconvenience, but no difficulty in the junctions in the bill which be easily overcome with a friendly company out the junctions with the Great Northern Lofthouse, and the Midland at Woodlesford endeavoured to do nothing hostile to tive companies; and the increased traffic ply compensate those two companies for porary disarrangement of their lines and This line was a corollary to the Hull and ey line. It proposed to give the same facilities ation between the West Yorkshire coalfield Hull as the Hull and Barnsley line did. the South Yorkshire coalfield and Hull. of the numerous owners of property along the there was only one landowner (Mr. Calverley) jected to the bill.—Cross-examined by Mr. ers, the witness said if the Midland Railway grant a junction with their railway at Woodsford, running powers would be sought. The oters of the line wished to consult the wishes of Midland Company in every possible way. If the Company got the use of the Midland Station eds, it was only fair that they should pay for it. If they only used a few miles of the line, it would not be right that the Union Company should pay only ordinary mileage rates.

An offer on the part of Mr. Rodwell to put Mr. Patterson into the box, if the Committee desired it, led the chairman to remark that there had really been no opposition to the general engineering features of the system. The principal objections seemed to be as to junctions and running powers.

With the examination of Mr. Fenwick, engineer and land surveyor, Leeds, the case for the promoters closed.

Witnesses were then examined in support of the petition of Mr. Calverley, of Oulton Hall.—Mr. John Hepper, of Leeds, stated that the line would deteriorate the value of Mr. Calverley's estate as a residential property and as agricultural and building land.

Monday.

Mr. RODWELL, Q.C., for the promoters, said, in reference to a remark from the Chairman as to whether they intended to proceed with that part of the bill asking for running powers over the Great Northern and the Midland Railways, that they were willing to strike out all compulsory running powers except those at Drax station on the Hull and Barnsley, which were not opposed; all junctions to remain as in the bill; the Great Northern Company to afford at Ardsley and Lofthouse stations reasonable facilities for forwarding all classes of traffic; the Midland Company to afford at Woodlesford similar facilities.

Mr. POTTER, Q.C., addressed the Committee on behalf of Mr. Calverley, of Oulton. He submitted that if the line were made, it must damage Mr. Calverley's residential property. To bring a large mineral traffic within two hundred yards of his residence, and run a cutting two and a half miles through the estate, must be a very considerable nuisance. Part of the land was now occupied as agricultural land by different farmers, and fourteen of the holdings upon the estate would be severed by the line, some of them in a very inconvenient manner.

The evidence for the Great Northern Railway Company was then taken.

Mr. Henry Oakley, general manager of the company, in answer to Mr. BALFOUR BROWN, said that they objected to this line on commercial grounds, because it would be a competing line with the Methley branch, which always paid very badly indeed. The objections of the company were very strong against a junction at that point. There was no appreciable difference between Ardsley and Hull over the Methley branch, the Lancashire and Yorkshire to Hensall, and the Hull and Barnsley to Hull, and between those places over the proposed line. The Methley branch cost the owners £720,000 for six miles, and though they ran twenty-six passenger trains a day and five goods trains each way it only paid 1¼ per cent. At present there were 102 trains run in each direction through Ardsley Junction, and these were independent of extra trains, which varied from five to fifteen a day. The admission of a new company into so important a depôt would be a most serious inconvenience.

Cross-examined.—If junctions were made in a way satisfactory to the company and the running powers to Wakefield were withdrawn, and the line were sanctioned on those conditions, he did not know that there would be much to say against it, although he would not welcome it.

Mr. Balfour Brown having addressed the Committee for the Great Northern.

Mr. J. Noble, general manager of the Midland Railway, was examined by Mr. Saunders, Q.C. He stated that the line at Woodlesford, where this railway would form a junction, was one of the busiest parts of the system. It would be a serious thing to the Midland if this company were to get running powers into Woodlesford station. If a junction were to be made with the Midland, it ought to be made by means of sidings to be made there.

Cross-examined.—The Midland were not in the ordinary sense hostile to this company, because there was nothing in it which would be in competition with that company's traffic. Some such arrangement as this would suit the Midland, that the promoters should not seek to compel the Midland to carry traffic at the mileage proportion of the through route where the traffic did not pass over ten miles of the Midland line. That would cover Leeds and the traffic to stations in Leeds to be transferred to the London and North-Western and Great Northern companies. If they could not settle this, he was content to leave it to an arbitrator.

The Chairman stated, to save further discussion, that he did not think the Committee were prepared to grant compulsory running powers.

The evidence for the North-Eastern Railway Company was then proceeded with.

Mr. Arnold Lupton, mining engineer, and instructor in mining in the Yorkshire College, estimated the total tonnage of the proved and probable coal in the district at 95 millions, instead of 468 millions as stated by Mr. Greaves. He estimated 4,800 tons a day as the product of the pits on this line; but its transit would have to be shared by five companies, giving about 1,000 tons a day to go by the proposed line. He estimated the working days at four a week, which gave 200,000 tons a year to be carried over the proposed line. He believed that the coalfield between Ardsley and Allerton-Bywater would be worked out in thirty-three years at the present rate of production.

Mr. Walter Rowley, mining engineer, Leeds, said he was well acquainted with the coal seams of the West Yorkshire district, and had acted as adviser to the West Yorkshire Colliery Owners' Association and to the Great Northern Railway Company. He had gone over the calculations with the last witness, and he considered that the figures given by him were fair and reasonable.

Mr. Wm. Wood, proprietor of the Foxholes Colliery, Methley, said his colliery was on the Methley joint line, and he found no obstruction whatever in forwarding coal east and west, by water as well as by rail. He had not found the North-Eastern coal depôt system at all objectionable—Cross examined: He had a good many cells and depôts of his own.

Tuesday.

Mr. H. Tennant, general manager of the company, examined by Mr. Meysey-Thompson, stated that in the inquiry by the Select Committee on Railway Rates and fares no witness had had anything to say against the North-Eastern rates. He had explained that the present system of equal rates to ports on the east and west coast, was simply a continuation of the state of the separate lines before they were amalgamated into the North-Eastern and had generally worked well. The question of the monopoly in cells at Hull, was also a relic of the old system, previous to the amalgamation of the smaller lines into the present company, and he agreed was in favour of the public. There was no truth in the statement that the North-Eastern were pushing their northern ports at the expense of Hull. The figures showed an increase of general traffic at Hull at 22 per cent, as against 20 per cent at Newcastle, and a decrease of 16 per cent at Hartlepool. The company could not consent to anything but a flying junction at Burton Salmon, and this was not provided by the present Bill. The Castleford and Garforth line was made by the company in order to meet the requirements of the Kippax, Bower's Allerton, and the Allerton-Bywater Collieries. The total receipts were £7,767; and after deducting the working expenses there was £1,000 left to pay a dividend on £150,000 of capital. As far as he could see, the present line would take away the traffic of the three collieries he had named from the North-Eastern Company. He had carefully listened to the evidence, but he had not heard a single statement showing the necessity of another railway for the purpose of conveying traffic to Hull. Taking the capital expenditure of £680,000, it would require a gross earning of £68,000 a year to make the line pay, and he did not see that, at the rates that it was said the new line would charge, there was even a possibility of taking working expenses. He thought the new line was wholly unnecessary; existing lines were quite capable of doing all the traffic, and were likely to do for years to come, and the construction of the new line would in the long run result in loss and injury to the public interest.—Cross-examined:—He considered it to the public interest, as well as to the interest of the colliery owners and of the North-Eastern Company that the present system, by which the trade was locked up in the hands of one firm, should be continued. He was aware that other railway companies worked under the system of small coal merchants, but he did not know how they did it.

Wednesday.

Mr Tennent was subjected to severe cross examination on the system of allowing station-masters to act as coal merchants, and certain irregularities were mentioned which seriously damaged the case of the North Eastern.

Mr. T. E. Harrison, Engineer-in-Chief to the North-Eastern Railway Company, explained the objection the company had to the proposed junction at Burton Salmon.

Sir Joseph Pease, M.P., of the firm of Messrs. Pease, of Darlington, and a director of the North-Eastern Railway, said the station-masters were only the agents for the coal owners, in the same way as Sutton and Company and other carriers were the agents for the senders of goods. The system of having all orders for coal sent through the mineral office, coupled with the fact of station-master agency, was liable to abuse, but he believed that the public were better served, and the colliery owners received a greater benefit than under any other system which could be suggested. This gentleman was also closely cross-examined on the subject, in which he expressed his belief that it was not done to any extent, and that the North Eastern Board were not cognisant of it, and they would dismiss station-masters giving undue preference to a certain owner.

This closed the case for the petitioners.

Mr Bidder then addressed the Committee on behalf of the North-Eastern and Midland Railways.

The Committee, before hearing the promoters' counsel in reply, ordered the room to be cleared.

After the lapse of twenty minutes, the doors were thrown open, and the Chairman said it would not be necessary to call on the promoters' counsel to reply. The Committee decided that the preamble was proved, except as to all the junctions mentioned with the exception of Drax Junction, and also the Lofthouse Railway. The Committee also struck out the compulsory running powers.

Mr Richards—Except at Drax?

The Chairman—No; we strike them all out.

Mr Richards—You must bear in mind that there is no opposition to running powers at Drax.

The Chairman—That will be a matter for arrangement. We strike out all compulsory running powers. We quite understand that there is no opposition to the junction at Drax.

Mr Pope—I understand you to strike out the junction at Ardsley with the Great Northern.

The Chairman—We do. We do not say there should be no junction; but it is not competent to alter the junction under the present form of the bill.

Mr Pope—I understand. You strike out a compulsory junction and compulsory running powers. Whatever the parties may agree to is, of course, a different matter.

The Chairman—Entirely.

The clauses were then gone through, and the bill ordered to be reported.

MARKETS.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—Although we have reached the longest day in the year the weather continues unsettled, and a drizzling rain prevailed the greater part of the day. We had, however, a fair attendance of buyers and such weather as we experienced to-day being more favourable to the meat trade than hot sultry days, a good clearance was effected. The fat beasts on offer were 50 more than last week. The quality generally was excellent and the number included 17 pens of Canadian cattle, 27 pens of Irish, and three pens of Danish, the remainder being made up of north country animals. Both for beef and mutton prices had a downward tendency, last week's prices having been somewhat exceptional.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

The keeper of the gallery having gone off for a holiday, and taken the key with him, we are debarred giving his usual weekly report. No doubt we shall have a more extended line from him next week.

VILLAGE CHURCHES AND THEIR SERVICES.

We purposed publishing "No. 4 Methley" of this interesting series of papers this week, but having received the copy somewhat late, must delay till next issue. We can then promise our readers a great treat on the grand old edifice.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

Dr. Bernays, Public Analyst for Southwark, on Cocoa "When does Cocoa cease to be Cocoa? What are we to say to Cocoas containing only 12 to 20 per cent. of Cocoas? If the public would receive advice, a slice of bread and butter with a thin drink of genuine Cocoa would be both wholesomer and cheaper than when thickened and sweetened." To ensure a cup of dure Cocoa use Cadbury's Cocoa Essence, which is thin, refreshing, and three to four times stronger than hese adulterated articles

KAY'S LINSEED COMPOUND, Asthma and Bronchitis immediately relieved by it. Sold by Chemists.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY'S LINSEED COMPOUND, for Colds and Cough, cures nine cases out of ten Sold by Chemists, 1s 1½d, 2s 9d.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson, has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Prof. Billroth, of Vienna, which, wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this terrible operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. There is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all-gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy their peculiar faint sensation, but on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable, gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whistling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels become costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening into the intestines becomes closed, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not be nervous, for nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia or indigestion, a disease easily removed if treated in the proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A J White, Limited, 21, Farringdon Road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. The genuine has "A. J. WHITE, LIMITED," engraved in the Government Stamp.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c. who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. LAMPLOUGH, 113 Holborn, London.

WINES AND SPIRITS FOR EVERY-DAY USE
Selected from W & A Gilbey's List of 200 varieties.

The seals and labels on all WINES and SPIRITS bottled by W & A GILBEY may be accepted as an absolute guarantee of their purity and genuineness. Under the Act of Parliament 38 & 39 Vic., Cap. 63, the purity of any Wine or Spirit can be verified on application to the Local Government Analyst.

This "SELECTED LIST" of W & A GILBEY'S WINES AND SPIRITS comprises two descriptions only of each class of Wines and Spirits, the first selected on account of its moderate price, and the second for its fine quality combined with greater age.

THE ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, COVENT GARDEN, LIMITED.

The scheme to amalgamate the two Italian operatic houses of London, and to concentrate this form of entertainment within the walls of Covent Garden is about to be brought forward under the most favorable auspices. Practical men of business have taken the matter in hand, plans have been fully discussed, and the details of the prospectus well digested. Some of the highest personages of social life have expressed their acquiescence in the scheme which has already been supported by the promise of large sums of money by intending shareholders. Another Season has paved the way for the accomplishment of the views of those who believe amalgamation the best course to pursue in the interests of both enterprises. It is an open secret that the Italian Opera Season last year at her Majesty's Theatre was not a success, nor did Mr. Mapleson care to risk an Italian Season in the autumn. It has been thought better that Mr. Mapleson, reinforced by certain members of the splendid troupe of Covent Garden, shall confine his energy to the United States, where his experience of American affairs will be at the service of the Royal Italian Opera Company, Covent Garden (Limited). Freed from the limited competition of Her Majesty's Theatre, the whole staff of the Italian Opera singers, and the entire body of Italian Opera goers will be drawn towards Covent Garden, the Prospectus of which house for the forthcoming Season includes the names of the most attractive artists the Italian Operatic Stage can boast. Competition has always been disastrous to Italian Opera, both commercially and from the point of view of art. A large amount has been already subscribed to the Opera Company, Limited, and the Directors have now decided to issue the Prospectus to the public. The Scheme promises to pay from 11 to 15 per cent., and may be worth the consideration of every class of investor, small and large.

Worth a Guinea a Box.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S
PATENT PILLS.
ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor, of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sennse of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S REIGN.

The forty-fifth anniversary of the Queen's accession to the Throne, was celebrated on Wednesday last, with the usual festivities. For a parallel to a reign of 45 years there are only three cases in English annals—Henry III., Edward III., and George III. But between Edward III. and George III. there were 400 years, and although Queen Elizabeth very nearly came up to the length of Her Majesty's reign, as far as it has gone, she was just a few months short of the 45 years. But in the reign of neither Henry, Edward, Elizabeth, nor George, were there anything like the wonderful changes which the present Sovereign has witnessed. When she came to the Throne railways were in their infancy, and in the entire Session of Parliament in 1837 the value of the lines sanctioned by the Legislature was under nine millions sterling. To the traveller the mail coach routes were the chief study of interest. How would he like to be back again in the days when it occupied seven hours to go from London to Brighton, nine hours to Dover, eleven to Birmingham, twenty to Chester, twenty-two to Liverpool, forty-two to Glasgow, and eighty-four to Thurso? How would the business of an energetic and pushing people be conducted at that pace now? The streams of traffic in London now flow to and from the great railway termini—Paddington, St. Pancras, Euston, King's Cross, Waterloo, London Bridge, and Bishopsgate. In the early part of the Queen's reign the centres of activity were the hostelries from which the coaches started—the Bull and Mouth, the Golden Cross, hard by Trafalgar-square, and The Swan with Two Necks, in Lad-lane, one of the little thoroughfares in the City of London. The passenger who had to make the journey to Thurso mounted the box with as good a spirit as he could command with the prospect of an eighty-four hours' ride before him. Or if he went to Brighton, he set out from London at eight in the evening, and arrived upon the coast of Sussex between three and four in the morning. Those travellers who are now white with age must often contrast the box seat of a coach to Glasgow, with the Pullman cars of the present day, and must be inclined to ask themselves whether the world, to say nothing of the reign of the Sovereign, is the same.

Never was the chapter of accidents more strikingly illustrated than in that which placed Queen Victoria on the throne of England. The eldest son of George III. had one daughter, the Princess Charlotte, who died in childbirth. Her husband, the late ruler of the Belgians, would, but for the lamented death of the Princess, have been King Consort of England. The second son, the Duke of York, had no children at all. The third son, afterwards William IV., had two daughters, who died in infancy The Princess-Royal was married to the King of Wurtemburg, and died childless. It was therefore not until we come to the next in the line of George III.'s offspring that we arrive at the father of the Queen of to-day. Edward, Duke of Kent, was the fifth child and the fourth son of the old King, and his only child Alexandrina Victoria, was but a few months old when her father died. Had that father lived, and a son been born to the Duchess of Kent, the line of succession would have been entirely changed. As it is the Queen is able to reflect that her son and grandson stand in a direct line to the Crown of England as her grandson and great-grandson stand in the same relation to the Crown of Germany. She may look forward to the celebration of her jubilee now only five years distant, with the consciousness of the longevity which has characterised the monarchs of the House of Hanover, for George I., the youngest of the whole, was 67 at the time of his death. Amid all the political changes of fourty-five years, from the Administration of Lord Melbourne to that of Mr. Gladstone, the Queen has walked strictly in the steps of the Constitution, and the existence of anything like court intrigue in the direction of public affairs hasnever been known. Well may echo the oft repeated sentiment—"God save the Queen, long may she reign.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of the above Board took place on Friday last, present—Messrs. J. R. Seanor, (vice-chairman); J. Batty, J. G. Turner, J. Parker, and the clerk, treasurer, and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the clerk intimated that the treasurer had received payment of the precepts for £300 and £5 on Rothwell and Temple Newsam.

Miss Preston and Miss Harms being desirous of attending the scholarship examinations to be held the first week in July, the Board granted leave of absence to both teachers, an arrangement having been made to supply their places whilst absent.

The Primitive Methodists of Stourton being wishful to open a Sunday school, a resolution was passed allowing them the additional time on Sunday morning, at the total rent of four shillings per week.

Several parents who applied for the remission of school fees and appeared to be urgent cases, were allowed for a short period.

The salaries and accounts were ordered to be paid, and the teachers' wants for the schools were passed.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held at Robin Hood School, on Wednesday night, all the members being present, viz:—Mr. Oliver, chairman; Messrs. Appleyard, Armitage, Thomas Hargreaves, Wm. Keightley, with the clerk, head teachers, and attendance officer.

The minutes of the last meeting were approved and signed.

The amounts received by the treasurer since last meeting are from rating authorities £105 13s. 10d.; two months fees at Robin Hood £19 11s. 7d., and £16 4s. 2d. at Carlton, and £1 7s. 0d. for books sold. Cheques were signed for the officers' and teachers' salaries and cleaning, also £7 2s. 0d for the cost of whitewashing the schools at Robin Hood and Carlton.

Mr. Ledgard, the head teacher at Carlton Schools, tendered his resignation, (having obtained an appointment at Kippax), which the Board accepted, and instructed the clerk to advertise for a successor at a salary of £65 per year, house and coals, and one-third of the grant, which will be about £43 per year.

Desks are needed at both the schools, the Board order nine to be got for each school.

Lewis Aveyard who has just finished his time as a pupil teacher at Robin Hood School, was appointed assistant there until the end of the year at a salary of £30 per year.

The school examinations will take place next week, when there will be an increase in the number of children to present, the attendance at the schools is very good.

Applications for remission of fees were made, and in deserving cases granted. Other minor business concluded the meeting.

CARLTON.

REV. R. S. BOULTER ON INDIA.

Taking advantage of the present visit of the Rev. R. S. Boulter, (late missionary in India) the Wesleyan friends at Carlton had a tea meeting last Monday for the defrayal of expenses connected with painting and cleaning their chapel. There were a good number at the tea, after which a public meeting was held.

The proceedings were commenced by the Rev. C. A. Collingwood, who after singing and prayer, introduced Mr. Councillor Tattersall, of Wakefield, as chairman for the evening. Mr. Tattersall very pleasingly and suitably spoke on the object of their meeting, and trusted by each doing his best, that the debt incurred would be completely cleared off. He then called on Mr. Boulter to give his address on "The Englishman in India."

The Rev. R. S Boulter then came forward and spoke nearly an hour on his experiences in the Madras presidency, his address being attentively listened to and thoroughly enjoyed by all present. He prefaced the subject of his lecture by briefly but vividly describing his leaving England, the voyage to India, and his first impressions on arrival there. He then gave some interesting particulars respecting the government official arrangements, the excellent provision made for the comfort and general well-being of our soldiers, the extensive railway system and the cheap and easy mode of travelling thereby. Mr. Boulter then gave some insight into missionary life, its duties, difficulties and successes, but reserved this part of his experiences till a future day. He further illustrated the characteristics of India by a description of the animals of the country, respecting some of which, amusing stories were related. The address was of a kind suitable for the people generally, and gave one a good idea of certain phases of everyday life in India, the details of which were easily understood and thoroughly enjoyed by the assembly.

At the close of the meeting, a collection was taken to the satisfaction of those concerned, and votes of thanks were very cordially presented to the lecturer and to Mr. Tattersall.

ROTHWELL BILLS.

The East and West Yorkshire Union Railway Bill was read a third time in the House of Commons. Its first appearance in the Lords will take place in a day or two.

The Bill of the Rothwell Gas Light Company, Limited, has been read a third time in the House of Lords and now only awaits the Royal assent, which is expected daily.

OUR VILLAGE CHURCHES AND THEIR SERVICES.

No. 4, METHLEY.

The last two Churches which formed the subjects of notice are of modern erection, one of them (Woodlesford) having still about it most of the features of quite a new structure. It will therefore be a pleasant change to speak again of a building which carries our thoughts to the antique past, and giving the rein to the imagination in so doing we can call up possible circumstances and traditions connected with the far backward periods which these venerable edifices have outlived, and dwell on succeeding events, the outgrowth of those periods, which have become epochs in history and the starting point of changes sometimes slowly and almost imperceptibly arising, and sometimes revolutionary in their suddenness; but which have led on to the high developement and stability of the present age. And who can look back upon those age honoured churches without a feeling of veneration. They have the air of centuries about them, they have withstood the attritions of atmospheric influences through hundreds of recurring seasons have been silent witnesses of natural upheavings and changing ascendancies, and played a passive part in the transitions from old to new—or newly adapted—standards of religious faith which have, among other benefits, stimulated the growth and expansion of intellectual light and liberty.

The church of which I am about to speak is among the oldest in Yorkshire, and yet how many will look upon it only as an old building, so old as to have required patching up now and then, and not nearly so interesting as a new Town Hall of mixed proportions or a market building with an imposing front. But these are the "yellow primrose" observers, "A church is but a church to them and it is nothing more." And now where is the locality of this old, old church. I have spoken heretofore of the delightful route to Swillington, of the rural beauty of Oulton and the advantage of situation which Woodlesford possesses. Well, adjoining the Oulton estate is another lordly domain (once I believe a Royal domain), comprising a large and beautiful park luxuriant with trees of finest growth and most varied in kind. The two neighbouring parks (Oulton and the one of which I am speaking) are scarcely a mile apart and in the distance seem almost like one. In the park is a stately mansion not at present occupied except by a caretaker, its owner preferring, we must suppose, a London or Continental residence to dwelling among his own people. It has in consequence a sadly forlorn appearance, and truly may the noble owner say as he sees it in its present condition—

"Through thy battlements......the hollow winds whistle,
Thou the hall of my fathers art going to decay;
In thy once smiling garden, the hemlock and thistle
Have choked up the rose which late bloomed in the way."

The village which forms the more important part of the estate, is rather fragmentary in character, the larger and connected portion is called Mickletown, another portion Scholey Hill, and the remainder consists of small groups and of detached houses, chief among the latter being the present Rectory House. The former Rectory House, (known as the "Cedars"), the Steward's House, and the "Rose and Crown" Inn, (the principal Inn) all except the Steward's House being situate near the old church about which I am writing, the garden of the public house being in fact, close neighbour to the churchyard. Much of the property belongs to the lordly proprietor of the park and mansion 'the Earl of Mexbro,' who rejoices in "the claims of long descent" from the historical Saviles, but there are various owners of property to break the thraldom of absolute dominion. In the immediate locality there are three Railway Stations each connected with its separate and independent line. The village in its entirety is called Methley, and the church is St. Oswald's. The district is a very pleasant one and has pleasant approaches, the one from Oulton being perhaps most so, and there are also extensive and pleasing views of country towards Swillington and eastwards, but the presence of collieries in and near the locality rather spoils the beauty of the place as well as its surroundings. The church is prettily situate near the public road from which it is seen to advantage.

The original Church is supposed to have been of Saxon origin, but there are no traces of such origin to be found now. The present structure dates from the year 1560. It is in the later English style, and consists of nave, chancel, south aisle, and tower with spire, the tower containing three not very tuneful bells. The chancel is comparatively new, having been rebuilt not very longago. Some of the windows, including the large east window, are of choice stained glass illustrating scriptural subjects and incidents, and above the altar table a chastely executed 'reredos' have been fixed in memory of the late Mr. George Savile, the figure carvings representing the risen Saviour and Mary Magdalene, where, as narrated in the 20th chap. of St. John, He says to her "Touch me not, for I am not yet ascended to my Father," and is in close harmony and connection with the stained glass figure illustrations on the east window just above.

At the east end of the aisle and communicating with the chancel is a chapel called, the "Waterton Chapel," containing monuments of the Waterton and Savile families some of them very old and most of them of fine workmanship. Among them is one of the first Earl of Mexbro' in his robes, and another represents an earlier member of the Savile family and his lady, while among the older ones are effigies of Lord and Lady Wells on a tomb of alabaster. Above these are hung tattered banners and armour used during the wars of the roses at Towton, in which some of the Waterton family took part, and outside the Church, over the entrance porch on the south side is a statue of Oswald, the patron saint and Saxon king. The old stone-work of the exterior is very prettily relieved by a partial covering of ivy, but in surveying the tower and spire, the eye is somewhat offended by the absence of one of the grated windows in the bell chamber, and the substitution of rough boarding, which it is to be hoped is intended to be a very temporary arrangement. Here is surely enough to gratify alike the archeologist, the student of history, and the religious devotee, and to make a visit to the place extremely interesting to those in whom the instincts of reverence and veneration have any existence at all. The living is in the gift of the Duchy of Lancaster (does Mr. Bright know this) and is held by the Hon. and Rev. Philip Yorke Savile, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, brother to the Earl of Mexbro', who has held it many years. It is a rich benefice, being worth close upon £1000 a year with residence, in addition to nearly 400 acres of glebe land, allotted in lieu of tithes.

The musical part of the services at this church will compare favourably with that of most village churches. A new organ was introduced about 8 or 9 years ago, and is fixed in a separate chamber projecting from the north side of the chancel. The player, Mr. C. Teale, is a young resident who has only held the post of organist for a short time, but has acquired considerable efficiency. The choir-master, Mr. G. Atkinson, is also a native of Methley and a resident, and is a devoted musician, with whom musical duties are more a pleasure than a routine task, and the choir is fully competent to do the work required of it—which includes an anthem occasionally—in a satisfactory manner, although there is sometimes that lack of precision which is not unfrequently found in village choirs, by reason of irregular attendance at practices and lack of greater individual skill and care. I need scarcely say it is a surpliced choir, but I must also add that it receives valuable auxiliary aid from several young ladies, who, by arrangement, occupy the front pew in the nave flanking the choir, and are of it without being in it.

I wonder who in this district, and in many places outside it, does not know something of the Hon. and Rev. Philip Yorke Saville? If they have not seen him or heard him in his church at Methley, they will know him or have heard of him as a most interesting entertainer on the concert platform or elsewhere, when there is any church work or town or village project which has his sympathy to promote, interpreting with rare felicity the facetious elements of a humourous selection in prose or poetry, or relating a funny tale with a colouring and elaboration drawn from his own resources of wit and humour, or giving the key note of success in a bazaar or a flower show opening speech, which puts everybody in good humour at once. With unfailing cheerfulness and manners unconstrained by the pride of birth or aristocratic connections, he has a hearty word or a joke for all, while his failings, such as they are—and who is exempt from failings—seem only like a back ground, giving greater prominence to his good parts.

Nature never intended him to be a "parson." As a lawyer he would have made the dryest case interesting. As a doctor (supposing that profession not to be below the dignity of an earl's son) he would have joked his patients into convalescence and excused the fee; and had he by fortune's good pleasure, been Earl of Mexbro', what eagerly looked for re-unions his rent dinners would have been, with himself at the head of the table dispensing his after-dinner fun as an acceptable dessert, and ordering "extras" all round with ungrudging liberality.

While saying this much, it is fair to state that he is not wanting in appreciation of the responsibilities of his office, and under the restraining influence of increasing and domestic bereavements indicated by the less sprightly gait and the grey hairs, those responsibilities seem to sit more heavily upon him.

As I have already indicated he is a charming reader, and it is worth a visit to the church just to hear him read the liturgy or the lessons. His sermons are in manuscript and he reads them in the most literal sense of the term. They are chiefly exhortations and contain nothing particularly striking or original, but the delivery seems to give force to the subject, and to draw the attention of the listener.

Mr. Saville does not perhaps cherish any very decided high church notions, but his curate, the Rev. Thos. Ripley, a worthy and an energetic co-adjutor, has been partly trained in a ritualistic "school" and travels in that direction as far as he can, carrying Mr. Savile with him perhaps through involuntary acquiescence on his part; or it may be, because of the not unfrequent absence of the latter the curate has a clearer field for action, while the Rector necessarily exercises a less active and minute supervision.

Mr. Savile has held the benefice attached to this interesting old church many years as I have before stated, and I am sure those who know him only as a casual entertainer on the platform, or merely by repute, and who are not of his parish will wish as heartily as the people of Methley do that he may yet long occupy the position with all the enjoyment of life that his buoyant nature is capable of still, finding opportunity amid more serious duties to address the 'skittish fancy' with facetious tales, and to interest and gladden by his marked individuality and his ready wit.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—Fair trade passing in wheat to-day, at an advance 6d. to 1s. per qr. Maize also 6d. higher. Beans, peas, and oats steady. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—We had a larger supply of fat beasts on offer to day, including 12 pens of Canadian cattle, the remainder being Lincolnshire, Irish, and north country beasts. The quality generally was extremely good, and a moderate clearance was effected, there being a decline of about a farthing per lb. on last week. The sheep and lambs were fewer in number, and for mutton dealers had to accept a reduction on late rates.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	2000	last week,	1730
,, sheep	,,	5640,	,,	6100
,, milch cows &c	,,	80,	,,	108

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 8d to 8½d per lb.
Fat calves, 8½d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts, £10 to £16 each.
Milch cows, £16 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8d to 8¾d per lb.
Lambs, 11d per lb
Pigs, small, 15s to 21s.
,, store, 40s to 60s.
,, fat, 7/0 to 7/6 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield Corn, Friday, 12.45 p.m.—The weather until yesterday has been somewhat more favorable for the growing crops, but wheat continues very firm, and in the moderate business passing this morning a small advance is generally paid. Maize again sixpence per qr. dearer. Beans and oats steady.

ANOTHER DOUBLE MURDER IN IRELAND.

Another dreadful crime is reported from Ireland. Mr. J. H. Blake, J.P., of Rathville, Kiltullagh, agent for the estate of the Marquis of Clanricarde, and a servant man named Kane were murdered in broad daylight yesterday, on a public road, as they were driving to Loughrea. Mr. Blake was accompanied by his wife. The murderous plan was similar to that adopted when Mr. Burke and the soldier were the victims. They were fired at from behind the hedge, or loopholed wall, it is not certain which, by five or six men who were there concealed. Master and man were killed instantly. As soon as possible the police were scouring the country, but without finding any clue to the assassins. Mrs. Blake was slightly wounded.

THE EXECUTION OF GUITEAU.

The execution of Guiteau for the murder of President Garfield takes place to-day. He is reported to have declared himself ready to meet his fate, but has violently denounced President Arthur and the officials connected with the trial.

ROTHWELL C. C. 1st ELEVEN v. NEXT FIFTEEN

The above interesting match was played last Saturday in the Cricket Field, Royds Green Lane, and ended in favour of the eleven. The fifteen defended the wicket during the first part of the game, but the bowling of T Dobson proved so effective that no stand whatever was made, his average is 1.6. R Whiteley and G Gibson also show up well in the trundling department, the former averaging 2·3 the latter 2. T Dobson made a capital catch at square leg which disposed of H Richardson. The fielding on both sides was generally good, J W Chadwick being especially prominent for the fifteen, he also shows well in the bowling, taking 4 wickets for 20 runs. R Newbould has the best average taking 4 wickets for 6 runs; T Swift very creditably acquitted himself behind the wickets. T Bennett was the highest scorer for the fifteen, with 9. A Ward was again top scorer for the eleven, with 21 not out.

MARY GRAHAM'S LAMENT.

In a tract published by Reuben Holder in 1840, (which has now become rare) giving an account of colliery explosions in this neighbourhood, appear the following verses, purporting to be composed by Mary Graham, on the loss of her husband and children in the fearful mining catastrophe commonly known as the "Grime's Misfortune," which happened on April 19th, 1797, at Rothwell Haigh, near Leeds. It is not presented to our readers as faultless in composition or even in rhyme, but it has a certain ring of poetry about it, and we believe it will interest those for whom it is intended, and who can enter into the feelings expressed. The pathetic lament of the wife and mother, suddenly and without a moment's warning deprived of her beloved ones is heart-rending and natural.

"Hear doleful dales and murmuring brook;
Where gentle streams do glide;
Oppress'd with grief and pining smart,
O for a secret shade.

That I may tell how long I mourned
The loss of my dear son,
But O alas! that is not all,
My sorrow's now begun.

Too soon the woeful hour appears,
That brought sad news to me,
That warlike, sulphury fire-damp
Has slain my family.

It's robb'd me of my jewels all,
Which once so bright did shine,
And I like Job am left to mourn,
And sorrow out my time.

Since then there's none my pain to know,
No, none can sympathise;
My heavy heart and panting breast,
Witness these streaming eyes.

Sleepless nights and restless days,
My wandering to and fro;
But O, I'll call them once by name,
And then I'll bid adieu.

And first my Tom, my dear son Tom,
My bright and morning star,
His countenance compared to gold,
But it exceedeth far.

O that I'd died with thee my love,
When thou a martyr was,
My eyes had miss'd the grief I've seen,
Which since hath come to pass.

O! now my John, my son thou art,
Thy name was dear to me;
My heart o'erflows with floods of woe,
When I reflect on thee.

The reptiles feeding on thy flesh,
It rends my heart in twain;
But O alas! what can I do,
My tears must flow in vain.

But O! my Bill, my joy, my dear,
The life of my delight;
The morning stars that do appear,
Do not shine half so bright

As did thy charms to me, my love,
Thy blooming looks so gay;
But thou art gone, thou took thy flight—
Thou'st vanished quite away.

Now Ashur, Ashur, my sweet lamb,
Thy name perfumes my heart,
The sorrow that I feel for thee
Is like a poison'd dart.

Thy well-wrought frame so delicate,
Thy gestures all so neat,
Thy heavenly soul to rest is gone,
Thy happiness to complete.

O Longbottom, my dear youngest son,
The youngest son of ten,
But thou art with thy brethren gone,
To join the seraphic song.

But who can bear the striking thought,
My tongue can not express,
No: drops of tears can never show,
Nor make my sufferings less.

But are my sorrows ended here?
No, no, I have to tell,
My husband's with my children gone,
Into the earth's dark cell.

And shall I e'er find comfort more,
No, no, that ne'er can be;
My earthly sun's for ever set,
It's a dark world to me.

O Rothwell Haigh! thou matchless foe,
Thou gained thy base design,
Thy greedy jaws have swallowed up
The flower of all mankind.

And though their bodies are laid low,
No power could them confine,
Their souls are gone where Jesus is,
With saints and angels join'd.

In vain the birds do strive to sing,
Or raise their notes so high,
The music warbles in their throats,
Would echo to the sky.

In vain the flowers that deck the fields,
They're all alike to me,
I am bereaved of all my joys,
And my sweet company.

For further particulars of this and other accidents see the 'History of Rothwell,' pp 181-184, written and published by Mr John Batty, F.R.H.S., in 1877.

The Contractors for the Sewage Works having completed the laying of the main sewer, anyone wishing to connect their property with such main sewer can do so upon giving to the surveyor, Mr Worth, three days' notice of their intention. It would be well if property owners would take advantage of this opportunity, as then the main sewer will be fulfilling the purpose for which it was constructed, namely, draining the property in the manner prescribed by the Local Government Board. The work will of course be done under the superintendence of the Inspector by Messrs. Brayshaw and Co.

We hear that their Royal Highnesses the Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud, of Wales have enrolled themselves as Members of the Humane Society established in connection with Little Folks. The July Part of this Magazine, in addition to the names of their Royal Highness, contains the names and addresses of between four and five thousand new Officers and Members. The Little Folks Humane Society, which was inaugurated at the commencement of the present year, now numbers nearly twelve thousand Officers and Members, and a large number of children are daily joining its ranks. We cordially recommend this interesting work to all children and persons taking any interest in the training of kindness to animals.

Recipe for Oatmeal Drink by the late Dr. Parkes.—"The proportions are a ¼lb. of oatmeal to two or three quarts of water, according to the heat of the day and the work and thirst; it should be well boiled, and then an ounce or one and a half ounces of brown sugar added. If you find it thicker than you like, add three quarts of water. Before drinking it, shake up the oatmeal well through the liquid. In summer drink this cold; in winter hot. You will find it not only quenches thirst, but will give you more strength and endurance than any other drink. If you cannot boil it you can take a little oatmeal mixed with cold water and sugar, but this is not so good; always boil it if you can. If at any time you have to make a very long day, as in harvest, and cannot stop for meals, increase the oatmeal to ½lb. or even ¾lb., and the water to three quarts if you are likely to be very thirsty. If you cannot get oatmeal, wheat-flour will do, but not quite so well." Those who tried this recipe last year found that they could get through more work than when using beer, and were stronger and healthier at the end of the harvest. Cold tea and skim milk are also found to be better than beer, but not equal to the oatmeal drink.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

Poor Mr. Price! while I've been enjoying myself, to learn from No. 449 R. T. that he has so suddenly passed away. Apparently strong, active, healthy, and likely to live many years, and now (so fickle and transient is life) already a fortnight dead! Your remarks on the deceased gentleman will be fully endorsed by all who knew him, and it is not to be wondered at that people are asking doubtingly, where a suitable successor can be found.

It is said that so indecently hasty have some persons been as regards the appointments held by the late Collector for Rothwell, that one application actually arrived previous to the funeral, and before anything could be known either of duties, conditions or salary. As regards the Board's collectorship, there seems to be a general feeling that, if possible the late Mr. Price's clerk should be retained either as collector or assistant; there are several applicants, it is believed, but as canvassing is strictly prohibited there is little certainly known. The guardians' appointment is also sought by several gentlemen, respecting whom rumour guesses which will be the successful one, but it is better, as Josh Billings says "not to prophesy till you know."

I wonder if 'twas but a foolish dream, that the Local Board had bought a water barrel some two months ago, and were not going to incur the displeasure of the shopkeepers this year, as they did last? Yes, it must have been so; they're a long-suffering people at Rothwell. They tell me it's coming, though.

It was with considerable difficulty we could obtain a copy of last week's paper in Woodlesford, the run on them being rather heavy at Rothwell, it is said. This is not right, though; will the proprietors endeavour to give us a fair share, even when there is a larger demand. As Methley Church is to be descanted upon, we should be specially remembered in this matter this week.

Good gracious! but last week's leader was something hilarious. Surely the gentlemen referred to, and so highly applauded, will feel somewhat recompensed by the honorable mention made of them in the public print. I have no fault to find with the joyful strain in which the article is written, but I again warn the enthusiastic supporters of the scheme, including my friend, Mr. Editor, not to be too sanguine. I hear some dark rumours from Oulton Hall, and also from the office of the North-Eastern. Already it is said that petitions are lodged against the Bill in the House of Lords, and though the worst is probably over, it may still go hard with this scheme, which Rothwell people think so much about. My attention has been very fascinatingly drawn to the last paragraph in the said ebullition, and as banquets are a favourite way with me of passing a pleasant evening, will the master of the ceremonies kindly leave a seat and 'menu' for

QUID NUNC.

THE LATE MR. PRICE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Newton Lodge, Weston-super-Mare,
Somersets,
June 23rd, 1882.

Dear Sir,

I wish to express by means of your columns the gratitude which Mrs. Wooler and myself (in common with other relatives) feel towards all their kind friends who both by closing their places of business and attending at the funeral, shewed the great respect they felt for our dear father, so suddenly and unexpectedly taken from us.

We felt sure beforehand that Mr. Price was both well known and much respected in the neighbourhood. But the attendance of so many, not only as private individuals, but also as representatives of public bodies, testified a regard greater than we anticipated, and that regard has been shewn further by letters of sympathy and condolence. In short, the great sympathy then shown does much to lighten the severe weight of the blow which we cannot but feel, and Mrs. Wooler only regrets that the great distance, combined with other things, hindered her from following the remains of her dear father to his resting place, and from witnessing with her own eyes how her great sorrow was shared by others. I very much regret that attention to other matters hindered me from writing this letter till too late for insertion in this week's paper, and I was only able to send a telegram expressing our feelings. Hoping you will kindly insert this letter,

I remain,
Yours truly,
W. UPTON WOOLER.

P.S.—I would take this opportunity of saying that any wishing for cards can obtain the same by applying to Mr. Turner, who will gladly supply them.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Would it not be a graceful action on the part of the many old pupils and friends of the late Mr. W. Price, if a movement was set on foot with the object of providing a memorial of some description such as a headstone? I should have great pleasure in contributing toward such an object, should this hint be acted upon.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
AN OLD SCHOLAR

[We should be exceedingly pleased to act as the intermediary for securing a committee to carry out this appropriate suggestion. Ed.]

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

A SKILFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson, has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Prof. Billroth, of Vienna, which, wonderful to tell, consisted in the removal of a portion of the human stomach, involving nearly one-third of the organ—and, strange to say, the patient recovered—the only successful operation of the kind ever performed. The disease for which this terrible operation was performed was cancer of the stomach, attended with the following symptoms:—The appetite is quite poor. Their is a peculiar indescribable distress in the stomach, a feeling that has been described as a faint "all-gone" sensation; a sticky slime collects about the teeth, especially in the morning, accompanied by an unpleasant taste. Food fails to satisfy their peculiar faint sensation, but on the contrary, it appears to aggravate the feeling. The eyes are sunken, tinged with yellow; the hands and feet become cold and sticky—a cold perspiration. The sufferers feel tired all the time, and sleep does not seem to give rest. After a time the patient becomes nervous and irritable, gloomy, his mind filled with evil forebodings When rising suddenly from a recumbent position there is a dizziness, a whistling sensation, and he is obliged to grasp something firm to keep from falling. The bowels become costive, the skin dry and hot at times; the blood becoming thick and stagnant and does not circulate properly. After a time the patient spits up food soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Oftentimes there is palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease Towards the last the patient is unable to retain any food whatever, as the opening into the intestines becomes closed, or nearly so. Although this disease is indeed alarming, sufferers with the above-named symptoms should not be nervous, for nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand have no cancer, but simply dyspepsia or indigestion, a disease easily removed if treated in the proper manner. The safest and best remedy for the disease is Seigel's Curative Syrup, a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, A J White, Limited, 21, Farringdon Road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. The genuine has "A J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp.

KAY'S LINSEED COMPOUND, Asthma and Bronchitis immediately relieved by it Sold by Chemists.

Cheap Advertising.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

Dr. Bernays, Public Analyst for Southwark, on Cocoa "When does Cocoa cease to be Cocoa? What are we to say to Cocoas containing only 12 to 20 per cent. of Cocoas? If the public would receive advice, a slice of bread and butter with a thin drink of genuine Cocoa would be both wholesomer and cheaper than when thickened and sweetened." To ensure a cup of pure Cocoa use Cadbury's Cocoa Essence, which is thin, refreshing, and three to four times stronger than these adulterated articles

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

HAIR DESTROYER.—21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, W.C.—ALEX. ROSS'S DEPILATORY removes superfluous hair from the face, neck, and arms without effect to the skin, 3s 6d; sent by post in plain covers for 54 stamps.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. Lamplough, 113 Holborn, London.

DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Nervous Depression, Irritability, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Lowness of Spirits, Giddiness, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

As a General Family Aperient Medicine they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for [illegible]

THE OUTLOOK.

The national stock-taking at the end of the first half of the present year was not so unfavourable as for some time previously it had been expected to prove. To begin with the National Balance Sheet. The financial year opens on the 1st of April, and for eleven weeks thereafter the revenue, week by week, was below that of the corresponding period of 1881. This was not a cheerful outlook for the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who not many years ago in one of his Budget speeches described the prosperity of the country as increasing by leaps and bounds. But during the two remaining weeks of the quarter, the revenue recovered itself to a marvellous extent, with the result that the total showed a net increase of £217,000 upon the opening three months of the financial year preceding; and taking the receipts for the twelve months, the revenue was in excess by nearly two millions sterling. As to the quarter, it is of course only one out of four; and no human foresight can provide against the adverse influences which may operate during the next nine months; still, so far as progress has been made, there is ample room for congratulation.

Agricultural prospects are, upon the whole, more propitious than they were last year. The proverb which brackets a dry May and a dripping June may have as little substratum of truth as many old proverbs possess; but the rains in June were not excessive, and with a fine July the farmer will fare better than he has done for many years past. All that the wheat wants now is sunshine to ripen it and dry weather for its in-gathering. Twelve months ago all went moderately well until the middle of August, when a fortnight of almost continuous and heavy rain inflicted incalculable loss upon the agricultural interest of this country. The harvest was a fairly good one, better at all events than several of its predecessors, but the length and violence of the rainstorm prevented its being gathered to its full advantage. Day after day vast banks of cloud, heavily charged with moisture came up from the sea, drenching the cornfields, and depriving the hard-working farmer of many of the benefits of his long year of toil. If the tiller of the soil suffers loss it is inevitable that the effect will be felt upon the tradesmen, with whom the farmer's wife and daughters have so much the less to spend. The shopkeeper, in his turn, with fewer receipts, is compelled to content himself with fewer luxuries, and this cause operating throughout the kingdom, very materially affects the National Revenue. From 1877 to 1880 inclusive, the harvests in Great Britain were much below the average, the worst of those years being 1879. Last year the weather was favourable up to a certain point, that point being however about the most critical of the whole year; and once more the agriculturist was brought acquainted with the truth that sickness of the heart accompanies a long deferred hope.

As to the national prospects in other directions, those of legislation are anything but favourable. Parliament has been in Session five months, and has accomplished practically nothing. Some of the measures mentioned in the Queen's Speech on the 7th February have not been introduced, and it would be hopeless to attempt to bring them in now. The Rules of Procedure, upon which the House began to work within a fortnight of its assembling at Westminster, had to be set aside for the Prevention of Crime Bill, and will now involve an autumn sitting, when possibly greater despatch will be made with them than has hitherto been the case. The outlook towards Egypt completes the horoscope at present. Upon this point there can be no doubt that, whether occasion may or may not arise for intervention, England will permit no interference with the integrity of the Suez Canal and with the freedom of her highway to India.

ACCORDING to a telegram from Alexandria, dated Thursday noon, the President of the Council had received telegrams from the Sultan stating that the British fleet would bombard the fortifications unless the works were immediately stopped. The Sultan, it is added, holds the Khedive and the Ministry responsible for the consequences. Ragheb Pasha replied that the Ministry had telegraphed to Constantinople that demonstrations had been made, in consequence of which the Sultan's permission to resume works on the fortifications was asked. Pending His Majesty's reply, no definite resolution had been adopted. Admiral Seymour will, it is said, delay making a formal demand until the British subjects are on board. The Times correspondent, telegraphing at mid-day, says the ultimatum has been sent, and for the moment operations have ceased. It is, however, uncertain whether they will be permanently discontinued.

A Dublin Correspondent telegraphs that the police have obtained important information with regard to the murderers of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke. Fresh proclamations have been issued offering a reward of £500 for private information as to anyone harbouring them.

THE remains of John Kenny, who was brutally murdered in Dublin at an early hour on Tuesday morning, were interred yesterday. A considerable crowd gathered in the vicinity of the residence of the deceased, but they appeared to be actuated more by feelings of curiosity than of sympathy. The widow of the deceased and two or three other persons were the only mourners. A builder and contractor, named James Carey, was arrested last night on suspicion of being accessory to the murder of Kenny. Carey, who is a powerfully-built man, made a desperate resistance, and gave the police much trouble. Three men have been arrested for entering the house of Mrs. Kenny and threatening that if she dared to give any information as to what she knew about her husband's connection with any society or his associates, she would be made to repent it.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the Board was held on Monday; present, J. Charlesworth, Esq., (chairman), Messrs. W. Hargreaves, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, J. Sanderson, S. Bramley, J. Batty, J. Turner, and the clerk, treasurer and surveyor.

The minutes of last meetings were read and confirmed, including several Committee meetings.

WATER.—Mr. Batty, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, reported the meeting held at Royds Green on June 22nd, when the four members of the Committee, with Mr. Sanderson and the surveyor, inspected the proposed site for a tank or small reservoir. They also ascertained from personal inspection and inquiry at the several houses what quantity and description of water is to be had, and the general result is that in many cases the supply is most unsatisfactory, both as to quality and quantity, while two or three parties who have wells complain of its hardness. The Committee recommended a covered tank and pump at Patrick Green.

Mr. W. Hargreaves said that a look at the kettles used at Royds Green at once shewed the hardness of the water. The only way to give a proper supply was to pump water either from Bushy Cliff or the reservoir at the pit.

Mr. J. Hargreaves asked whether it would not be better to carry water from the reservoir at Wood pit to a tank at Patrick Green, as the source from which the Committee proposed to get water is often dry.

Mr. Oliver did not care for the reservoir water, and believed the Royds Green people preferred the proposal of the Committee. The tank would hold 7,000 gallons, a sufficiency for 17 weeks

The chairman thought as the natural and best way of getting a permanent supply would be from the Wakefield Waterworks when completed, that a simple temporary provision might be made at present.

In reply to the chairman, Mr. Sanderson said he himself had plenty for his cattle; his anxiety was more for others than himself.

Mr. Turner was quite opposed to the committee's proposal, as he considered the source insufficient and faulty, and he agreed with the idea of Mr. W. Hargreaves, to pump from the pit reservoir.

Mr. Bramley asked whether they would be able to lay pipes from the reservoir to the tank without incurring considerable claims for compensation.

Mr. W. Hargreaves recapitulated what he considered the best and cheapest way for the present. The Wakefield Waterworks would be ready shortly, and then a permanent supply would be provided. As he suggested a month since, by Messrs. Charlesworths' permission, he could arrange for a tank of water to be brought up from Nelson Pit, as required, until better provision could be made.

After some further conversation, the chairman said the question was, which is the best water and the cheapest way of getting it. If Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Oliver could guarantee a good supply, perhaps their plan was the cheapest, though, if their tank cost say £30, and the Wakefield works were ready in four years, the tank would then be of little or no use. Should they go in for pumping from Bushy Cliff or the reservoir, there was the cost of pipes, compensation, and pumping. He thought perhaps the best and cheapest way was to bring up a tank of water from the pit reservoir and leave it at Royds Green to fetch from, and supplying another tank when that was empty.

Mr. J. Hargreaves proposed that a temporary arrangement be made with Messrs. Charlesworth's, by which water can be obtained by tap from tanks left on the line at Royds Green; and that the water be analysed as obtained from the reservoir, Bushy Cliff and Patrick Green.

Mr Bramley seconded the resolution which was carried, Mr. W. Hargreaves promising that he would see that Royds' Green was supplied with water.

The chairman thought Royds Green was one of those placed with "....water, water all around

But not a drop to drink."

Mr. Oliver brought up the companion subject of Mr. Lawton's water supply. He stated that Messrs. Bromet and Taylor were ready to meet the Board on this matter by paying one third the cost of laying water to Mr. Lawton's house. As they were aware, Mr. Lawton was corresponding with the Local Government Board, and they had the opinion of the medical officer that the water was not fit to drink. As it would be a costly matter to have an enquiry, he thought it best if the Board could now arrange with Messrs. Bromet and Taylor.

Mr. Sanderson suggested they might go halves with Lord Stourton's agents.

The clerk advised the Board to wait the reply of the Local Government Board

The chairman said this was not on a par with Royds Green, as Mr. Lawton had had an opportunity of making arrangements by getting water in barrels from Beeston pit.

A conversation followed on this subject between the chairman, Mr. Hargreaves and Mr. Oliver, regret being expressed that this way out of the difficulty had not succeeded.

Mr. Sanderson proposed that the clerk write to Lord Stourton's agents, offering to lay the water pipes to Mr. Lawton's and others, on condition of their paying one half the cost thereof.

Mr. W. Hargreaves made an amendment to the same effect, on condition that Lord Stourton paid £30 towards the expense, but that nothing be done till the reply of the Local Government Board is received. Not seconded.

Mr. Oliver seconded Mr. Sanderson's proposal, which was carried, Messrs. J. Hargreaves and Turner voting with them; the other members being neutral.

COLLECTOR.—The Board then proceeded with the consideration of the applications and testimonials form various candidates for the vacant post of collector. There were about 20 applicants, nearly two hours being spent in discussing the subject. It was eventually decided to appoint Mr. A. Marshall collector of rates to the Board.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

In reply to the advertisement of the above Board for a head teacher in the Boys School, there were over 200 applications, which were considered by a committee, the chairman (Mr. Jackson) and the vice-chairman, Mr. Bentley, who reduced the number to twelve; the full Board meets again today, and will still further reduce this number, the six selected candidates to attend personally at a future meeting for final appointment.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

Considerable interest has been evinced in the proceedings of the Board this week, owing to the fact that two officers had to be appointed at the meeting on Wednesday. The death of Mr. Mitchell, returning officer, and of Mr. Price, collector, in the same week, caused vacancies to occur for these two appointments, and there have been many surmises as to who would be elected. A special meeting of the Board was held on Tuesday, when the applications and testimonials were read and considered, there being 48 candidates for relieving officer, and 26 for collector. Of this number four were finally selected, who were written to to attend the meeting on Wednesday. The final result is that Mr. Grange, clerk in Mr. Schofield's office, is appointed successor to Mr. Mitchell; and Mr. Fred Parker, of Stourton, has been elected collector of poor rates for Rothwell and district.

WESLEYAN SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

The anniversary of the Rothwell Wesleyan Sunday School hasbeen celebrated during the week, commencing with services in the chapel on Sunday last. The Rev. R. S. Boulter (lately returned from India, after ten years' misson work) conducted the morning service when there was a moderate attendance. The subject of the discourse was specially suitable for the occasion relating chiefly to the influence of the constitution, habits and life of parents on that of their children, and pointing out the fact that as children inherit the physical characteristics of their parents, so also they receive and exhibit the moral peculiarities of vice or virtue of their progenitors. The sermon was founded on "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge," Ezekiel 18 c. 2 v., and the truth embodied in this proverb was well and fully described.

In the afternoon, the chapel was quite full, the larger portion of the gallery being occupied by the children and teachers, while friends filled up the remainder and the body of the chapel. The organ was supplemented by several string and wind instruments on this occasion. The Rev. Mr. Boulter again occupied the rostrum, and after singing, prayer, and the reading of the scriptures, he delivered a most interesting, amusing, and instructive address on his experiences in India. Great amusement was created by his placing on the reading desk an idol god, Pillyah, a description of whose life was attentively listened to. Mr. Boulter also gave some idea of the aptness and intelligence displayed by Hindoo boys in the mission schools of India. He also shewed a number of articles used in that land, among them being a boy's suit, (?) his bag of books,(?) and other items of interest.

In the evening, the chapel was again well filled, the Rev. C. A. Collingwood conducting the service, and preaching an excellent and useful sermon from the text "She hath done what she could."

The singing through the day was conducted by Mr. C. Ward, with his usual ability, and was throughout rendered in a very satisfactory manner. The total amount of the collection was £7 16s. 2d.

On Wednesday last, the usual outdoor festival was to be held, but as is so often the case, the weather intervened, and seriously spoiled the joys of the long expected day. The company of scholars and teachers, headed by the banner, issued from the school about two o'clock, and proceeded up Butcher Lane, down Marsh Road, up Commercial Street, to the Cross, and thence to school again. They sang at several places on the route, as is usual, Mr. Ward leading, assisted by several friends with instruments. Unfortunately, before the procession had completed the round, a heavy shower came on, but it soon cleared off, and they proceeded on their way. It was pitiable, however to see the otherwise happy faces tinged with sadness, their clothes wet, and doubts expressed as to the expected treat in the field.

Arrived at the School-room, the little ones were soon arranged in their places, and the sadness of the past and fears of the future were alike banished in the enjoyment of the present, as the good things for the body were handed out, and eagerly discussed. Some of the elder scholars spent a short time in the field but owing to the constant showers, little pleasure could be gained, and after an hour or two, they returned to the School-room. The public tea was well patronised, and very few provisions left to reduce the full amount intended to be realised. After tea, games were indulged in the school, and the usual hurrahs given. At eight o'clock the distribution of buns took place, and the children dispersed to their homes, with the promise of the "field" on some more propitious day. The elder scholars and teachers contined the games in the school-room for some time longer, and broke up about nine.

ANCIENT CARVED STONES IN THE PARISH CHURCH, ROTHWELL.

(From the Yorkshire Archæological and Topographical Journal.)

There are only two stones visible; they are oblong in shape and firmly built into the old inner walls of the church in separate places, though near to each other. One is south of the tower and easily accessible, but the other is in a very awkward position, being at the bottom of the south-aisle wall at the west end, with a pew in front of it.

They appear to have been completely hidden by a thick coating of plaster, the cavities being filled up and levelled in a line with the wall, and it is only by mere accident they have been partially uncovered, the larger one for an unknown period, the other within the last twenty years, when several new perpendicular windows were put in. At the same time the ancient piscina was exposed, and, when bared, the masonry near it showed signs of Saxon construction. The late vicar, the Rev. John Bell, who was endowed with antiquarian tastes, ordered them to remain uncovered, believing they had some connection with an Anglo-Saxon church. The fact of their being concealed strengthens the idea that they were not inserted so much for preservation, as for filling up stones shaped and ready to hand. No doubt this was done when the inner wall was rebuilt, which is certainly one of the oldest parts of the present structure, dating from the fourteenth century.

With a view to a thorough examination of the stones, all the surrounding plaster has been chipped off, and the lime in the crevices of the carving has been removed, so that the whole is now completely bared; but the stones are evidently incomplete and fragmentary, being broken on the left. The smaller one is 28 inches long, the larger one 34 inches; both are 8 inches broad; they are embedded in the wall 10 to 12 inches. The sculpture on the face of the smaller one consists of four round-headed arches in relief, one being nearly obliterated, and upon it are marks of fire, which are found also on other stones in close proximity, confirming the tradition of the burning of the church. Within the compartments, the work is alternately incised and in relief, consisting of conventional ornaments and a representation of a dragon, or lizard-shaped animal, with a curiously interlaced tail, barbed at the ends, the whole bearing a strong resemblance to Celtic work. This stone is carved in the oldest style. The other, which is the more interesting and suggestive of the two, is carved entirely in relief, and the four arches are wider than on the other, and spring from a tree-like trunk or buttress. Alternately monsters of bird and animal form, occupy the arcades. Very noteworthy is one of the bird figures, seeming to struggle with a serpent which it holds firmly in its mouth and claws; a winged four-footed beast, propably a griffin, fills up the arch-way on the extreme right. No runes or characters appear on the front of the stones, and permission not having been granted to take them out, it remains uncertain whether there are any inscriptions on any other part of them. Their grain and texture are quite different from any other stones in the church, nor are there any other carvings which appear to date from so remote a period. It is doubtful whether the ornamentation is otherwise than fanciful or decorative, but if religiously symbolical, the contest between the serpent and the animal may typify the struggle of the creature under the coils of sin: the knotted snakes, the powers of evil: the tree-like objects, the "Tree of Life": the monsters possibly may have reference to the passage, "Thou breakest the heads of the dragons in the waters."

It is plain, however, that these sculptured slabs were intended to lie horizontally, though whether as a running frieze on the sides of a tomb, or forming the base of a font, or a cross, or as mere bands for wall decoration, it is difficult to come to an opinion on account of the absence of the connecting pieces. It is to be hoped that in some future restoration of this part of the church, which must take place in a few years, the missing links may be found.

Photographs of plaster casts of these interesting relics have been submitted to the eminent archæologists Professor Stephens of Copenhapen, Canons Raine and Greenwell, and the Rev. J. T. Fowler, whose valuable opinions are embodied in this paper The three latter are unanimous in asserting the carving to be Anglo-Saxon from the 7th to the 11th century. The first named gentleman characterises the style of the work as "Kelto-Northumbrian."

JOHN BATTY, F.R.H.S.

(The above casts will be exhibited in Mr. Marshall's window next week, previously to being presented to the Leeds Corporation Museum.)

WOODLESFORD PARSONAGE HOUSE.

Donations to the amount of £1,145 2s. 0d. have been already received or promised for the Parsonage House Fund.

We have been given to understand that in the event of the promoters being able to raise £500 more, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners will meet this sum with a grant of £500. They venture, therefore, again to appeal for assistance in endeavouring to raise this amount, towards which the additional donations of £100 each have been generously promised by Sir Chas Lowther, Bart., H. Bentley, Esq, and J. Towlerton Leather, Esq.

The Trustees hope that some portion of the above moneys may be devoted to the augmentation of the Living, which is at present £150 per annum. They will be happy to receive any special sums for this object, which they trust will meet with general approbation.

Subscriptions may be paid into the National and Provincial Bank at Leeds; or to the Vicar and Churchwardens.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.—Sam Greenwood, joiner, Rothwell, and Francis Penrose, labourer, Hunslet, were charged at Wakefield, last Monday, with being drunk and disorderly in Commercial Street, Rothwell, on the 24th of June. They were fined 2s 6d each and costs. The case was proved by P.C. Clark and P.C. Wilson.

ATTEMPT TO COMMIT SUICIDE.—On Wednesday, Robert Hunter, (26), hawker, of Hunslet, was brought up at the above court charged with being drunk and attempting to commit suicide. On Monday, July 3rd, he was drunk at Thwaite Gate, and on the constable threatening to take him to Wakefield, he pulled off his coat and threw himself into the river Aire near the locks at Thwaite Gate, and was with difficulty rescued and restored to consciousness. He was remanded till to-day.

MARKETS.

LOFTHOUSE v. OULTON.

Played on Oulton Green on Saturday last. The visitors turned up with a good team, and winning the toss, elected to bat. Four of their number succeeded in obtaining double figures, A France's patiently contributed 11 being the most noteworthy. Inman bowled splendidly. The patient and careful batting of some of the home team won the match in grand style. Subjoined is the score:—

"REVIVAL AND REVIVAL WORK."—We beg to call the attention of our readers to a new work by the Rev. John Macpherson, entitled "Revival and Revival Work, a record of the labours of D. L. Moody and Ira D. Sankey and other evangelists." In the narrative of the recent revival embodied in these pages the re-publication of such details as have already been given to the public has been as far as possible avoided, while a considerable amount of fresh matter, illustrative of the work of grace, has been introduced, and the discussion of evangelistic work generally has been fully brought out. The writer commences by a dissertation on what constitutes revival, after which he glances at the revivals of former days, mentioning amongst others those of Knox, Wesley, Whitfield, Dr. Andrew Thompson, Thomas Chalmers, &c. The general features of Moody and Sankey's work, its rise and progress, are vividly sketched, such as the marked increase of the spirit of unity and unanimity among christians of the various evangelical denominations, and the comparative absence of excitement and extravagance; the immense number of young persons religiously trained who were converted, and the large numbers of young men generally who were embraced in the movement. One especial feature of the revival is shown to be that it has not resulted in the formation of new sects, but the existing churches have been materially increased, which has given an extraordinary impulse to christian work in all its departments. The book is published by Morgan and Scott at 1s 6d, 2s 6d and 4s 6d, is handsomely got up, and well worthy of perusal by persons of all sects. May be obtained at A. Marshall's Rothwell.

ROTHWELL HAIGH MUTUAL ACCIDENT SOCIETY.—A general meeting of the above society was held last Tuesday evening, in the Mechanics' Institute, Mr. W. Hargreaves in the chair. The meeting was very noisy and unruly, but after some time it was agreed to have the trip this year to Blackpool. Afterwards the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with and a report of the past year's doings was read, from which we find the society to be in a flourishing condition, having added over £300 to the reserve fund.

DURING this noon, the Oulton policeman visited the houses of nine Rothwell lads who have been taking peas, the property of Mr. Flint, farmer, Oulton. It appears that the lads have been employed by Mr. Flint during the last day or two to pull peas, and as their employer was not at home to pay them this morning, they adopted the novel idea of "taking it out," for which they will probably have to appear at Wakefield.

DURING a violent storm yesterday afternoon, a house in Commercial Street, near the Cross, the property of Mr. George Armitage, of Robin Hood, occupied by Edwin Taylor, was partly unroofed by a flash of lightning; fortunately no one was passing at the time or something more serious might have had to be reported.

DEATHS.

SHARPHOUSE.—June 30th, aged 65, Pheobe, the beloved wife of Joseph Sharphouse, Thorp-on-the-Hill, Wakefield.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE struggle for the collectorships is over, and the many suitable and unsuitable gentlemen who applied for them now know the result, and with more or less equanimity will have to settle down again to everyday matters. The appointment under the Local Board on Monday evening will, no doubt, meet with general approval; it would have been very unsatisfactory to Rothwell ratepayers, one would imagine, to have any gentleman out of the Board's district, selected by their representatives in preference to a resident and a ratepayer. The treasurer to the Board cannot be a very unlikely person to become collector, and of course, he will resign the former appointment. It has not yet transpired who will succeed Mr. Marshall as treasurer, but rumour points to a banker. If this is so, considerably more labour and responsibility will be thrown on the clerk and collector, and some disadvantage will accrue to those doing business with the Board, though on the other hand, there will be a little saving to the rates.

THE appointment of assistant overseer and collector of poor rates has, by the decision of the Guardians on Wednesday, been separated from the Board's officer, and the two distinct though hitherto conjoint offices are now held by two individuals, the one living in Rothwell, the other at Stourton. While Mr. Fred Parker is doubtless very eligible for the post to which he has been appointed, there is, of course, some feeling of disappointment that a Rothwell man has not been selected. At the same time, Mr. Parker is in the district, though at its extremest limit, and the Stourton people will have the satisfaction and honour of having not only the chairman, and one of the oldest members of the Board of Guardians living in their midst, but also one of the Board's officers.

There are various rumours current as to some changes which may follow these elections, but many of these are unfounded and few can be relied on a all.

WHERE are the police on a Sunday morning? While decent Christian people are sitting at breakfast, the air is contaminated with the sacrilegious cries of "mackerel" or "whitings" as the case may be, and yet another fellow has followed with the reminder that he has "water cress" for sale. Why should our peaceful Sabbath rest be disturbed by these vile fellows desecrating our quite villages by such a criminal breakage of the law? Is it lawful for these men to come out of the town, where they dare not do it, and still to ply their calling in the country, where no one seems prepared to stop them? By all means, Mr. Sergeant, let us have this business stopped; it is a disgrace to us all.

THERE were no fewer than 206 candidates for the mastership of Woodlesford Board Schools, a bad look out for the profession; the Government may well try to cut down the number of pupil teachers allowable in a school, and prefer the assistants who are already so numerous. By the bye, it has transpired that there were some three or four or more gentlemen in the scholastic profession whose names appeared in the lists for the appointments held by the late Mr. Price.

WHAT a poor lifeless state of things we are getting into at Woodlesford; idle mills, empty houses, ruinous cottages, half filled places of worship, complaining shopkeepers; what can be done to bring about a better state of things. I hope the Rothwell railway, while it raises our elder sister to the dignity of a town, will also lift Woodlesford to a higher and more animated condition.

IT seems, the Woodlesford Parsonage Fund is still going on, and that there are fair hopes of the requisite amount being obtained. Good luck to those who are working it, especially as the subscriptions are principally from gentlemen able to give it without feeling the pinch of self-denial, and have money which could not be devoted to a much better object. The augmentation of the living ought also to be taken up by the church people of the village and district.

THAT last contribution on "Village churches" is really A1. The descriptive power exhibited by the writer as well as his acquaintance with and truthful critique on the Vicar himself surpass all his previous disquisitions, and it is to be hoped he is a long way from completing his round of visits not only to village churches, but also to village chapels. Let him take the hint.

QUID NUNC.

"A DAY IN THE COUNTRY."

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

SIR,

Last year some of your readers were generously led to help us provide a Day's Excursion into the country for 500 poor girls and boys who attend the Hackney Juvenile Mission Ragged School.

The Committee hope to be able to take at least as many children this summer, and would be glad if your readers will assist and practically participate with them in this pleasure by sending donations towards this Eleventh Annual Day in the country, to either the Hon. Manager, MR. J. NEWMAN, 226. Dalsten Lane; H. M. HEATH, Esq., 54, Cazenove Road, Stamford Hill; H. T. GOLDING, Esq., Bury Street, E.C.; E. RUTLAND WEBSTER, Esq., 2, Aldermanbury, E.C.; or to

Yours faithfully,
ATHRO ALFRED KNIGHT, President,
EARLSWOOD HOUSE,
SOUTH HACKNEY, E.

THROAT IRRITATION—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes Glycerine, in these agreeable confections, being in proximity to the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d. and 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—it may, perhaps, interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, L.R.C.P.E. Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth,; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farrington-road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c. Price Twopence.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY
FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

As a GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 13½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

Practical
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
JOHN DYSON,

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints. Let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the Proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 36 stamps.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

N.B.—Full directions are given with each Box.

Rothwell Times,

Friday, July 14, 1882.

THE story of the great sea fight of last Tuesday in the bombardment of Alexandria, recalls to one's mind the doings of the British fleet in the Crimea, and although 27 years have passed since then, and great changes have taken place in the mode and result of such battles, yet our Jack tars manifest the same pluck and courage as before time, and "Britain still rules the waves" The replacement of the "wooden walls of England" by huge iron vessels of strange shapes, and filled with terrible machines of destruction; the fact that we can read graphic accounts of the engagements a few hours afterwards, and that the boom of the guns were heard a thousand miles off through the telephone at Malta, all typify the wonderful advances made by science in this age of ours. As regards the advantage of such advances in warfare, we have grave doubts, but the contrast between the story of Tuesday, as given in another column, and that of Nelson's day, is remarkable. The cause of the fray is that we have to deal in Egypt at this moment not with a "millitary despotism," but with a party of millitary violence, who have taken forcible possession of the government of the country, and who are governing without law, in defiance of the wishes and commands both of the SULTAN and of the KHEDIVE. The continuance of this party in power must be not merely fatal to the interests and the rights of England and other European Powers in Egypt, but must be a standing menace to the peace of all the world. No English Government could continue to exist for a single day which acquiesced tamely in the rule of anarchy set up by these unprincipled and desperate adventurers. Of the risks which are involved in their continuance in power we had a striking example in the deplorable massacre of Europeans of which Alexandria was the scene on the 11th June. It was in order to make a demonstration against these insurrectionary usurpers, and to afford some protection to the great interests of civilisation which are at stake in Egypt, that the ships of war of various European Powers were sent to Alexandria. After their arrival there, ARABI PASHA resorted to measures which were a distinct menace to the fleet, and which it is evident could not have been tolerated without exposing that fleet to the very greatest danger. These measures were sternly forbidden both by the SULTAN and the KHEDIVE, and they were warmly protested against by England. ARABI professed to yield to the orders and remonstrances he had received. Presently, however, it became evident that he was deliberately lying, and that, despite his solemn promises, he was still carrying on the measures he professed to have abandoned. Again and again he was warned of the consequences of continued treachery of this description, and again and again he pledged himself to take no action that should be offensive to us, only to break his word once more. At last a final ultimatum was delivered to him. He could have avoided the penalty with which he was then threatened by simply doing in reality that which, all along, he pretended to be doing. In his infatuation he refused to yield, and the threatened punishment was accordingly inflicted upon him in the bombardment of Alexandria. He has further demonstrated his fiendish, shameless character by deliberately acting contrary to all martial law in moving his army while a flag of truce was flying, and by opening the prison-doors and letting loose on the doomed city, those who were prepared for and actually committed the most fearful atrocities and unrestrained abominations. Surely such a man and such a disgraceful following deserve the strongest protest and the severest punishment, and it is to be hoped that the Government will follow up, as far as may be possible, the action already taken, and by the capture and punishment of Arabi and his army, establish order and law in the land of the Pharoahs, and thereby secure a peaceful continuance of the vast and important commercial interests which we and other European countries have in the ancient country of Egypt.

THE CRISIS IN EGYPT.

(Press Association Telegram, Thursday.)

There is no longer a hostile force in Alexandria. Arabi Pasha has retired with his adherents, after releasing the convicts, and these ruffians have, by pillage, fire, and massacre, made the city a heap of ruins. The whereabouts of Arabi cannot be stated. Admiral Seymour has to-day been instructed not to dismantle the forts or to disable the guns, but, if possible, to open friendly relations with the Khedive for the re-establishment of order in Alexandria, and in the absence of Egyptian authorities with the power to enforce order, to land seamen and Marines for police purposes. If the latest report that has reached the English Admiralty should prove true—that the Khedive and Dervisch are safe on board a ship in the harbour—these instructions to Admiral Seymour may be immediately acted upon, and the English marines and sailors may land and restore order. The question of a landing in force to occupy Alexandria and other parts of Lower Egypt does not appear to be considered urgent, but the preparations are rapidly going forward both in England and India, while Cyprus and Malta are both reproted to be busy; and if the Arabs should menace Cairo or the Canal, a British occupation may become only a matter of days.

In the meantime, Alexandria has been the scene of all the horrors which accompany war. The worst passions of the lowest classes of the mixed population of an African town have had uncontrolled sway, and the people, who have been taught by Arabi's example that might was right, have given themselves up entirely to acts of violence.

From the statements of the newspaper correspondents, as well as from the official despatches and Reuter's telegrams, it is evident that disorder of the most terrible character prevailed in Alexandria from the time of the military evacuation. How far Arabi is directly the cause of the atrocities, and what is the extent of these atrocities, of course cannot yet be accurately known. Mr. Gladstone said in the House of Commons last night that Admiral Seymour would now subdue and disperse the riotous persons, and so we shall soon be in possession of more precise and authoritative information as to the loss of life and destruction of property.

Indeed, according to a telegraphic despatch in the last edition of the Evening Standard, Admiral Seymour has this evening landed a party of six hundred men, three-fourths of whom are marines, to commence the work of restoring order. This last information is confirmed by a Reuter's telegram, so that the Admiral has very promptly acted upon the orders which were sent out after to-day's Cabinet Council. It may be hoped that we have seen the worst of the rioting, but marines and blue jackets will also have to turn their immediate attention to the extinction of the fire, which, last advices say, was greatly extending in the direction of the port. A concentration of Egyptian troops south of the city is believed to exist, and suspicion is felt that the town and forts are mined. The weather is bad in the Mediterranean, and communication between the fleet is difficult.

For full particulars of Tuesday's encounter see page 7.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There is more activity in the wheat trade, on account of the unsettled weather and political complications, and prices are from 2s to 3s per qr. higher. Maize 1s 6d to 2s dearer, and beans 1s more Oats and peas a shade dearer. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2. 34s6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The supply of beef on offer this morning had chiefly been drafted from Ireland and Lincolnshire. The supply being light, dealers succeeded in obtaining a slight advance on last week's quotations. Although there were a greater number of sheep and lambs than last week, prices were decidedly dearer. The weather being more favourable for haymaking, farmers were busy in the hay fields, and the department for lean beasts and milch cows was almost neglected, and very scantily stocked with cattle. There was very little done in pigs, at about last Wednesday's prices.

No. of fat beasts, this week,	1200	last week,	1800
,, sheep ,,	5000,	,,	4500
,, pigs ,,	750,	,,	700

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 7½d to 9d per lb.
Fat calves, 8½d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts, £10 to £15 each.
Milch cows, £15 to £25 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 10d per lb.
Lambs, 11d per lb.

WESLEYAN METHODISM.

The one hundred and thirty-ninth Annual Conference of "the people called Methodists," in the Connexion established by the Rev. John Wesley, A.M., will shortly commence their yearly session in Leeds, and probably some account of this important religious body will at the present time be of interest to the general public, especially as it is now sixteen years since the meeting of this Conference in our immediate vicinity.

As is well known, the united societies of "the people called Methodists" were founded by the Rev. John Wesley, A.M., of Lincoln College, Oxford, who was most ably and zealously assisted by his brother Charles, to whom the Christian public are greatly indebted for a large number of the hymns contained in the Wesleyan Hymn Book. John Wesley was born at Epworth, on June 17th, 1703, where his father, the Rev. Samuel Wesley, was rector. At eleven years of age he was sent to the Charter House School, London; at seventeen he proceeded to Christ Church, Oxford, where he pursued his studies with zeal, assiduity, and success. Ordained a deacon in 1725, he was the following year elected Fellow of Lincoln College, and obtained priest's orders. For a short time he officiated as his father's curate, but in 1729 he returned to Oxford, intending to reside there permanently as a tutor. It was about this period that both he and his brother Charles received deep religious impressions, which were shared by two or three of their fellow-students. Occasionally meeting together for the purpose of assisting and encouraging each other in their studies and religious duties, they also regulated their employments by certain rules. "Here is a new set of Methodists sprung up," said one. The name caught the taste of the members of the University, was thenceforth applied to the little band, and has attached itself to the followers of the Wesley's ever since.

The state of morality at this time was exceedingly low; drunkenness, Sabbath-breaking, profanity and infidelity were rampant, and against such an array of sin, John and Charles Wesley and their friend George Whitfield entered upon their work as converted men and Methodist preachers. Their subsequent labours and successes are too well known to need repetition here. Suffice it to say that, by self-denial, zeal and perseverance, they originated and developed a mighty spiritual movement in Great Britain and America, which has gone on spreading, and will doubtless continue to spread to the end of time. For upwards of half a century John Wesley exemplified without intermission the rule which he gave to his preachers—"Never be unemployed, never be triflingly employed;" rising at the early hour of four o'clock every morning, preaching at five, travelling from place to place, often preaching three times in the same day, carrying on an extensive correspondence, regulating the societies, visiting the sick, writing books, reading, abridging, and modifying the publications of other men, so as to render them available for public use, conversing freely with his friends wherever he went, so that it may fairly be questioned whether any other man was ever known to pass through an equal amount of mental and physical labour. Calm self-possession was undoubtedly one great secret of his power. He was never in a hurry, never confused, but calm and tranquil, having the full command of all his faculties. He told his preachers that they had "nothing to do but to save souls;" and he gave ample proof that this was the one business of his own life. On March 2nd, 1791, at City-road, London, the saintly and heroic spirit of John Wesley passed to the heavenly rest in the eighty-eighth year of his age, and the sixty-fifth year of his ministry.

With regard to the use of Methodism, and the ultimate formation of the "United Societies of the people called Methodists," the following account is from the pen of John Wesley himself, and forms the first two rules of the Wesleyan Methodist Church:—"In the latter part of the year 1739 eight or ten persons came to me in London, who appeared to be deeply convinced of sin, and earnestly groaning for redemption. They desired, (as did two or three more the next day) that I would spend some time with them in prayer, and advise them to flee from the wrath to come, which they saw continually hanging over their heads. That we might have more time for this great work, I appointed a day when they might all come together, which from thenceforth they did every week, viz., on Thursday, in the evening. To these, and to as many more as desired to join with them (for their number increased daily), I gave those advices from time to time which I judged most needful for them; and then always concluded our meeting with prayer suited to their several necessities. This was the rise of the United Society, first in London, and then in other places. Such a society is no other than 'a company of men having the form, and seeking the power, of godliness; united in order to pray together, to receive the word of exhortation, and to watch over one another in love, that they may help each other to work out their salvation.'"

Few things in modern history are more remarkable than the growth and expansion of Methodism. The first Methodist Conference was held at Foundry, in Moor-fields, London, in the year 1744, on which occasion the following persons were present:—John Wesley, Charles Wesley, John Hodges, Rector of Wenvo; Henry Piers, Vicar of Bergley; Samuel Taylor, Vicar of Quinton; and John Meriton, all of whom were clergymen of the Church of England. The subjects of their deliberations were proposed in the form of questions, which were fully discussed and, with the answers in full, were afterwards printed under the title of "Minutes of Several Conversations between the Rev. Mr. Wesley and others." but are now familiarly known as "The Minutes of Conference."

Leaping over the intervening space of time, no fewer than five large conferences of different denominations of Methodists will this year be held in various parts of England (in addition to the numerous foreign conferences) within the space of about two months. Two of these have been in session already, viz., the Primitive Methodist Conference at Sheffield and the Methodist New Connexion Conference at Batley. The remaining three meet as follows:—The Wesleyan Methodist Conference at Brunswick Chapel, Leeds, July 18th; the United Methodist Free Churches at Bristol, July 25th; and the Bible Christians at Plymouth, July 26th. At the time of Mr. Wesley's death, he left behind him in Great Britain, Europe, America, and the West Indies, 312 preachers, 115 circuits, 16 mission stations, and 70,000 members.

It is estimated that at the present time Methodism has not fewer than 100,000 itinerant ministers and local preachers, five millions of full and accredited Church members, and a community composing its congregations of no fewer than twenty millions!

It is ascertained that sitting accomodation is provided in Wesleyan Chapels and other preaching places for about two millions of persons; that is, the parent society in this country. At a fair estimate, between three and four millions of the adult population of this country have received religious instruction in Wesleyan Sunday schools. The last official returns show that upwards of 810,000 children are attending Sunday schools, more than 121,000 teachers being engaged in communicating religious knowledge. The returns of the present year will show a considerable increase on these figures. The progress of Wesleyan Methodism as the mother Church may be partially understood by the fact that during the past year upwards of 56,000 new members have been received, which, after allowing for "wear and tear" in the shape of emigrations, deaths, removals, ceasing to meet, &c., leaves a net increase of 12,674, with 39,300 on trial, and 29,677 young persons meeting in junior society classes; that £292,000 has been expended on church property, chiefly chapel building, for which important work something like five millions sterling have been raised within the last twenty years. The other branches of Methodism exhibit similar growth and expansion. No one can contemplate this vast, wide-spread agency without feeling that from its commencement, Methodism has had the stamp of Divine approval, and without exclaiming "What hath God wrought!"

The condition of membership among the Wesleyan Methodists is meeting in class. Originally no person could be a member of the Methodist society unless he met regularly, but in course of years this has undergone considerable modification, and is far from being strictly acted upon at the present time. A class is defined as a "company having the form and seeking the power of godliness, united in order to pray together, to receive the word of exhortation, and to watch over one another in love that they may help each other to work out their own salvation." Each class is in charge of a leader, who is supposed to possess the necessary gifts and graces for his responsible position. Once a quarter, each of these classes is visited by one of the stationed ministers, for the purpose of ascertaining the spiritual state of each member, and giving to each a ticket of membership. Admission to these class meetings is on a broad basis, the only condition required being "a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins." It is expected, however, of all who continue therein that they shall continue to evince their desire of salvation—1, By doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind; 2, By doing good of every possible sort, and as far as possible to all men; 3, By attending upon the ordinances of God, such as the public worship of God; the ministry of the word, the Lord's Supper, family and private prayer, reading the Scriptures, &c. The reception of persons into full membership is preceded by a period of probation which usually extends over three months, sometimes longer, and certain guards are provided to prevent the introduction of improper persons. On various occasions the Conference has expressed its deep conviction that class meetings are essential to Methodism, and has enforced the necessity of maintaining them in unimpaired efficiency. It has long been felt that something should be done to recognise those who are regular attendants upon Wesleyan Methodist worship, and in many instances communicants, but who have strong objections to the class meeting, and who at present have no church status. But this is one of the questions for the future.

The Wesleyan Methodist Connexion consists of some 723 circuits, worked by a staff of 1,9 0 ministers, including supernumeraries. The Irish Conference is affiliated to the English Conference, and has 135 circuits, and 245 ministers, including supernumeraries. A number of chapels and preaching places grouped together form what is called a "circuit;" a number of these circuits grouped together form what is called a "district." A district is large or small according to the number and size of the circuits of which it is composed.

Each district has its own chairman, who is elected from among the ministers stationed in this district, his business being to take the general oversight of his district, and preside at all meetings of the District Committee. The chairman is annually appointed by the Conference. The annual district meetings, usually held during the second week in May throughout British Methodism, are committees of the Conference, and are virtually District Synods, and as such exercise important functions and do important work.

The highest ecclesiastical court, as well as the only legislative body in Wesleyan Methodism, is the annual Conference, defined and constituted "the Yearly Conference of the People called Methodists," by a Deed of Declaration enrolled by John Wesley in the High Court of Chancery, and bearing the date of February 28th, 1784. In this Deed of Declaration, Mr. Wesley associated with himself and his brother Charles ninety-eight of the preachers connected with him as "the Conference;" provided for the filling up of vacancies in the number, as they should from time to time occur; defined the powers and duties of the Conference; and specified certain conditions and arrangements which are permanently binding. Various attempts have been made to set it aside, but its validity has been confirmed by the highest judicial authorities, and it is justly regarded by Wesleyans as the Magna Charta of Methodism. The Legal Conference thus consists of 100 ministers appointed in accordance with the provisions of this Deed of Declaration. Vacancies occasioned by deaths and superannuations are filled up annually by seniority and nomination alternately. Election by nomination into what is familiarly called "the Legal Hundred" is by Wesleyan Methodists considered a great honour, and, as a rule, only those ministers are chosen who have made their mark either in the home work or on the foreign mission field.

In the election of President and Secretary, the same order is observed as in the election of members into the Legal Hundred on the ground of nomination. There is no canvassing for votes, no speechmaking; each minister present who has travelled ten years is at liberty to write on a slip of paper the name of a member of the Legal Conference whom he deems the most fit to hold these offices respectively; and the Legal Conference is requested to select the minister nominated by the greatest number of the general body. The election is by ballot. The Wesleyan Conference is bound by the Deed of Declaration to assemble every year; the duration of its sessions must not be less than five days nor more than three weeks; forty members of the Legal Conference must be present to give validity to its proceedings.

Without going into any details respecting the work of each department we simply mention the principal heads, viz:—Foreign Missons; Home Missions; Chapel Committee; Extension of Methodism in Great Britain; Metropolitan Chapel Building; the Children's Fund, the Schools Fund; Theological Institutions; Education; District Sustentation; and Worn Out Ministers and Widows Committee. All these departments will come under review, and a report in each case be presented at the forthcoming conference, commencing on Tuesday next in Leeds.

THE RAILWAY FOR ROTHWELL.

The East and West Yorkshire Union Railway Bill passed its first reading in the Lords on Friday, and the Committee will probably commence its sittings on Monday. May we hope that before this month is out, this much prized scheme may be safely out of danger, and the parliamentary difficulties surmounted. We hear that the "junctions" with the Midland and the Great Northern are in a fair way for satisfactory settlement

EXPLOSION AT ROBIN HOOD PIT.

A small explosion of gas occurred this morning at Jane Pit, Robin Hood Colliery, by which two men were slightly burnt. It appears that the two injured men were working together when an outburst of gas from the floor took place, igniting at their candles and burning them a little. The night deputy immediately went to the place after the occurence, but no trace of gas or the effects of the explosion could be found.

Wesleyan S. S. Anniversary.—Wednesday week, being so very unfavorable for outdoor amusements, the children and their friends passed a pleasant evening in the Cricket field on Tuesday last. There was a very large attendance, and games of various descriptions were heartily entered into and continued till the shades of evening began to fall and the field was gradually cleared.

To-morrow, the members and friends of the Rothwell Haigh Mutual Accident Society will have their usual trip to Blackpool. It is to be hoped the weather will be fine, so much depending on our unstable climate for the success of these day trips.

CRICKET.

ROTHWELL 2nd v. WAKEFIELD CHRIST CHURCH.

The return match of the above club was played at Rothwell last Saturday. Owing to the rain which had fallen during the week the wicket was not in a good condition, and consequently no big scores were made, A Ward was top scorer with 17 not out, although it should be stated that he gave an easy chance at mid-on when he had only scored 1, which, however, was not accepted. The bowling of R Newbould deserves special praise, as he has for several weeks had the best average, and on Saturday he succeeded in taking 5 wickets for 10 runs. This is the first match that has been won this season by the 2nd eleven.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do. It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

Epps's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may by gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. ED.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

If the sleepy orientals imagined that the British Lion could only erect his tail and growl, they have learned by now that these are but preliminaries to such an exhibition of all his old strength and pluck, as they have not lately been treated to. Neither Arabi nor the Sultan of Turkey will forget Tuesday's battle in a hurry, and although war is a sad thing at any time, it is sometimes better than peace, if it be the means of preventing wide-spread bloodshed or the breaking down of law and order. It is to be hoped the revolutionary upstart will be captured and punished for his crimes, and that the short but terrible episode before Alexandria may be an ultimate advantage to the government and people of Egypt

So the Prevention of Crimes Bill has at last become law. Now, go in and use it, my masters. Don't let us have any more half measures, but as you have shown Egyptian adventurers what Englishmen will do to uphold right and government in that land, exhibit the same firmness and promptitude of action in poor Ireland.

Although nothing has yet appeared in the papers, it is a fact that the Rothwell Gas Light Co.'s Bill has received the Royal assent and become law. The opposition has doubtless put the Company to a very much greater expense than they would otherwise have had, but let us trust that although this fact will retard the cheapening of Rothwell gas, the wishes of our big sister for a lower rate of gas will be regarded as speedily as possible.

While on this subject, I am reminded of the desolate, dull appearance of Oulton and Woodlesford, as well as Carlton and Lofthouse, in comparison with Rothwell on a winter evening. How long are our authorities going to be before they make a move towards lighting our streets. Coming out of the well lighted thoroughfares of Rothwell into Carlton or Oulton, is like emerging from the home of civilization and advancement into the forests of barbarism and ignorance; like stepping out of the brilliantly illuminated ball-room into the dark country lane. Some people say Carlton is inclined in the direction of improvement. If so, let the Gas Co. and the surveyors of Carlton try to arrange for a few lamps; the mains are already there; there is only the cost of the lamps and of the gas burnt; surely they may manage to get a penny rate for such an advantage.

The Co-operative Store at Rothwell has been pushed on with wonderful rapidity and is now being rapidly slated. But why, in the name of good taste and common sense, why denude the building of every attempt at ornament or beauty. Even the bricks are common, and everthing says cheap, cheap. Well, perhaps that is the motto of the society, but one can think of many stores built by the same society, which show some taste and character; why should Rothwell be made to be satisfied with the plainest, dryest structure possible.

The additional wall letter box put up last week in Wood Lane supplies a much felt want in that populous part of Rothwell, and as it is cleared at 7.40., the time for letter writing is so much further extended to those living in that locality.

The efforts made by the present postal authorities at Leeds should be warmly appreciated, and I am sure will receive the hearty thanks of those benefited. Stourton had the advantage of a morning despatch granted some time ago. Could not Mr. Leal be persuaded to afford Rothwell a mid-day despatch and delivery as well as Woodlesford, if a representation to that effect were presented, either by deputation or petition, or better still, by the Local Board.

QUID NUNC.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples, Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

Cheap Advertising.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

SPECIAL 1s. CASHMERES. Stubbs & Co.'s, 31, New Briggate, Leeds. Patterns Free

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

HAIR DESTROYER.—21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, W.C.—ALEX. ROSS'S DEPILATORY removes superfluous hair from the face, neck, and arms without effect to the skin, 3s 6d; sent by post in plain covers for 54 stamps.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Try your Weight!—Hydroleine (Hydrated Oil) has proved of the highest value as a food in consumption and all wasting diseases, invariably producing increase in flesh and weight. This preparation of Hydrated Cod Liver Oil is tonic, digestive, and ten times more nourishing, as well as far more pleasant to taste than plain cod liver oil. Hydroleine will nourish and produce increase of weight in those cases where oils or fat, not so treated, are difficult or impossible to digest. All tendency to emaciation and loss of weight is arrested by the use of Hydroleine. Of all chemists, 4s. 6d.—Address, "Hydroleine Company," 493, Oxford Street, London. Pamphlet free.

ONE BOX OF CLARKE'S B 41 PILLS

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

World Known—World Tried!!

For strengthening a debilitated constitution, these Pills are more efficacious than any other medicine. Persons of a nervous habit of body, and all who are suffering from weak digestive organs, or whose health has become deranged from whatever cause, should lose no time in giving these Pills a fair trial; their action is immediate, beneficial, and lasting, restoring order, health, and vigor in every case.

For Disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels.

These purifying Pills are confidently recommended as the most simple and certain remedy for Indigestion, Flatulency, Acidity, Constipation, and all Disorders resulting from disordered Stomach or Bowels. They act as purifiers, alteratives, and strengtheners of the stomach. Though powerfully tonic and satisfactorily aperient, they are mild in their operation and beneficial to the whole system.

Weakness and Debility—Nervous Irritability and Low Spirits.

The wholesome effect exercised by these admirable Pills over the Blood and Fluids generally, is like a charm in dispelling low spirits and restoring cheerfulness. Their general aperient qualities well fit them for a domestic medicine, particularly for females of all ages and periods of life. They quickly eject all impurities from the system, and regulate every function of the body, giving wonderful tone and energy to weak and debilitated constitutions.

Old Coughs, Colds and Asthmatic Affections.

These Pills, assisted in their action by rubbing Holloway's Ointment very effectually twice a day on the Throat and Chest, and keeping those parts covered with the preparation, will be found the most effective remedy for Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Influenza. They tranquillize the hurried breathing, soothe the irritated air-tubes, and assist in dislodging the phlegm which stops up the air passages. This treatment has proved wonderfully efficient, in not only curing old settled coughs and colds, but even asthma of many years' standing.

Complaints of Women and Children.

Any mother, nurse, or young person guided by the directions which accompany each box of Holloway's Pills, has at once available means for checking disease, purifying the blood, and expelling from the system all gross humours.

The Pills and Ointment are sold at Professor Holloway's Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London: also by nearly every respectable Vendor of Medicine throughout the Civilized World in Boxes and Pots, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s. and 33s. each.

Full printed directions are affixed to each Box and Pot, and can be had in any language.

N.B.—Advice can be obtained, free of charge, by applying at the above address, daily, between the hours of 11 and 4, or by letter

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY
FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

As a GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 13½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

Watchmaker and Jeweller,
JOHN DYSON,

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor, of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame.—These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints. Let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the Proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 36 stamps.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

N.B.—Full directions are given with each Box.

AUTUMNAL LEGISLATION.

The ministerial determination to hold a sitting of Parliament in the autumn has upon the whole been well received. It is an innovation, no doubt; but in a land as well as in the age of progress, innovations must occasionally be made if pace is at all to be kept with the demands made by the varying circumstances of human affairs. There are many members, no doubt, who will not care for a sojourn in London during portions of the months of October and November. The metropolis is then a place of gloom such as those who have not experienced it can barely realise. November is especially cheerless in the great capital; and Hood's description of it, "No sun, no moon, no morn, no noon," is literally true. As Douglas Jerrold would have said, "The earth seems roofed with the oldest lead," and the dull grey sky contributes to anything but lightness of heart and cheerfulness of disposition. The members of Parliament will in November find the Thames a different-looking stream from the appearance which it presents under the bright sky of a July afternoon. The wavelets of even that turbid stream can sometimes dance and sparkle under the rays of a sun high in the heavens; but when the sun is blotted out by vast masses of grey impenetrable cloud, the river is a sombre, sullen picture, more like the Moldau, so graphically described by Longfellow, and makes its way with grim resolve, seemingly heedless of its fate, and apparently regardless of all consequences, towards the tempestuous waters of the German Ocean.

In other ways the contrast between the ordinary surroundings of Parliamentary life, and life in London during the month of November will be striking and complete. The tedium of legislative existence is now relieved by many a social engagement which it will be then impossible to command. The tired law-giver in the summer time often steals away to a garden party or to some pleasant afternoon picnic up the river, where the ripples of the Thames above the tideway are clear and pellucid, and where the stream murmurs unthinkingly along through quiet country scenes, unconscious that it is hastening to take part in the turmoil of a mighty city. Needless to say, there will be no garden parties in the winter. Then also will be missed those Saturday evening assemblies in the fashionable and political centres—Arlington-street on one side of the contested arena and Carlton House-terrace on the other. The Lords will not be required to discuss new rules of Parliamentary Procedure in the Commons, so they will be at their country seats and not in London. Again, in these early summer mornings the House often sits until daylight has spread from St. Paul's in the east to the clock tower in the west, and when the fresh and merry sunshine, streaming in through the windows renders the brilliantly-lighted ceiling a superfluity, and necessitates the turning down of gas. Nor is it a disagreeable experience to issue forth from a heated Parliamentary atmosphere into the cold air of the morning, as it blows pure and untainted from the country over sleeping London. Inside the walls of its spreading square miles of houses streets, and squares, nearly four millions of people are at rest, not yet awakened to another day of life and labour. No smoke from its myriads of chimneys deadens the silent air, and the footfall of an occasional solitary wayfarer tends but to render the quietude all the more impressive. It is like, for the time, a city of the dead. By and bye, when the full tide of activity is again sending the traffic through the main arteries of London, it is difficult to conceive that the sun which is shining upon so much life at midday rose upon a scene so preternaturally calm. There will, however, be no such accessories as morning sunshine with an autumn sitting. There will be no sun, but there will be November.

Still, at whatever cost of inconvenience Parliament will meet to consider its rules, with a view to their revision and a despatch of business. Some of these rules are not adapted to the requirements of the present day. Many were made in the days of the Stuart kings; others in the time of Queen Anne, and before the succession of the House of Hanover to the throne of Great Britain. Let us imagine for a moment other conditions of life applied in the present day as they were 150 or 200 hundred years ago. How should we like our modes of locomotion adapted to those which suited our forefathers in the time of the merry Monarch? How would stage waggons suit us now? how should we care about the rates of postage which prevailed in the stern days of the Commonwealth, or the means of communication between land and land? Besides, since the beginning of the present century we have had added to our Parliament that of Ireland, which previously had an independent existence. We now find that Irish business practically monopolises the whole time of our Legislature, to the exclusion of other equally important parts of the Empire, and that advantage has been taken of the forms of the House to prevent the proper consideration of Imperial business. The present session has afforded another illustration, if such were needed, of the necessity for overhauling the rules Parliamentary procedure with a view to their reform. The Opposition concur with Ministers that, in the words of Lord Melbourne, "Something must be done," dignity of the British Parliament is to kept up, and if it is to maintain its reputation as an assembly summoned in the words of the Royal Proclamation "for the despatch of business."

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the above Board took place on Monday, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman); J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J Oliver, J. Batty, J. Turner and the clerk, medical officer and surveyor.

On the resolution of Mr. J. Hargreaves and Mr. Batty, the minutes of last meeting were confirmed.

MEDICAL OFFICER.—In reply to the enquiry of the clerk, a letter was read from the Local Government Board stating that a moiety of the medical officer's salary will be repaid out of the Parliamentary grant.

HIGHWAYS.—Mrs. Copley having complained of the water running into the ashpits belonging to her property, the inspector was instructed to obtain some gulley grates, and put one down so as to carry the water away.

In reply to the clerk's enquiry, the county surveyor writes from Pontefract that the Church Street bridge is not a County bridge.

There being considerable complaint about the state of Bell Hill, and the uneven manner in which the pavers are being re-set, the Highway Committee undertake to go into the subject so as to bring about a more satisfactory result.

The condition of Butcher Lane was also commented on by several members, and a strong letter was ordered to be written to the contractor requiring him to carry out the instructions of the surveyor, and to repair Butcher Lane and Commercial Street.

The attention of Mr. Bulmer is also to be drawn to his neglect in not removing the road scrapings on the sides of Wakefield Road, and to request his immediate attention to this work.

WATER.—A letter was read from Messrs. Bromet and Taylor declining the offer of the Board to put water mains down for Mr. Lawton and others on condition of Lord Stourton paying one half the cost; and also threatening an enquiry.

The Local Government Board had also written the clerk in reply to his letter respecting Mr. Lawton's application for water, stating that their Lordships are unable in this case to give their sanction to the extension of the provisions of Act.

In reply to Mr. Turner's enquiry as to the history of the case, the chairman recapitulated the principal points, and referred to the clause in the Act above referred to, that the Board may not lay water mains to such a distance as will incur a weekly cost of more than 2d, and that in such a case the special sanction of the Local Government Board must be obtained.

On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Batty, it was resolved to send a copy of the letter from the Local Government Board to Messrs. Bromet and Taylor. Mr. Holmes neutral.

Mr. Holmes wished to know what resolutions there were about supplying water by barrel, and it was stated that a resolution had been passed to charge residents 9d. and non-residents 1s. a barrel. There had also been another proposal in Mr. Lawton's case of 4d. a barrel.

After some conversation, the chairman gave notice that he should move that the resolution above referred to (9d. a barrel) be rescinded.

Mr. J. Hargreaves referred to the proposal to have a stand pipe at the top of Bell Hill, but stated that there was not sufficient in the day time for the cottages, and that if a stand pipe was fixed, it must be lower down.

SEWAGE.—Mr. Parkinson wrote that the fact of sewage gas escaping was a proof that the scheme was working properly; he advised ventilating pipes to be placed at the extremities of the various lines of piping so as to carry the gas well up into the air.

The inspector thought that when there were a larger number of connections made, these complaints would become fewer.

TREASURERSHIP.—A letter was read from Mr. Marshall, treasurer to the Board resigning his office, on being elected collector of rates, and respectfully thanking the Board for the appointment to which he was voted last meeting.

It was then moved by the chairman, and seconded by Mr. Jas. Hargreaves, that Messrs. Wm. Williams Brown & Co. be treasurers to the Board.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister attended and read his monthly statement as follows:

To the chairman and members of the Rothwell Local Board.

Gentlemen,

We have had registered in the district during the past four weeks, 18 births, 11 male and 7 female and 8 deaths, 3 male and 5 female. During the corresponding period of last year, we had 13 births and 6 deaths.

The causes of death were:—One female, 11 weeks, atrophy since birth; one male, 4½ years, bronchitis complicating whooping cough; one female 14 months pneumonia; one female, 5 minutes, asphyxtia; one female, 2 years, scarlet fever; one male, 6 years, scarlet fever; one male, 66 years, heart disease; one female, 15 weeks, congestion of the lungs.

Scarlet fever has caused two deaths, but they both occurred on the first day of the past four weeks. The epidemic I am glad to be able to report has much diminished and I know at present of only three houses in the district where children are ill of scarlet fever. Several cases of whooping cough have come under my notice during the past four weeks, and it would seem after we have just past through an epidemic of measles, followed by one of scarlet fever, that we are now to be visited by one of whooping cough. The only consolation is to be found in the fact that the present time of the year is the most favourable for that disease. I know of no other zymotic disease in the district.

JOHN GLAISTER,
Medical Officer of Health

In answer to the chairman's enquiry, the medical officer said that there are now only six cases of fever. In regard to the large number of births, Dr. Glaister said that during the past year there had been about three births to one death in Rothwell.

FINANCE.—On the motion of Mr. Turner, seconded by Mr. Oliver, it was agreed to pay Mr. C. Bennett £1 a week for his services during the interim of Mr. Price's death and the appointment of a new collector.

There being a deficit this year of £17 12s. 0d. in the postal telegraph business at Rothwell, a cheque was ordered to be granted for that amount, and a letter to be written to the guarantors requesting them to pay their several proportions within 21 days; proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. Batty and carried. Mr. Turner neutral.

The collector reported having collected and deposited in the bank as below:

General District Rate ...	129	14	8½
Water Rate	7	10	3
Miscellaneous..		9	6
Total	137	14	5½

On the motion of Mr. J. Hargreaves, seconded by Mr. Holmes, it was resolved that the bills of several solicitors be sent to the taxing master for his examination, and that the clerk inform Mr. Hick that his services will not be further required at present.

Mr. Turner took exception to the legal charges of Messrs. Ford and Warren for attending the public meeting against the Gas Bill, and for his advice and expenses connected therewith.

The clerk reminded the Board that their chairman had intimated his intention to have professional advice in the matter, as soon as it was decided to hold the meeting, and that a false step on his part might have caused a large expense to the ratepayers. Mr. Holmes also remembered the chairman saying at the time, that he should take advice on the matter, and no objection was raised.

The chairman having declined to take any part in the conversation, being chairman of the Gas Company, suggested that Mr. Turner should postpone the subject till Mr. Charlesworth was present.

PLANS.—Mr. Holmes enquired if here was any specified time when plans deposited and approved by the Board, became ineffective; or if such plans may be altered after some time had elapsed.

The chairman said "certainly not," unless the person comes before the Board, and obtain permission to alter or present new ones.

THE LATE MR. PRICE.—A letter was read from the Rev. W. U. Wooler, sincerely thanking the Board for the vote of condolence passed by the members of the Board on the death of Mrs. Wooler's late father.

STREETS WATERING.—The desirability of having the streets watered whenever necessary being agreed to, it was resolved on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves, that Mr. Worth have discretionary power to have the streets at Rothwell and Stourton watered when he considers it necessary. Carried.

CHURCH ST. BRIDGE.—As there was only one tender for the widening of Church St. Bridge, owing to some misunderstanding, Mr. J. Hargreaves proposed that tenders be again advertised for in the Rothwell Times for widening Church St. bridge. Seconded by Mr. Holmes and carried. The one tender not having been opened, was ordered to be returned to the sender.

THE WESLEYAN CONFERENCE.

The one hundred and thirty-ninth annual Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist body commenced on Tuesday in Brunswick Chapel, Leeds. The Rev. Dr. Osborn, the retiring president, occupied the chair. Upwards of nine hundred ministers were present. After the vacancies in the Legal Hundred had been filled up, the election of president took place. A vote was taken, and the Rev. Charles Garrett, of Liverpool, was elected to this distinguished position. The Rev. Robert Newton Young was re-elected secretary. The newly-elected president delivered a brief address, which was well received. In the evening there was an open session for the reception of addresses from the Wesleyan Churches abroad. The deputation from the Irish Wesleyan Conference stated that during the sad political agitation in Ireland, Wesleyan ministers had been neither molested nor insulted.

INQUEST AT ROBIN HOOD.

This morning at 11 o'clock, an inquest was held at the Old Half-way House, Robin Hood, before Thomas Taylor, Esq., Coroner, relative to the death of William Gillott, of Rothwell Haigh, aged 45 years, who was killed at the Bye Pit, Robin Hood Colliery, on Wednesday morning.

Susanna Gillot, wife of the deceased, last saw her husband on Tuesday evening, he did not speak of anything out of the common way at the pit, he went to bed and she heard him leave the house at about a quarter past six, and at noon the same day he was brought home dead.

W. Illingworth said he had worked with deceased for some time, he was a practical man, and knew his work, he met him in the workings shortly before six o'clock on Wednesday morning, and they proceeded to get coal for some time. About ten o'clock they and some other men began "borrowing" puncheons, by the order of Joseph Keightley, deputy, Benjamin Pollard being left in charge. All the wood was good and sound, after he had taken out half a dozen props he heard the roof begin to weigh and shouted out "get back chaps," and seized his lamp, Gillott instead of stepping back rushed forward to get his lamp too, when he was knocked down by one of the puncheons, a large stone over a yard long and a portion of the roof then fell on him and doubled him up face downwards, he heard him moan slightly, the stone was taken off him in ten minutes but he was quite dead.

Several other witnesses were waiting but the jury felt quite convinced that the affair happened purely by accident, and no blame could be attached to anybody.

The Government's Inspector of mines was present during the inquiry.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

WESLEYAN METHODISM.

Having, in the paper partly copied from a contemporary, described the external history, scope and characteristics of Methodism in our last week's issue, it will not be uninteresting both to those who are members of that church and to those who belong to other churches, to reprint a portion of an excellent paper published in the Yorkshire Post a few days ago, wherein a clear and correct statement is made of the internal mechanism of this important and wide-spreading denomination.

The constitution of Wesleyanism is not exactly like that of any other existing church. John Wesley had a genius for organisation, and combined the societies which he formed by his evangelistic labours on a system which, with but few alterations, has lasted down to the present day. What is called the Connexional principle is the leading idea of Wesleyan Methodism. All the various churches under the control of the Conference are in many important respects united, and thus made mutually helpful. The authority of the Conference extends to the smallest society in the most remote country district. No individual congregation can make any changes out of harmony with the spirit and laws of the Connexion. Trustees cannot prevent a minister appointed by the Conference from preaching in their chapel unless they can bring against him some charge of heresy or immorality. The authority of the Conference is supreme, and the loyalty with which Methodists have acknowledged this is one of the great sources of their strength. For certain Connexional purposes there are general funds to which all the congregations are expected to contribute by subscriptions and collections. Wesleyans have always been renowned for the number of their collections. They believe that a religion which costs a man nothing is not worth much. For foreign missions, elementary education, Kingswood and Woodhouse Grove Schools, and the theological institutions, all the societies are required to make annual collections. These moneys are devoted to the various objects for which they are collected. The Home Mission and Chapel Funds receive their income from the same source, but these funds are distributed again by means of grants amongst the poorer and more needy circuits of the Connexion. In this way the work of Methodism is maintained in agricultural districts, where otherwise it must inevitably die out. The Chapel Committee received last year £9241, and distributed by means of grants and loans without interest to various chapels £17,585. The Home Mission Fund has given financial help to needy circuits to the extent of £22,363 during the last year, besides meeting many contingent expenses. These grants are given upon the principle that the Conference helps those who help themselves. Out of 723 circuits in England, Scotland, and Wales, 274 received assistance from this fund. For Connexional purposes the Wesleyan Churches raised last year the sum of £271,254 10s. 10d. Of course this is over and above what each individual circuit has to raise to meet its own expenses, viz., the maintenance of its ministry and Sunday schools, and all the other evangelistic efforts which are the necessary accompaniments of the organisation of a Christian church. There must be some strong religious loyalty and enthusiasm at the root of such liberality. The Connexional principle brings the various circuits of Methodism into very close relationship, and creates something like a family feeling amongst them. There is no large ecclesiastical organisation in the country in which ministers and laymen are so widely known to each other. The representatives of each circuit are brought into close connection with large religious schemes and objects, and this helps to lift them out of the narrowness and selfishness which exclusive occupation with local interests often begets, and gives them wider views of the mission of Christianity. The people feel that they are members of a great church. In its great purposes they have a direct interest; over its wide administration they have a direct control. The success of Wesleyanism is a matter of pride to every true Methodist, and out of this feeling there springs liberality, work, and healthy enthusiasm.

Another peculiarity of the Wesleyan church—one however which other churches are extensively copying—is the large use it has made of lay help, especially in the work of preaching. Local preachers, as they are called, are a most important body amongst Methodist workers, and to their unselfish labours much of the success of Wesleyanism is due. In every circuit there is a number of these local preachers, the number varying with the size of the circuit. Without them it would be impossible to carry on the work of Methodism. In country districts a circuit will sometimes consist of from twenty to thirty chapels, with an appointment of only three regular ministers. On the Sabbath day, services have to be conducted in every chapel, and it will be seen at once how impossible this would be were it not for the willing help of a large staff of these local preachers. These preachers are selected with much care and discretion. No man is admitted into this office except he be of irreproachable character, and has given some evidence of suitable gifts. He is subjected to an examination which tests his theological reading, and his capacity of dealing with theological questions. He must prove, also by preaching trial sermons that he has something to say and knows how to say it before he can exercise himself in this work. Local preachers receive no remuneration. They belong to all classes of society, but the majority of them are men who have to work hard for a living six days of the week. In their spare moments they must find time for the preparation of their sermons; and often on the Lord's day they will walk 15 or 20 miles and preach three times. This is not light work for men who labour hard all the week. It is from the ranks of the local preachers that the ministry is always recruited. No man can become a Wesleyan minister until he has served the church for some considerable time as a local preacher, and in that capacity manifested more than ordinary ability. Amongst the local preachers of Methodism there have been and are still some men of extraordinary gifts. The famous Billy Dawson, well known in this district of Yorkshire, was a man of real power; and every circuit has in it some men who by their education and talents are fit to occupy any pulpit. Amongst the lay workers of Methodism there are none deserving of more honour than local preachers.

But not only in the work of preaching does the Wesleyan church find employment for the energies of its people. As class leaders, prayer leaders, Sunday school teachers, and in many other departments provision is made for the exercise of almost every variety of talent. Religion to be healthy must be active. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do" is a maxim Methodists thoroughly believe, and they endeavour to prevent the disastrous consequences of religious idleness by supplying their people with numerous opportunities of work. The benefit of this is not only seen in the aggressive spirit of the church, but its reflex influence on the character of the members themselves is almost equally important.

In the conditions of membership the Wesleyan church has another peculiarity. In most churches the qualification for membership is attendance at the Lord's Supper, but in Methodism it is not so. There it is the class meeting—a term well understood by all Wesleyans, but not very significant to outsiders. This meeting was explained in last week's paper on Methodism, in Mr. Wesley's own words.

Over the number of persons thus united one is appointed leader, either male or female, to whose particular charge the spiritual interests of the others are confided. Every class is visited once a quarter by a minister, who makes careful inquiry into the religious experience of each member. It is manifest that this system, so long as it is vigorously worked and does not degenerate into formality, is calculated to promote the growth of a real spiritual life. Though the chief object of the class meeting is spiritual, yet financial responsibility is very properly associated with membership. Every member is required to contribute towards the maintenance of the ministry in the circuit to which he belongs. The minimum contribution was fixed by John Wesley at a penny a week and a shilling a quarter. Those who are too poor to meet this demand are relieved of it. The well-to-do are expected to give more.

In the mode in which Wesleyan ministers are appointed to the various circuits, and in the frequent changes which they make with each other, we come to the last of the chief peculiarities of that church. No minister is allowed to remain more than three years in one circuit.

While there are disadvantages, this system secures to a much larger number of people the labours of the more renowned amongst the preachers, and is also intimately connected with the maintenance of the Connexional principle about which we have spoken, and for these results hardships must be borne.

ROTHWELL MECHANICS' INSTITUTE

Last evening, the annual meeting of the members and subscribers of the above Institute was held in the Club room, Mr. James Hargreaves, one of the vice-presidents, being in the chair.

The secretary, Mr. Hedley Lunn, read the report which states that the number of members is about the same as last year, 24 honorary, 106 ordinary. The library has been stationary, owing to expenses incurred by the interior repainting of the premises, and the enlargement of platform. Towards these objects several friends have given concerts and entertainments, while a list of subscriptions have been received from ladies and gentlemen in the district. The science and art class has not been so largely attended as last year, but the work done is very satisfactory. The balance sheet sets forth the income at £130 14s. 0½d., and the expenditure at £130 0s. 7½d. The report and balance sheet were approved.

The election of officers for the ensuing year next took place resulted as below:—

PRESIDENT.—Rev. G. Heberden, M.A.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.—J. G. Turner, Esq., Jas. Hargreaves, Esq.

TREASURER.—Mr. S. Bramley.

LIBRARIAN.—Mr. B. Taylor.

SECRETARIES.—Mr. G. Armitage, jun., Mr. S. Morton.

AUDITORS.—Mr. A Marshall, Mr. A. Ward.

COMMITTEE.—Messrs. J Butterick, J. Abbishaw, S. Seanor, H. Thompson, A. Parker, W. Abbishaw, A. Drew, W. Wright, and J. Glaister.

A vote of thanks was then passed to the chairman and the meeting closed.

POACHING AFFRAY AT OULTON.

A desperate affray with poachers occurred early this morning in Oulton Park. Shortly before midnight a number of men were observed prowling about the park, and it was evident that they were intending to take some game, as a number of nets, bags, &c., were carried by them. Having gathered together what they thought would be sufficient force, Sergeant Turton, with three or four constables, and several gamekeepers, came upon the entire gang of thirteen near the Church, just as the clock was striking twelve. Being pretty evenly matched, both sides resolved to try conclusions, and the poachers having challenged the police and gamekeepers, a most determined fight took place, first with stones, and afterwards with sticks and cudgels, a regular hand to hand struggle continuing for some time. The party of order eventually got the mastery, however, and captured two of the fellows, the others making off. Having had these two men conveyed to Methley station, the sergeant at once procured a spring cart and drove to Castleford, whence the gang had come, and having communicated with the inspector there, was returning home, and luckily met two other of the poachers, who were taken to Methley to keep their brethren company. The four marauders are conveyed to Wakefield this morning, when they will appear before the magistrates for remand. The determined resistance and fierceness of the combat have left marks and wounds on both sides, and the successful result reflects great credit on the bold sergeant and his confreres.

WORKMEN'S TRIPS.—Last Saturday, the members and friends of the Rothwell Haigh Mutual Accident Society had their annual trip from Woodlesford and Hunslet stations, Blackpool being the destination this year. There were two trains, carrying some 1,200 persons, starting about six o'clock, and arriving after nine. The weather was very favorable all day, and everybody enjoyed themselves very well in the many attractions of the favorite seaside town. The first arrivals got to Rothwell about midnight, but it was four o'clock on Sunday morning before the last comers got home. Several, we hear, were left even then. The Newmarket men, to the number of 700, had their 'off' to Scarbro' the same day from Stanley and Lofthouse stations, starting at 5.20, and gaining the 'queen of watering places' before eight o'clock. The weather was somewhat showery, but not sufficiently bad to prevent people from getting out. The return train left at 6.45, arriving home about half past ten.

To-morrow, Robin Hood Society go to Blackpool, starting a little before five o'clock in the morning.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY.—We are reminded by the late demonstrations at Castleford and Methley on behalf of the Leeds Infirmary, that it is time our Clubs and Friendly Societies began thinking about the Rothwell Demonstration. Last year was a considerable improvement on the first effort, and we trust that every Club and Society in Rothwell and the district will feel bound to join in a united procession on some day that will be convenient for all concerned. We are pleased to hear that some half-dozen Clubs have expressed their intention of joining, and we very earnestly urge those who have not yet done so to send in their assent and the names of their delegates, to Mr. Edwin Whitehead, so that a joint Committee can be formed and immediate steps taken for a demonstration some Sunday in August.

IN connection with the session of the Wesleyan Conference, of Leeds, a meeting has been arranged, as per advertisement, to be held on Tuesday next in Rothwell Wesleyan Chapel, when the well-known and talented minister, the Rev. Richard Roberts will speak, as well as several other eminent ministers. There is no doubt the meeting will be most interesting and successful, and will command a large attendance.

ROTHWELL FORESTERS' SOCIETY.—We learn that the half-yearly meeting of this society has just been held, when a balance sheet was presented shewing an income for the past year of £84 0s. 4d., which with £88 17s. 9d. in hand gives a total of £172 18s. 1d. Out of this £90 5s. 0d. has been paid for sick and funeral expenses, leaving a fair balance of £82 13s. 1d. to commence the present year with. We understand that a demonstration of some kind is to be made shortly; it is nearly eighteen years since this society appeared in public.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Wheat trade quiet, at about last Tuesday's rates. Beans and maize 1s per qr. dearer. Oats 6d higher. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The fat beasts on offer to-day were pretty equally divided between Lincolnshire and Irish heifers. The quality generally was very good, and the demand exceedingly brisk, owing partly to the very small supply of sheep. Dealers were enabled easily to secure last week's rates, which, it will be remembered, showed a decided advance on previous quotations. Owing to various causes the sheep on offer, as already stated, were not so numerous, compared with last week. Late rates were fully sustained, a clearance being speedily effected. As usual at this season of the year very little was done in milch cows and store beasts. We had a small supply of pigs of all kinds to-day, trade slow at the following rates.

	this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,	1650		1200
" sheep	4300,	"	5000

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 8½d to 9½d per lb.
Fat calves, 7½d to 9½d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £14 each.
Milch cows, £14 to £25 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 10d per lb.
Lambs, 11d per lb
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
" store, 40s to 60s.
" fat, 6/6 to 7/7 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN Friday, 12.47. p.m.—There is a fair attendance at our market this morning, and wheat is in moderate request at about last week's prices. Beans, oats and maize, fully as dear. Weather is close, and rain has been falling all this morning.

HARBOURS OF REFUGE.

[From "The Illustrated London News," July 15th, 1882.]

A society has been formed for the promotion of increased places of safety on our coasts for fishermen and marines. The splendid society, the Royal National Life-Boat Institution, saves 500 lives per annum; but, in spite of this, there are about 800 lives lost each year.

It is desired to save as many of this latter number as possible. An influential committee has been formed to carry out this object, and it is supported by the Duke of Teck, by fifty peers, the archbishops, twelve of the bishops, and nearly 200 members of Parliament.

The purpose of the society is to direct public attention to the existing national calamity, to arrange deputations and public meetings, and to carry out the work arranged by the committee. The Prince of Wales, on his recent visit to Hastings, in reply to an address from the fishermen, expressed great sympathy with the movement, he himself having a brother and two sons exposed to the perils it is sought to mitigate The Rev. James Weller, of Amersham, and the Rev. G. Roy Badenoch, L.L.D., Whitehall Gardens, have been amongst the earliest workers for this object; and Mr F. Johnson, of St. Leonards-on Sea, the hon. sec., was the original organiser. It is hoped that the public will subscribe liberally in support of so noble and patriotic an undertaking, a work which cannot fail to enlist the warmest sympaty of the English people. If energetically supported, the committee have every hope and prospect of success.

Subscriptions should be forwarded to Mr. F. Johnson, the hon. sec. Cheques crossed London and County Bank, Hastings Branch.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. ED.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

ALAS for the farmers once more. A splendid crop of grass, but poor weather to make hay in. Lucky that we are not altogether dependent either ourselves or our horses, on what we are able to produce in our own country. The corn is looking well; let us hope better luck will attend the harvest, and that our sturdy yeomen may again be able to extend the liberal hand and open an hospitable door by reason of returning prosperity.

THERE is general unanimity in the consistency of Mr. Bright's withdrawal from the cabinet last week, and while I applaud his conscientiousness and love of peace, I hope its effect will secure a less hampered and more vigorous policy on the part of government, which should not be withdrawn until the vagabond Arabi has been properly thrashed, and the Egyptian, and the Turk too, made to understand that the old lion has not lost his teeth, and will take care that his wishes and orders are carried out.

ONE cannot very well go through any Leeds thoroughfare without knowing that there is some special gathering of parsons, everywhere and at all times they come across one's path. Long coats and short coats, silk hats and felt hats, ritualist vests buttoned tight up to the throat and extensive shirt fronts, the old fashioned white handkerchief and the rigid choker, clean shaved and fully moustached, æsthetic and easy going, sentimental and energetic, brilliant wit and heavy theology, eloquence and prosiness, the student and the business man, all sorts, sizes, descriptions and tastes are found represented in the Wesleyan Conference now assembled in our adjoining town. Let us hope their visit will do the old place good.

WHEN is the vicar of Rothwell coming home. Everyone, I know, will rejoice to see him and his family home again, safe and sound, and from all I hear, his late sorrow has drawn forth an amount of sympathy and kindliness towards him, which, when he returns will somewhat compensate for his heavy troubles.

IT has just come to my ears this morning that there has been a regular stand up fight in Oulton Park during the early morning between a lot of poachers and the police and gamekeepers. There has been sadly too much of the "grabbing" business, and I only hope the scamps have got a good "peppering" There are four of them captured I think.

This incident brings up again the preposterous fact there is no police station nearer than Methley, to which these fellows had to be dragged. Why is there no station at Rothwell? Are there so few criminals there that the erection of a police station would be unrenumerative? If so, well done, Roddill! keep to that, and let Methley have the unenviable notoriety. At the same time, I fear a station at Rothwell would be more used than the one at Methley.

QUID NUNC.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may by gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth,; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farrington road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

HAIR DESTROYER.—21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, W.C.—ALEX. ROSS'S DEPILATORY removes superfluous hair from the face, neck, and arms without effect to the skin, 3s 6d; sent by post in plain covers for 54 stamps.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,
Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Nervous Depression, Irritability, Loss of Appetite, Heartburn, Lowness of Spirits, Giddiness, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.
As a General Family Aperient Medicine they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.
Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having Dr. Scott's Bilious and Liver Pills, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c., &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor, of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.
Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "Beecham's Pills, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 36 stamps.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

THE BRITISH CABINET AND ITS EGYPTIAN POLICY.

The composition of the British Cabinet is to a great extent unique, and differs materially from that of the executive in other countries. It is a select body in whom is vested the authority of the State, and its members must of necessity have been sworn of the Privy Council. As being entirely responsible for the conduct of public affairs, its deliberations are regarded as confidential; but although no chronicle is kept of its proceedings, minutes of the resolutions at which it arrives are regularly laid before the Sovereign. A generation or two back, the meeting of the Cabinet was surrounded by such state solemnity that the ministers were accustomed to assemble in Court dress; and upon one very memorable occasion, when they had no time to change their ordinary attire before gathering together, this fact alone betokened the gravity of the political crisis. It was on one of those exciting occasions during the agitation which preceded the passing of the first Reform Bill, and when the Ministry of Earl Grey had suffered a defeat in the House of Commons. The Government determined on an immediate dissolution and such was the haste with which the necessary arrangements had to be made that, as above stated, the question being one of minutes, there was actually no time to assume court dress. King William was waited upon without delay, the guards were called out and escorted the Sovereign to the Houses of Parliament, where he announced the decree of dissolution in person amid a scene of unwonted commotion in the Upper Chamber.

No statesman would ever enter a Cabinet expecting to enforce his own views without qualification or concession. Amid a body of twelve or fifteen eminent men representative of various shades of political opinion amongst their party, there are many of strong convictions upon certain subjects, and it is therefore impossible for each to have his own will. The principle upon which a Cabinet is bound to work must essentially be one of "give and take." Mr. Bright, on taking office in December, 1868, very clearly explained this to his constituents at Birmingham. He spoke of the necessity which existed for an Administration to work harmoniously together. It was possible that, in seeking the maintenance of that harmony, the members of the Government might appear at times to take a different line from that which they had taken when unconnected with the Ministry. This different course, however, would not affect principle so much as time and opportunity; or it might be regarded as a temporary and inevitable concession to the necessity of continuing harmony and discussion amongst the members of the Government. Mr. Bright's recent resignation shows that the differences which at last separated him from his colleagues were fundamental, and could not be adjusted by any of those concessions that can be made on subjects of lesser import. In the vast range of Imperial politics there are indeed few Cabinets that escape one or more secessions. In the last Government presided over by Lord Derby, he suddenly lost three Secretaries of State—the Earl of Carnarvon, the late General Peel, and the present Marquis of Salisbury. The question which then divided the Cabinet was that of household suffrage in the boroughs. In the late administration two Cabinet Ministers left the Government because they differed from its foreign policy. These were the Earl of Derby and the Earl of Carnarvon. From the present Government, previously to the departure of Mr. Bright, the Duke of Argyll and Mr. Forster had left on widely-varying grounds. In most Cabinets, much as its members may desire to work harmoniously, and to avoid the weakening process which often accompanies isolated resignations, a point is reached when divergence of view becomes too wide to admit of all its members continuing to work together.

The policy of the Cabinet as applied to the present crisis in Egypt has naturally been the subject of criticism in both House of Parliament. It is once more found that if a great Empire extends its arms in all directions over the habitable globe, its increased power cannot but involve augmented responsibility. If we did not possess India, there would be no occasion now to despatch an expedition to Egypt. The Mussulman population which inhabit our great Oriental dependency, are extremely susceptible to the appeals of fanaticism, and if the Moslems can be induced to believe that the British forces have been defeated in Egypt, it is quite possible that we may have trouble in our eastern lands before long. Much as we might be disposed to envy the absence of foreign complications which characterises the present administration of the Kingdom of Holland, there must be a very few Englishmen who would like to see the political obliteration of their country. Centuries ago Holland and Spain counted for a great deal amongst the nations of Europe; they had ships, colonies, and commerce, just as England has to-day. Wherever we send a ship, plant a colony, or extend our commerce, we send civilisation, and with it oftentimes the Gospel. It is thus that no one can say of Great Britain that her glory has departed, for thanks to the industry, energy, and enterprise of her people she is still a great Power all the world over.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board took place on Friday last, present:—Messrs. J. R. Seanor, chairman, J. Batty, J. Parker, and the clerk and treasurer.

The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, a conversation arose as to the custom of sending back children for fees, and Mr. Parker gave notice that at next meeting he should move the rescinding of the resolution on which this custom is based, and that he would propose another to secure better results. He also intimated his intention to suggest a modification of fees in certain cases.

A letter was also read from Miss Greaves complaining of the insulting and disgraceful conduct of certain mothers, and it was unanimously agreed that a very strong letter be written to such persons, requiring an apology, on pain of further steps being taken. The Board is resolved to protect and support the teachers in these schools, and any case of complaint must be made to the Board. The attendance of the head teachers is henceforth to be requested at the January, April, July and October meetings of the Board.

Summonses were ordered to be taken in the case of several parents who persistently neglect to send their children to school; four parents were granted remission of fees for a short time, principally owing to sickness.

The wants of the several schools were ordered to be supplied. Cheques for salaries £62 13s 6d, accounts £10 14s, and £50 to Messrs. Appleyard and Dickenson were signed.

The clerk read a letter from the Public Works Loan Board sanctioning the Board's application for a loan of £881, but intimating that the money cannot be paid till more funds are placed in the hand of the Commissioners.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE MEETING.

On Tuesday last, a meeting was held at Rothwell, in connection with the Conference now being held in Leeds, when several popular speakers were present and took part.

The meeting was preceded by a public tea, to which a fair number of friends sat down, there being representatives from Wakefield, Carlton, Oulton, and Woodlesford.

The public meeting was opened at half-past six by the Rev. C. A. Collingwood with singing and prayer, after which Mr. Collingwood very felicitously introduced Mr. J. H. Cookson, of Stanley, the senior circuit steward, as chairman for the evening.

Mr. Cookson, on taking the chair, was warmly received, and in the course of a suitable address expressed his pleasure in taking part in the meeting, as connected with the gentlemen who were to speak, and in the object for which the effort was being made. The collection at the close was to assist the Circuit Funds, and being intimately concerned in the subject of circuit finances he was glad Rothwell had taken her proper place, and was endeavouring to do her part in supporting the ordinary work of the circuit. He had no doubt whatever that they would spend a very pleasant and profitable meeting.

The Rev James Thompson, one of the representatives from the Irish Conference, being called upon, was pleased to take part in this homely meeting, which was something of an off-shoot from the Conference now being held, and afforded an agreeable change to the somewhat monotonous routine of Conference, especially to himself, who, while occupying a seat as a listener, had no right to take part in its deliberations. After referring to his friendship with Mr. Collingwood, in Ireland, and the kindly remembrance in which his name was held, Mr Thompson proceeded to remark on the condition of that country in relation to Methodism and religion generally. Here they were able to meet either in their chapels or outside, and discuss religious matters or any other subject, but in many parts of Ireland they would be subject to hooting and threats. But in the part of Ireland from which he came, the people were as loyal and patriotic as any in England, and they were not in any wise molested or insulted. Methodism, in Ireland, holds a position of influence and respect, and while every other church, not even excepting the Roman church, shews a decrease in membership, Methodism has an increase of ten per cent. This, too, is notwithstanding the emigration which is constantly taking away the best and most promising of their population. This matter is a subject of serious difficulty; out of an actual increase of 2000 new members, nearly 1000 have emigrated in the past year. It was, however, a pleasing fact, that the migratory character of the people led to the spread of the gospel in other lands, and in the States and in Canada there were often a majority of Irish members in a church. On this account he urged English people to support Irish Methodism as a means of spreading gospel truth throughout the world. It was also a great means of withstanding the Romish propaganda, for the home of Roman Catholicism was not so much in Rome, in Spain, in France,—it was in Ireland. Mr. Thompson then touched on the future of Ireland, and believed the day of liberty and advancement and order was dawning. The priesthood were losing their influence in politics, although they still held power in the home and in religion. Amid the sad, dark night through which they were passing, the cheap press was not an unmixed evil. It was better that people are being able to read, than that they live in stolid ignorance and indifference; and believing that the present is a state of transition, he looked beyond for the time when the knowledge the people gained would be used for the support of right and order, when the bible would be read and practised, and when happiness and godliness would bless the land. A hymn having been sung

The Rev Richard Roberts, (of Liverpool), was introduced and very heartily welcomed. He thanked Mr. Thompson for his very truthful and effective address, and went on to say that he came from a very different country to Mr. Thompson. He came from Wales, protestant Wales! Speaking of Sunday Schools, the Welsh people never gave up going to Sunday school. They had classes containing men and women of 70 years of age, and their bible knowledge was very extensive and very profound. During the remainder of his address, Mr. Roberts spoke principally upon preaching, and insisted on the necessity of properly and fully expounding and applying the Word of God. In Wales they often have sermons of an hour and twenty minutes long, followed immediately by a second sermon of similar length. While delighting in music, and deeply prizing hymnology, he held that these should not occupy more than an ordinary share of time in their preaching services, nor that they should even have too long prayers; he was ordained a minister of the gospel, to "preach the Word." The action of the Holy Spirit on men's hearts, and working together with the preaching of the gospel was then demonstrated, and the need of experiencing the blessings of religion urged, rather than troubling too much as to its theory. The song of the Psalmist was "O, taste and see that the Lord is gracious;" enjoy his love and find its blessings by experience. The address was attentively listened to, and evidently appreciated.

A collection having been made towards the circuit fund, the chairman called on

The Rev. T. T. Dilkes, who was more in favor of worship, while believing in the power and necessity of preaching. He looked for every part of divine worship and church government, becoming more and more beautiful, and harmonious. He believed that although the old times were glorious, and that there were martyrs then willing to give up all for Christ, that the church was never so active, so holy, so useful, so liberal as now, and that there never were so many christian people willing to do or to suffer for the gospel as now. He strongly urged the devout and constant reading of the Bible as the one great means of stemming the tide of scepticism and immorality, and looked forward to still happier and more glorious days.

Votes of thanks were then proposed to the speakers by the Rev. C. A Collingwood, seconded by the Rev. T. Wray; also to the chairman by the Rev. J. Thompson on behalf of the congregation.

The Rev. Robert Stevens then closed the meeting with prayer.

The tea, (part of which was given) and collections amounted to £8

METHLEY MEMORIAL CHURCH BAZAAR.

On Tuesday, at noon, a bazaar in aid of the funds for erecting at Mickletown, in the parish of Methley, a church, as a memorial of the late Hon. Mrs. Saville, was opened by the Rector of Methley, the Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Saville. Notwithstanding that there was a thunderstorm in the neighbourhood, the attendance of visitors was better than might have been expected. There were present Mrs. George Lowther, Swillington Hall; Lieut.-Col. Ramsden, of the Coldstream Guards; Capt. and Mrs. Atkinson, of Pontefract; Miss Saville, London; Miss Baker, Leamington; Mr. G. Saville, Capt. Saville, R.N.; Mr. W. Saville; Dr. Jessop, Castleford; Mr. W. Wood, Oulton Hall; Mr. John Hollings, Dunford House; Mr. Bentley, Knottingley; Mr. C. Garnett, 15th or East Yorkshire Regiment; Mr. C. Bell: Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Hazle Hall, Methley; Rev. C. A. and Mrs. Hope, of Barwick-in-Elmet; Rev. R. and Miss Burrell, of Stanley Vicarage; Miss Topham, Chapeltown, Leeds; Rev C. Ingram Boynton, of Steeton; Miss Harrison, Heald House, Stanley; Mr. Wigin, solicitor, Leeds and Methley (secretary to the Church Building Fund): the Revs. T. Ripley, curate of Methley; A Granger, curate of Stanley; C. H. Nield, Vicar of Altofts; J. A. Armitage, Rector of Whitwood; A. Blair, Vicar of Allerton-Bywater, &c. The population of Methley parish is agricultural and mining, numbering about 4,000. In the old parish church there is only accommodation for from 300 to 400 worshippers. The new church will be erected as nearly as possible in the style of the old one, and the foundation stone is to be laid on Monday next by Mr. F. S. Powell, of Horton Old Hall. The site for the church has been given by the Rector, and the church, when opened, will have an endowment of £300 per annum, provided by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who have in hand a surplus of £16,000, which has been derived from the coal mines under the glebe land of Methley. The bazaar, which is for the purpose of providing other necessary funds, is held in the beautiful gardens of Methley Rectory and in the adjoining National School. There are seven stalls, and about 30 ladies in charge of them. One stall on the lawn in the garden is set apart for Japanese and Oriental curiosities generally, and is presided over by ladies attired in appropriate costumes. The children of the parish have been working hard for the bazaar, and the teachers of the National School, and of the Mickletown and Schoeley Hill Board School, conjointly have provided and conduct the business of one of the departments of the bazaar. In the National School there is a refreshment stall, which is elegantly decorated, and rendered fragrant by the presence of many rare plants, flowers, and fruits.—The Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Saville, in opening the bazaar, explained why his nephew, Lord Pollington, who should have performed that ceremony, was unavoidably absent. He had received from his nephew a letter full of good wishes to all the people of Methley, and expressing his earnest hope that the bazaar would prove a success. He (the Rector) was sure all present reciprocated those kind good wishes. He saw before him many eloquent friends, but he would not tax their powers of rhetoric on this occasion, because he had often noticed at bazaars that the ladies who were stall-holders considered that at the beginning of a bazaar time meant money—(laughter)—and he knew the visitors were most anxious to be engaged in purchasing from them those many articles which they had with such taste and elegance collected together, and the creation of which had been to them a downright labour of love He therefore would at once declare the bazaar open, but just add that he prayed Almighty God to bless their endeavours, and enable them, or their successors, to carry out to completion their proposal for a new church, which, when erected, would be to His honour and glory and prove a blessing to the inhabitants of that populous and increasing parish. The Saltaire Band was engaged for the whole of the time that the bazaar remained open. The weather cleared up in the afternoon, and there was a large increase in the number of visitors from Leeds, Wakefield, Pontefract, Rothwell, Castleford, &c.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE.

As is the custom, the pulpits of all the Wesleyan and many of other denominations, were filled on Sunday with ministers attending the Conference.

At Rothwell, the Rev. T. Cross, (of London), and the Rev. T. T. Dilks, (of London), preached morning and evening, both sermons being most excellent. At Oulton, the same gentlemen conducted alternate services. The Rev. E J Dickenson preached morning and evening at Woodlesford, and the Rev. R. S. Boulter officiated afternoon and evening at Carlton At Lofthouse, the Revs. G. Hooper and F. W. Shirley were the ministers, the Revs. J. Crabtree and J. Thompson taking Stanley.

Homes have been provided in the neighbourhood as follows:—

Rev. C. A Collingwood, Rothwell, Revs. T. Wray, J. Bryant, J. Thompson. Mr. James Hargreaves, Rothwell Haigh, Rev. T. Cross. Mr. S. Seanor, Rothwell, Rev. R. S. Boulter. Mrs. Armitage, Oulton, Rev. E T. Dickenson. Mr. W. Mason, Oulton, Rev. T. T. Dilks. Mr. Wright, Lofthouse, Rev. G. Hooper.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

WOODLESFORD CHURCH CHOIR.

On Tuesday last, the members of the above choir had their annual trip. This year it was decided to visit Bangor and the places of interest in the neighbourhood in North Wales. The distance to be travelled made it necessary to start early, the train leaving Leeds about midnight. By arrangement with the Midland superintendent, the party from Woodlesford were taken to Leeds by a late express stopped for their accommodation.

The first part of the journey was rather tedious, but it had its compensations, when the sun began to rise behind the estuary of the Dee, lighting up the walls and towers of old Chester, and revealing the beautiful stretch of country through which the train was passing. On leaving Chester the route follows the sea beach for over 50 miles passing through several places of interest. Holywell, the site of St. Winfred's well famous amongst Roman Catholics for its reputed curative properties; Rhyl, a remarkably pretty watering place; Colwyn Bay; Llandudno, with Great Orme's Head in the distance; we dive under Little Orme's Head and cross a fine suspension bridge to the walled town of Conway, with its famous old castle, built 600 years ago. Penmaenmaur, Llanfairfechan, and other little watering places the names of which may be more easily imagined than pronounced, are passed, and Bangor is reached about 6 o'clock.

The city is surrounded with beautiful scenery and fine country walks, indeed it would be difficult to find a more attractive place for a day's outing.

Amongst the places of interest visited was of course the famous Suspension Bridge across the Menai Straits. Standing underneath and looking upwards some 120 feet, and comparing the chasm spanned by the bridge with the ærial appearance and graceful curve of the suspending chains, &c., the whole construction is suggestive of the achievement of some ambitious spider. A walk across the bridge however convinces one of the strength and solidity of the structure, and the view from either side on the middle of the bridge is one not to be soon forgotten. On the Anglesey side of the bridge is a quaint old Parish Church, the origin of which is lost in the mists of antiquity. Its origin and age are unknown. There are cottages in the vicinity of the same character inhabited by a class of people who seem to belong to another age. It feels like a thorough change to wander in a scene like this, and hear the people and urchins running about chattering in a tone more foreign to our ears than modern French or German.

The slate quarries at Penrhyn, is another point of interest which was found to be within easy reach from Bangor. The drive there is through some of the most romantic scenery in the district. In front is a line of hills piercing the clouds; on the one hand runs the river Cegid, winding through moss-covered stones, clattering over an occasional fall, between banks covered with a wealth of ferns and wild-flowers, and disappearing here and there under a rustic bridge; on the other wooded plantations, rich with an undergrowth of ferns, mosses, and heathbell; while through an occasional rift in the trees, a passing glimpse is caught of Penrhyn Castle surmounting a glade of trees, with the sea in the distance glowing in the sun and forming an effective setting for the green beauty of Puffin Island. The slate quarries, which have been worked since the days of Elizabeth, are well worth a visit; they are worked in galleries of immense steps, some 45 feet high and 20 feet across, when about a dozen of these steps appear one over another, the mountain ridge towering above all, some idea may be formed of the imposing effect. The streets of Bangor differ little from those of any other country town, save for the frequency of the surname Jones over the windows of the shops, and the jabber of the Welsh natives. The cathedral is conspicuous chiefly for its plainness outside; it is not however, unimposing within, the oak reredos is a very beautiful specimen of the wood-carver's art. We cannot attempt to give an adequate description of all that was seen and done in the long day from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m., but enough has been said to commend Bangor to the attention of those who are seeking "fresh fields and pastures new," for a day's excursion, and who do not mind the fatigue of travelling two nights in search of a day's pleasure. The weather was brilliant, and of course much depends upon that. The scenery travelled through was seen in a new light on the return journey, the setting sun glinting across hill, and dale, and sea.

Leeds was reached about 2 a.m. and Woodlesford at 2.30 by an express, which was again stopped to put down the party at home. No doubt the crowded impressions of an eventful day would be quickly effaced, for a time at least, by sound, longed for sleep.

LOFTHOUSE CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL TRIP.

On Thesdey last, the Sunday scholars and teachers, with the choirmen and their wives, making a party of 145 persons, were entertained by Joseph Charlesworth Esq., J.P., and Mrs. Charlesworth. The scholars met at the School at a quarter after six o'clock in the morning, and each received a bun to put in their pockets and eat between that time and 12 o'clock. After singing the morning hymn, they proceeded through the village to Ardsley Station, where they arrived at 7.20; the little ones had been conveyed in a large waggonette.

At 9.30, after a very pleasant ride, they safely arrived at Ripon. Here the party took their seats in the waggonettes, and set off for the Cathedral where they listened to the service till half-past 10 o'clock when they quietly left the sacred edifice and again mounted the carriages, &c., visiting the church in the park on their way. The organ was kindly opened for them and Mr. Marshall accompanied the choir who sang "O pray for the peace of Jerusalem" and "But thou didst not leave" and "Lift up your heads," while the company admired the place.

After the children had partaken of a capital dinner, they went to play in the park while the adults had theirs, for whom the tables were richly supplied.

The children were then collected together and went through the delightful and well-kept grounds to the Abbey where they amused themselves in various ways for about an hour, afterwards visiting the "Echo" rocks.

On returning to tea, the Rev. R. Chadwick, vicar, said that he felt it his duty to propose a hearty vote of thanks to their kind and generous host for the princely and liberal manner in which he had provided for their enjoyment, and had it not been for his absence in London on account of the New Railway scheme he would have been present and have enjoyed himself in being the cause of supplying the means of enjoyment to others. Mr. Marshall seconded the vote of thanks and said that Mrs. Charlesworth had anticipated being amongst them until important duties called her away to London along with Mr. Charlesworth. Three cheers were given for their kind host and hostess with musical honours. Three cheers were given for the vicar and Mrs. Chadwick, and also to Mr. and Mrs. Cherry and the remainder of Mrs. Charlesworth's servants who must have been very busy for several days past in preparing for the enjoyment of the company.

The return journey was made very nicely, all arrived at home at a little before 10 o'clock, having spent a most pleasant and enjoyable day.

EAST AND WEST YORKSHIRE UNION RAILWAY.

This bill came on Wednesday before a Select Committee of the House of Lords, presided over by the Earl of Limerick. Mr. Rodwell, Q.C., Mr. Vaughan Richards, Q.C., Mr. Ledgard, and Mr. Buckley Carr Pope appeared for the promoters; and Mr. Meysey-Thompson appeared for the North-Eastern Railway, and Mr Balfour Browne for Mr. Calverley, of Oulton, who alone are opposing the bill.—Mr. Rodwell Q.C., said the bill had been very much simplified since it was before the Committee of the House of Commons. The promoters had abandoned the junctions with the Great Northern and the Midland Railways at Ardsley and Woodlesford. The promoters, however, believed that the object they had in view would be obtained in a more satisfactory manner by agreements with the two companies, who were to a certain extent friendly to the scheme. The bill, however, had still the same object in view, namely, connecting the West Riding coal district with the port of Hull by means of the Hull and Barnsley Railway. The learned counsel pointed out the advantages which the scheme would confer, and dwelt upon the system which had long prevailed upon the North-Eastern Railway, by which the West Yorkshire colliery-owners were practically excluded from Hull and stations on the system of the North-Eastern Railway, namely, the system by which the station-masters of that company were allowed to act as coal agents and to exercise a certain amount of favouritism, and to exclude those colliery owners who did not "conciliate" them. Mr. Calverley's petition complained that his property was interfered with by the undertaking, but the extent of the interference was greatly exaggerated; and the feeling of the district was greatly in favour of the scheme. The petition of the North-Eastern Railway was merely a competition petition. As to any interference, the North Eastern had made out no case at all; and any interference could easily be arranged by the engineers of the two companies. As to the existence of the coalfield westward of the present workable field, the learned counsel said that the borers had already reached the measures and were now assured of the existence of coal. The line was not a speculative line, but a bona fide undertaking, and the very fact that the coalowners and other gentlemen in the district were prepared to spend £600,000 of their own money, and to put themselves to the trouble and expense of a contest with big companies like the North-Eastern, Great Northern, and Midland, testified to their conviction of the necessity of the line. The principle which guided Parliament to grant the Hull and Barnsley ought to guide the Committee on this occasion, and cause them to pass the present bill.—At the conclusion of the learned counsel's statement, Mr. J. Charlesworth, of the firm of Messrs. J. and J. Charlesworth, of the Lofthouse and Rothwell Collieries, who said it was a district which required development, and was at present without adequate railway facilities, and the proposed line would be of great advantage to it in being an access to the port of Hull. Mr. George Tatham, Mayor of Leeds; Ald. Leek, Mayor of Hull; Ald Milnthorp, Mayor of Wakefield; who in cross examination said that he still supported the measure, because he hoped to get the running next year. Mr. Thos. Bower, of the firm of Messrs. Thos Bower, of the Allerton Collieries, on the estate of Sir. Charles Lowther, gave evidence in support of the Bill.

The consideration of this bill by the Lords' Committee was resumed yesterday, when the evidence in support of the promoters case was continued.—Mr. J. W. Turner, of the firm of Oddy, Turner, and Co., wool-staplers, Bradford, said that the carriage of wool from the East Riding district was at present very slow and uncertain. Having frequently occasion to go to Hull to attend the market, in order to be in time he had to leave home at five in the morning. He believed that the proposed railway would assist him in that respect.—Mr. Feather, wool merchant, Bradford, and a member of the Chamber of Commerce, said that the natural port for the wool coming to Bradford was Hull, but it came to Newcastle because the freights were less. The present rates between Bradford and Hull were high. This line would give a more direct route to Hull, and generally in Bradford it was supported.—Mr. Joseph Ackroyd, colliery-owner, and a large holder of shares in the Silkstone and Haigh Moor collieries on the proposed line, stated that when they were first developed they were at great disadvantage, owing to the want of ready access to the market. The competing collieries on the Midland line were able to deliver, in the market at 9d. a ton less. He expected to get the coal more cheaply to Hull over the new line He had every confidence that it would be a paying line, and he was prepared to take shares in it.—Mr. Wells, coal merchant, Hull; Mr. Embleton, mining engineer, Methley; Professor Green, of the Yorkshire College; and Mr. Greaves, mining agent to Lord Mount-Temple, also gave evidence in support of the bill.—The Committee again adjourned till to-day.

HID TREASURE.

On Monday and two following days, the people living on the Marsh and especially those in Smithson Street, were in a state of excitement because of the discovery, by some boys, of money in an open drain, which runs through the property of Mr. George Lockwood and the late Mr. James Hargreaves.

A short street which is not a thoroughfare divides the two properties before mentioned, and the drain crosses the road at one end of the street; while the three boys, Bertie Lockwood, Smithson Armitage and Alfy Richardson, were playing at cricket in the road, at noon, the ball was sent into the drain, Lockwood at once proceeded to seek the ball, and while doing so, found a coin, which turned out to be a half-crown; the search was continued throughout the day and by night Lockwood had found over £2, and Armitage one halfpenny. Of course this aroused the folks, and the next day a lot of "gold diggers" could be seen in the "mine," but all failed to discover the coveted "nugget" save the "lucky boy" Lockwood, who found several pounds mostly in gold, and an apprentice of his father's who after searching nearly the whole of the day, found half a sovereign. On Wednesday Lockwood still continued his good luck, and by night made the total of his findings over £11.

The coins are not old, and appear to have been placed there recently.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ROTHWELL SHOW.

As will be observed in our advertisement column the Rothwell Floral, Horticultural, and Agricultural and Agricultural Society are having their seventeenth Show on Monday, August 7th, when £250 and three valuable silver cups will be offered in prizes. Mr. T. Wormald, the secretary, will supply schedules, etc.

ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday evening at about a quarter past nine o'clock, an accident occurred to Richard H. Lewis, Marsh-street, Rothwell, aged 16. It appears that he, along with other boys was running down Butcher-lane, and, when near the Wesleyan Chapel he tripped over the foot of a young man whom he was meeting, and fell heavily on the pavement. On examination it was found that his arm was broken in two places, and he at once proceeded to the residence of Dr. Nowell and had the broken bones reset.

ON the 28th July, and subsequently, there will be a very novel Exhibition at the Art Furnishers' Alliance, Limited, 157, New Bond Street, W., consisting of a series of examples of Wall Decoration, produced by the exclusive use of ordinary brown paper, sugar paper, soap paper, and other cheap materials, the desire being to demonstrate that true art effects can, by these means, be harmoniously introduced. This novel adaption is not unlikely to effect a considerable revolution in the internal decoration of our homes.

DEATHS.

TURTON.—July 22nd, Martha Turton, aged 80 years, Carlton.

VARLEY.—July 27th, Sarah Varley, aged 72 years, Rothwell.

HARRISON.—July 27th, Jane Harrison, aged 61 years, Rothwell.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There is no quotable change in wheat to-day, which sells slowly. Maize, oats, and beans are reported steady. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 0d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—We had a larger supply of stock at our market to-day, both of beef and mutton, and as a consequence prices showed a drooping tendency. The fat beasts included a large number of excellent Lincolnshire heifers, several pens of Irish beasts of good quality, and 16 pens of Canadian cattle. The sheep and lambs numbered 1,000 more than last week. Prices for both beef and mutton were decidedly the turn in favour of butchers, dealers having to accept about a farthing per lb. less than last week. Very little doing in milch cows and lean beasts. We had a small supply of pigs, trade slow and little doing except in fat pigs which were in good request.

		this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,		2000		1650
„ sheep	„	5300,	„	4300
„ pigs	„	420,	„	750

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 8½d to 9½d per lb.
Fat calves, 7½d to 9½d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £14 each.
Milch cows, £14 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 9½d per lb.
Lambs, 11d per lb.
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
„ store, 40s to 60s.
„ fat, 6/9 to 7/9 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN Friday, 12.47. p.m.—There is very little disposition on the part of millers to buy wheat this morning, although holders are prepared to make some concession. Beans, oats and maize steady. Weather is very warm but dull with rising barometer.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. ED.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THOSE who are responsible for it are to be congratulated on the attempt which has been made to beautify the bank alongside the up platform at Woodlesford Station, there has not been much done in this way as yet, but the little which has been accomplished is a great improvement, and clearly shows what might be done with the exercise of a little good taste and labour during their spare moments on the part of the station officials, and it is to be hoped that next year we may see a still further advance made in the direction which has been pointed out.

MUCH interest will no doubt be taken in Rothwell this week, in the progress of the Railway Bill through the committee of the House of Lords, and confident hopes of its success may be heard on all sides. As the North Eastern Company and Mr. Calverley, are now the only opponents of the scheme, it seems now probable that before twelve months have passed, we shall have the contractors' army of navvies amongst us; and—be wishing them away again.

IT is currently reported that the White Swan Inn, at Rothwell, now being re-built, is to be rechristened the Railway Hotel. Nothing like going ahead. Hadn't Mr. Judson better wait till the the line is made? But Rothwell is wonderfully to front now.

THERE are rumours of coming litigation between the Woodlesford School Board and a former servant, but it is to be hoped that they may not be correct; the School Board rate is high enough in all conscience without the addition of lawyer's costs, although it will not do for the Board to submit to unreasonable or untenable claims on the part of anyone, and if they have good grounds for resisting such claims, then by all means fight it out.

What is the reason that whilst the School Board have been engaged in such important business as the filling of the vacancy of Head Master, no report of their proceedings has been vouchsafed to the public through the medium of the Rothwell Times in the usual manner? Come gentlemen, let us have some news, we like to know, don't you know.

THIS (Wednesday) is the eleventh day since the one dedicated to Saint Swithin, and it almost looks as though the old saying about the forty days was to be fulfilled this year, as it has rained more or less everyday since the fifteenth, and for anything we can say to the contrary it seems quite as likely to rain for the next twenty nine.

QUID NUNC.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth,; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

SPECIAL 1s. CASHMERES. Stubbs & Co.'s, 31, New Briggate, Leeds. Patterns Free.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY
FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Nervous Depression, Irritability, Loss of Appetite, Heartburn, Lowness of Spirits, Giddiness, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

As a General Family Aperient Medicine they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having Dr. Scott's Bilious and Liver Pills, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 15 or 34 stamps.

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c., &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Rothwell Times,
Woodlesford, Oulton, Carlton, Lofthouse Sherburn, Garforth, Milford, and Kippax Chronicle.
Friday, August 4, 1882.

So the Bill on which so many hopes have centred, and to the object of which we looked for the advancement and enlargement of Rothwell and the neighbourhood, is thrown back in our face, and after being passed by the Commons is declined by the Lords. We are not so foolish as to think that these gentlemen who look down from their comfortable livings, will take any notice of the chagrin and disappointment felt by a few thousand hard-working men and women about here, but it does seem out of order that by reason of the determined opposition of a few interested parties, the efforts and money of the many should have been utterly wasted, and the desire to free ourselves from the isolation and disadvantages imposed by our forefathers, should be spurned and lost.

As to the future, we would fain hope that the clouds which now seem again to gather about us, may be less ominous than at first appears, and that some way may be proposed whereby we may have better access for ourselves and our goods to and from the larger towns. The more sanguine look forward to a renewal of the petition next year and anticipate success from a second effort. Others believe, and have some grounds for saying that one or other of the existing companies will now take us up by means of a loop line or other arrangement. One thing is certain, that if Rothwell is to improve, she must have better and easier means of communication. Will those who object to what was thought a good scheme, present us with some other which will answer our purpose? Our present condition is unbearable. To whom shall we look for relief? It is all very well for Woodlesford and Oulton people to chuckle over our calamity, when they have the line which our fathers ought to have allowed to come through Rothwell, but let them place themselves in our shoes and they would tell a different tale. We presume more information will transpire shortly, and possibly when things get cooled down a little, some plan may be decided upon which will secure the boon of better connection with the world, and give us a fair chance of improving ourselves and our town.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

On Monday evening, the usual meeting of the Board was held, present:—Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman); J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, J. Sanderson, J. Holmes, S. Bramley, J. Batty, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector, and inspector.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed, on the motion of Mr. Batty and Mr. Bramley.

BRIDGE WIDENING.—Tenders for the widening of Church Street bridge were opened, and on the motion of Mr. Holmes, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves, it was agreed to accept that of Messrs. Stainer and Verity for £94 15s. 0d.

HIGHWAYS.—As it appears there is some misunderstanding as to the removal of dirt on the road-sides, another letter was ordered to be written to Mr. Bulmer, complaining of some scrapings, etc., being still left.

It having come to the knowledge of the Board that there is a well in a house belonging to the late Mr. Joseph Smith, the water of which is unfit to drink, and which is also dangerous as being in a cellar, the clerk was instructed to take such measures as may be necessary to have it closed.

The state of the channelling in Commercial Street, on the south side, is referred to the Highways Committee.

Mr. Oliver complained that by reason of a wall, in Wakefield and Leeds road, being partly broken down, the cattle passing on that road sometimes got through and into his wheat. He asked the Board to re-build the wall, if it was their's. Some discussion ensued on the subject of possession of the pin fold, of which this wall is a part, and in which stone has been stored until required. The subject was eventually left to the Highway Committee.

Mr. Sanderson mentioned the need of getting the thistles off the road sides, which was left to the Committee and inspector.

Mr. Jowitt's attention was to be drawn to the sides of Wakefield and Aberford Road, which require chipping; also to the water crossing near Mr. Sanderson's house

The former foreman of the Wakefield Road having died recently, Thomas Howarth was appointed in his place at 22s. a week.

WATER.—A letter was read from Messrs. Bromet and Taylor, Lord Stourton's agents, in which they enquire if the Board will send a copy of the entire correspondence as regards Mr. Lawton's water supply. Some discussion ensued on the subject, after which the clerk referred to the bye-laws, wherein a provision is made for any persons desiring to have copies of the Board's proceedings at a fixed rate of 3d. per 100 words. Mr. Oliver accordingly moved that Messrs. Bromet and Taylor have a copy of the correspondence between the Board and the Local Government Board, according to the scale decided by the bye-laws. Seconded by Mr. Sanderson and carried.

Mr Turner asked if anything had been done about analysing the water for Royds Green. The Inspector replied that he had no orders where to take it. The matter was ordered to be taken up by the clerk and inspector, and reported to next meeting.

Mr. Holmes urged the need for better arrangements as regards the water at Stourton, if any part of the estate required the mains examining, or connections made or altered, the whole estate had to remain without water, there being only one tap. The Water Works Committee was desired to attend to this matter.

FINANCE.—On the motion of Mr. James Hargreaves, seconded by Mr. Bramley, it was resolved that the salaries and accounts be paid.

The clerk then read the draft mortgage for the loan of £4750 from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, for Rothwell Sewage Works, which was approved on the motion of J Hargreaves and Mr. Holmes.

Mr. J. W. Oxley, of the firm of Messrs. W. W. Brown & Co., was appointed treasurer to the Board.

The collector reported having received and paid into the bank during the fortnight:—

	£	s.	d
General District Rate...	61	1	0
Water	24	9	4
	£85	10	4

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of this Board was held on Saturday last, at Carlton School, all the members were present, viz:—Mr. T. Oliver, (chairman); Messrs. J. Appleyard, J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves, and W. Keightley, with Mr. J. H. Lee, the clerk.

At a special meeting held a few days ago, 112 applications were received for the post of head master at Carlton; seven candidates were selected and asked to meet the Board at this meeting. Six of the applicants attended and the qualifications of each were fully considered. Mr. Hargreaves moved, and Mr. Appleyard seconded—That Mr. G. W. Fairburn receive the appointment. This was carried unanimously. Mr. Fairburn is at present assistant in a large school under the Bradford School Board.

The amounts received by the treasurer during the month are £21 2s. 6d. for school fees, and £1 8s. 6d. for books sold. Cheques were signed for salaries, etc., £38 4s. 8d.; and £9 11s. 0d. for books, stationery, etc

The Board decided to pay Mr. Ledgard £2 10s. 0d. for valuation of trees, etc., planted by him in the garden at Carlton School.

The schools close today for three weeks holiday.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

THE RAILWAY BILL.

On Wednesday evening, an indignation meeting was held at the Cross, Mr. Newsome being in the chair. The chairman understood that the meeting was called to protest against the action of the Lords' Committee, as regards the Bill for promoting the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway. On receiving the news that this bill had been thrown out, there had been a wave of regret passing through the town, and now there was rising a howl of indignation against those who had brought about such a result.

He urged that they should not cease to agitate the subject, that they must not give in, but form a committee which should carry on the work of preparation for a determined effort next year. There were a number of gentlemen who had not only given a great deal of time and labour for the promotion of this Bill, but had gone very deeply into their pockets, and he was sure those gentlemen deserved the deep sympathy and thanks of all concerned.

Mr. B. Batty warmly supported the remarks of Mr Newsome as regards the promoters of this line, and trusted that they would all try again, and that the working men of the place should offer their half-crowns, and by every means help to swell the amount which would be necessary for carrying it next year. After pointing out some of the advantages to be realised from railway communication, he moved a resolution strongly protesting against the arbitrary action of the Committee of the House of Lords in regard to this Bill.

Mr. J. Turner followed in a similar strain, further pointing out that a considerable part of the work done and money expended this year would be available for an effort next year, and said that many of the present lines had only been obtained after trying two or three times

Mr. Wm. Hargreaves, who was expected to preside, having just come on to the ground, was then asked to speak, and was warmly received. He expressed his great regret that he had to meet them on an occasion like the present, and to say that the Railway Bill had been thrown out. It was a bad thing for Rothwell; no place could have striven harder to obtain a bill, and he considered the action of the Lord's Committee simply disgraceful. As Professor Rogers said more than once, "it is evident Rothwell wants a railway;" every landowner on the line, with the exception of one, ("shame") had petitioned in favour of it; they had proved there would be plenty of traffic; and some £13,000 had been spent in trying to get the bill; and yet by the casting vote of the chairman, out of five members, the committee have refused the request. As regards the statements of the opposition about being able to get to Hull by several other routes, that might be so, but only one was open, the North Eastern. One gentleman said that there were only 14,000 people along the entire distance between Ardsley and Drax. He considered the action of the single landowner who had been one means of upsetting this scheme, was a disgrace to him, and would be a standing disgrace as long as he lived. He also commented on Mr. Farrar's statement that Mr. Calverley had pulled down two mills to secure greater privacy, and denounced his wish to shut off every sort of business, and his opposition to this line. He (Mr. Calverley) had rather spend money in order to beggar the district, than spend it in improving Rothwell, and in increasing the value of his estate by selling the materials. Several of the promoters were very warm on the subject, and, notwithstanding the jubilant mood of the opposition now, he looked forward to having a Railway yet.

A resolution was then put and carried, through Mr B. Batty and Mr. John Turner, protesting against the action of the House of Lords Committee, and also another, on the motion of Mr. John Turner, seconded by Mr. Joseph Harrison, censuring the opposition of Mr. Calverley, which was also passed unanimously. Mr. Newsome then suggested that they should give three groans for Mr. Calverley, in order somewhat to give vent to their indignation and disapproval of his action taken in the Bill, and led by Mr. Newsome, the thing was executed in a very earnest and hearty manner.

STOURTON WESLEYAN SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

On Sunday, July 23rd, very excellent sermons were preached in the above school-chapel, on behalf of the Sunday School, in morning by the Rev. H. Soper, of Derby, in the afternoon and evening by the Rev. J. Gibson, of Wolverhampton, the chapel being well-filled at the latter services. The Whitsuntide hymns were used during the day, and greatly added to the attractions of the services.

On Saturday, July 29th, a public tea was held, when upwards of 100 persons partook of the cheering cup.

After tea, a public meeting was opened at seven o'clock by the Rev. A. B. Gardiner with singing and prayer, after which Mr. Gardiner called upon Mr. W. Porter to be chairman for the evening. The following gentlemen were also present—Rev. H. Soper, Rev. J. Schofield, Mr. Bowling, and Mr. Bramham, all of whom delivered addresses pointing out the good work which Sunday Schools have achieved, and urged the teachers present to be earnest in their work, not to be merely hangers-on, but to be diligent, and pray that God's blessing may rest upon their labours. Several of the speakers stated that they owed their present position to Sunday School influence.

The choir sang several pieces during the evening.

Votes of thanks to the chairman, and others that took part in the meeting, brought the proceedings to a close about nine o'clock.

Collections were made at each service on behalf of the school fund, when a little over £4 was realised.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble; while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

ROTHWELL CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.

On Wednesday evening, a meeting of the Rothwell and district Conservative Association was held at the Black Bull Inn There was only a small attendance, partly owing to the meeting on the Railway Bill. Mr. Harms occupied the chair and after a few remarks introduced Mr. W. Dunn of Wakefield, who proceeded to deliver an address on the "Political Situation." He mentioned the long list of measures, large and small, which had been brought in by the Conservative Goverment, under the late Lord Beaconsfield, including the Licensing Laws, the Factory Act, Public Health Act, Artizan's dwellings, Agricultural Holdings, Royal Titles, Winter Assizes, Rivers Pollution, Elementary Education, Prisons, Irish Intermediate Education, Army Regulations and other Bills, and also the purchase of two fifths shares of the Suez Canal. He then spoke of the birth of obstruction, when the Agricultural Holdings Bill was on the table, which infant (obstruction) has now grown so strong and large as to "lick its father," (Mr. Gladstone.) He warmly upheld the expedition to Afghanistan in order to thwart the purposes of Russia, and compared the action of their party then with the vacillating policy which had brought on the Egyptian cricis. He charged John Bright with being so dishonest as to keep the Duchy of Lancaster the last two years against his conscience, and then, when his Queen most needed the services of her Government, to shew the white feather and leave his leader in the lurch. He held that the working man had been shamefully gulled by the Birmingham caucus, and by village agitators, and that if the Conservatives had been in power such a disgraceful state of things as we now have in Egypt would not have occurred.

Comparing the long list of Bills passed under Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Dunn said that in 1880, Mr. Gladstone's Government did next to nothing, in 1881 they passed the Land Act, and the Employers' Liability Act, (which had only been the means of recovering £6000 all the year,) and in the present session they had just managed to get passed one of the severest Coercion Bills ever known. The Arrears Bill he strongly deprecated, not so much because of the immediate relief it was to afford poor tenants, but because it would form precedent, and every year we should be having a charge of two or three millions.

Mr. Dunn continued his address on the advantages at present of Cyprus, for acquiring, which Lord Beaconsfield had been so badgered. He held up to ridicule the idea of the present Government sending the Orountes as a troopship to Alexandria, without any troops; and of sending 1000 men in the Tamar without a shot of ammunition. Such men, he held, were not fit to rule the empire.

In conclusion, he urged every member of the Association to attend these monthly meetings regularly, to get firmly grounded in Conservative principles, to influence others, and to work on steadily for the increase of their numbers and influence. If the working men thoroughly understood Conservative principles, they would join their ranks at once; whatever they did they must keep working. If people saw the other side active and agitating, and their side dull and quiet, they would be inclined to go over to the other side. If they did this, each bringing one new member a month, they would soon have the "bonny blue banner" floating over them again, which he devoutly hoped might soon be the case.

Mr. Harms cordially thanked Mr. Dunn for his effective and lucid address, and trusted they would all endeavour to work harder, and to depend on themselves.

Mr. Hartley, of Wakefield, made some remarks on the Irish question, holding that conciliation would never do for the Irish; if you gave an Irishman an inch, he would take a yard. He believed an election was near at hand, possibly by next month, and it became them all to be quite ready so as to bring about a change in the Cabinet.

A very hearty vote of thanks was then passed to Mr. Dunn, on the motion of Mr. Joseph Wright, seconded by Mr. Roberts, and supported by Mr. Moorhouse, of Robin Hood.

The thanks of the meeting were also presented to Mr. Hartley, and to the chairman.

ANCIENT ORDER OF FORESTERS.

The members of the above friendly society connected with this district, assembled on Monday morning last, at the Black Bull Inn, Rothwell, to the number of 67, and went in procession to church, where a sermon was preached at eleven o'clock by the Rev. J. C. Lees. The grotesque dresses of several representative members of "Robin Hood and his merry men," were more calculated to provoke a smile than reverence, while every private member donned the green rosette. Several members were mounted on horses and mules, and wore the full green sash usual in the order.

After church, the procession headed by the Rothwell Prize Brass Band paraded the streets, and took their way to Mrs. Roodhouse's, Mr. Charlesworth's, Mr. W. Hargreaves, and Mr. James Hargreaves, arriving in Rothwell about three o'clock. A capital dinner was prepared for the members at Mr. Andrews' hotel, after which the evening was spent in the usual jovial manner.

The affair created quite a stir in the district, and as the pits were not working, a general holiday was kept.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

PARISH SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

Yesterday the anniversary of the above Sunday School was celebrated, and as has been very rare of late years, the weather was favourable, indeed it could not have been more so. The teachers and scholars assembled at the schools, and at two o'clock, headed with the banner proceeded to the church; here a short service was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Lees, and the anniversary hymns sung, and the procession returned to the schools where a good tea was provided.

Tea over, about 70 prizes were presented to the children, and the Rothwell Prize Band led the way to the field adjoining the house of Mr. Lees, where dancing and games were indulged in; about nine o'clock the children were gathered together and sang a hymn, and after the Band had played the National Air, the company dispersed.

EAST AND WEST YORKSHIRE UNION RAILWAY.

THE BILL THROWN OUT.

The consideration of this bill was resumed by the Committee of the House of Lords, presided over by the Earl of Limerick on Monday. The evidence for the promoters was continued.

Mr. James Lowther, M.P., examined by Mr. Richards, stated that his father, Sir Charles Lowther, had a considerable property at Swillington, and he represented him on this occasion. The proposed line would run through his father's estate for a mile and a half. There was a coalfield under the estate, the output of which was 400,000 tons a year. It was the view of his father that the line would be very advantageous to the locality. He knew many of the promoters. They were responsible men, capable of carrying through an undertaking of this charac er.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bidder (for the North-Eastern Company).—A portion of the coal on the estate was not yet opened up. The case for the promoters was closed.

The case for Mr. Calverley was then proceeded with.

Mr. Farrer, agent for Mr. Calverley, submitted plans of the petitioner's estate, and explained them to the Committee. The church at Oulton was, he showed within the park wall. The library and Mr. Calverley's business room overlooked the railway. Mr. Calverley had always endeavoured to keep his residence and park as private as possible; indeed, he had pulled down two mills to ensure privacy. The Oulton vicarage, built and endowed by Mr. Calverley's father, and the Rothwell vicarage, also built and partly endowed by him, would be injured by the proposed railway. Mr. Calverley owned both advowsons. The line was on an ascending ridge between Oulton and Rothwell, and the Board of Trade had objected to it. He had made an estimate of the entire population from end to end of the line between Drax and Ardsley. He included the villages on either side, and the population was 14,000. This total included the village of Lofthouse, which was partly served already by the Great Northern. The principal part of the population was at Rothwell, but he did not see how the proposed railway would serve that township. The scenery of Oulton was the prettiest in the neighbourhood, and the church of Oulton was the finest in the district. There was no public necessity whatever for the construction of this line.

Mr. Balfour Browne having addressed the Committee in opposition to the bill.

The Committee proceeded to hear the case for the North-Eastern Company.

Mr. Mark Oldroyd, chairman of the Wheldale Coal Company, examined by Mr. Meysey Thompson, said that his company would have no difficulty in increasing their output if there was any demand for it. The demand at present would not justify the opening up of the suggested coalfield along the route of the proposed railway.

Mr. Henry Tennant, general manager of the North-Eastern Railway Company, stated that his experience was that when a new railway was projected the points of objection to the old company were put forward very prominently. There was no doubt that the North-Eastern was a monopoly, but it was so owing to the action of Parliament. It was the outcome of the amalgamation of three considerable companies in 1854 and in 1872, when a Committee of both Houses of Parliament inquired into the whole question of amalgamation in the interests of the public. There were no complaints against the North-Eastern. The company carried one-fifth of the whole of the mineral traffic of the railways in England and Wales, one-sixth of the goods and minerals combined, and owned one-fourth of the waggons in use on all the railways in England and Wales. Last year they carried thirty million of tons, compared with twenty millions of tons in 1870. The equal mileage rates were the result of the amalgamation, but there were no complaints against them from anywhere but Hull. He denied that the charge of the high rates to Hull had been supported by any evidence. They were not high compared with those on any other railway. There was not the slightest foundation for the charge that the North-Eastern had endeavoured to neglect Hull in the interest of the northern ports. The figures of trade showed that exactly the opposite was the fact. With regard to merchandise, between 1871 and 1881 the increase at Hull was 22 per cent., whilst in the same period the increase at the northern ports was only 1 per cent. The Lancashire and Yorkshire, the Midland, and the Great Northern had all running powers into Hull if they chose to exercise them.

The Committee again adjourned.

The Committee resumed the consideration of this bill on Tuesday.

Mr. Hy. Tennant, general manager of the North-Eastern Railway Company, having been cross-examined, the case for the North-Eastern Railway Company was conclude . Mr. Bidder addressed the Committee on their behalf on the whole case. He said that if the bill were passed there was no prospect that the line would be made, and if made there was no prospect that it would pay. It would not reduce the rates nor injure the North Eastern Company, and it would only injure those who put their money into it. There was no working agreement with any other company, and though it hung on to the Hull and Barnsley Railway, there had been no one representing that company to give evidence in its favour.

Mr. Richards, Q.C., closed the case on behalf of the promoters, and in dealing with the opposition of Mr. Calverley, commented on the absence of that gentleman, who had left his case to be presented to the Committee by professional men.

The Chairman intimated that it was not necessary to enter further upon that part of the case.

Mr. Richards then dealt with the opposition of the North-Eastern Railway Company, and said that it was certain if this line were made that junctions with the Great Northern at Ardsley and with the Midland at Woodlesford would be made also without the necessity for coming to Parliament again. He could not conceive of a stronger case for a line of railway than had been made out for this one, by the fact of the unanimous support given to it by the landowners and others in the district through which it would pass. The reason for their eagerness for it might be summed up in a single sentence—that they objected to the monopoly of the North-Eastern.

The room was cleared at five o'clock, and on the readmission of the public,

The Chairman said that the Committee were of opinion that the bill was not proved.

The bill is therefore thrown out.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT.

DRUNKENNESS.—George Hick, miner, Rothwell, was fined 5s. and 10s. costs, for drunken and riotous conduct at that place on the 29th ult., on the evidence of Police-sergeant Turton.—Joseph Bullock, collier, Carlton, was fined a similiar amount for a like offence, on the 23rd July, on Police-constable Slimmon proving the case.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Market rather thinly attended. Wheat in limited request at 1s. per qr. decline. Maize firm. Oats, beans, and peas steady. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The supply of both beef and mutton to-day, was larger than last week, and with only a moderate demand, prices had a decidedly downward tendency. The fat beasts included 19 pens of Canadian cattle, the remainder being about equally divided between north country, Lincolnshire, and Irish cattle. The prevailing prices were in favour of buyers to the extent of about a farthing per lb. The sheep and lambs on offer numbered 200 more than last week, and for mutton the advantage was in favour of buyers to the extent of a farthing per lb also. Comparatively little doing in milch cows and lean beasts. Little doing in pigs, late rates prevailing.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	2180	last week, 2000
" sheep	"	5500,	" 5300

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THERE was quite a sensation in Oulton last Monday evening, in consequence of the return from their picnic in Swillington Park of a large party of Leeds Conservatives; everybody turned out to witness the cavalcade as it passed through the village, and as a large contingent thereof pulled up at Peel's, that popular hostelry speedily became the principal centre of attraction for the village gazers, to whom the spectacle of a Leeds Tory stowing away a glass of "bitter" was evidently something quite out of the common order of things.

THE living at Swillington seems destined to change hands very frequently, for it is now stated, in fact on the authority of Mr. Fawkes himself, that the present rector is about to seek fresh fields and pastures new; and as usual, rumour is busy about his successor. Is it true that the vicar of Woodlesford is looked upon favourably by those in whose hands is vested the appointment of the new rector? if so, Mr. Irvin may indeed be congratulated on having at the same time become possessed of a youthful heir, and a good living. The question has been asked where is Mr. Fawkes going to? no one seems able to answer it. Has he also got a better living, or has he joined the Salvation Army?

THE mention of the Salvation Army brings to mind the question whether a detachment of that body could not make a successful attack upon Woodlesford and Oulton. There is plenty of good (?) material to go to work upon, which appears to be quite beyond the reach of the present denominations, and if the Salvation Army could effect an improvement in the habits and mode of living of scores of people in the two villages, they would earn the lasting gratitude of everybody—but the publicans.

THE dye is cast; the bolt has fallen; the Railway bill is thrown out, and in Rothwell there is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. And this in spite of the frenzied eagerness and confident anticipation of the local public. The disappointment is all the greater on account of the certainty which has undoubtedly existed in people's minds that the bill would pass, and the result will be a lesson to many, not to be too sure about anything. Poor Mr. White; it is a sad let down to him, to be unable to carry all before him, and he is palpably several inches shorter in stature than he was recently, while the visage of Mr. J. Turner jun. is less amiable than ever. On the other hand there is great joy in the camp of the "squire" of Oulton Hall, and it is confidently asserted that Mr. Calverley and his trusty henchman Mr. Farrar, have been observed dancing the can can together in celebration of their victory. A merry peal was rung at Oulton Church the other day also in honour of the event. It may be confidently expected that the rejection of the bill has sounded the death knell of the House of Lords; such a violation of the rights and privileges of the doughty citizens of Rothwell cannot for a moment be tolerated, and it was the bounden duty of the Rothwell Liberal Association on Wednesday evening to show its sense of the injury done to the village by passing a vote of censure on the upper house, and declaring that it has ceased to be worthy of the confidence of the nation, and ought therefore to be immediately abolished. Tremble, ye tyrants, and look to yourselves, ye peers; your days are numbered, for Rothwell is up in arms against you! As to poor Mr Calverley, he can surely never survive the sentence of excommunication which has been fulminated against him at the said meeting, and must never dream of visiting the insulted village again.

CRICKET.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you kindly insert the following in your columns this week, as I want to have a word with the cricketers of our club First, I wish to say that no pride is taken in the noble game by some who can play cricket if they would, as everybody will see by the result of last Saturday's matches. Three whom I could mention stopped at home whom I think would have altered the total if they had been in their places in the first team; as for the second I dont know what to say about them, but I am beginning to think if something is'nt done soon that our club will have dropped out of existence altogether; in fact people have given us up now for a very poor set of cricketers, who at one day used to say what a good club we were. Now I should just like to suggest one thing to our committee and it is this, if it be possible to get C. Tiffany and a few others it would mend us up again. Perhaps some will object to that, but I for one think that ever since he gave over playing, the club has gone behind or rather is going as fast as it can possibly go, and that is not what I want to see, as I love the game of cricket myself and wish to see it prosper in our little village again. Secondly, I should like to know if it is not possible to get professional aid for our club if it were only for one season, as I think he would perhaps be the means of restoring some good cricket, for I fail to see any now. But I expect some will say, where are the means to come from to pay his wages? Well, I would suggest this, get as much we can by public subscriptions; for instance, say we go to the president and vice-presidents and lay our case before them, then ask them to double their subscriptions, likewise to other gentlemen in our district who are not vice-presidents; then there is the working class, part of whom I've no doubt will help as far as their means will allow, and I've no doubt if our committee would put themselves to the trouble we may still hope to see a good cricket club in Rothwell again.

Yours, &c.,
A CRICKETER.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called billiousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth, and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

This company has been formed for the purpose of purchasing the right of manufacturing and selling a medicine hitherto only sold in Germany. Remedies for invigorating and restoring tone to the nervous system have been before the public for many years, but a preparation which, in addition to strengthening a weak constitution developes the human frame in the female sex, has not hitherto been known in England. Bathukolpine, as a medicine for woman, has secured the approval and recommendation of such eminent professors as Duflos, Paul, and Doctor Klaproth. For aiding digestion, regulating the circulatory system of the body, and developing the figure, this wonderful medicine is without a rival. It is in fact as a physic, to effect the last result that it has for years been extensively sold in all the provinces of Germany.

Large profits and even gigantic fortunes have as it is well known, been made by private individuals out of Patent medicines.

Had Professor Holloway formed his business into a limited liability company when he started, £1 shares would have been worth over £1000 now. The profits on the sale of patent medicines are fabulous, and it is with every confidence that the Directors affirm their belief that the success of this Company will be unprecedented, the fact that there is not another medicine of the kind obtainable in the United Kingdom is in itself a guarantee of success.

The cost of manufacturing the medicine is comparatively infinitesimal, and the capital of the company, after fitting up the works, which will not cost more than a thousand pounds, will be expended in judicious advertising, and the general carrying on of the business. The Directors do not anticipate that more than 10/- per share will be called up.

At a low computation it is believed that at least 250,000 bottles of this medicine will be sold annually. The price will be 3s. 7½d. per bottle (medium size). including goverment stamp. The profits arising on each bottle sold will be gross 3s., but after allowing for expences, agencies, etc., should not be more than 2s. This means a profit of £25,000 per annum, which on a called-up capital of £10,000 represents over 250 per cent. per annum. This is not extraordinary, as many other patent medicines produce considerably more than such a profit.

No Director has taken less than 100 shares, and the shareholders themselves will fix the remuneration of the Directors at the General Meeting.

The only agreement entered into is: An agreement dated the 25th day of July, between Frederick William Little and John H. Wilson, on behalf of the Company, and the agreement can be seen at the offices of the Company.

Lists will close on Thursday 10th inst.

Agents will be appointed in all the large towns of the United Kingdom. Shareholders will undoubtedly have the preference as to appointment. A large number of shares have already been applied for privately. It will be seen that taking shares in this company does not mean an uncertain speculation; the money of the shareholders is not to be used for purchase of an unworkable Mine or Quarry, but for carrying on a straightforward business, and a business which will return an enormous profit.

So soon as the regulations of the Committee of the Stock Exchange can be complied with a settlement and quotation will be applied for. Prospectuses and forms of application may be had at the Company's offices.

Subscriptions must be sent to the Bankers with the following form of application filled up.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the Liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.

DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

AS A GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [27

Worth a Guinea a Box.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints at any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial. The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 36 stamps.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

CETEWAYO IN LONDON.

In the early days of August, when the west-end of the capital suggests the idea of a sultry wilderness, when Rotten-row is deserted, when the lines of equipages in Piccadilly have become attenuated, and the clubs in Pall Mall are comparatively empty, it is something new to have in London a sable visitor whose name, three short years ago, was a name of terror to a flourishing English colony, and who was the king of a powerful and determined people who made a very resolute show of opposition to the British arms. The popular idea of the Zulu sovereign in 1879 differed widely from the reality which is now presented. The disaster at Isandula showed that the people over whom Cetewayo ruled were thoroughly acquainted with the business of war, They advanced upon the British position upon the same line as those upon which Hannibal, the famous Carthaginian general, defeated the Roman army at the great battle of Cannæ, and the warlike nature of their disposition was shown by the great slaughter we sustained in the engagement. The fierce conflict upon the Zlobane Mountain and the tragic death of the Prince Imperial, with the final struggle at Ulandi, further tended to confirm the bad impression which we had formed of the Zulus.

Cetewayo is now in our midst, and proves to be a very interesting personage. The impression which he has made is decidedly favourable. He is by no means the hopeless savage which had been pictured, appears pleased with what he has seen in this country, and so far from wishing to wet his spears in human blood, looks in his uniform as a British officer like a kindly and good-natured man, all smiles and questions, and anxious to please all that he can. His position is undoubtedly a peculiar one. He is a prisoner of war, and has been detained in this way ever since his capture by Major Marter in August, 1879. He was taken by the Imperial forces in the course of a war waged for Imperial purposes in pursuance of an Imperial policy. His object in coming here is to plead his cause for restoration to his throne before the "great people," as he calls them, namely, the Queen and the Cabinet ministers. No doubt the situation is full of difficulty. The settlement of Zululand effected by Sir Garnet Wolseley has not worked so well as had been hoped and expected, but it still exists, and it is not easy to alter it, and set up Cetewayo where John Dunn now rules. Dunn is described as a vigorous and skilful administrator, and those who are acquainted with South African affairs, and have taken an active part in them, describe John Dunn as the ablest man in Zululand. He has been made the chief of the territory, and cannot well be unceremoniously deprived of a position in which he has been solemnly, deliberately, and authoritatively placed. Cetewayo's appeal to be restored to his throne is therefore a matter which will require, as it will receive, every consideration. Until his return to South Africa it is scarcely probable that any decision will be come to by the Colonial Secretary. The King declares that, so far from his having any desire to menace the colony of Natal, he was always anxious to be our friend, and would be so if he were reinstated in his possession of sovereign power. At all events he will have had an opportunity of seeing European civilisation in some of its most perfect forms; and, as he seems an intelligent man, possibly his mind may be open to the reception of ideas which, althought not capable of application to the Zulus in all their completeness, might under certain circumstances and conditions of that people, be made valuable and useful.

The Cabinet will not hurry to come to a decision in the case of Cetewayo. That which has waited three years can wait a little longer. Just now the Ministers have more pressing and urgent business on hand. The Egyptian question is no light one. War is always an absorbing topic, and once having been entered upon should be prosecuted with vigour. The most energetic action is the cheapest in the long run. This fact is being recognised at the present moment by the rapid despatch of troops to the scene of hostilities. They are some of our finest men, and they will be led by a general in whom the soldiers and their countrymen have every confidence. Good men are useless without a good general, and the proposition reversed holds equally true. In the present case the combination is complete. Having conquered the Egyptian army, there will remain the task of the restoration of order in the cradle of civilisation, and the details willl not give the Cabinet Ministers much of a holiday. Just now, too, there is an important constitutional question for adjustment between the two Houses of Parliament, and this requires the nicest handling and the most delicate treatment. Abroad and at home therefore the hands of her Majesty's confidential advisers are full. Cetewayo will be attended to when the more urgent affairs now on hand are out of the way. There is no doubt that he will have justice done to him. He thoroughly believes that his cause is a righteous one, and as his manners have already secured him many friends, it is probable enough that his visit will be productive of material advantage to him. If he can show the Queen and Ministers that he has been wronged, right will be done, for our national reputation was never secured by being built upon a foundation of injustice.

ROTHWELL FLOWER SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the Rothwell Floral, Horticultural, and Agricultural Society, has now become quite an institution, so much so, that although there have been considerable difficulties and doubts to overcome, the force of the inevitable has been too much for the committee and others interested in the show, and by putting forth earnest determined effort, the seventeenth show has been got up in about half the time usually occupied in its preparation, and was held on Monday last, on the old site, Whitehall Field.

The weather, that all important factor in out-door demonstrations, has been most propitious and favourable. For most of the week previous, harvest operations had been energetically carried on, and a good part of the hay had been gathered. The favouring sunshine still continues, raising the drooping spirits of the agriculturist, and promising once more the good harvest—which we have expected several years. Although the attractions of the show were not so great as on previous years, and the value of the prizes has been reduced in several classes, the fact of Monday being Bank Holiday, and of Rothwell being just a nice drive out, there were a good number of visitors from the neighbourhood, while the attendance of our own people was also large, though not quite up to last year.

The gates were thrown open at one o'clock, but the entrance was very small until about three o'clock, when the influx became gradually larger as the time for the leaping drew near; the crowd rapidly growing after the sixpenny time was passed.

At half-past one, the president, Mr. Wm. Hargreaves, proceeded to open the show. He expressed his great pleasure in attending the seventeenth annual exhibition of the Rothwell Society, and was glad to have to congratulate the committee on having one of the finest days he had seen this year. From what he had seen and heard, he considered that the Rothwell show was second to none of its class in Yorkshire, and that this year the collection of exhibits was quite equal to any previous year. He had very great pleasure in declaring the seventeenth exhibition of the Society now open.

The president, accompanied by several vice-presidents and other gentlemen, then adjourned to the private tent, where an excellent luncheon was partaken of, the president occupying the head of the table, Mr. C. F. Hoyle acting as vice-president.

After luncheon, Mr. J. Turner, jun., rose to propose the "Health of the President," a duty which he had been asked to undertake at the last moment, but which, nevertheless, he had very great pleasure in doing. In proposing Mr. Hargreaves' health, he thought there was a peculiar fitness in his present position. He had endeavoured in many ways to advance the village, with whose interests he was so closely bound up. As chairman of the School Board, he thought Mr. Hargreaves was also most suitable for the presidency of the Flower Show. The connection between the improvement of the mind in the study of books, and in the cultivation of flowers, was becoming more close and evident, as means of elevating and expanding the knowledge of the people. He also congratulated the president and committee on the favourable weather and on the capital lunch provided. He therefore thought that from every point of view Mr. Hargreaves was eminently fitted for the honour put upon him this year, and he had great pleasure in giving the "Health of the President." The toast was cordially honoured.

Mr. Hargreaves, in responding, was exceedingly obliged to Mr. Turner, and the other gentlemen, for so kindly drinking his health. He was glad to find that a few people thought he had tried to do something for Rothwell. From what he had seen, the plants and vegetables make a very good show; he was pleased to observe the improvement shewn in the amateurs and cottagers classes, and was sure so far as the working men were concerned, the show was successful. Although in Rothwell most of the working men were miners, he was glad that some of them devoted their leisure time to their gardens, instead of spending it in the public house, and he must congratulate them on their success, one man had taken nearly 30 prizes. He thanked Mr. Turner and the company present for so kindly drinking his health. He now proposed "The Vice-Presidents."

Mr. Dobson (of Woodlesford) as one of the oldest members of the Society, responded, and said he had ever had pleasure in assisting this society as far as possible. Mr. [illegible] also acknowledged the toast on behalf of his colleagues and himself, and in congratulating the Committee on the very auspicious weather, contrasted it with the misfortunes of the Leeds Society. He thought the Committee had shewn praiseworthy pluck in attempting another show, and hoped to be present at their exhibition for many years to come.

Mr. Hoyle had great pleasure in proposing "the Committee" who he was sure had worked hard and successfully. Mr. Bumby, in replying, said that they thought at one time that the show was about to collapse, and had it not been for a few old members and a few new ones going in heartily, they would not have had a show to-day.

In asking Mr. Embleton, of Methley, to propose "the Judges," the president complimented him on his knowledge and experience in horticulture, and knew of no one so well qualified, as an amateur, to move such a toast as Mr. Embleton.

Mr. T. W. Embleton, in proposing "the Judges," said he knew of no post so much an object of envy as that of a judge, and yet he trusted that their judges would never be able to please everybody. As to the president's remarks respecting miners or colliers as they used to call them, he believed his first taste for the cultivation of flowers was awakened by an old collier. He, however, never exhibited anything at a show, and therefore never had the pleasure of getting a prize. As the best compliment he could pay to the judges, he hoped that their awards would not satisfy everyone, and then he thought they would be about right. Mr. Scriven, one of the judges, replied, and in reference to the department in which he was interested, he wished to say, that if exhibitors wouly only class their stock properly, it would help the judges a lot.

Dr. Glaister proposed "the Visitors," and seeing so much depended on the attendance and support of friends, this toast would be heartily drunk, and he hoped the visitors would spend a very agreeable afternoon. Mr. B. Clark, of Beeston, responded, and after congratulatng the society on the favourable weather and the tokens of success, expressed the hope that they might often meet together under similar pleasurable circumstances.

Mr. Hoyle next gave "the Secretary." Although he had never been a secretary, and never wished to be, he knew very well that a great deal of the result of such an undertaking depended on the secretary and he had great pleasure in proposing the "Health of Mr. Wormald." Mr. T. Wormald intimated his pleasure that his health should have been proposed in so flattering a manner, and having been secretary of this society almost from its commencement, now felt quite at home in the work. He was quite sure that so long as so many gentlemen supported the society, it would not go down.

The party then separated.

The various tents occupied the same positions as on previous years, the horses being on the other side of the water, and the pigs near the entrance. Immediately on entering the tent, a most tastefully arranged bank of flowering plants was built at the end of the centre gallery, and spoke well for the artistic genius possessed by Mr. J. Clayton, nursery gardener, of Rothwell. The many hued flowers glistening in a semi-circle tier above tier in the most pleasing and charming manner, culuminated in some remarkably fine specimens, rising to the top of the table. As an example of what may be done by cultivated taste, and with highly cultured plants, it was splendid, and being "not for competition" may perhaps lead to the society returning to this former section of the prize list, and raise in others a desire of studying the placing of various plants and flowers so as to produce the most pleasing effect.

In some of the classes there was very little competition, but in most varieties there were several entries; the improvement in the cottagers class was very marked in plants and vegetables, vying most favourably with the "gardeners'." Mr. James Wood's pluck in competing with sale growers and gents' gardeners was well-rewarded by several prizes taken, while the splendid list and exhibits of Mr. Thomas Fielding is a standing proof of what may be done by steady, thoughtful perseverance in the elevating art of cultivating flowers and plants, even though the usual occupation may be so ordinary as that of a coal miner. We trust other miners will be fired to greater zeal and success.

The stove and greenhouse plants were a great improvement on previous years. The show of fuschias was very fine, and even the cottagers' exhibit in this class were superior to the "gardeners." Of the cottagers, Mr. T. W. Bennett was the most successful for plants, Mr. G. Maundrill taking the lead in cut flowers, while Mr. Joseph Moore, of Oulton, headed the list for fruit and vegetables, Mr. R. Ward, of Carlton, coming in close after him for vegetables.

The following is the prize list:—

Mr Samuel Taylor, Rothwell Haigh. 1st and 2nd dahlias; 2nd roses.

The pig show was a small affair, and there was not much competition, the following being the result:—

PIGS.—Sow, middle breed in pig or milk, Wilson, Crosby & Co., Apperley Bridge; 2, J. Clayton, Rothwell. Sow, small breed, in pig or milk, 1 and 2, Wilson, Crosby & Co. Sow and litter, Rev. G. Heberden, Rothwell. Gilt for breeding purposes, Wilson, Crosby & Co. Working Man's pig, C. Baines, Rothwell; 2, J. Ward, Rothwell.

In agricultural produce there were not many entries, the prizes being secured as follows:—

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.—Grain—Wheat, red, 12 stalks, J. Clayton, Rothwell; do. white, 12 stalks, J. W. Smith, Rothwell. Oats, black, 12 stalks, A. Judson, Rothwell; do. white, 12 stalks, S. Rollinson, Ardsley. Barley and beans, J. W. Smith. Roots—Turnips, sweeds, best four, J. Clayton; do. white, best four, A. Judson; do. red, best four, D. Smith, Biggin. Mangel-worzle, long red and yellow globe, best four of each, W. Oldroyd, Newsam Green, Leeds. Potatoes, kidneys and round, best six of each, D. Smith.

Although there were only nine classes of horses, there were some fine specimens shown, and notwithstanding the somewhat smaller number of animals, considerable interest was manifested in the judging. A silver cup, value five guineas, was offered by Joseph Charlesworth, Esq., for pair of mares or geldings, Mr. Clarke securing both the cup and the second prize, this being the fifth year he has obtained the cup in this class. The ponies in harness made a splendid show, five first class turn-outs making their appearance; both prizes were taken by Mr. Foster, of Pontefract, his 'High and Mighty,' driven by Mrs. Foster, winning the four guineas cup, and his 'Lady Bute,' the second prize. As usual, the struggle for the six guineas, leaping cup created the most interest, there being several entries for the prize. So excellent was the sport that the hurdles had to be raised a notch higher than usual, Mr. Gilbert's 'Champion' taking both hurdles without touching at all, while Mr. Sanderson's 'Clear the Way,' came off second best.

HORSES.—Roadster, any age, W Foster, Pontefract; 2, A Crossley, Kippax. Roadster, mare and foal, H. Appleyard, Leeds; 2, J W Smith, Rothwell. Dray horse, E Parker, Castleford; 2, W Hurst Wakefield. Agricultural mare and foal, J W Smith. Two-year-old gelding or filly, J W Smith, ; 2, B Clarke, Leeds. Extra stock, J and S Booth, Leeds 2, ; S Jackson, Wakefield. Pair of mares or geldings, B Clarke 1 and 2. Leaper, J Gilbert, Leeds; 2, C Sanderson, Tadcaster. Ponies in harness, not exceeding 14 hands, W Foster, Pontefract, 1 and 2.

The judges in the several departments were as follows:—Floral Department—Mr. Ed. Thompson, Ilkley; Mr. George Linton, Wakefield; Mr. Henry Groom, Pontefract; Mr. James Hopkinson, Leeds. Horses and agricultural produce—Mr. J. Birkenshaw, Peckfield; Mr. J. E. Scriven, Aberford; Mr. John Gowland, Leeds. Pigs—Mr. J. Birkenshaw, Peckfield; Mr. Joseph Dean, Leeds.

Bailey's Punch and Judy, as usual, attracted the amused attention of old and young, while other games, swings, etc., were provided by private speculators.

The Rothwell Brass Band played an excellent selection of operatic and other music in their best style, the softer phrases being very carefully and tastefully rendered. In the evening dancing was freely indulged in, music from different eminent composers being played by the band. The entire performance was under the baton of Mr. S. Fowler, and was eminently creditable to him and to each individual member of the orchestra

The refreshment tents seemed to drive a roaring trade, Mr. W. Andrews, of the Black Bull Inn, having the beer and spirit department, Mr. W. Brown supplying the tables with tea and eatables.

From the total receipts, it would appear that nearly as many persons paid for entrance as last year, and it is gratifying to know that £74 16s 6d was taken at the gate, and that the efforts of the Committee have been thus rewarded, enabling them to show a clear balance on the right side. As usual, a vast amount of time and labour has been freely expended by the members of the Committee, and they, and their invaluable Secretary, Mr. T. Wormald, are to be congratulated on the result.

That there were no fireworks was a drawback to the interest of the evening, and perhaps the committee may find it to their advantage to provide a little more amusement in the evening of next year's show.

On Tuesday evening, there was a gala, led by the Band, and several races contested, resulting as follows:—

ONE MILE BICYCLE RACE, (confined to Rothwell or members of the Aurora Bicycle Club.) F J Seanor, 1; H Lunn, 2; J Hopton, 3; J R Feanor, 0. The preliminary heats produced but very indifferent racing, and were won by the following:—1st heat—J W Wright, 320, 1; F J Seanor, 180, 2; this heat was a walk over. 2nd heat—H Lunn, 180, 1; J Hopton, 250, 2; G Wild, 350, 0. 3rd heat—J R Seanor, 200, 1; J Waterhouse, 100, 2; G Blackburn, 400, 0; J Middlemiss, scratch, 0. The final produced a very fair race, but unfortunately Wright and Waterhouse fell, the other four finished in the order named, all close up.

120 YARDS FLAT RACE—A Sidebottom, 1st; J Ellis, 2nd.

100 YARDS EGG AND SPOON RACE—R Ward, 1st; J Tiffany, 2nd.

100 YARDS SACK RACE—W Smith, 1st; W Jackson, 2nd.

The receipts for Tuesday were £10 17s. making a total of £85 13s. 6d.

WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of this Board was held on Monday evening, at which were present Mr. Jackson, (chairman), the Rev A. J. Irvin, Messrs. Mason, Nowell, and the clerk.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a letter was read from Mr W. Wright, solicitor, of 15, Park Row, Leeds, and Rothwell, in reference to the notice given to Mr. Longbottom, who claims three months notice instead of the two months given, and which has now expired. The Board decided to adhere to the terms of their notice, and resist the claim of Mr. Longbottom, and instructed the clerk to place the matter in the hands of Mr. Warren, with authority to act on their behalf.

The receipt of £40 from the Overseers, was reported, further on account of the precept issued in April last, £10 had also been received for one year's rent of the Church Sunday School, and deposited in the bank.

Cheques for salaries and several accounts were drawn.

The painting of the schools is progressing satisfactorily in the hands of Messrs. Barker, of Rothwell, the finished portions of the work presenting a very pleasing appearance.

The date of the next meeting of the Board was fixed for Monday, August 28th, instead of September 4th, 1882.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY.

We are highly gratified to learn that the efforts of Mr. Whitehead and others working with him, have been very successful, and that it is probable the coming demonstration of the clubs in this neighbourhood will be large and general. We understand that nine different societies have joined the scheme, and that Sunday, August 27th, has been fixed for the affair.

The several clubs will walk through the town in procession, and proceed to the church, where an address will be delivered by some well-known clergyman. Collections will be made on the route and at the church in aid of the Leeds Infirmary, and we heartily hope a very considerable sum will be raised in aid of this valuable institution.

They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, L.R.C.P.E. Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Next week, we purpose presenting our readers with a list of freeholders and others, whose names appear in the Poll Book of 1741, as living in or having property in Rothwell and neighbourhood. It is a most interesting document, and has been extracted by our friend and townsman, Mr. John Batty, F.R.H.S.

We have also pleasure in stating that we shall give in our next issue, a first paper on "Music," which we are sure will be pleasing and instructive to all lovers of the divine art.

THE PARISH MAGAZINE for this month is unavoidably delayed till Friday next, when it will be ready for sale.

THE OULTON POACHING AFFRAY. On Friday last, Joseph Wainwright, Alfred Tarr, James Roper, Thos. Wraith, Thos. Westwood, and John Rogers, all miners from Hightown and Mexborough, were charged with night poaching at Oulton, and also with committing an assault upon the police. Mr. Williams prosecuted, and Mr. Lodge defended. The particulars of the case have already appeared. It will be remembered that in consequence of information received, Mr. Calverley's gamekeepers arranged for a number of persons along with the police to watch the park, and this was done by two companies on the night of Thursday, June 20. One company was stationed near Oulton Church, and the other in a plantation higher up. Shortly before midnight Sergeant Turton saw thirteen or fourteen men coming into the park. He allowed them to pass, which they did in single file, and they began setting nets. On seeing this a signal was given by Turton, and they began going towards the poachers, who, on seeing that they were discovered at once commenced an attack on the constables with stones. The two parties of keepers and policemen then joined together, and a determined struggle with the poachers took place, stones and bludgeons being freely used by the latter. Several policemen were assaulted, amongst them Seal, who was struck by Roper on the head, and also received a blow from behind from Wright. Both Roper and Wright were caught and apprehended in the park; and Rogers and Eastwood had admitted being present. This left only Wainwright and Tarr to be dealt with so far as identification, and witnesses were called to prove that those two were present. Both admitted having been out poaching, but said it was in Mr. Bland's park at Kippax. Wraith and Wainwright were sentenced to six months' imprisonment, Roper to four months, and the others to two months each; and also ordered to find sureties to keep the peace for twelve months, or in default six months further. They had in addition £2 2s. each costs to pay, or a month further.

GENTLEMEN v. PLAYERS.

The annual match between the above teams took place last Tuesday, in the Cricket Field, Royds Lane, Rothwell. Favoured by most glorious weather a large number of spectators witnessed the game, which was for the benefit of the groundmen, G Gibson and Z Ellis. Shortly before 12 o'clock Messrs. Simms and Irvin issued forth as the initial representatives of the gentlemen, to oppose the bowling of A France and J Webster. Mr. Simms soon commenced business, and a little quick scoring took place, which resulted in S. Gilbert taking the ball from France when twenty had been telegraphed. The change stopped runs coming so fast, but eight overs had been bowled before a separation was made, when Mr. Irvin returned one of Webster's nicely back into his hands. (1 for 29). A Paul filled up the vacancy at the wicket, but he soon had to retire without scoring, Webster's fourth ball taking his off stump. (2 for 31). F W Wood was the next man in, and the first ball produced a couple, in the next over he made a single, immediately afterwards his career was cut short through the instrumentality of R Whiteley, who made a magnificent catch at short slip, which deserved the round of applause with which it was greeted. (3 for 37). A Holmes was the next to face the bowlers, and after contributing a brace of singles, had to succomb to the Pudsey prof. (4 for 39). A Ward now joined Mr Simms who had been gradually running up his score. Ward was soon, however, deprived of his partner, as Mr. Simms played one into his wicket, and had to retire after a faultless innings of 29, composed of five 3's, four 2's and 6 singles. (5 for 46). T Dobson joined Ward and shortly afterwards a change of bowlers was tried, G Pinder trundling from the pavilion end, while Gilbert bowled from the end vacated by Webster. The change did not produce the desired result, so C Tiffany went on vice Gilbert. Runs came slowly but a parting could not be effected, until T Dobson was thrown out by Webster, after contributing 11 runs to the score which now reached 65 for 6 wickets. Mr. W M Wood now partnered Ward, and the figures on the telegraph began to rise rapidly. R Whiteley was tried instead of Pinder, but the two were not separated at 1.30, when an adjournment was made for luncheon, which was provided by Mr. R. Ellis, of the Bowling Green Hotel, in a tent erected in the field. On again resuming hostilities, Gouldthorpe took the ball from Tiffany, and the change soon produced the desired effect, Ward having to retire, being cleverly caught by Pinder behind the wickets, after adding 25 to the score, consisting of one 4, four 3's and the rest singles. (7 for 98). R C Heberden joined Mr. Wood, and the century was soon hoisted. Webster now took the ball from Whiteley, and shortly afterwards Mr. Wood was stumped by Pinder, having added one more than Ward to the score. Webster bowled the last two wickets in two balls, Mr. R C Herberden being not out 4. Total 115. As will be seen, no one but Webster, except Gouldthorpe, took a wicket, Webster took 8 wickets for 27 runs. Gouldthorpe 1 wicket for 11 runs. It is worthy of note that the Pudsey man did all the bowling in the same match last year, taking 9 wickets for 29 runs. A France and E Gouldthorpe were the first representatives of the players, and runs came very fast, France being the first to retire when 62 had been telegraphed, he having contributed 19. W Hirst was next sent in but he returned without adding to the total, S Gilbert now joined Gouldthorpe, and fast scoring was again the order of the day, until Gouldthorpe returned one back to Simms. (3 for 70). J Webster made a brief visit to the wicket and returned without adding to the score, making place for G M Abbey, who had compiled 8, when he was caught by F W Wood. (5 for 101). G Pinder, (the veteran wicket keeper) was the next man, and after a 4 and a 3, was taken by W M Wood at mid-off. (6 for 118). W Marsh, next handled the willow, he also contributed one 4, and then sought repose in the pavillion. (7 for 121). C Tiffany followed, but his career was quickly ended through the instrumentality of T. Dobson. (8 for 125). S Gilbert succombed to one of Irvin's "teazers" after contributing 30. (9 for 126). The two last men were now in R Whiteley and G Gibson, and once more the fielders had some hard work to do, as 58 runs were added before R Whiteley was run out, and the innings ended with the score at 184. The following is the analysis of the bowling:—

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There is very little doing in wheat to-day and late rates are difficult to maintain. Maize, beans, peas, and oats are without change. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The stock on offer to-day was considerably less in quantity than last week, but as a rule there was little alteration in prices, trade being heavy and the supply equal to the demand. The fat beasts included three pens of Canadian, the remainder being principally Lincolnshire and Irish, with a sprinkling of north country heifers. The sheep and lambs were not so numerous as last week, and there was not that difference in the prices that might have been anticipated. A rather brisker trade in fat calves. We had only a small supply of milch cows and lean beasts, as is usual at this season, and what trade was done was at late rates. A much smaller supply of pigs to-day, fat pigs were rather dearer, but no alteration in other sorts.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	1860	last week,	2130
„ sheep	„	4300,	„	5500
„ pigs	„	300,	„	420

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 8d to 8¾d per lb.
Fat calves, 9½d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £14 each.
Milch cows, £14 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8d to 9¾d per lb.
Lambs, 10½d to 10¾d per lb.
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
„ store, 40s to 60s.
„ fat, 6/9 to 8/- per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM

WAKEFIELD, CORN, Friday, 12.50. p.m—The weather is splendid, the grain crops are making great progress and farmers have commenced cutting oats of which there is a good crop, thin attendance at to-days market dealers being almost as numerous as buyers. Wheat meets a slow sale at Tuesday's prices. Maize in favour of buyers. Beans steady, oats lower.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE speedy visit of Mr. Calverley to Rothwell on Saturday afternoon not only surprised the villagers, but myself also. I little thought that he would so promptly shew his pluck, and dare the rage of the infuriated inhabitants. He went however, and I have not heard that anybody groaned or hissed or did anything outrageous, not even when he was chatting near the White Swan (Railway) Inn. Come Mr. Batty, where were you when his lordship came through, and all your eloquent confreres. You must be ready next time.

WHILE on Railway matters, a rather peculiar incident has happened in Ireland, which one could almost fancy had some connection with the Lords' Committee and their action in throwing out the Bill. A few days ago there appeared in the papers an account of a somewhat strange encounter with an Irish desperado. The brother of the Earl of Limerick, chairman of the above committee, was driving along the banks of the Shannon, towards his own residence in the country, when a fellow partly disguised, leaped over a wall and presenting a revolver at him, stared him straight in the face, when instead of shooting him the man said "Oh, you are not the man I want," and turning on his heels disappeared over the wall, leaving the gentleman astonished but unhurt.

Just now when the noble Earl is so blamed for throwing out the Bill, the coincidence is remarkable. If we were living in Ireland instead of happy England, the coincidence might be serious for those concerned.

THE Flower Show has come and gone, and left nearly £100 in the hands of the Committee, who ought surely to be able to make things meet and tie beautifully. At the same time we ought to have more for our money than the pleasure (?) of staring at Punch and Judy or dancing (but we dont dance) all night. We must have some fireworks to finish off with, gentlemen, next year.

QUID NUNC.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in he cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times he strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth,; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box,

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.

DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

As a GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s 1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [371

THE CLOSE OF THE SESSION.

Although the session will not nominally be brought to a close until some time in November, when Parliament, it is assumed, will have revised its rules of procedure, its practical work is done, so far as the statute book is concerned. Whatever may be discussed at the autumn sitting, that sitting is scarcely likely to make an addition to the amount of legislation standing to the credit of the session. While upon the one hand it may reasonably be anticipated that the rules will not monopolise the weeks in October and November (for by that time there will be something to talk about in connection with Egypt), it is not expected that any Bills will then be introduced leading to contentious debate. Of course, so long as Parliament sits, any question can be brought before it; at the same time when a special sitting is held for a special purpose, it is customary to confi[illegible]e the at[illegible]tion of our legislators as far as possible to [illegible] par[illegible] object in view. For instance, in D[illegible], 1857, Lord Palmerston fo[illegible] it [illegible]ecessary to call Parliament together [illegible] order to give the Government a Bill of Indemnity for having suspended the Bank Charter Act without the authority of the legislature. A financial panic suddenly presented itself, and the Cabinet was compelled to act at an hour's notice with a view of relieving the strain, trusting to Parliament to absolve it from the consequences of that act. The Bill of Indemnity was passed, and no other business was taken. In November, 1867, the two Houses were summoned to provide for the expenses of the Abyssinian expedition, and in December, 1878, a similar course was pursued with respect to Afghanistan; and on neither occasion was any work done beyond that for which Parliament had been called. Anything of passing interest might be mentioned, but nothing controversial was attempted. So in the ensuing autumn, Egypt will doubtless claim attention, but the new rules must be the principal subject for consideration.

Both the great parties in the State are virtually agreed that a reform of procedure of some kind is absolutely necessary if Parliament is to maintain its reputation as the legislative body of a great Empire. The session began on the 7th February with high hopes that some work affecting portions of the United Kingdom other than Ireland would at length be accomplished. Hitherto this Parliament had dealt mainly with Irish affairs. One of the first measures in the short Session of 1880 was the Compensation for Disturbance Bill, which the Lords rejected. Last year almost the entire Session was monopolised by two measures relating to Ireland—the Coercion Act and the Land Act. Therefore, when the Session of 1882 opened, it was not unreasonable to expect that the arrears of two years so far as Great Britain was concerned, might be dealt with. But the first business dealt with by the Ministry was the consideration of the rules of procedure. It was held that nothing could be done unless these were revised and adapted to the wants of the age. Upon the first of the new rules a determined party struggle took place. The Government made a clôture a question of confidence, and stkaed its existence on the result. The division took place on the night of the 31st March, when there was a Ministerial majority of 39. Then came the Easter Recess, and upon Parliament re-assembling, the demands of the public service in the matter of Supply did not enable much to be done in the direction of reforming the rules. A terrible incident soon occurred which compelled the abandonment of all consideration of these for the remainder of the working session. On Tuesday, the 2nd of May, Mr. Gladstone announced to the House of Commons Mr. Forster's resignation of the office of Chief Secretary for Ireland. Two days afterwards Lord Frederick Cavendish was appointed his successor. Arriving in Dublin on the Saturday morning, he took part in the Viceregal procession, and was present at the swearing-in of Earl Spencer as the new Lord Lieutenant. In the evening, whilst walking in the Phœnix Park in company with Mr. Thomas Burke, the Permanent Under-Secretary for Ireland, a band of assassins fell upon both, and foully murdered them. This atrocious crime rendered necessary the passing of a stronger Coercion Cill than that which the Government had decided to allow to lapse. Next came the Arrears Bill; and besides these, little practically has been done upon which an Administration or a Parliament would care to rest its reputation or to found its renown.

There will be a general concurrence of hope that when Parliament re-assembles in October, it will see fit to revise its rules in such a way as will restore to such an august body full competence to transact the business which has been entrusted to it by the nation. In the terms of the Royal Proclamation it should meet for the disposal of divers urgent and important affairs; but that there is a very large amount of talk in proportion to the work no one would deny. It tends to shake the confidence of the people in the dignity of a great legislative power when year after year so little show of results is made for the time which is occupied. Ordinary business men can manage to get th[illegible] a great deal of work in six months; [illegible]ough Parliament has sat more than half a year, some of the measures mentioned in the Queen's Speech, have not even been introduced. The House has been in session early and late, and has often sat all night long yet to such little purpose. For the credit of a body with the history of six centuries behind it, and with the future of a great country yet before it, let us hope that it will be enabled in future to conduct its business so as to do credit to the splendid traditions of our land and to the fame of the oldest representative institution in the world.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

A meeting of the Board was held on Monday, the 14th August, 1882, at 6 o'clock, present—Mr. Wm Hargreaves in the chair, Messrs Sanderson, Turner, Batty and Bramley, the medical officer, Mr. Thos. Hargreaves pro clerk, and the surveyor.

On the motion of Mr. Batty, seconded by Mr. Sanderson, the minutes of the last meeting were approved of.

The medical officer presented his report upon which there was considerable discussion. The medical officer stated that one of the worst cases of the scarlet fever had occurred at Carlton, and the clerk was instructed to obtain a copy of the report of the medical officer for the Lofthouse-with-Carlton district A copy of Dr. Glaister's report was requested to be inserted in the Rothwell Times, and on the motion of Mr. Bramley, seconded by Mr. Turner, 20 copies were also ordered to be printed.

Mr. Clark asked for an interview with the Board with reference to the erection of a porch in connection with the Temperance Society, and the Building Committee was deputed to view the place.

Messrs. Chapman and Dickenson's claims for compensation for sewer pipes passing through their land were referred to the Compensation Committee.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the Leeds Corporation and Rothwell Gas Co., with reference to the price for lighting lamps for the ensuing season.

Messrs. Stainer and Verity's tender for taking down and rebuilding the wall on the North side of the bridge in Church Street was accepted.

HEALTH REPORT.

To the Chairman and Members of the Rothwell Local Board.

Gentlemen,

In presenting the following annual report of the sanitary condition of the district for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1881, I have to point out that as my appointment as deputy Medical Officer of Health only took place in the last quarter, while the continued ill-health of my predecessor prevented his furnishing me with any information beyond the mere records of births and deaths, my report must necessarily be somewhat incomplete. During the year we have had registered in the district 76 births, 41 males and 35 females. As the population of the district according to the census taken in April was 6,361, this gives us the surprisingly low death rate of 11.9 per thousand. In the year 1880, the death rate 17.2; in 1879, 17.6. The births numbered 224, giving a birth rate of 35.1.

The sense of satisfaction which must be felt by the Board in contemplating the exceedingly low death rate, must be increased by the fact that the district remained almost entirely free from zymotic disease during the whole year; only one death is referred to whooping cough and one to erysipelas, while the two entered as due to diarrhœa were isolated cases which had no reference to sanitary defects or climatic conditions. I am not aware of any case of scarletina having occurred, and but two cases of typhoid fever have come under my notice, one at Stourton and one at Rothwell. The source of infection in the Rothwell case was not made out, while in the Stourton case the disease seems to have been contracted in Hunslet where typhoid was prevalent at the time. In neither instance did the disease spread beyond the one case.

The number of deaths of children under one year is 21, during the year 1880, 40 were registered. This improvement is gratifying, and points I hope, to a corresponding improvement in infant management. The practice of feeding children on bread and farinaceous food as soon as they are born is still too common. Before starchy food can be absorbed into the system it must be converted into grape sugar. This is principally accomplished by a ferment contained in the saliva. But as it has been experimentally proved that the saliva of newly born infants does not contain the ferment, all starchy food is therefore worse than useless and merely acts as an irritant to the stomach and bowels. Fifteen, or nearly one-fifth of the whole number of deaths were of persons over 60 years of age, and 8 of these 15 were over 70 years of age. Eight inquests have been held during the year, being two more than those registered in 1880 These deaths were attributed to the following causes:—5 to drowning, two run over, and one to poisoning (suicide.) Four of these deaths might fairly be deducted from our list of deaths, as they are merely carried into our district by the stream and did not probably take place in it.

In May last, was commenced one of the most important undertakings as far as the sanitary condition of the district is concerned, that the Board has hitherto attempted up to this time. Rothwell was absolutely without any general system of drainage worthy of the name, but the works of providing the town with a comprehensive system of drainage commenced in May, progressed steadily during the year, and when completed will be of immense advantage to the town.

Since my appointment as deputy medical officer of health, the duties of the office have, from the continued ill-health of Mr. Hea[illegible] devolved entirely upon myself; they have I hope been performed to your satisfaction.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

Sir Garnet Wolseley, the Duke of Connaught, and the other generals and commanding officers having now arrived at the seat of war, as well as a large portion of the troops, it is now anticipated, says the Standard, that a forward movement will probably be made on Saturday night or early on Snuday morning. It is said the Aboukir forts will be bombarded, after which troops will be landed. The Duke of Connaught, it is rumoured, goes on board the Orient. The Standard correspondent repeats that he has received further confirmation of the news he telegraphed a few days ago that Arabi Pasha, in the event of his defeat, will retire to Tripoli.

The Khedive paid a second visit to Sir Garnet Wolseley yesterday on board the Salamis, and remained nearly an hour.

CETYWAYO IN LONDON.

The Press Association says the Zulu King with his chiefs and interpreters, again visited the Colonial Office yesterday, and had an interview with Lord Kimberley of about an hour and a half's duration, the conversation referring almost exclusively to arrangements for the King's restoration to the Zulu throne During the afternoon Cetywayo remained at home, and received visitors.

ROTHWELL BAND OF HOPE.

The Annual Demonstration of the Rothwell Band of Hope took place on Tuesday last, when a procession was formed headed by the Temperance Band, and accompanied by banners. The children and friends sang several melodies in various parts of the town after which they proceeded to the Mechanics Institute, where a public tea was provided and partaken of. It was intended to spend the evening in the open air, but owing to the rain, which had been threatening all the afternoon, the outdoor festivities were delayed till Thursday. Yesterday evening the children and others gathered in a field kindly lent by Mr. Shearman, where the usual round of games were enjoyed, the Band being present, and playing a selection of music.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Diseases and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

MUSIC.

AN OCCASIONAL PAPER.

No. I.

It is intended, in this, and perhaps one or two succeeding papers, to say a few words on the inexhaustible subject of music, and its general influence, in the hope of stimulating the love of music for its own sake, and of exciting efforts for its more efficient cultivation amongst our local community.

I know that in the opinion of some very excellent people, music is considered merely in the light of a pleasant, but very frivolous amusement. It is considered to be quite unworthy of serious, earnest attention, and it is held that valuable time is wasted in studying the theory, or in seeking to attain some degree of perfection in any of the various executive branches of the art. People are to be pitied who thus put narrow limits to their enjoyments, and who even resent any attempt on the part of others to enlarge their scope. On the other hand, I know also that there are others, (and it is to this class I appeal) the great majority of people at the present day, who believe, and know from experience, that music is a real source of the highest and purest enjoyment. To this more fortunate class of people, music is understood to be the art of producing emotion. It is not the ear only that is affected by music. If music merely tickled and pleased the ear, where would be the difference between the musician and cook? The ear is only the organ, its influence reaches further; the soul is its object, and it produces emotion certainly not less powerful than that produced by poetry, painting, or any kindred art.

The poet is limited in the expression of his ideas to the use of words which convey fixed, definite ideas; the painter, in the exercise of the highest power of his art, may succeed in suggesting much that does not appear on the face of his work; but the musician has the advantage of both, the effect he produces is vague, but it is that delicious vagueness that presents no definite idea, nor excludes any.

Further, the character of the influence exercised by music is always wholesome, pure, and elevating. Those who have to thank God for giving them a great love for music, and who have always within their reach the means of gratifying, in some of its many forms, a noble passion, surely need envy no lot on the face of this earth.

It is often urged that music depends much on the assistance of words for its power of exciting emotion, but this is only true to a limited extent in music written for the voice. The worlds of beauty revealed in the purely instrumental writings of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and other lesser lights, need no words to convey their influence to the mind and heart of the sympathetic listener. And here it may be said that it is only by the cultivated ear and sympathetic mind, that this beauty is enjoyed in all its fulness and power.

This is surely a sufficient reason for urging all who care at all for music to be at some pains to qualify themselves to discriminate and enjoy the hidden beauties of any composition, or any performance they may have the opportunity of hearing. We see only that we have learned to look at, we hear only that to which we know how to listen, as our senses, and consequently our sensations, are developed only by exercise, that of hearing should be so directed as to render it more capable of appreciating the impressions of music.

It is difficult to obtain more than a very superficial knowledge of theory without the aid of a master, but a little patient application will enable the student to analyse the construction and development of the music he plays or sings. The habit of doing this will grow until it becomes instinctive, to trace unconsciously beauties of form and modulation, which, even in familiar music, an untrained ear never dreams of.

A comprehensive series of music primers, edited by Dr. Stainer, are now published by Novello, Ewer, & Co., at popular prices.

In another paper, it is proposed to offer some suggestions as to the best means of cultivating both vocal and instrumental music in the household as well as for public performance.

PRESENTATION.—On Friday last, the teachers of the Carlton Board Schools and a few friends presented a testimonial in the shape of a dozen silver forks and knives to Mr. Daniel Ledgard, the late school-master, who has now removed to Kippax. The presentation was made as a token of respect, and had the affair been better known, others who have proved Mr. Ledgard's straightforward, honest, and christian character, would have subscribed and made it into a still more substantial one. We heartily wish Mr. Ledgard success in his new sphere.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

It has just been intimated to us that owing to his continued indisposition, the vicar of Rothwell is about to resign his present living and remove to the south of England. We are quite sure that to many, and especially those to whom his character is best known, this announcement will be exceedingly painful and deeply felt.

A copy of the Rev. gentleman's farewell address may be had to-morrow afternoon at the office of this paper.

We are happy to inform our readers that Mr. John Batty, F.R.H.S., at the suggestion of several of his literary friends of high standing is about to republish his excellent essay on the "Scope and charm of antiquarian study." It will receive considerable improvement and additions. Originally it did duty as an address to the young men of the Rothwell Debating Society, where it was much appreciated, afterwards it was worked up into an article for the Antiquarian Magazine and Bibliographer, and was highly spoken of by other journals. It is in the author's best style, and the price will be very reasonable. Full particulars will shortly be announced.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER, contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c. Price Twopence.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—The business passing in wheat to-day is of a quiet character, and must be quoted at 1s per qr. decline on the week. Maize and oats firm. Beans and peas steady. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—Although we had a larger supply of all kinds of stock, yet prices were well maintained for both beef and mutton, and better qualities were especially in demand, and in some cases made an advance on last week. The fat beasts on offer were chiefly Lincolnshire and north country animals. The sheep and lambs numbered 300 more than last week, and for them the market was dear and slow. We had a larger supply of milch cows and lean beasts, the lean beasts were mainly composed of some small Irish animals. A moderate supply of pigs.

No. of		this week,	last week,
fat beasts,		2010	1860
,, sheep	,,	4600,	4300
,, pigs	,,	300,	300

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 8d to 8¾d per lb.
Fat calves, 7½d to 9½d per lb.
Lean beasts, £5 to £15 each.
Milch cows, £14 to £24 each.
Sheep, 8d to 9¾d per lb.
Lambs, 10½d to 10¾d per lb.
Pigs, small, 14s to 20s.
,, store, 40s to 60s.
,, fat, 7/6 to 8/- per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.50. p.m.—There is a fair attendance at our market this morning, most of the English wheat shewn is held about buyers ideas, and the demand for foreign is quite of a retail character. In beans, oats and maize, there is no change.

Whoever will take the trouble to examine the older gravestones in our interesting churchyard, will recognise many of the above names inscribed thereon and the dates of the death of the bearers of them. It will be observed that a great number have disappeared from this parish within this last hundred years or so—a solemn thought for reflection.

> "Beneath those rugged elms that yew tree's shade,
> Where heaves the turf in many a mould'ring heap;
> Each in his narrow cell for ever laid,
> The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.
> "The breezy call of incense breathing morn,
> The swallow twitt'ring from the straw built shed,
> The cock's shrill clarion, or the echoing horn,
> No more shall rouse them from their lowly bed."

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. ED.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

FROM the report of Woodlesford School Board meeting, it appears Mr. Longbottom has gone in for law, and will probably make Mr. Wright a present of the value of his one month's salary claimed in the shape of legal expenses. Would it not have been wiser in that gentleman to have quietly accepted what the Board seem to have been unanimous in granting, or is he going to champion "free gratis" the cause of down trodden schoolmasters and mistresses, and out of his own pocket have a case decided which may be referred to as a precedent by all the law courts of the realm. The progress of the case will be watched with the keenest interest by a large number of your readers.

WHILE on the subjects of schools and schoolmasters, it has transpired that some little trouble has been occasioned in certain schools about here, by parents taking the law into their own hands and threatening to use physical violence on teachers for administering a little well deserved punishment to some ill-behaved children. The following extract from the Scarbro Police News may be advantageously reflected on, by such persons.—At the Scarborough North Riding Police-court, Ed. Ling, a pupil teacher, summoned James Thompson, carrier, for assaulting him at Scalby on the 10th inst. Complainant said he was a pupil-teacher at the Scalby National School, and on Wednesday week he was left in charge in the master's absence. During a lesson, defendant's boy became unruly, and was punished in the usual manner; and later on, when young Thompson again showed signs of insubordination, he received the regulation two stripes. When the lad got home he told his father that the complainant had kept him in after the other scholars, locked the door and thrashed him with a stick. Next morning defendant went to school armed with a whip, and belaboured the teacher with a whip-stock. Defendant said he was sorry he had not exercised more judgment in punishing the pupil-teacher; but he wanted his son to be properly corrected when he deserved punishment. A fine of £1, including costs, was imposed.

IT is gratifying to learn that the Infirmary Sunday Demonstration is this year going to be made worthy of the locality, and worthy of the object. Let us hope the result of the collection will also prove equally worthy.

QUID NUNC.

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation, sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

THROAT IRRITATION.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes Glycerine, in these agreeable confections, being in proximity to the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d. and 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—it may, perhaps, interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, L.R.C.P.E. Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

WHAT AMOUNT OF SUFFERING COULD BE AVOIDED IF WE ONLY KNEW HOW!

It is often remarked how many more people than formerly complain of feeling unwell. It is not that there is a greater amount of contagious disease afloat, for there is proof that the extent and strength of such are less than of yore, because of better sanitary arrangements and greater attention to cleanliness and other matters. The enormous prevalence cannot be doubted of pains in the back, side, and chest; enervated and languid feelings, with loss of energy; distress and fulness of the stomach, with often a sense of deadly faintness at its pit, which eating does not stay; sick headache, so-called biliousness; unpleasant breath; a sense of weariness when rising in the morning, with an unpleasant taste in the mouth; and the loss of appetite or non-enjoyment of food. These are but the mildest effects of "feeling unwell," and yet how great is the distress and suffering with hindrance to business and pleasure, they give rise to. The cause is not far to seek; it lies in the stomach and digestive organs, which have become impaired, to the distress of nearly all the other functions of the body. Assuredly, could the stomach always be kept in well-regulated condition through life, it would tend to far greater longevity than is now the case. The stomach is a wheel within wheels; and just as an erratic tendency on the part of a small but still important wheel of a clock leads to the disarrangement of its whole function as a timekeeper, so does the failure of so important a wheel as the digestive organs in the mechanism of the human frame throw, by their impaired vigour or inaction, all the parts depending on them—and they are legion—out of gear. Just as the wheels of the clock will require to be adjusted that accurate time may be kept, so must the impaired organs of the stomach be restored to their original vigour. Digestion must be promoted by increasing the flow and strength of the gastric juice, and this "Seigel's Curative Syrup" will effectually do It will impart strength to the stomach, invigorate the liver, and impart tone to bowels, to the greater enjoyment of life and health of all who use it, and that it is so may be tested by a perusal of the testimonials in an Almanack which will be furnished free of charge to any applicant by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon road, London, E.C. The Syrup can be obtained from any chemist or medicine vendor. The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its soothing action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant [illegible] for the skin and complexion. A boon to sensitive [illegible]. Sold by all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

World Known—World Tried!!

For strengthening a debilitated constitution, these Pills are more efficacious than any other medicine. Persons of a nervous habit of body, and all who are suffering from weak digestive organs, should lose no time in giving these Pills a fair trial; their action is immediate, beneficial, and lasting, restoring order, health, and vigour in every case.

For Disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels.

These purifying Pills are confidently recommended as the most simple and certain remedy for Indigestion, Flatulency, Acidity, Constipation, and all Disorders resulting from disordered Stomach or Bowels. They act as purifiers, alteratives, and strengtheners of the stomach. Though powerfully tonic and satisfactorily aperient, they are mild in their operation and beneficial to the whole system.

Weakness and Debility—Nervous Irritability and Low Spirits.

The wholesome effect exercised by these admirable Pills over the Blood and Fluids generally, is like a charm in dispelling low spirits and restoring cheerfulness. Their general superior qualities well fit them for a domestic medicine, particularly for females of all ages and periods of life. They quickly eject all impurities from the system, and regulate every function of the body, giving wonderful tone and energy to weak and debilitated constitutions.

Old Coughs, Colds and Asthmatic Affections.

These Pills, assisted in their action by rubbing Holloway's Ointment over the parts twice a day on the Throat and Chest, and keeping those parts covered with the preparation, will be found a most effective remedy for Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Influenza. They tranquillize the hurried breathing, soothe the irritated air-tubes, and assist in dislodging the phlegm which stops up the air passages. This treatment has proved wonderfully efficient, in not only curing old settled coughs and colds, of even many years standing.

Complaints of Women and Children.

Any mother, nurse, or young person guided by the directions which accompany each box of Holloway's Pills, has at once available means for checking disease, purifying the blood, and expelling from the system all gross humours.

The Pills and Ointment are sold at Professor HOLLOWAY'S Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London: also by nearly every respectable Vendor of Medicine throughout the Civilised World in Boxes and Pots, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s. and 33s. each.

Full printed directions are affixed to each Box and Pot, and can be had in any language.

N.B.—Advice can be obtained, free of charge, by applying at the above address, daily, between the hours of 11 and 4, or by letter.

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S
PATENT PILLS.
St. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a GUINEA a BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c., &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints; let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

THE HARVEST.

Those whose lot it is to sow the seed and reap an indifferent harvest have for some years past had a very anxious time in British islands. We have not exactly had repeated in our midst the story of the seven years of plenty and seven years of famine; because famine is an experience unknown to a country to which are open the markets of the world. But there can be no question that the years following 1869 and down to 1876 were very fair average harvest yields, and that from 1877 to the present time the kindly fruits of the earth have not brought forth so abundantly as they had been expected to do. The atmospheric conditions have seemed all out of joint. For the past two years more especially, matters have gone on very well until the arrival of July, when every day of warm bright sunshine is welcomed by the crops, and a goodly spectacle it is to gaze upon the waving fields of golden grain. But July has disappointed us twice in succession. Instead of the heat to which we had been accustomed, and which is so absolutely necessary to the ripening of the corn, the month has been cheerless, gloomy, and unpropitious. The low temperature has considerably retarded the progress of the cereals, and last year unfortunately not only was July unfavourable, but August as well. The present month of August has been better, but still a long way from what had been hoped and desired by the farmer.

As the years glide by, the dependence of a great and important industry on the merest accident of weather for the success of months of work, becomes more and more apparent. True, it is not easy to see how to provide against a sudden change of wind, or the unexpected bursting of a storm; all that can at present be done is to recognise the helplessness of man in the workings of the forces of nature. No other industry is exposed to similar risks. Let the tradesman in the town imagine his position if he were utterly helpless to protect his wares from the weather. Let him think of his having to stand by for days and weeks mournfully watching the destruction of that which should be his competency, and all the while powerless to avert the ruin that is going on. What would a silk mercer or a dealer in costly velvets think of his wares being exposed for weeks to drenching rain? Sadly enough would he watch for a rift in the pitiless clouds, and hope for a change in the moisture-laden wind. Yet the farmer who sees his hay gradually turning black, and his corn sprouting, or the market gardener who witnesses the devastation created amongst his fruit by the downpour consequent upon a thunderstorm, is totally helpless. Months of patient labour are rendered of no effect in as many hours. In our present condition of enlightenment, however, there is nothing to be done but to make the best of the losses as they arise. Some unkind people describe the farmer as an habitual grumbler; but it will be admitted that he has quite enough to grumble about. Not that the process mends matters very much, but it tends towards a state of mental relief which at times is irresistible.

As to the harvest itself, those who do not take a gloomy view express a confident opinion that when the time comes for a general calculation, the yield in Europe and America will be found nearly if not quite an average. In the British isles, following the experience of the past few years, there will be a deficiency, and we shall have to import as much food as during the past twelve months. Happily the importation of foreign corn is now free, and there is not even a registration fee to be paid to the custom-house officer. The returns from the Continent vary considerably. Through the greater part of Germany both cereals and roots were much damaged by the incessant rains of July. In other portions of the vast Fatherland, between the banks of the Danube and the shores of the Baltic, the heats of August have been almost tropical, and the harvest will be abundant. On the other hand from the heterogeneous collection of peoples known as the empire of Austria, the accounts are unsatisfactory. Within its boundaries are some of the best wheat-growing fields in Europe, but it is the old story of the rain which raineth every day. In some districts ruin has fallen upon two-thirds of the wheat crop, and in others the growth of the potatoes has been a failure. The same may be written of beetroot, which makes so large a contribution to the manufacture of sugar. There is better news from the south of Hungary, but the effects of the heavy rains cannot be altogether counterbalanced by a long spell of hot sunshine. Southern Russia, which has been described as the granary of Europe, has suffered from blight and from the ravages of predatory insects. From Norway and Sweden the reports show that the harvest will be a moderate and an average one. In European Turkey the yield is an excellent one; and generally from the United States the accounts are good. What the Americans call a wave of heat has lately passed over a great part of the western continent; if a little of it could cross the Atlantic it would be very welcome. The Americans send us most of their storms, considerately intimating when these are to be; we should be glad, therefore, of some of that bright sunshine which makes their cities glad, and causes the vast prairies of that colossal country to rejoice.

The startling announcement we regretfully made last week, as regards the intended removal of the Rev. George Heberden, our highly respected vicar, is only too true, and so important an event, so serious a loss, may not be passed over with so hurried and brief a paragraph as was necessitated by reason of the brief space at our disposal.

Ten years yesterday, Mr. Heberden came to Rothwell and went through the formalities requisite to constitute him vicar of this large and important parish. A stranger in a strange country, it was no easy task for a gentleman and a clergyman coming from a small south country village, to undertake the varied and responsible duties and position expected by an independent, mining population, where every man holds and speaks out his own opinion and views on matters social, religious and political; where dissent in all three questions is pretty strong and practical; and where the individual element is constantly asserting itself. The transition, we say, from a quiet easy-going village to the neighbourhood of large towns which are the centre of business and independent thought and action, as well as clearly pronounced dissent was a somewhat bold venture. By degrees, however, the vicar and the people came to understand and appreciate each other. As he became more and more closely connected with the families and institutions of his adopted town, his wisdom, his courtesy, his influence, were more distinctly felt and acknowledged. The generous and effective aid he gave to the institutions of the town were valuable, and his loss will be severely felt by them. In the church and among his own congregation he has won the sympathies and regard of all; the restoration of the sacred edifice, the rebuilding of the tower, the provision of a new clock, and the addition and enclosure of the enlarged burial ground, have all been carried out successfully during Mr. Heberden's vicariat. We believe, however, that the kind and assiduous attention bestowed on the sick and poor by the Vicar, will cause his name and memory to be more deeply engraved on the hearts of the people, than anything else. His attendance on the sick, especially on the sick poor, was most constant and tender; not only were the spiritual needs ministered to, but his ample purse was ever open for the relief of their temporal wants. His kindness and generosity, moreover, were not confined simply to members of his own communion, but all sick poor were hospitably relieved and succoured. Many are the hearts that will mourn the loss of so good a friend, who willingly gave of his substance as well as his sympathy.

We are sure we speak the language of the parish, dissenters as well as church-people, when we offer to Mr. Heberden the general regret experienced at his leaving, and the hope that his health may soon be fully restored and his life prolonged, so that the same kindly influences may shed their brightness on many other hearts, and in other homes, and that the gospel of "visiting the fatherless and the widow in their distress" may be increasingly practised as well as taught.

ATHLETIC SPORTS AT ROTHWELL.

The fourth annual athletic festival promoted by the Rothwell Harmonic Football Club, took place last Saturday afternoon, in the football field, Carlton Lane, Rothwell. Rain fell during the greater part of the morning, but in the afternoon the sun shone beautifully, and a fair number of spectators assembled to witness the sports. £50 was offered in prizes, which was sufficient to attract most of the noted athletes of Leeds and the district. The 100 Yards' Flat Race for youths under 16 was won by H. C. Bennett, Stourton, and William Moore, Tingley, second. Richard Campey, Rothwell, was the winner of the first prize, and John Brown, Carlton, the winner of the second, in the 80 Yards' Flat Race for boys under 12. The next event was the 120 Yards' Flat Race, for which there were 24 entries. The competitors ran in six heats, and after the second round the three who were left to try their chance in the final heat were A. Oliver, Leeds (12½ yards), J Langron, Hunslet (14 yards), and J Metcalf, Leeds (10½ yards). For the first place Oliver and Langron ran almost a dead heat, but the former was declared to be the winner. For the one mile bicycle race there were 18 entrants, divided into 3 heats, 1st and 2nd in each heat to run in final; 1st heat.—T. Morfoot, Harehills B. C., 65 yards, (1). J. Waterhouse, Aurora B. C., 200 yards, (2). Morfoot romped in. 2nd heat.—H Lunn, Aurora B. C., 245 yards, (1). W Thackray, Crescent B. C., 75 yards, (2). 3rd heat.—J. A. Walker, Leeds, 130 yards, (1). J. Middlemiss, Aurora B. C., 110, (2). This was a very good race, Walker taking the tape two yards in advance of Middlemiss, who only just beat F. J. Seanor in the last few yards. In the final H. Lunn, proved to be the winner, Morfoot 2, Middlemiss 3, Walker close up. Half a dozen men turned up for the Half Mile Flat Race. Towards the close of the race Wm. Hendenning, Huddersfield, (5 yards), got in front of all his opponents excepting A. Fisher, New Miller Dam, from whom he was separated by a short distance. Fisher, however, gained ground manfully, and came in an easy victor, the Huddersfield man being second. A similar number of competitors entered the field in the One Mile Flat Race. The winner of the second prize in the last event was first in this, winning anyhow; the distance allowed to him was 20 yards. G. Priestley, New Wortley (100 yards), came in second. Good sport was provided by the Two Mile Bicycle Race, in which seven of the thirteen entrants competed, namely:—A. E. Burrow, T. Morfoot, W. Powell, J. A. Walker, W. Thackray, J. Middlemiss, F. J. Seanor, J. R. Seanor. After two or three laps all the men got together, and kept close company for some time. Ultimately A. E. Burrows, Leeds (90 yards), put on a spurt, and he was followed soon afterwards by T. Morfoot, Holbeck (110 yards), these two towards the close having the race practically in their own hands. Burrow came in a long way in front of Morfoot, to whom the second prize was awarded. As only five of those who entered the Quarter-mile Flat Race faced the starter, the race, which should have been divided into two heats, was decided in one. The winner was A. Fisher, New Miller Dam (17 yards), who reached the winning post about three yards ahead of W. K. Fisher, Horbury (20 yards), who was second. The officials were:—Judge, Mr. David Ellis; starter, Mr. Milnes Woollen; handicappers, Messrs. Dan Taylor, John Field, and John Woobank. The performances of the Rothwell Temperance Band enlivened the proceedings.

SERVICE OF SONG.

On Sunday last, a very interesting Service of Song, compiled by Mr. G. H. Jackson, entitled the "Gipsy Girl," was given in Lady Lane Chapel, by the teachers, scholars and friends of Cross Stamford Street Sabbath School. Mr. W. Fleming presided, and the connective readings were given by the Rev. G. W. Davis. The "Gipsy Girl" is somewhat dissimilar to the usual run of such services, and has been compiled with great care, while the musical selections are in harmony with the theme and most appropriately illustrate the various situations. It was listened to with great attention by a crowded audience. Master W. T. James was very successful in rendering "The Beautiful City," as was also Miss Mabbott in "He was despised." Of the choruses little need be said. There was a collection taken at the close in aid of the Cross Stamford Street Sunday School.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

MUSIC.

AN OCCASIONAL PAPER.

No. 2

In a previous paper, music was said to be the art of producing emotion. I will add to this my belief that the extent of its power in producing emotion is only limited to the capacity of the mind subjected to its influence. The more the ear and mind of the subject is attuned to a sympathetic reception of its influence, the more full and complete is the enjoyment derived from this practically inexhaustible source, and the deeper will its humanising influence extend. We thus find that music, besides affording pleasant recreation in its pursuit and practice is a great power for good. If this position be granted, and I suppose few genuine lovers of music will be inclined to dispute it, the question naturally arises, what are we doing to promote the cultivation of good music in our own neighbourhood? In answer to this question, candour must compel us to admit that what we are doing falls considerably below what, with earnest united effort, we might and ought to do in such a cause.

For instance, the only existing agencies for the cultivation of Choral singing in Rothwell would seem at present to be the choirs at the respective places of worship and perhaps one or two semi-private companies of partsingers in connection therewith. We are indeed occasionally invited to listen to the execution of some standard work, by a scratch chorus, who generally, however, only succeed in impressing us with an idea of what they might be capable of with the benefit of skilful and systematic training.

Both at Woodlesford (for Woodlesford and Oulton) and Methley, Choral Societies are firmly established which are undoubtedly carrying on important educational work, with, so far satisfactory and encouraging results. I consider it a standing disgrace to the music-loving people of Rothwell, which arrogates to itself the title of metropolis of the surrounding villages, that they should be behind their neighbours in this respect, possessing as they do, the immense advantage of a large Hall with admirable acoustic properties.

I think that the establishment of a well-managed Choral Society in a district, supplies at once three great benefits to the community at large. It places within easy reach of everybody, the means of exercising and cultivating any vocal ability they may possess; it provides wholesome, rational recreation, so much needed in country districts especially in winter time; and it introduces from time to time to the notice of the audience which has the good taste to support it, the beauties of some standard work of which perhaps the majority know little beyond the title.

While treating on Choral Societies, it would perhaps be worth while to define what I mean by a well-managed society. In the first place a Choral Society to be successful should not be under the dominance of any particular clique. Its ranks should be open and freely accessible to all, possessing of course, the necessary qualifications of musical aptitude and decent character, and each member should have a voice in the management of the society. The conductor should be sufficiently distinguished for musical knowledge and ability, to command the respect and attention of all under his guidance. On the part of the members it is only reasonable to expect punctual and regular attendance and exclusive attention to the conductor whilst the business of rehearsal is going on. The secret of good execution is to love the music for its own sake, to delight in it, to be occupied with it to the exclusion of every other object, and to be interested in it as a matter of conscience and a sense of duty. This sense will prompt a necessary spirit of unselfish devotion to the objects of the society on the part of each individual member of the chorus. A singer may obtain applause in a song or solo simply by his skill in the mechanical part of singing or by the beauty of his voice, but in concerted pieces of harmony it is quite otherwise. In chorus or part singing, each individual loses the right of attracting attention exclusively to himself and concurs in transferring it to the music which should be the principal object. Individuals disappear that the body may appear, and what is lost by each is gained for the whole. This should always be borne in mind for performers rarely resist the desire to shine by the exhibition of their personal skill.

Just another word and my lecture on this part of the subject is ended. Conductor and performers ought always to recollect that they are called upon to give the intention of the author without modification, or indulgence in whimsical "improvements" of their own. I have sufficient faith to believe that influential people in the neighbourhood will always be found willing to assist in promoting the objects of such a society as I have endeavoured to describe; but I have still greater faith in an organisation which seeks first to inspire confidence in its stability by showing itself, for a time at least, to be self-supporting and independent of outside aid.

From the Choral Society to the choir, is not a far cry. I think if we could but inspire our local choristers with a little more enthusiasm for the beautiful music they are called upon to sing, the services of our places of worship would become less apathetic, more impressive, and the music would be found to be more of a help to devotion than at present it can be said to be. May I presume to offer a suggestion to the members of local church choirs and their authorities; that is, to form a union of several choirs for the purpose of giving a grand united Cathedral Service once a year in one of the churches. I should be very glad indeed to see some such scheme taken up by those concerned, as I feel persuaded that it would be instrumental in reviving and sustaining the interest that should be taken in church music.

I think also means ought to be adopted to induce the congregations to take a livelier interest in the ordinary Sunday services. If the lists of hymns, chants, &c., to be used on the following Sunday, were published in the Rothwell Times week by week, an opportunity would be afforded to the congregations, of which I have no doubt many would gladly avail themselves, to be prepared to take an intelligent part in the musical portions of the services.

All must concede that the gift of music is put to its noblest use in the service of its great Giver, and I am sure it is the universal wish to have this service rendered as beautifully, as perfectly, and as heartily as our efforts can make it.

POLYHYMNIA.

LOFTHOUSE.

SOCIETY'S DINNER.—On Saturday evening last, the annual meeting of Green Spring Lodge, No. 705, of Odd-fellows, was held at the house of Mr. Steel, Rose and Crown Inn, Lofthouse, when about 70 members sat down to an excellent dinner provided by the landlord. The cloth having been removed, and the ordinary business transacted, the evening was spent in the usual agreeable manner.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY.

In order to keep this matter well in mind, we refer again to the announcements already made, and trust that every one will make Sunday afternoon's effort a splendid success, and that a handsome collection will be taken towards the noble institution to which so many are indebted. Those who have benefitted will certainly give as a thank offering for advantages received, while those who have not had to visit the wards of the Infirmary should give so much more because they have not needed its aid.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—The business passing in wheat to-day is of a quiet character, and must be quoted at 1s per qr. decline on the week. Maize and oats firm. Beans and peas steady. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The supply of stock was considerably smaller than last week and prices were proportionally higher. Dealers were able to secure an advance of at least a farthing per lb. on fat beasts. The sheep and lambs numbered 300 less than a week ago, and the demand was brisk. A fair trade was done in fat calves. Only a few milch cows and lean beasts were penned, trade being quiet. Trade for pigs was quiet at late rates. There were a number of geese on sale, prices from 3s 9d to 4s each.

No. of fat beasts, this week,	1760	last week,	2010
" sheep "	4300,	"	4600

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.50. p.m.—The weather has become unsettled and we find this morning a decided enquiry for wheat, which is held for full prices, some advance being made on red winters. The small quantity of new English wheat offering is held above buyers' views. Some maltsters are beginning to enquire for barley, but prices are not yet at a business level. No alteration in other articles.

THROAT IRRITATION—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes Glycerine, in these agreeable confections, being in proximity to the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d. and 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—it may, perhaps, interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, L.R.C.P.E. Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE retirement of the vicar of Rothwell has come on everybody most unexpectedly. Not a rumour of its probability had reached my sanctum, and for once I must acknowledge the secret has been cleverly kept, as well kept as Sir Garnet Wolseley's intentions in Egypt. I most certainly join in the expressions of regret which are heard on all sides, and echo the hope that we may get as good a one in Mr. Heberden's successor. Of course rumour has been very busy seeking that undiscovered personage—the future occupant of the Rothwell Vicarage;—Mr. Calverley, junr., the present vicar of Woodlesford, the Rev. H. Bell, the present curate of Rothwell, the Rev. J. R. Crawford, and other less known clergymen have all been spoken of, but the probabilities are that none of these will obtain the living, which is certainly no mean 'catch.' As Mr. Heberden's term of twenty years (for which he took the living) is only half expired, it is not unlikely that he may still retain it, appointing a curate in charge. Nothing, however, has transpired, and as the people have little to do with Church appointments, it is to be hoped they will have the good fortune to have as good a shepherd placed over them as he who is about to leave.

THE Local Board is at last turning its attention to Commercial St., and in passing through I was pleased to observe that something like a respectable channel is being made for the surface-water on the north side of the street. It is to be hoped this is but the prelude to a thorough repair of this, the principal street of the town. As it is now, Woodlesford Street is a pattern, and the condition of that thoroughfare is no great things.

THERE have been some whispers about Mr. Flint resigning his office in connection with the roads. Are the "Galliardists" on to him again?

FROM Dr. Glaister's annual report on the sanitary condition of Rothwell, it appears to be about the most healthy town I know. The fact that the death rate is only 11.9. per thousand is most remarkable, and the inhabitants of the favoured town are to be congratulated. I am afraid however, that the present year will not turn out so well, after all the whooping cough, measles, scarlet fever, &c., that has marked it.

THERE is a field of turnips situate on the left hand side of the road leading from Woodlesford to Rothwell, which is a masterpiece in its way, the regularity and straightness of the turnip rows being "a caution to snakes" as our American cousins would say. Probably someone has been trying his 'prentice hand at seed drilling, and has not been remarkably successful, as the work is evidently that of a very raw amateur at the business.

IT is highly satisfactory to the cricketing community to find that our Australian visitors are not to have matters entirely their own way, and the news of the victory of the Players, closely followed by that of the Past and Present Light Blues, has done much to shut the mouths of those croakers who have been so busy proclaiming the decline of English Cricket. We are not to be beaten at our own game yet awhile, and although the Australian team is a strong one all round, they must inevitably take second place, when opposed to a picked eleven of English cricketers. That their colours have not been lowered five times instead of three is entirely due to good luck; as on the only two occasions when they were pitted against really representative teams of amateurs and professionals the call of time saved them from crushing defeats; and the two Cambridge victories seem to question whether after all they are as formidable as is generally thought.

TURNING to local cricket it may be remarked that Rothwell has at length secured another win, and that against a fairly strong club, namely, Sheepscar Leather Works, but on Saturday week the village citadel was stormed by the Oulton forces, who routed the defenders neck and heels, especially the latter, which were kept very busy while the Oulton team was batting, so much so in fact, that the genial Jacob who engineered the Rothwell team was just about at his wit's end to know how to get his opponents out.

QUID NUNC.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

Holloway's Pills.—With darkening days and changing temperatures, the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent, unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood and body by such an alterative as these Pills. They directly attack the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, restore the disordered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective or contaminated secretions. Such an easy means of instituting health strength, and cheerfulness should be applied by all whose stomachs are weak, whose minds are much harrassed, or whose brains are overworked. Holloway's is essentially a blood tempering medicine, whereby its influence reaches the remotest fibre of the frame and effects a universal good.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER. contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c. Price Twopence.

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps, has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette—Make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Chocolate Essence for afternoon use.

Holloway's Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

SPANISH FLY is the acting ingredient in ALEX. ROSS'S CANTHARIDES. It acts quickly in producing Hair on the face or head, 3s 6d, 5s 6d, and 10s 6d; sent post for 54, 84, or 144 stamps. Ross, 21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, (near the Foundling). Whips of Hair any shade.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have [illegible] by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker the ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its emulsifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.

DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,

Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.

AS A GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.

Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 13½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

JOHN DYSON,

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.
Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints. Let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.
The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Next week we shall publish a short but interesting paper on "A service at Armley Church." We shall also shortly present "Village Churches," No. 5, Stanley.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the Board took place on Monday evening; present—Messrs. J. Hargreaves, J. Batty, J. Oliver, S. Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector, and inspector.

The chairman and vice-chairman being both from home, it was unanimously resolved that Mr. James Hargreaves take the chair.

The minutes of previous meetings having been read, they were confirmed on the motion of Mr. Bramley and Mr. Oliver.

STREET LIGHTING.—The clerk had written to the Leeds Corporation and to the Rothwell Gas Light Company, asking their price for lighting the street lamps during the ensuing season. He had not received any reply from the Leeds Corporation, but would lay before the Board the offer of the Rothwell Gas Light Company. They offered to light and extinguish the lamps in the district of Rothwell during the ensuing term for 30s. per lamp.

Mr. Turner suggested that some discretion should be allowed in regard to the week during which the lamps are not lighted, when the moon is at the full; he had observed that there were occasionally nights during that week when the need of gas-light was very much felt, and thought some latitude should be given so as to be able to have the lamps lighted on such nights.

After some conversation on the subject, the suggestion was approved, the details to be left with the clerk, and secretary to the Gas Light Company.

It was then proposed by Mr. Turner that the offer of the Rothwell Gas Light Company be accepted; seconded by Mr. Batty, and carried.

In reply to the enquiry of the inspector, he was authorised to have all the lamps thoroughly cleaned before being put up.

DRAINAGE.—The clerk stated that he had received the mortgage deed, relating to the loan of £4750 from the the Public Works Loan Commissioners, for Rothwell drainage; he believed it was an exact copy of the draft which had already been read and approved. It was then proposed by Mr. Oliver, that the mortgage deed for the loan of £4750 be now sealed with the corporate seal of the Board; seconded by Mr. Batty and carried. The seal was duly affixed to the document.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Turner enquired respecting the material being put on the Wakefield Road, some of which he thought appeared poor. The inspector said that nothing but Skipton stone was being used on that road.

Mr. Bramley also spoke about a broken flag in Royds Lane, crossing a water course, and which was very dangerous to passengers. It appeared there are several similar places require attending to, and the inspector was instructed to have them all repaired.

The surveyor stated that all the stone on order had now been received; the contract for leading is also completed. It was therefore resolved on the motion of Mr. Oliver and Mr. Bramley, that four cargoes of Skipton stone be ordered of Messrs. Green and Sons. It was also decided that the Board advertise in the Rothwell Times, for tenders for leading stone as may be directed by the surveyor; proposed by Mr. Bramley, seconded by Mr. Batty.

Several members thought that too many ashes were being put on the Wakefield Road, but as only one member of the Highway Committee was present, the matter was referred to the consideration of that committee.

Some discussion also ensued on the state of Commercial Street, which sadly needs thorough repair and improvement. This matter was also referred to the Highways Committee.

A letter was read from Mr. Baylis, of Rotherham, as regards a well in his client's property, and which he intends having filled up shortly, it being in a dangerous position and unused.

FINANCE.—The Collector reported having received and paid into the Bank during the past fortnight.

General District Rate...	£86	2	3
Water Rents	16	7	11
Total	£102	10	2

Cheques were signed for several accounts and ordinary expenses; also a payment of £30 to Mr. Parkinson on account of Rothwell Sewage Works.

It was also agreed to pay £4 a year to Mr. S. Hargreaves for cleaning, &c., of the Board room.

AUDIT.—The clerk reported that the audit was commenced on Tuesday the 22nd. Mr. Lawton attended, and objected against payments made to Rothwell sewage contractors for work done on what he stated was private property. The clerk informed Mr. Adams that the property mentioned, belonging to Mr. W. Hargreaves, Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Wright, was included in the scheme and plan approved by Mr. Harrison at the Local Government Board enquiry. Mr. Adams, however, adjourned the audit, so that Mr. Parkinson, the engineer, could be present. The adjourned audit will therefore be held on January 29th, 1883.

HEALTH.—The clerk had received a letter from the Local Government Board respecting the 12 deaths which occurred last year from scarlet fever, asking further particulars as to the source of fever, and means taken to prevent its spread. The matter will be placed before the medical officer.

The chairman was sorry to learn that scarlet fever had again broken out, and that there were a number of cases in the village. He hoped Dr. Glaister would have been able to attend the meeting, but it was not his ordinary night, and he had probably been called away.

PLANS.—On the motion of Mr. Turner, seconded by Mr. Batty, plans were passed for privies belonging to Mr. T. Dobson, and for the erection of a porch outside the building now being transformed into a Temperance Hall.

Mr Turner suggested and proposed that a table of contracts now running should be prepared and printed shewing, the principal facts relating to such contracts, for easy reference in checking the accounts of contractors. Mr. Bramley seconded the motion which was carried.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night, the members present were Mr. T. Oliver, (chairman), Messrs. J. Armitage, T. Hargreaves, and Wm. Keightley, Mr. Lee, the clerk, and Mr. Moorhouse and Mr. G. W. Fairburn, head teachers. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved and signed. The amount received by the treasurer were School fees, Robin Hood, £10 6s. 10d.; Carlton, £11 9s. 4d.; Books sold, 10s 1d.; Overseers of Thorpe, £26. J. Keightley and E. Stephenson, candidates for pupil teachers, having passed their examination, their indentures were ordered to be signed, their salaries to be £12 10s. per year, advancing £2 10s. per year until the end of 4 years. The report of Robin Hood school was read and found very satisfactory, the Inspectors speaking very well of the school; all the pupil teachers passed well; the amount of grant is £175 3s., being an increase of £9 over last year. The report of Carlton school was also read and was a very indifferent one, except the infants, which have done very well and have earned an increase of grant. The pupil teachers have done badly, and those who remain will have to make greater progress by next year. The amount of grant is less by about £5; the total amount is £120 14s. Cheques were signed for the usual monthly salaries, and for the proportion of grant due to the teachers. One application for remission of fees was made and granted. Sundry requirements of books, slates, etc., were ordered to be got. The school staff at Carlton being below what is required, the meeting is adjourned to Monday next, when the matter will be considered.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY.

The praiseworthy efforts of a few working men to raise more funds from this neighbourhood for the benefit of the Leeds Infirmary, have been crowned with well-merited success. There have been few large demonstrations more thorough and more disinterested than that of Infirmary Sunday, and the financial result was exceedingly good, though some enthusiastic members of the committee had pitched their expectations still higher.

It may be remembered that a little over two years ago, the idea was mooted in the Rothwell Times, at the instigation of several respectable working men, that something more might be done by the people of this district for the benefit of the philanthropic institution above mentioned. As a very small beginning, the members of the 'Perseverance' Lodge marched to the church, and after listening to an appropriate sermon, they collected nearly £7. Last year, the festival assumed larger proportions, three societies going in procession round the town on September 18th, the collections on the route and at church realising £12.

About two months ago, the moving spirits met together, and resolved to invite the clubs and societies in Rothwell and neighbouring villages to send representatives to a general Committee. Nine clubs responded and arrangements were at once entered into. It was decided to form a procession which should circumambulate the streets of Rothwell and then proceed to the Parish church to a short service, collections being made on the road, and at church. Three brass bands kindly volunteered their services for the occasion.

These arrangements were successfully carried out on Sunday afternoon. By half-past one the streets presented a most animated appearance, especially in the vicinity of the Mechanics' institute, the rendezvous for forming the procession. Favored by charming weather, large numbers of persons, men, women and children, turned out in their best, to watch the proceedings. Shortly after that hour, the procession moved off in the following order.

Rothwell Model Prize Brass Band.
  Old Society,
  Ancient Order of Foresters,
  Loyal Milton Lodge of Odd-fellows,
  Carlton Wesleyan Friendly Society.
Oulton Brass Band.
  Rothwell Friendly Alliance Society,
  Lofthouse Grand United Order of Oddfellows,
  Loyal Perseverance Lodge of Odd-fellows
Rothwell Temperance Brass Band.
  Ancient Order of Romans,
  Rothwell Temperance Society.

They proceeded from the Mechanics' Hall, up Royds Lane, along Springfield St., down Swithins Street and Butcher Lane, into Commercial Street, up Holmes Street, down the lower part of Marsh Road, through Whitehall Field, up Gillett Lane, thence forward through Commercial Street, up round the Cross, and down Church Street, to the church. About 500 persons joined in the procession.

A number of tradesmen and others took part in the demonstration, joining the clubs with which they were connected, the general aspect of the entire body of men being very respectable. The long line of couples were marshalled by Mr. Whitehead, Mr. Bumby, Mr. Rawling and others.

The stewards or collectors were armed with good-sized boxes; some of them called at the houses as the procession passed, while others solicited contributions from the hundreds of people who lined the streets.

Arrived at the church, the members of the demonstration were directed into pews in the centre of the building, the general public occupying what few seats were left at the extreme aisles, and in the chancel.

Perhaps two or three thousand persons filled the church yard and adjoining street, while the procession passed in.

Mr. Sheldon having played "Angels ever bright and fair" as a voluntary, the usual evening service commenced, the Rev. J. C. Lees conducting the whole. The choir sang Frobisher's Magnificat and Nunc Dimitis, and the hymns were Nos. 380, 369 and 365.

A suitable sermon was preached by Mr. Lee's from the text "It is more blessed to give than to receive," Acts 20, 35. He expressed his great pleasure in seeing so many present in the house of God, and in having the privilege of addressing them as the minister and ambassador of God. He reminded them, however, that they could not leave that house exactly the same as they entered into it, as the word they heard would either be to them the savor of life unto life, or of death unto death; they would be either the better or the worse for the service.

Describing the circumstances under which his text was spoken, he said they were part of St. Paul's last words to the Ephesians, probably addressed to the deciples on the sea shore, urging them in conclusion "to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." These were therefore the words which Christ had spoken himself, and were most important and remarkable, as being contrary to the accepted and cherished practice of mankind; their maxim is to get all they can, and part with as little as possible. But the text says, it is better to impart good to others than to hoard it up; it is better to seek out and care for the sick, the poor, the perishing, and to deny self, than to keep it and use it for selfish purposes.

In its primary sense, it was more blessed to give that useful wisdom, the fear of God, to some poor ignorant sinner, and to say "Come near, and I will tell you what the Lord hath done for my soul." It was, moreover, more blessed to honour God with our substance than to spend it for self gratification. Wealth is a privilege and may be a blessing, but we should remember that what we have is not our own, it is a talent, and should be used for the benefit of others. It is quite true that if you work, you should be paid for the work, and the money is yours; but who gave the health and strength to work. There are others who are not so favored and we should remember them. The world is full of sin, sorrow, want, suffering, there is need of kind sympathy and generous aid. Referring to the story of the palsied man who was let down through the roof before Jesus, he urged for help to others. If there were more of this sympathy and help among us, the earth would become more like heaven than it is. The preacher then pressed the claims of the Infirmary as one means of practising the maxim of the text and of proving its truth. He asked the congregation to pause before giving, to remember the text, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and that having freely received, they should freely give.

The collection was then made, amounting to £7 10s 7d.

The Rothwell Model Brass Band having played the Hallelujah Chorus, the benediction was pronounced and the service ended.

The amount received in the boxes was £10 1s 8d, to which was added a subscription of 7s 9d, making the total nett payment to the treasurer of the Infirmary £18, or £6 more than last year.

It is gratifying to learn that the secretary of the Infirmary Committee has kindly given a number of recommendations to the Club Committee, and these may be obtained of the several secretaries of clubs connected with the Demonstration.

Refreshments in the shape of a good meat tea were provided for strangers, the Band and Committee, at the Mechanics' Institute, the tables being presided over by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Jas. Hopton, Mrs. W. Lambert, Mrs. H. Waterhouse, Mrs. J. N. Smith, and Mrs. Thompson of Lofthouse. The cost of tea, printing, and other expenses was defrayed by subscriptions among the Committee and other friends, so that the entire amount collected was paid in full to the secretary of the Infirmary.

We understand that arrangements have now been completed for making this an annual demonstration, and we have pleasure in intimating that any clubs that have not already joined, may receive every information of Mr Whitehead, to whom so large a portion of the credit is due for inaugurating and carrying out this successful affair.

Oulton and Woodlesford.—It is with pleasure we learn that the clubs and societies of Oulton and Woodlesford have been provoked to generous emulation of the Rothwell, Carlton and Lofthouse Lodges, and are about having a similar demonstration on behalf of the Infirmary on Sunday, Sept. 17th. We are informed that five clubs have sent representatives to a joint Committee, of which Mr. J. Craven is secretary and Mr. Robinson treasurer, and they are very wishful that the affair shall be as successful financially and otherwise as the Rothwell one. We are quite sure every one will wish them every success.

THE NEW VICAR OF ROTHWELL.

We are authorised to state that the vicarage of Rothwell, which has been recently rendered vacant by the regretted resignation of the Rev. G. Heberden, M.A., has been accepted by the Rev. Frederick Fawkes, incumbent of Woolley, near Wakefield, cousin of the Rev. Mr. Fawkes, of Swillington. He will probably enter on his new charge in the course of about two months.

TRIP TO ILKLEY.

(COMMUNICATED).

The Flower Show having this year proved a success, it was thought desirable by the committee, who had worked exceedingly hard in the matter to have a day's outing for themselves and friends, to one of the many places of interest in the neighbourhood. They accordingly decided to go to Ilkley, and the date fixed was Monday last. Arrangements were made to start from Woodlesford, and after several times counting in order to obtain the necessary tickets, as two of the gentlemen present, known as "father and son," persisted in wanting "two halves," it was found that twenty-nine was the number of the party.

We did not get off without some merriment, as one person being rather dilatory about getting into the train, a well-known local butcher (using what might be termed a natural figure of speech) shouted out "Get in, tha sheep-heead."

The journey from Leeds to our destination was very pleasant; the various places of interest on the route, as Kirkstall Abbey, Rawdon College, etc, being especially noticeable. On arriving at Ben Rhydding, the rocks usually styled the Cow and Calf were pointed out, which brought forth the remark from the "captain," "Well if yond is'nt Cow and Calf, there's bull in here," pointing to the next compartment, in which sat one whose name need not be mentioned.

When Ilkley was reached orders were given for waggonettes to convey us to Bolton, but one of our number being unable to come until a later train, whilst one section went to meet him, the rest of the company took a stroll round the town. Of course on such occasions all jokes go free, and many were given perhaps more forcible than polite, notably "This tissue paper is like me, very tender," remarked one; an answer was made "Tha means its soft like thisen."

Making our way back to the starting point agreed to, we found that several of our party had formed themselves into what they termed the "Blue Ribbon Army." They all wore the badge of membership, chief officers were appointed, fines were levied, and the fun was kept up during the greater part of the day. After getting some distance on our way to Bolton, a shower of rain fell, which necessitated our taking shelter for an hour or two, but the time was plesantly spent in singing, eating oat cake, etc.

On our return to Ilkley, a splendid dinner was served by the landlord of the Crescent Hotel, and as every one seemed to be in "good form," ample justice was done to the good things provided. The rest of the time at our disposal was spent by some in playing bowls, by others in visiting parts of the town not previously seen. We reached home in safety about half-past eleven after a capital day's excursion. Despite the rain which fell during the afternoon all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and it is to be hoped we shall be able to "repeat the dose" on some future occasion.

"Rough on Rats."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

WAKEFIELD NEW WATER SCHEME.

Yesterday the first sod of one of a series of new reservoirs which the Corporation of Wakefield contemplate constructing, to provide the town with an efficient water-supply, was cut at East Ardsley, some three miles distant. The new scheme has been devised by Mr. E. Filliter, engineer, of Leeds, and will involve an expenditure of over £200,000. Councillor Flower, chairman of the Waterworks Committee, cut the first sod of the reservoir yesterday, which, it is estimated, will be capable of storing 325,000,000 gallons of water, the cost being about £40,000. The Mayor and members of the Corporation, and other gentlemen who take an interest in public affairs, attended. Several addresses were delivered, and an account given of the whole undertaking.

Musical Festival at Whitwood.—The annual festival on behalf of the Leeds General Infirmary was held in Messrs. Briggs and Co.'s spacious waggon shed on Sunday afternoon. About 2,000 people attended. Mr. Morton, of Castleford, conducted, the instrumentalists and choristers numbering about 150, and selections were sung from the works of Handel, Haydn and Mozart. It is expected about £30 will be realised

CRICKET.

ENGLAND v. AUSTRALIA.

The great match of the London season, which was perhaps fixed rather too late in the year, commenced on Monday at Kennington Oval, in the presence of nearly twenty-one thousand spectators. The wicket had suffered considerably from the effects of heavy rain, and was exceedingly false and treacherous. The Australians won the toss, and at ten minutes past twelve began batting with Bannerman and Massie, to to the bowling of Peate and Ulyett. To the evident delight of the on-lookers, the Australians were finally disposed of by ten minutes past three, having only made 63, the smallest score they have yet been out for; the bowling and fielding of their opponents being magnificent. At half-past three the English eleven defended the wickets and held on well, 101 runs being secured when the innings closed at ten minutes before time.

Rain fell heavily most of Tuesday morning, and it was ten minutes past twelve before the colonists could again occupy the defensive. Some splendid hitting was now shown by Massie, the soft ground being decidedly against either bowling or fielding, his score reaching 55. After he left, the other nine were cleared off for 67, making a total of 122, leaving England 85 runs to get in her second innings. The interest in the game now increased immensely, and the utmost excitement prevailed. Grace and Hornby went in first at a quarter to four, but although 50 were scored by half-past four, few runs were gained afterwards, and at thirteen minutes to six the innings came to a close with only 8 runs wanting to beat, Australia thus winning by 7 points.

ROTHWELL v. ALLERTON BYWATER.

The return match between the above clubs was played at Rothwell last Saturday, when the home team run up one of the highest scores made on their ground in a day's match; A Ward, not out, made 5 above the century, while G Wilson and T Dobson scored 62 and 35 respectively, towards the total of 250 for the loss of 7 wickets. The visitors were kept in the field the whole afternoon.

ROTHWELL 2nd v. PUDSEY ALBION.

The above match was played at Pudsey last Monday, in showers but not unpleasant weather. The visitors won the toss and elected to bat, R Whiteley and W Richardson being their first representatives. At luncheon time 5 wickets had fallen for 40 runs, the last ball despatching Whiteley, who had contributed 25 towards the total, although he gave two easy chances after he had scored 15, which were not, however, accepted. After luncheon 5 wickets fell for 5 runs, and when J Wilson joined F Green the score was only 45; 19 more runs were added before Wilson was bowled, making a total of 64. None of the home team could make a stand against the bowling of Whiteley and Horner, Whiteley took 7 wickets for 8 runs, while Horner got two wickets for 15 runs. In the second innings Rothwell had scored 16 for one wicket, when the match had to be brought to a conclusion owing to the rain.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—There is a better feeling in the wheat trade, Americans making rather more money; other kinds are unaltered in price. Feeding stuffs same as last week. Flour without change—No. 1, 37s 6d; No. 2, 34s 6d; No. 3, 33s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—We had a larger supply of stock to-day both of fat beasts and sheep and lambs, but late prices were well sustained, dealers holding out for last week's rates, which as a rule they obtained, especially for better qualities of stock. The fat beasts consisted principally of Lincolnshire and Irish beasts, but included 28 pens of Canadian cattle. The sheep and lambs numbered 800 more than last week. There was only a slow trade in calves, and less money had to be accepted. There was a good show of pigs at late rates.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield, Corn, Friday, 1.0. p.m.— We have a quiet market this morning for wheat at about the price of last Friday; many of the samples of new English wheat are in such bad condition that millers do not attempt to buy. Dry lots also meet with little attention. Several maltsters enquiring for parcels of foreign barley shipping or on the way. Beans, oats and maize unchanged. Weather dull and damp.

"The Pictorial World."—Under new auspices this Illustrated Weekly Paper will, on the 2nd of September, appear in a permanently enlarged form, and with every material promise of greatly extended popularity. There is to be a Coloured Supplement every week, the first series being Portraits of the Generals commanding the forces in Egypt. The name of Messrs. Dalziel will guarantee the excellence of the engravings on wood, artists and authors of high ability being contributors to the work.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

Alas for the grand old game of cricket in England. We were inclined to begin chuckling last week at the result of the two matches with the colonials, and looked forward for a regular "pull down" of our nephews at the battle of this week. With picked men, the flower of our cricketing army, heavy odds were laid on the success of England over the hitherto almost invincible enemy. Monday's play tended to increase the feeling of assurance, and the immense concourse at the Oval were quite prepared to raise the shout of victory at the close of the day. "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," however, and so it proved. Only a dozen more notches to have the pleasure of crowing, but it was not to be. Though our first batters did well, the latter defenders of the stump became dizzy with excitement, their presence of mind was gone, the over-confidence of victory proved their bane, and with only eight runs to win, the last man was cleared out of the fortress, and Australia had again vanquished the old country.

Rothwell had a proud day on Saturday, thanks in a great measure to young Ward who turned the century with five to spare, and then came out bat in hand. With a pretty good team like Allerton Bywater, it was a good piece of business, to hold the wickets all the afternoon, and the remembrance of the day's exploits should be an incentive for future efforts.

The Infirmary Demonstration on Sunday afternoon must have exceeded the highest anticipations of the promoters, and they are to be congratulated on their success. The playing of the Bands was only so so, the great object of the drummers in the two Rothwell bands especially, being to see which could make the biggest noise. It strikes one that it is just possible to give piano passages on the drum as well as on any other instrument. The Model Band might have dressed up a bit, surely, as leading the procession the members looked rather shabby in their heterogeneous every-day undress, besides which, it was anything but complimentary to the demonstration committee, and to the public. I hope they will appear next year in their very neat uniform, and not dishonour Rothwell in the eyes of the thousands of people who congregate.

How very ornamental those "gentlemen" looked in the procession as they lounged by, their oral chimneys sending forth volumes of smoke, emblematic, I presume, of the sort of article stored in their intelligent craniums. Oh! yes; how vastly they improved the character of the procession.

Where are the Woodlesford Church people going to hold their Missionary meeting this year. It is presumed that the ratepayers as represented by the School Board, will not be exposed to the same insults which were offered at last year's meeting. A repetition of Mr. Barnett's uncalled for remarks respecting dissenters would be unbearable.

QUID NUNC.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

Holloway's Pills.—With darkening days and changing temperatures, the digestion becomes impaired, the liver disordered, and the mind despondent, unless the cause of the irregularity be expelled from the blood and body by such an alterative as these Pills. They directly attack the source of the evil, thrust out all impurities from the circulation, restore the disordered organs to their natural state, and correct all defective or contaminated secretions. Such an easy means of instituting health strength, and cheerfulness should be applied by all whose stomachs are weak, whose minds are much harrassed, or whose brains are overworked. Holloway's is essentially a blood tempering medicine, whereby its influence reaches the remotest fibre of the frame and effects a universal good.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER, contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c. Price Twopence.

Throat Irritation.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps's Glycerine Jujubes Glycerine, in these agreeable confections, being in proximity to the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d. and 1s 1½d., labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—it may, perhaps, interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, Gordon Holmes, L.R.C.P.E. Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

SPANISH FLY is the acting ingredient in ALEX. ROSS'S CANTHARIDES. It acts quickly in producing Hair on the face or head, 3s 6d, 5s 6d, and 10s 6d; sent post for 54, 84, or 144 stamps. Ross, 21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, (near the Foundling). Whips of Hair any shade.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS.
Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Nervous Depression, Irritability, Loss of Appetite, Heartburn, Lowness of Spirits, Giddiness, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.
As a General Family Aperient Medicine they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.
Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having Dr. Scott's Bilious and Liver Pills, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps.

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor, of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarrantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.
Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints if any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.
The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 30 stamps.
Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.
N.B.—Full directions are given with each Box.

SOUTH AFRICAN POLICY.

The departure of Cetewayo and his promised conditional restoration to the greater part of his dominions, cannot fail to be attended with a certain degree of public interest, notwithstanding the more exciting intelligence from the seat of war in Egypt. With his cousin and the two chiefs who accompanied him on his visit to this country, he is now on his way back to the distant region over a portion of which he is again to rule. He had well-defined purpose in coming to England, and in it he has succeeded probably quite as well as he anticipated. Fully intending to lay his case before the Queen and her Ministers, he has been enabled to urge in person his claim to be restored to his throne. He will not soon forget his interview with Her Majesty, to whose gracious condescension he has more than once referred. He has discussed the position of affairs in South Africa with the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and is therefore in full possession of the views of the Government on the tangled questions connected with South African policy and administration. Tangled enough these have been for very many years.

Time out of mind there has been a little war on hand in that portion of our possession. A generation ago the Kaffir war was for a long while a standing head-line in the newspapers. At later intervals the Basutos, the Pondos, the Zulus, and the Boers have given us a good deal of trouble. The annexation of the Transvaal was only completed after a stormy scene in the House of Commons which had had no precedent in our time. On the 31st July 1877, the House sat twenty-six hours continuously in order to pass the South African Confederation Bill, and this was the first of an exciting series of such sittings that have since intermittently been witnessed. Sir Bartle Frere was appointed Pro-Consul in the following October, and went out to the Cape Colony in full possession of the difficulties which surrounded his responsible position. These were not diminished as time went on. Early in January, 1878, the Earl of Carnarvon, who was then Secretary of State for the Colonies, received a deputation of merchants interested in the Cape Colony, who thanked him and the Government for prompt measures adopted for the suppression of another Kaffir outbreak, and expressed a hope that in the event of a European War the defence of the Cape Colony would not be forgotten. Lord Carnarvon made a reply, in which he admitted that the state of affairs in South Africa gave much cause for anxiety, but he was hopeful that all would be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. He had the greatest possible confidence in Sir Bartle Frere, who had been accustomed to deal with disturbances on a large scale, and whose head would be as likely to remain as cool in danger as at any other time. They might be sure, therefore, that his policy would be one of humanity and wise moderation. Then, dealing with the more general question as to the possibility of hostilities in Europe drawing the attention of the Government from the defence of the Cape Colony, Lord Carnarvon declared that this country would never be so insane as to embark in another European war. Differing from his colleagues on some points of Imperial policy, Lord Carnarvon shortly afterwards ceased to be a member of the Cabinet.

As our readers are aware, the policy pursued by Sir Bartle Frere in South Africa has during the past few years been subjected to much criticism. After the taking over of the Transvaal, troubles arose with the Zulus, of whom up to that time but little had been heard. The Gordian knot of complications was cut by Sir Bartle Frere, who invaded the wild country ruled over by King Cetewayo, and suffered an unexpected check at Isandula. Of course England in the end was bound to be victorious, and in a few months the power of Cetewayo was broken, and he was a captive in the hands of the English. Having been detained more than three years he has come to England, laid his case before the Government of the day—one of a very different complexion from that of 1879—and is to have a conditional restoration. Of the wisdom of this step the future only can judge. The colonists of Natal, who urged on the war of 1879, do not approve of the line taken by our Colonial office. They profess to foresee trouble in the return of Cetewayo, although Lord Kimberley has taken care to guard against the revival of the military organization which was accustomed to strike such terror in the Colonial mind. At the same time it is clear that the arrangement made in 1879 by which Zululand was divided into a diluted Heptarchy, has broken down. The thirteen chiefs are jealous one of the other; jealousy leads to quarrelling, and quarrelling amongst such people ends in bloodshed. Cetewayo, notwithstanding his misfortunes, seems to be popular in Zululand, and he is well aware that England is quite strong enough to insist upon the fulfilment of the conditions by which he returns. He has seen our civilization and has felt our power. He is an intelligent man, and bore himself whilst in London with a considerable amount of dignity. He came to transact important business, and doubtless returns to his native land satisfied with the manner in which his claims have been dealt with, as well as convinced of the power of the British nation. Unquestionably Cetewayo will think twice before provoking hostilities with the Government of England.

Most persons would be rather surprised to learn from the Yorkshire Post of Saturday last, that the promoters of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway had resolved on again presenting their Bill. Whether such a resolution had actually and finally been decided on may have been somewhat premature, but a general feeling prevails that, after all, the text of this scheme is the most likely to answer all purposes sought by well-wishers for the progress of Rothwell. If the junctions are carefully and properly arranged for, a competing line to Hull is what we and the large towns of the West Riding are desirous of having. The increase of our mineral production, and its cheap and easy transit are the foundation on which we must build for future prosperity, and the proposed line seems to secure these objects. It is most exhilarating to learn from the Post, that in this case the Lords have been too conservative, and that we may hope for better things on the second application.

A counter rumour has also been circulated that some arrangements were being made with the Midland Railway, whereby that Company will, by turning off at Cinder Ovens bridge, instead of laying a second line of rails alongside the present route, open out the new district between Leeds and Wakefield, and effect a connection with the main line again somewhere beyond that town. This looks very plausible at first sight, and if it could be carried out successfully, would be specially advantageous for passenger and other home traffic, but it fails to touch the main point of additional markets for our coal and stone.

However matters may turn, this one thing still remains; if Rothwell and the district is to advance, we must have a connection with the outer world; we must not longer remain isolated, as we are.

Let us hope that amid competing proposals, the public may, as they usually do, get the greatest benefit.

WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of the Board was held on Monday evening, 28th August, 1882, at which were present Mr. Jackson, the chairman, the Rev. A. J. Irvin, Mr. Nowell, and the clerk. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed and the chairman having attached his signature thereto, the clerk reported that he had instructed Mr. Warren to act for the Board in the dispute with Mr. Longbottom, and in accordance with such instructions Mr. Warren had requested Mr. Longbottom, through his solicitor, to give up to the Board not later than Saturday, August 12th, the vacant possession of the School-house, together with all monies, books, keys, &c., belonging to the Board; also informing him that he (Mr. Warren), would receive notice of any action which Mr. Longbottom might think fit to take against the Board. The result of Mr. Warren's communication was that Mr. Longbottom met the clerk at the schools by appointment on Saturday, August 12th, and handed over all the monies, books, keys, &c., as requested, and vacated the school-house on the same day, upon which the amount of salary due to August 6th, the date on which Mr. Longbottom's notice expired, was paid to him by Mr. Smith. Nothing further had transpired respecting the threatened legal proceedings by Mr. Longbottom. A letter was also read from Mr. Longbottom respecting several matters, including an application for the publication of the complete reports for the two past years, to which the clerk was instructed to reply.

Cheques amounting to about £160 were drawn for salaries, &c., including £122 9s. 9d. for repayment of loan and interest.

The Rev. A. J. Irvin applied for the use of a room in the schools for a missionary meeting to be held in October; the application was opposed by Mr. Nowell on account of expressions which were used by Mr. Barnett on the last occasion; Mr. Jackson having declined to take any action on the question, it was agreed that it should stand over until another meeting

Mr. F. Leslie, the attendance officer, applied for an increase of salary, but it was thought that the application was somewhat premature, although the Board recognise and appreciate the active and efficient manner in which Mr. Leslie performs his duties.

Mr. Green asked for repairs to be done to the doors in the school-house and school, also that the kitchen should be re-papered or painted, and the Board gave instructions that Mr. Green's requirements should be attended to.

The question of evening classes during the winter was considered, also that of a testimonial to Mr. Longbottom. It was resolved that a special meeting should shortly be held, and in the meantime the Rev. A. J. Irvin was requested to draw up a form of testimonial and submit it to such meeting, and Mr. Green and Miss Abbey were to be consulted respecting the proposed evening classes, and to be requested to attend the meeting.

A special meeting of the above Board was held last Tuesday, to consider draft testimonial for Mr. Longbottom, to make arrangements for holding evening classes during the winter, and to take into consideration the painting of outside woodwork of school-house, etc., present—Mr. Jackson, (chairman); Rev. A. J. Irvin, and Mr. Nowell.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and in the absence of Mr. R. J. Smith, the clerk, who is taking his holidays, the Rev. A. J. Irvin kindly officiated for him.

The draft testimonial for Mr. Longbottom prepared by the Rev. A. J. Irvin was read, and after a short discussion, it was proposed by Mr. Nowell and seconded by the chairman that the draft should be sent to the clerk, to be copied, signed, and delivered to Mr. Longbottom.

The Rev. A. Irvin renewed his application for the use of a school-room for the purpose of holding therein a church missionary meeting in the month of October next. Mr. Nowell said that under a painful recollection of the last missionary meeting when the use of a room was given to Mr. Irvin, and the Rev. H. L. Barnett so deliberately went out of his way to insult and annoy dissenters, he must ask Mr. Irvin if the same gentleman would be present. Mr. Irvin replied "yes, he will be one of the principal speakers." "Will you (Mr. Irvin) then undertake that Mr. Barnett shall not utter insults against or speak disparagingly of dissenters." Mr. Irvin declined to undertake anything of the sort, and contended that when either Churchmen or Wesleyans had the use of a room of the Board School, the Board has no right of interdiction as to what they might say therein. Mr. Nowell objected to any hypothetical view of the question, and referred the chairman to the fact that Mr. Barnett had on other occasions in Woodlesford uttered language insulting to the intelligence and conscientious opinions of his hearers. The chairman urged the further postponement of the question, but being pressed to exercise one of the most important functions of his office, he reluctantly decided that under the circumstances the application should be refused. The Rev. A. J. Irvin then left, and the meeting came to an abrupt termination.

SOUTH AFRICAN POLICY.

The departure of Cetewayo and his promised conditional restoration to the greater part of his dominions, cannot fail to be attended with a certain degree of public interest, notwithstanding the more exciting intelligence from the seat of war in Egypt. With his cousin and the two chiefs who accompanied him on his visit to this country, he is now on his way back to the distant region over a portion of which he is again to rule. He had well-defined purpose in coming to England, and in it he has succeeded probably quite as well as he anticipated. Fully intending to lay his case before the Queen and her Ministers, he has been enabled to urge in person his claim to be restored to his throne. He will not soon forget his interview with Her Majesty, to whose gracious condescension he has more than once referred. He has discussed the position of affairs in South Africa with the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and is therefore in full possession of the views of the Government on the tangled questions connected with South African policy and administration. Tangled enough these have been for very many years.

Time out of mind there has been a little war on hand in that portion of our possession. A generation ago the Kaffir war was for a long while a standing head-line in the newspapers. At later intervals the Basutos, the Pondos, the Zulus, and the Boers have given us a good deal of trouble. The annexation of the Transvaal was only completed after a stormy scene in the House of Commons which had had no precedent in our time. On the 31st July 1877, the House sat twenty-six hours continuously in order to pass the South African Confederation Bill, and this was the first of an exciting series of such sittings that have since intermittently been witnessed. Sir Bartle Frere was appointed Pro-Consul in the following October, and went out to the Cape Colony in full possession of the difficulties which surrounded his responsible position. These were not diminished as time went on. Early in January, 1878, the Earl of Carnarvon, who was then Secretary of State for the Colonies, received a deputation of merchants interested in the Cape Colony, who thanked him and the Government for prompt measures adopted for the suppression of another Kaffir outbreak, and expressed a hope that in the event of a European War the defence of the Cape Colony would not be forgotten. Lord Carnarvon made a reply, in which he admitted that the state of affairs in South Africa gave much cause for anxiety, but he was hopeful that all would be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. He had the greatest possible confidence in Sir Bartle Frere, who had been accustomed to deal with disturbances on a large scale, and whose head would be as likely to remain as cool in danger as at any other time. They might be sure, therefore, that his policy would be one of humanity and wise moderation. Then, dealing with the more general question as to the possibility of hostilities in Europe drawing the attention of the Government from the defence of the Cape Colony, Lord Carnarvon declared that this country would never be so insane as to embark in another European war. Differing from his colleagues on some points of Imperial policy, Lord Carnarvon shortly afterwards ceased to be a member of the Cabinet.

As our readers are aware, the policy pursued by Sir Bartle Frere in South Africa has during the past few years been subjected to much criticism. After the taking over of the Transvaal, troubles arose with the Zulus, of whom up to that time but little had been heard. The Gordian knot of complications was cut by Sir Bartle Frere, who invaded the wild country ruled over by King Cetewayo, and suffered an unexpected check at Isandula. Of course England in the end was bound to be victorious, and in a few months the power of Cetewayo was broken, and he was a captive in the hands of the English. Having been detained more than three years he has come to England, laid his case before the Government of the day—one of a very different complexion from that of 1879—and is to have a conditional restoration. Of the wisdom of this step the future only can judge. The colonists of Natal, who urged on the war of 1879, do not approve of the line taken by our Colonial office. They profess to foresee trouble in the return of Cetewayo, although Lord Kimberley has taken care to guard against the revival of the military organization which was accustomed to strike such terror in the Colonial mind. At the same time it is clear that the arrangement made in 1879 by which Zululand was divided into a diluted Heptarchy, has broken down. The thirteen chiefs are jealous one of the other; jealousy leads to quarrelling, and quarrelling amongst such people ends in bloodshed. Cetewayo, notwithstanding his misfortunes, seems to be popular in Zululand, and he is well aware that England is quite strong enough to insist upon the fulfilment of the conditions by which he returns. He has seen our civilization and has felt our power. He is an intelligent man, and bore himself whilst in London with a considerable amount of dignity. He came to transact important business, and doubtless returns to his native land satisfied with the manner in which his claims have been dealt with, as well as convinced of the power of the British nation. Unquestionably Cetewayo will think twice before provoking hostilities with the Government of England.

Most persons would be rather surprised to learn from the Yorkshire Post of Saturday last, that the promoters of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway had resolved on again presenting their Bill. Whether such a resolution had actually and finally been decided on may have been somewhat premature, but a general feeling prevails that, after all, the text of this scheme is the most likely to answer all purposes sought by well-wishers for the progress of Rothwell. If the junctions are carefully and properly arranged for, a competing line to Hull is what we and the large towns of the West Riding are desirous of having. The increase of our mineral production, and its cheap and easy transit are the foundation on which we must build for future prosperity, and the proposed line seems to secure these objects. It is most exhilarating to learn from the Post, that in this case the Lords have been too conservative, and that we may hope for better things on the second application.

A counter rumour has also been circulated that some arrangements were being made with the Midland Railway, whereby that Company will, by turning off at Cinder Ovens bridge, instead of laying a second line of rails alongside the present route, open out the new district between Leeds and Wakefield, and effect a connection with the main line again somewhere beyond that town. This looks very plausible at first sight, and if it could be carried out successfully, would be specially advantageous for passenger and other home traffic, but it fails to touch the main point of additional markets for our coal and stone.

However matters may turn, this one thing still remains; if Rothwell and the district is to advance, we must have a connection with the outer world; we must not longer remain isolated, as we are.

Let us hope that amid competing proposals, the public may, as they usually do, get the greatest benefit.

WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

A meeting of the Board was held on Monday evening, 28th August, 1882, at which were present Mr. Jackson, the chairman, the Rev. A. J. Irvin, Mr. Nowell, and the clerk. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed and the chairman having attached his signature thereto, the clerk reported that he had instructed Mr. Warren to act for the Board in the dispute with Mr. Longbottom, and in accordance with such instructions Mr. Warren had requested Mr. Longbottom, through his solicitor, to give up to the Board not later than Saturday, August 12th, the vacant possession of the School-house, together with all monies, books, keys, &c., belonging to the Board; also informing him that he (Mr. Warren), would receive notice of any action which Mr. Longbottom might think fit to take against the Board. The result of Mr. Warren's communication was that Mr. Longbottom met the clerk at the schools by appointment on Saturday, August 12th, and handed over all the monies, books, keys, &c., as requested, and vacated the school-house on the same day, upon which the amount of salary due to August 6th, the date on which Mr. Longbottom's notice expired, was paid to him by Mr. Smith. Nothing further had transpired respecting the threatened legal proceedings by Mr. Longbottom. A letter was also read from Mr. Longbottom respecting several matters, including an application for the publication of the complete reports for the two past years, to which the clerk was instructed to reply.

Cheques amounting to about £160 were drawn for salaries, &c., including £122 9s. 9d. for repayment of loan and interest.

The Rev. A. J. Irvin applied for the use of a room in the schools for a missionary meeting to be held in October; the application was opposed by Mr. Nowell on account of expressions which were used by Mr. Barnett on the last occasion; Mr. Jackson having declined to take any action on the question, it was agreed that it should stand over until another meeting

Mr. F. Leslie, the attendance officer, applied for an increase of salary, but it was thought that the application was somewhat premature, although the Board recognise and appreciate the active and efficient manner in which Mr. Leslie performs his duties.

Mr. Green asked for repairs to be done to the doors in the school-house and school, also that the kitchen should be re-papered or painted, and the Board gave instructions that Mr. Green's requirements should be attended to.

The question of evening classes during the winter was considered, also that of a testimonial to Mr. Longbottom. It was resolved that a special meeting should shortly be held, and in the meantime the Rev. A. J. Irvin was requested to draw up a form of testimonial and submit it to such meeting, and Mr. Green and Miss Abbey were to be consulted respecting the proposed evening classes, and to be requested to attend the meeting.

A special meeting of the above Board was held last Tuesday, to consider draft testimonial for Mr. Longbottom, to make arrangements for holding evening classes during the winter, and to take into consideration the painting of outside woodwork of school-house, etc., present—Mr. Jackson, (chairman); Rev. A. J. Irvin, and Mr. Nowell.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and in the absence of Mr. R. J. Smith, the clerk, who is taking his holidays, the Rev. A. J. Irvin kindly officiated for him.

The draft testimonial for Mr. Longbottom prepared by the Rev. A. J. Irvin was read, and after a short discussion, it was proposed by Mr. Nowell and seconded by the chairman that the draft should be sent to the clerk, to be copied, signed, and delivered to Mr. Longbottom.

The Rev. A. Irvin renewed his application for the use of a school-room for the purpose of holding therein a church missionary meeting in the month of October next. Mr. Nowell said that under a painful recollection of the last missionary meeting when the use of a room was given to Mr. Irvin, and the Rev. H. L. Barnett so deliberately went out of his way to insult and annoy dissenters, he must ask Mr. Irvin if the same gentleman would be present. Mr. Irvin replied "yes, he will be one of the principal speakers." "Will you (Mr. Irvin) then undertake that Mr. Barnett shall not utter insults against or speak disparagingly of dissenters." Mr. Irvin declined to undertake anything of the sort, and contended that when either Churchmen or Wesleyans had the use of a room of the Board School, the Board has no right of interdiction as to what they might say therein. Mr. Nowell objected to any hypothetical view of the question, and referred the chairman to the fact that Mr. Barnett had on other occasions in Woodlesford uttered language insulting to the intelligence and conscientious opinions of his hearers. The chairman urged the further postponement of the question, but being pressed to exercise one of the most important functions of his office, he reluctantly decided that under the circumstances the application should be refused. The Rev. A. J. Irvin then left, and the meeting came to an abrupt termination.

After the somewhat tantalising delays which have been reported day by day for the past fortnight, the long-expected battle has been fought and a defeat administered to the rebel who has disturbed the peace of Egypt and of Europe, which will not soon be forgotten by him and his fanatical soldiery. Sir Garnet Wolseley has not only had the ordinary difficulties of a commander to contend with, but on arriving in Egypt he found the means of conveying his men and provisions sadly deficient, the railway line damaged or in the hand of the enemy, and the great Suez canal in danger of being destroyed by Arabi's troops. Before he could move at all, the railway had to be repaired, rolling stock to be got on to the lines, and a sufficient supply of stores laid in before leaving the seaboard. Besides these troubles which have enforced a degree of idleness on our otherwise enthusiastic troops, the intense heat, the pestering flies, and the insidious diseases of dysentery and diarrhœa have seriously interfered with that activity and physical energy necessary for the hard work before our army. Added to these drawbacks, the delays in leading the attack have raised a host of complaints against the General, both from our own countrymen and other nations, which must have demanded a vast amount of patience and calm resolution on the part of Sir Garnet, to keep his own counsels.

Now, however, nearly every voice acknowledges the correctness of his plan, and as the news flashed through the world on Wednesday morning that the vaunted prowess of Arabi's troops had been overcome by the British army, and that the fortifications and entrenchments of Tel-el-Kebir had been taken and occupied by us after twenty minutes struggle, one grand shout of victory and rejoicing rises from every corner of the civilised world. The care and exactitude with which every part of the short but decisive movement was planned is a point on which we may well congratulate our British general, while the ready acquiescence and prompt execution of the plan on the part of the officers, and the cheerfulness, courage, and physical endurance of the gallant fellows who met the Egyptians face to face, prove that the British soldier can still fight and can still conquer.

To-day we learn, that alarmed by the news, the commandant at Kafr Dowar, where a large army was awaiting our advance, has sued for surrender, and that a deputation from Cairo has already submitted terms of peace, so that we may probably learn shortly that Sir Garnet and his staff are quietly dining in that ancient city, and listening to the native bands playing the National Anthem. Sharp and brief is the campaign, but it will have secured, we do not doubt, a long season of peace and order in Egypt, inaugurated and carried out by our statesmen and diplomatists in the early future.

Let us hope, that while certain wars appear to be necessary, when undertaken they may ever secure as great success with as little loss as this; and better still, that wars of any kind may soon come to an end, and that that better and nobler struggle for christain and commercial ascendancy may be entered into by every nation.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

On Monday evening the usual meeting took place in the Board Room, Churchfield.

At six o'clock only two members, Messrs. Bramley and Batty, were present, along with the clerk, collector and inspector, and it began to be doubtful whether a meeting could be held, three being a quorum. A few minutes after, however, Mr. Holmes entered the room, and the catastrophe was averted.

On the motion of Mr. Batty, followed by his colleague, Mr. Holmes was at once elected chairman, and the machinery of the Local Board was legally set agoing. Mr J. Hargreaves also came in shortly after, making four members present

The clerk read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister being from home, and his assistant, Mr. Humble, urgently required at a delicate case, the report was handed in, and read by the clerk.

Complaints were made respecting a drain on Mr. Holmes' property, which appeared to be stopped up; it was agreed that Mr. Holmes be asked to connect his property with the main drain.

STREET LIGHTING.—The clerk read a letter from the manager of the Gas Department intimating that the Corporation would continue to supply gas, and to light and extinguish the lamps at Stourton for 35s. per lamp during the season. This was considered by the Board to be a fair price, and accepted.

Mr. Holmes thought the price for Rothwell was too high; the clerk referred to previous explanations on the subject, Leeds gas being so much cheaper than Rothwell by reason of the larger consumption.

The clerk stated as a result of his interview with the secretary of the Gas Co., that they were willing to light the lamps on any night during the "moon-light week" when necessary, and requested in return that the Co. might be allowed to turn off the lamps at 9 o'clock when the moon happened to be sufficiently high during the other three weeks.

COMPENSATION.—Messrs. Chapman having declined to accept the arbitrator's award, the Board resolved to let the matter stand over. A meeting of the Compensation Committee was also arranged for.

WATER.—The clerk reported that he had sent Mr. Bromet copy of the entire correspondence between the Local Board and the Local Government Board on the subject of Mr. Lawton's water supply, and Mr. Bromet had replied intimating his opinion that the Board must provide water for Mr. Lawton, and that unless they do so, he should report the Board as "in default." On the other hand the Board hold the letters of the department absolving them from supplying water at the Board's expense at so great a distance from the mains as Mr. Lawton's house. The matter now stands adjourned for further consideration by a full Board.

Messrs. Oldroyd and Sons applied for water to the "Blanket house" on Pontefract Road.

Mr. J. Hargreaves suggested that the clerk write to Mr. Schofield, clerk to the Rural Sanitary Authority, stating the case and asking the authority to connect the house with the Oulton and Woodlesford main, which passes the house.

The Inspector produced samples of water taken from Messrs. Charlesworth's reservoir and Mr. Cooper's well. A third sample was to have been taken from the spot where it was suggested a tank should be made some time ago, but hardly a drop could be seen; these samples were to be got and analysed. The Inspector said that something should be done at once, as the people were starving for lack of water. Mr. J. Hargreaves urged that immediate steps should be taken for present necessities. Mr. Holmes referred to the offer which Mr. W. Hargreaves had kindly made some time ago, to leave a barrel from their reservoir, at Patrick Green every night, so that the people could get a supply of water, until something better could be done; and he thought the offer ought to have been accepted; he wished to know whether Mr. Hargreaves would be likely still to hold to that offer. Mr. J. Hargreaves thought it probable he would still arrange such a supply temporarily. The Inspector was desired to communicate with Mr. W. Hargreaves on the subject, as to whether he will kindly carry out his offer.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having received and paid into the bank the following amounts:—

HIGHWAYS.—The tenders for leading stone from the wharf to such part of the Leeds and Wakefield Road, as may be desired, were opened, and Mr. Sewell's price being the lowest, it was proposed by Mr. Bramley, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves,—That the Board accept the tender of Mr. W. Sewell for leading stone to any part of the Board's portion of Wakefield Road, at 11dp. er ton; the contract to hold good till March 25th, 1883. Carried.

The Highway Committee decided to meet on Thursday, (yesterday) to inspect several pieces of road, and also to take steps for the improvement of Commercial Street.

A conversation was held on the Divided Parishes Act, which has just become law, and will take effect from the 25th March, 1883, whereby detached portions of a parish surrounded by another parish shall henceforth belong to such surrounding parish. There are several strange anomalies in the Board's district, which will by this law become rectified, and those concerned in the conduct of public business will be greatly relieved of sundry isolated pieces of land which have become surrounded by property belonging to another authority.

OULTON WESLEYAN CHAPEL.

The anniversary services in support of the funds of this chapel were held on Sunday last, the preacher being the Rev. R. F. Cape, of Keighley, formerly one of the ministers in this circuit.

There was a fairly numerous congregation at the forenoon service, and in the evening the chapel was filled almost to crowding.

Mr. Cape was a general favourite while in the circuit, and made many friends and admirers by his cordial, kindly, and unaffected manners, and his impressive and earnest preaching; we believe he left the district with considerable regret at the end of his three years' ministrations, so that to preacher and hearers alike, his temporary re-appearance would prove a source of much gratification.

Both sermons were excellent in exposition and application and were fully embellished, and made the more interesting by illustrations both original or borrowed from authoritative sources, while the language and style at all times winning and persuasive sometimes approached a quiet but earnest eloquence. The text in the morning was the 10th verse of the 23rd chapter of Job, and in the the evening the 26th verse of the 23rd chapter of Proverbs.

On Monday, the anniversary proceedings were continued, the first item on the programme being a public tea, to which about a hundred sat down, and which was presided over by Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Armitage, Mrs. Flockton, and Mrs. Jackson. After tea a public meeting was held in the chapel presided over by Dr. Nowell, in the absence of Mr. Jabez Woolley who was to have taken the chair, but through physical indisposition was unable to do so.

The meeting was addressed by (in addition to the chairman) Mr. Mason, Mr. S. Seanor, (of Rothwell) the Rev. C. A. Collingwood, Rev. R. F. Cape, Mr. Jeffreys, of Leeds, (formerly of Woodlesford) and Mr. Walker. Mr. Walker during the evening read a statement of the income and expenditure in connection with the chapel for the past year, which shewed a balance in the hands of the steward. The collections, subscriptions and proceeds of tea amounted in the whole to about £18. The choir was augmented by friends from Rothwell and Wakefield (Mr. C. Ward, Mr. Tilley and Mr. Williamson), and on Sunday the anthem "If ye love me," (Thos. Smith) and the "Nunc Dimitis," (Hebden's Service) were given with very nice effect.

CRICKET.

ROTHWELL v. HUNSLET.

A fair number of spectators assembled in the Woodhouse Hill Cricket Ground, last Saturday, to witness a match between Rothwell and Hunslet. The visitors having won the toss elected to bat, W Hirst and A Ward first defending the wicket against the deliveries of Lunn and Gilbert. No stand was make, only two getting double figures, viz:—G Abbey and R Whiteley, 10 each. Lunn and Clark were the first Hunslet representatives at the wicket. Runs came slowly until the fourth man was out, when T Marsh M Carr and Hawden made it lively for the fielders, bringing up the total to 117 for 7 wickets.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

GREAT BATTLE.

CAPTURE OF TEL-EL-KEBIR,

ROUT OF THE EGYPTIAN ARMY.

FLIGHT OF ARABI PASHA

SURRENDER OF KAFR DOWAR.

THE BRITISH IN CAIRO.

The most complete success has attended our attack upon the enemy's position, and not only has Tel-el-Kebir fallen into our hands but the Egyptian army has ceased to exist.

When I despatched my telegram yesterday evening the troops were all at work striking and rolling up tents, packing baggage, and carrying everything to the side of the railway. That duty finished, they began the march.

The first move was a short one, being only to the sandhills above the camp. The arms were piled, and the men lay down on the sand, or sat and chatted quietly over the coming fight. At one o'clock the word was passed round, and they again fell in.

Never did a body of 14,000 men get under arms more quietly. The very orders appeared to be given in lowered tones, and almost noiselessly the dark column moved off, their footfall being deadened by the sand.

The silence, broken only by the occasional clash of steel, the certainty that the great struggle would commence with the dawn, and the expectation that at any moment we might be challenged by the Bedouin horsemen far out in the plain in front of the enemy, all combined to make it an impressive march, which none who shared in it will ever forget.

There were frequent halts to enable the regiments to maintain touch, and to allow the transport waggons, whose wheels crunched over the sandy plains with a noise which to our ears seemed strangely loud, to keep up with us.

On our right was Graham's Brigade, which has already done good service by twice repelling the assaults of the enemy upon this camp. Next to them came the Guard's Brigade, which was, when the action began, to act in support of that of Graham. Between them and the canal moved the guns of the Royal Artillery, under General Goodenough. On the railway itself the Naval Brigade advanced with the 40-pounder on a truck.

South of the canal the Highland Regiment led the advance, followed by the Indian troops in support. The Cavalry and Horse Artillery had started due north to make a long detour, and to come down on the enemy's line of retreat.

By early dawn the troops had arrived within a thousand yards of the enemy's lines, and halted there for a short time to enable the fighting lines to be formed, and other preparations to be made.

A perfect silence still reigned over the plain, and it was difficult to credit the fact that some 14,000 men lay in a semicircle round the enemy's lines, ready to dash forward at a signal at the low sand trenches in front, behind which twice as many men slumbered, unsuspicious of their presence.

As is usual in a movement carried out in the darkness, many detached parties altogether lost their way. I was with the mounted police, and for a while we completely beat the rest of our force, and went hither and thither all night, until just at daybreak, we nearly stumbled into the enemy's lines.

The attack began on our left, and nothing could be imagined finer than the advance of the Highland Brigade. The 74th were next to the canal; next to them were the Cameronians, the Gordon Highlanders continued the line, with the Black Watch upon their flank. The 46th and the 60th formed the second line.

Swiftly and silently the Highlanders moved forward to the attack. No word was spoken; no shot fired until within three hundred yards of the enemy's earthworks; nor up to that time did a sound in the Egyptian lines betoken that they were aware of the presence of their assailants.

Then suddenly a terrific fire flashed along the line of sandheaps, and a storm of bullets whizzed over the heads of the advancing troops.

A wild cheer broke from the Highlanders in response; the pipes struck shrilly up; bayonets were fixed, and at the double this splendid line of men dashed forward.

The first line of intrenchments was carried without the enemy scarce offering any resistance, but from another line of intrenchments behind, which, in the still dim light, could be scarcely seen, a burst of musketry broke out.

For a few minutes the Highlanders poured in a heavy fire in exchange, but it was probably as innocuous as that of the unseen enemy, whose bullets swept harmlessly overhead. The delay in the advance was but a short one. Then the order was given, and the brigade again went rapidly forward. Soon a portion of the force had passed between the enemy's redoubts, and opened a flanking fire upon him.

This was too much for the Egyptians, who at once took to their heels, and fairly ran, suffering, as the crowded masses rushed across the open, very heavily from our fire, being literally mown down by hundreds.

Meanwhile the fighting had begun upon the other flank. The Horse Artillery shelled the enemy's extreme left. Here the Egyptians were more prepared than they had been on their right, and for a time kept up a steady fire. The 18th Royal Irish were sent to turn the enemy's left, under the guidance of Major Hart, who accompanied them as staff officer, and, at the word, dashed at the trenches and carried them at the bayonet's point, so turning the flank of the defender's position.

Next to the 18th came the 87th, and next to them the 84th, the Guards being close up behind in support. These regiments advanced by regular rushes. For a short time the enemy clung to his line of intrenchments; but his fire was singularly ineffective, and our troops got fairly into the trenches in front of them. Then the enemy fought stoutly for a few moments, and the combat was hand-to-hand. Major Hart shot one man as he was trying to wrest his revolver from his hand, and this even after the trench had been turned by our advance on their flank. Then, as our troops poured in, the Egyptians fled as rapidly as those upon the other side of the canal had done before the Highlanders.

The fight was now practically over, the only further danger arising from the bullets of our own troops, who were firing in all directions upon the flying enemy, as with loud cheers our whole line advanced in pursuit.

The Egyptians did not preserve the slightest semblance of order, but fled in a confused rabble at the top of their speed.

As we descended the hill leading down to Tel-el-Kebir Station we captured the standing camp, with immense stores of forage and provisions.

At the station were two trains which were filled with fugitives, and these managed to get away before our troops came up. Another engine, however, on the point of starting, was blown up by one of our shells.

The victorious line of troops advanced cheering across the enemy's camp, and halted at the station, where Sir Garnet Wolseley soon after arrived.

Immediately afterwards General Drury-Lowe with his staff rode up, having cut across the line of retreat of the flying enemy. A good many of them had been killed by our rifle and artillery fire, but immense numbers throwing their arms away, delivered themselves up as prisoners.

How many of them have been taken I cannot at present say, but certainly far more than we shall be able to dispose of.

On the bridge of the canal the General dictated his orders to General Macpherson and General Lowe.

The former was ordered to move at once with the Indian Brigade on Zagazig, the latter to continue the work of the total dispersion of the enemy.

As I write, the troops are cheering their Brigadiers, Alison and Graham, who rode into the trenches at their head.

The Highlanders and Guards are making themselves comfortable in the abandoned Egyptian quarters, and preparing to snatch a few hours repose.

Our casualties are at present unknown, but are not heavy; but those of the enemy are very large indeed.

Reschid Pasha and Ismail Pasha are both wounded.

Forty guns are believed to be captured.

Major Colville and Lieutenant Somerville, of the 74th, are, I hear, killed. Captain Keppel, Lieutenant Medwood, Captain Cumberland, and Lieutenant Gordon-Cary are among the wounded. The last named killed with his claymore three Egyptian officers who set upon him. Colonel Richardson, of the 46th, was wounded in the mouth as, with his regiment, he dashed over the intrenchments.

In the course of a brief ride I counted three hundred Egyptians dead.

I hear that General Drury-Lowe, with the cavalry, is to advance through Belbeis towards Cairo.

Arabi barely escaped our cavalry, galloping off alone on a thoroughbred Arab.

The British wounded are being well cared for, and will be sent down by the canal.

ALEXANDRIA, Thursday, 2 p.m.

Budros Pasha, Under-Secretary of the Ministry of Justice, and Reouf Pasha, ex-Governor-General of the Soudan, have arrived at Kafr Dowar, and have written to Kairi Pasha, Keeper of the Khedive's Seals, telling him that the entire Egyptian army, as well as Cairo, were ready to surrender to the Khedive, and that they ask to be allowed to come immediately to Alexandria to present to His Highness an address from the Notables of Cairo, and to ask the Khedive's conditions.

ALEXANDRIA, Thursday, 7.40 p.m.

This afternoon our troops entered the frowning earthworks of Kafr Dowar, which have so long defied us. White flags waved over the redoubt, and one is placed at the foot of the bastion, on which is the Krupp gun which has so often sent its iron message into our lines.

Sir E. Wood came out by train as far as Millaha Junction, and thence rode out to meet Reouf, Burdos and Rubi Pashas, who, with a small escort of Egyptian horsemen with a flag of truce, were waiting to receive him.

ARRIVAL OF ENGLISH CAVALRY AT CAIRO.

(EXCHANGE TELEGRAM.)

ISMAILIA, Thursday, 6 p.m.—It is reported here that what was left of the Egyptian army has surrendered.

The English cavalry have arrived at Cairo.

Orders have been received at the base of operations to send the staff baggage to Cairo.

Sultan Pasha, the representative of the Khedive at the head-quarters of Sir G. Wolseley, and a number of Notables will leave here to-morrow morning for Cairo.

CARLTON.

BEARING TEA.—On Monday last, a public tea was held by the Primitive Methodists of this village, in celebration of the successful building of a new Sunday School which has now reached the roof. It is expected to be opened in a few weeks. A good number sat down to tea, which was excellent.

ALLAN LINE.

"SMART PASSAGE BY THE 'PARISIAN.'—In the way of illustrating the speed of the passages now being made across the Atlantic, it is worthy of record that the royal mail steamer 'Parisian,' of the Allan Line, which left Quebec on the 2nd instant, was docked in the Alexandra Dock on Sunday morning the 10th. This is certainly a remarkable instance, alike as to the rapidity of the voyage, the time at which the passenger would land, and the high value to the consignees of the cargo."

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—The wheat trade is again quiet, at a reduction of 1s 6d to 2s per qr. since last Tuesday. Maize rather easier. Beans and peas firm. Oats steady. Flour lower, the present prices being.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2, 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—As usual on the Leger day, the supply of stock was as a whole not only smaller, but the attendance of dealers was not so large. The sheep and lambs were not so numerous as last week, and the latter sorts were very speedily cleared out, butchers having to give a slight advance even on the high prices of last week. The fat beasts were 10 less than a week ago, and better qualities were in brisk demand. Little or no trade was done in veal. There was a larger supply of milch cows and lean beasts than there has been for some time past. The trade in pigs was slow at the following rates.

No. of	this week,	last week,
fat beasts,	2010	2060
sheep	3200,	4130
pigs	250,	274
milch cows &c	120,	50

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts,	9½d to 10d per lb.
Lean beasts,	£10 to £16 each.
Milch cows,	£16 to £24 each.
Sheep,	8¾d to 10½d per lb.
Lambs,	10½d to 11d per lb
Pigs, small,	15s to 20s.
„ store,	40s to 60s.
„ fat,	7/- to 8/2 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN, Friday, 1.0. p.m.—There is a good attendance at our market this morning. English wheat although not largely offered is only saleable at less money than last Friday. Foreign one to two shillings per qr. lower. Barley meets a fair enquiry, but prices as yet are irregular. Beans and oats quiet. Maize 6d per qr. cheaper. Weather fine.

DEATH.

SHERBURN.—September 11th, Hannah Sherburn, Rothwell, aged 55 years.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE report of the recent proceedings of the Woodlesford School Board which appeared last week, although somewhat tardy in coming to light was nevertheless of a highly interesting nature, containing as it did a statement respecting the progress of the dispute between the Board and the late schoolmaster, the public have been kept rather in the dark on this subject, therefore such a ray of light comes all the more welcome. What are the odds against Mr. Longbottom backing out of the business altogether? Some people are saying that he will if he is judicious, but then people are not always judicious, and Mr. Longbottom may not be more so than most folks; moreover as he fancies himself an injured man, he may possibly be tempted to "go for the price" in the shape of "damages" and if revenge comes in such a shape it must be doubly sweet.

The landlord of the "Swan" had better keep that new sign by him as it may come in useful after all if the Rothwell Railway Bill is again brought before Parliament.

THERE is to be a demonstration at Woodlesford and Oulton on Sunday on behalf of the Leeds Infirmary and it is fervently to be hoped that the day may be fine, and that the sun's rays may warm the hearts of the people, and cause them to lend a helping hand to their brethren who are sick and suffering within the walls of that noble institution.

LOCAL cricketers are exercising their minds just now about the match which takes place on Saturday week at Oulton between the rival teams of Rothwell and Oulton, and it is very probable that a good contest may be witnessed providing the weather be favourable. Judging from the past exploits of each eleven, Oulton should win, but one cannot prophecy with any certainty about cricket.

THERE was an announcement in the advertisement columns of this newspaper a short time since stating that a silver cup would be given for competition by the Oulton Football Club early in October. This looks as if the Oulton Club had taken a leaf out of the Harmonic book. Let us hope that good sport may result and plenty of it. It is not "Ichabod" that is to be put up again is it?

MENTION was made last week of things musical and dramatic; it is now stated that the piece de resistance of the Woodlesford Choral Society will be Mozarts Twelfth Mass; a worthy selection truly and an enterprise which deserves to succeed and which with great care and diligence on the part of all concerned will probably meet with a fair measure of success. There are, however, a few numbers in that noble work which may possibly be just a little too much for a village society, but all the more credit will be due if they are mastered.

WHILE the Rothschilds have been sending pipes and tobacco to the troops in Egypt, would it not have been a splendid means of advertising and making known to all the world the Rothwell Matches, if Messrs. Seanor and Sons had also sent a box of "True Blues" or "Sunflowers" to each man at the seat of war.

THE echo of angry voices is still audible in the Whispering Gallery; they proceed from the Working Man's Club, where the Rothwell Football Club are holding a meeting for the purpose of revising their rules. One youth who may often be seen on the way between Leeds and Rothwell smoking cigarettes was heard to call the late secretary "a liar;" he was asked by the chairman to withdraw his last remark, but he obstinately refused to do so. Amidst the tumult which ensued his voice rose above the rest trying to convince those present that he was "a man of his word." Everybody seemed to be against him and it will be well for him next time he goes to a meeting of this kind to take his Mam-mah with him to keep him in control, as he holds anyone else in defiance. Insulted as he must have been I am surprised that the chairman did not vacate his post.

QUID NUNC.

TRADE IN GRAVES.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I will thank you to insert the annexed correspondence in your next issue.

Respectfully yours,
THOS. STEPHENSON.

9, Lewis St,
Halifax,
Sept. 9th, 1882.

Mr. Thos. Stephenson.

Dear Sir,

Mrs. Hannah Rawson owner of a grave in Rothwell church yard, in which her deceased brother, Edward Dickenson, is buried is anxious to sell the grave. She informs me that you are the registrar for the district and that you had the management of the grave and that it cost £12. As it is not likely to be wanted by any of the family she thinks it best to sell it, and she thinks you may gain an advantage by selling it, providing you will give her £2 for it. Seeing that it cost £12, is a vaulted grave, and has valuable stone work in connection with it, it will be an advantage to you as well as her by you purchasing it for £2, and then disposing of it for a higher sum to some person in the neighbourhood. I am informed it only contains the corpse of the late Edward Dickenson. As she wishes me to sell it for her if possible, will you kindly reply to this early. Stamped and addressed envelope enclosed.

I am,
Truly Yours,
J. GIBSON.

Rothwell,
Sept. 11th, 1882.

Sir,

Your letter surprises me as well it may. It would appear that a Mrs. Rawson has told you that I am Registrar of the district. Why did she not tell you that I am trustee and executor of her brother. How she claims the stone, &c. over her brother's grave I dont see, I paid for everything connected therewith and hold receipts of all monies connected with his funeral paid by me out of his estate. Certainly I shall never degrade myself and dishonour the name of Edward Dickinson by being a party to such a disgraceful transaction as she desires. I will allow no one to take away the stone that marks his resting place till the general resurrection.

THOMAS STEPHENSOON.
Trustee.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Counsel for the Delicate.—Those to whom seasons of changeable temperatures are protracted periods of trial should seek the earliest opportunity of removing all obstacles to good health. This cooling Ointment, perseveringly rubbed upon the skin, is the most reliable remedy for overcoming all diseases of the throat and chest. Quinsey, relaxed tonsils, sore throat, swollen glands, ordinary catarrh, and bronchitis, usually prevailing at this season, may be arrested as soon as discovered, and every symptom banished by Holloway's simple and effective treatment. This Ointment and Pills are highly commended for the facility with which they successfully conquer influenza; they allay in an incredibly short time the distressing fever and teasing cough.

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. LAMPLOUGH, 113 Holborn, London.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

SPANISH FLY is the acting ingredient in ALEX. ROSS'S CANTHARIDES. It acts quickly in producing Hair on the face or head, 3s 6d, 5s 6d, and 10s 6d; sent post for 54, 84, or 144 stamps. Ross, 21, Lamb's Conduit-street, London, (near the Foundling). Whips of Hair any shade.

TOMLINSON & CO.'S BUTTER POWDER.
Brings the Butter quickly, removing all unpleasant flavours of Turnips, Cake, Mangolds, Wild Garlic, Sour Grass, Leeks, Dead Leaves, &c. Increases the quantity and improves the quality of Butter. By its use farmers and dairymen may insure good, firm, and sweet Butter all the year round. Butter made with this Powder invariably takes the FIRST PRIZES at the Agricultural Shows throughout the kingdom. Sold everywhere, by Chemists & Grocers, in Boxes, 3d., 6d., 1s., 2s. 6d., and 7s. 6d. each. Sole Manufacturers, TOMLINSON & HAYWARD, LINCOLN.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,
Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.
As a GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.
Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 13½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. 271

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a GUINEA A Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarrantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helen's Lancashire, in boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free for 15 or 36 stamps.

Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.

THE REVISION OF VOTERS.

During the six weeks which commence with the middle of September and end with the last day of October, politicians throughout the various constituencies are agitated by the presence among them of a gentleman learned in the law, and especially appointed to examine the lists of voters prepared by the overseers, and to give judgment upon the various claims and objections that have been formally lodged. The duties of revising barristers are by no means light in these days of strong political feeling. He is presumed not only to be possessed of a strictly impartial mind—a qualification in itself somewhat difficult to provide—but to be sufficiently adept in the law of elections to pluck wisdom from the multitude of counsels that his superiors, the judges of the land, have laid before him. To the many it may not seem that the latter is a large demand to make upon any barrister of sufficient standing to be appointed to such an honourable and onerous duty; but the days of conflicting judgments are not yet passed, and many points in election law are still sufficiently obscure to tax the wisdom of the keenest. And the duties cast upon revising barristers, like those which devolve upon county court judges, have a tendency to grow, and to grow with rapidity. Previous to the Reform Act of 1832, there was no need for any such officials, and for the best of all reasons—that there were no lists of voters to revise. In the counties, each man who wished to cast his vote had to repair to the chief town, and there prove his freehold—at that time the only qualification for a county voter. In the boroughs the franchises varied considerably; but whether the voting was by scot and lot or by the choice of freemen, or by the selection of the lord of the manor, no register was kept because none was needed. The Act of 1832 altered all this, and made a list a necessity. No longer were freeholders the sole possessors of the suffrage in counties; no longer did freemen and "potwallopers" divide the franchises in boroughs; no longer was it necessary to occupy days and sometimes weeks in parliamentary elections; and no longer was it incumbent upon returning officers to keep the poll open as long as one elector per hour recorded his vote. A list was prepared by the overseers of those qualified to exercise the suffrage; any who thought themselves wrongfully omitted could send in their claim; any who thought their neighbours inserted in error could enter an objection; and the revising barrister became an institution. Time went on and brought the second Reform Act, that of 1867, which not only enormously swelled the list of voters, but added an entirely new body—the lodgers—to those previously qualified; and furthermore, stimulated party organization to such an extent that the revision courts are every year the scene of warm encounters, eagerly fought by the agents of each party. There is in all this one great advantage, and that is that now-a-days scarcely a single person entitled to have a vote is left off the lists, some political organisation or other being almost certain to get hold of his name. But, as a counter-balance there is this disadvantage—that those among us whose opinions on public affairs are not of so definite a hue as to merit being called partisan, are looked askance at by the agents of both the great sections, and are not claimed for by either. This, however, is a minor evil, after all; the main fact is that few men whose rating qualifications rightly give a vote, lose their chance of securing it. It may be taken as a sign of growing reasonableness that wholesale objections to political opponents appear to be going out of fashion; claims increase while the number of objections diminishes. And this is as it should be; if the vote is the precious possession our politicians declare it to be, all efforts should be directed not to diminish the total of electors by striking off opponents upon the smallest of technical points, but to increase it by putting on as many as is legally possible, and then if they disagree with us, to try to convert them to our side in the best manner we can.

The departure of the Khedive for Cairo has been postponed until Monday. Extensive preparations have been made for the reception of his Highness, in which all classes of the community seem desirous of joining. According to another telegram, there have been some disturbances in the Arab quarter of Cairo, and Sir Garnet Wolseley is reported to have threatened to fire upon the quarter if order was not restored. The passenger trains between Alexandria and Cairo commenced running on Wednesday.

The Standard correspondent at Alexandria reports a serious riot at Demanhoor. It appears that Ibrahim Pasha Tewfik, on arriving at Demanhoor on Tuesday, to resume his official duties as Governor of the Province, found the stations in possession of a tumultous mob of disbanded soldiers. After vainly attempting to disperse the rioters he sent for the police. The mob became more violent, and attacked Ibrahim and his friends with sticks and bludgeons, and seriously wounded them. Three native Christians were killed. General Wood, as soon as he heard of the disturbance, despatched three companies of the 53rd Regiment, under Colonel Vandeleur. A Reuter's telegram states that reports continue to be received at Alexandria of outrages and disturbances in the interior. At Tantah all the houses and factories belonging to Europeans were looted, and the Copts during the whole time were in danger of being massacred. At Benha and other places in the same district only a few houses were looted. It is added that the leaders at Demanhoor have been arrested.

The Times correspondent at Cairo telegraphs that Abd-el-Al-Pasha, the commandant at Damietta, has been shot by his troops. It is stated that he summoned his regiments of blacks and exhorted them to fight till the last. He added that Arabi had turned traitor and fled, but that Kafr Dowar was making a heroic resistance. The soldiers asked why they should risk their lives for Arabi, and upon Abd-el-Al replying they should be ready to die for the Caliph and their religion, as he was, they shouted "Then die," and shot him through the stomach.

From a later telegram below, it appears that the above is hardly correct.

ALEXANDRIA, Thursday, 9.45 p.m.

Abd-el-Al appears to have repented at the eleventh hour. It is stated at the Palace tonight that a telegram has been received by the Khedive from him, making complete and unconditional surrender in his own name and that of the garrison of Damietta.

General Wood attended at Kafr Dowar on Wednesday to receive the surrender of the last batch of troops from Aboukir, bringing the total stand of arms delivered up at Kafr Dowar to 30,000.

THE REV. R. W. FAWKES.

Last Sunday afternoon the Rev. R. W. Fawkes, Rector of Swillington, preached his farewell sermon to a very large, attentive and appreciative congregation in the Parish Church, from the text "For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God."—Acts XX., 27.

Mr. Fawkes was previously a lieutenant in the Royal Navy, but he experienced a change of heart in one of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's meetings, and this circumstance altered the whole course of his life; he entered the ministry, and three and a half years ago came to his labours at Swillington, from that time he has made his influence felt, not only in his own parish, but also in all those immediately surrounding it, his earnest zeal, consistent life and pastoral care having tended to earn for him the esteem and love of all his parishioners, while his popularity has drawn the people from Oulton, Woodlesford and Rothwell, in good numbers to the services of the church, where his earnest, honest, and evangelistic preaching has not been without good results.

On Sunday, as has been already intimated, the congregation was very large, so much so that chairs and benches had to be placed in the aisles in order to seat them all. At three o'clock the Rev. gentleman came rather hurriedly forward and commenced the service, he reading the Prayers, while his brother, Captain Fawkes—who, we hear is to be curate for Mr. Fawkes in his new living—read the lessons.

The text was very well suited to the occasion, it being a portion of St. Paul's last address to the Elders at Miletus before going up to Jerusalem; the sermon was most impressive, and many tears were shed as the parting wishes, advice and exhortations fell from the minister's lips.

Mr. Fawkes carries with him the good wishes of all who know him, and we heartily further his parting with a general "God speed."

During his sojourn among us Mr. Fawkes has lost two children, and we understand that it is on account of the health of those who are left that he is removing to the south of England.

INFIRMARY SUNDAY AT OULTON AND WOODLESFORD.

The first demonstration of the clubs at Oulton and Woodlesford, for the benefit of the Leeds Infirmary, was celebrated last Sunday afternoon, the proceedings being of a very satisfactory character. Favoured by beautiful weather, a large number of persons turned out to see the procession, which formed at the top of Woodlesford about one o'clock. Here the members of the following five clubs met, and formed in pairs, the Loyal Duke of Lancaster Lodge of Odd-fellows Friendly Society, the Loyal Amicitia M U., New Delight, Loyal Good-will, and the Ancient order of Romans. The long line of men was headed by Mr. Craven, (the secretary), Mr. Joseph Robinson, (treasurer), and other officers, immediately followed by the Oulton Brass Band, which looked very well in the new uniform, and played a suitable selection of music on the march. There were about 250 persons in the procession, which paraded through Woodlesford, passing the Midland Hotel, New Woodlesford, Quarry Hill, on to Oulton Church, which they reached shortly before three o'clock, the centre of the edifice being reserved for them All along the route, certain members with boxes solicited contributions, and most certainly they plied their vocation very assiduously, and left no stone unturned (that is, no person unsolicited) so as to gather in every penny they possibly could secure.

The fine stone church was well filled at three o'clock, the organ gallery being quite overcrowded with amateurs and members of neighbouring choirs wishful to assist in the musical part of the service.

At three o'clock the service was commenced by the Rev. R. H. Hamilton, M.A., the usual evening prayers being taken. A short sermon was then preached by the Rev. gentleman on "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all things shall be added unto you." Matthew 6 chap. 33rd verse. The preacher desired to seize the present opportunity of impressing those present with the necessity of first seeking true religion and the favour of God, assuring them, on this promise, that all other things should be added unto them. No special allusion was made to the object of the gathering, but the hymns selected referred to hospitals, &c., being 240, 369 and 12. A collection was taken in church for the Infirmary, after which the band played the two first selections from Mozart's 12th Mass. The collection received on the route and in church amounted to £19 1s., which has been handed over to the treasurer of the Leeds Infirmary.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of the above Board was held on Friday last, present—Messrs. Wm. Hargreaves, (chairman) James Batty, J. G. Turner, J. Parker, and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meetings were read and confirmed.

Mrs. Dobson having applied for further assistance, instructions were given to provide another teacher till after the examination.

The clerk read a letter from Miss Jowitt, tendering three months' notice of her resignation as mistress of the Rothwell Infants' School, having received and accepted the offer of Oulton National School. The Board expressed regret, and reluctantly accepted the resignation.

The mortgage deed for the Loan of £881 (Rothwell Haigh Infants' School Building) having been read and approved, a resolution was passed ordering the Corporate seal of the Board to be attached thereto, and to be signed by the chairman.

Mr. Parker then proposed the rescinding of the resolution passed June 19th, 1870, instructing teachers to send back any children "failing to bring their school fees for two weeks in succession." The clerk reported the custom of several Boards in this matter, and the above resolution was carried, Mr. Batty being neutral.

It was then moved by the chairman, that all children applying for admission be received, and that the head teachers in each school furnish a monthly report shewing any arrears of fees which may have accrued; and that the Board take such action as may be deemed advisable on each report, either remitting deserving cases or ordering summonses in the County Court. Mr. Parker seconded the motion, which was carried. Mr. Batty being neutral.

The Attendance Officer reported that the magistrates had that day ordered J. Thirlwell, T. Watson, J. Blackburn, T Clark, and Arthur Handforth to pay a fine of 5/- each for neglecting to send their children to school.

Several accounts and salaries were passed, and the school wants agreed to.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

WAKEFIELD GOSPEL TEMPERANCE MISSION.

The fortnight's services commenced at Wakefield on Sunday week, and held every evening, have gradually increased in interest and importance. Each night the Corn Exchange has been filled with large audiences who have listened with marked attention to the spirited and effective addresses delivered. Gentlemen of known ability and standing have assisted, among them being Mr. William Noble, of London (the founder of the Blue Ribbon movement;) Waubono, a Delaware Indian and Christian temperance advocate; Ald. Milthorp, the Mayor; Mr. W. H. Lee, the ex-Mayor; the Mayors of some other towns; Mr. J. B. Manning, the newly-appointed Governor of Her Majesty's Prison at Wakefield; the Rev. E. G. C. Parr, M. A., Assistant-Chaplain at the Prison and chairman of the committee; Mr. F. Andrews and Mr. Veale, of Ackworth; Captain Perfect, of Castleford, Mr. J. Glaisyer, of York; Mr. Fred. Sykes, Huddersfield; Mr. Hector Davidson, of Leeds; Mr. J. F. Clark, of Doncaster, and others.

Last Saturday, a most successful children's meeting was held by Captain Perfect, the evening meeting of adults being presided over by J. B. Manning, Esq.

Several meetings were held on Sunday, and on Monday the Lord Mayor of York presided, and delivered an address. The number of pledges taken on Monday were announced as 981, and upwards of 1800 blue ribbons attached.

On Tuesday evening, the Mayor of Leeds presided, and spoke on behalf of the object of the mission, in the course of which he said the country had long laboured under the delusion that alcohol was beneficial to health as an article of diet, that it promoted health, and increased the enjoyment of life. Experience proved that it was a delusion. He found that those who abstained from intoxicants as a rule excelled in what they undertook, and he gave it as his opinion that the result of the position in which the English teams who had met the Australians at Leeds and Scarborough found themselves was greatly owing to the fact that the Australians had a large number of abstainers amongst them and the English had none to his knowledge. (A voice: Peate). He also mentioned, as evidence of good results of abstinence the fact that our troops in Egypt had a ration of tea served to them instead of rum—(loud applause)—for the first time in history. Abstainers had now many encouraging circumstances. Many of the ministers of religion, and of the aristocracy were joining them, as well as many of the medical profession. He knew that there were a few second and third rate men who still held to the alcohol, but they were becoming less and less; and the influence of these medical men and ministers of religion could not be over estimated. His worship also quoted from an insurance society's papers showing that the abstainers lived many years longer than moderate drinkers. Some people, the chairman observed, might think it inconsistent in himself, being a teetotaller, occupying the position of chairman of the Licensing Committee of the Leeds borough, but he urged that if all those who held his opinion stood aloof, all the power to regulate the sale of intoxicants, so far as they had the power, would be left in the hands of those on the other side of the question (applause). Personally he did not think any one who was not an abstainer could thoroughly enjoy life. They found, too, that a great many of those who gave up the drink became christian men and women, and, therefore, the gain was all the greater. In concluding, his Worship asked all who had not done so to join the ranks at once, and thus extend the glory of God and the good of their fellow-creature (loud applause.)

Mr. Wesley Petty, of Leeds, next spoke, and that in a very effective manner. He commenced by observing that the date of the "good time coming" had about arrived, as was evidenced by the presence of such platforms as that, of men of every religious persuasion and class. There were at the present time 15,000 Church of England clergymen working on behalf of temperance, 5,000 of whom were total abstainers (applause), while amongst the ministers of the Primitive Methodist body there was scarcely one who was not a teetotaller. Many were taking the pledge now, and the question was asked—would they keep it? The experience of a reformed drunkard was often a life-long struggle with the vice while so many places were left open to tempt him (applause). And the law of the country had made it easy for a man to be drunken and hard for many to be sober, and if the drunkard broke his pledge the legislature was greatly answerable for it. There were sadly too many public-houses (applause). Dr Lamson, the newspapers of the day stated, found his way into the condemned cell to a great extent from the ease with which he could purchase the poison with which he killed that poor young man, and so it was with the drunkard, only that the death he died was ten thousand times more murderous and far reaching in its results than death by poison. Some said they were trying to despise certain classes of liberty. He asked was the liberty of the publican of more importance than that of the people? (Applause). The speaker here illustrated his point by the pathetic story of a woman who was imprisoned for pledging some shirts which she was making for the owner at 8d. a day of 11 hours. Her husband died a drunkard and left her with five children to support, and the point of the story was this, that the same law which sent her to prison allowed the cause which brought her into temptation.—(applause). Talk of slavery? Verily the worst slave of all was the white slave—the drunkard's wife.

Other speakers followed.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. Councillor B. Peacock presided, and was accompanied on the platform by the Revs. E. G. C. Parr, W. Greenwood (curate of Normanton), A. B. Matthews, W. H. S. Snow (Free Church), and A. J. Bull (Primitive Methodist); Messrs. I. G. Wallis, S. Seal, S. Stephenson, J. H. Fearnsides (Batley), and Miss Frost (Leeds).

Mr. R. Wallis, one of the secretaries, in making a series of announcements, said that the number of persons who had taken the pledge up to the previous night was 1,083, and the number who had donned the blue ribbon over 2,000.

Last evening a crowded audience was present, when the Rev. C. Collingwood, Mr. I. G. Wallis, and Captain A. S. Leatham, (late of the Gordon Highlanders), delivered capital addresses. The Rev. J. R. Wolstenholme, Minister of Zion Chapel, Wakefield, presided.

Rothwell Temperance Society.—The old building, formerly used as a match factory in Holmes' Square, and which for some time has been undergoing alterations and additions by the Temperance Society, is now rapidly assuming a more respectable appearance, and will shortly be opened as a Temperance Hall.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—The market to-day is very quiet. English wheat is cheaper. Foreign easier. Maize 6d lower than last Tuesday. Oats and beans steady. Peas firm. Flour unchanged.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2. 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—We had a moderate supply of stock to-day. The fat beasts numbered ten more than last week. They included a few Danish cattle, the majority being Lincolnshire and Irish beasts. The sheep and lambs numbered 1000 more than last week. There was a moderate show of fat calves. The milch cows and lean beasts were not so numerous as last week. There was a larger show of pigs, late rates being obtained.

No. of	this week,	last week,
fat beasts,	2020	2010
sheep	4200,	3200
pigs	320,	250
milch cows &c	83,	120

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 8d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts, £10 to £16 each.
Milch cows, £18 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Lambs, 10½d to 11d per lb.
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
„ store, 40s to 60s.
„ fat, 7/- to 8/2 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield, Corn. Friday, 12.40. p.m.—There is a fair enquiry for wheat this morning and factors require last week's prices for foreign and dry English, but anything damp or out of condition is almost unsaleable. In barley, both English and foreign maltsters are doing little or nothing. Oats steady, beans and maize easier. After a wet week the weather to-day is fine and bright.

DEATH.

Adamson.—September 16th, George, son of James and Sarah Adamson, Rothwell, aged 2 years.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

The charity demonstration at Woodlesford and Oulton last Sunday was in many ways a great success, while at the same time it was not unmixed with evil. The financial result (over £19 being collected) amply justified the undertaking and far exceeded the most sanguine anticipation of the committee of management, who are to be congratulated freely on their success, in being able at the first attempt to hand over to the treasurer of the Leeds Infirmary such a large amount. The movement was also commendable, in that it caused numbers to go to the service at the church who scarcely, if ever, are to be found within the walls of a place of worship, and one would fain hope that some few, if but two or three, in that large congregation may be induced to become more frequent in their attendance at Sunday worship.

At the same time that the funds of the Infirmary were being augmented, and Oulton church filled to overflowing, the public-houses on the route of the procession were thronged with visitors, and much money was undoubtedly spent in drinkables that would have been more worthily devoted to the great object of the afternoon's proceedings.

The bridge building in Church Street progresses most favourably, and as the hardest part of the work is now over, we may anticipate the new wide street being speedily in process of construction. The Co-operative store at the corner will to all appearances be ready for opening in a few days, and will be one more move towards street improvement in Rothwell.

The White Swan Inn (or Railway Hotel that is to be) is also progressing quickly, and when completed will be perhaps the largest and best arranged in Rothwell. If only those cottages were out of the way, what a fine street would be opened out. The Hare and Hounds should now show some enterprise, standing as its does so prominently at the head of Church Street; come, Mr. Ellis, let us have some emulation in this business, or else what with the Railway Hotel, and Gilbeys on one side and the Temperance Society on the other, your splendid position will fail you. Let us have a more imposing structure, something worthy of the commanding site you now hold, or your present good fortune will rapidly decline.

It is stated (but whether the authority is is reliable or not is another matter) that the Oulton football team is drawn against the noted Sheffield Wednesday in the first round for the Sheffield Challenge Cup. Should this report turn out to be correct, it will be interesting to note the result of the encounter, and a fair estimate of the actual strength of the local team may be arrived at. May one venture a prophecy? very well then, Sheffield six goals, Oulton one, and they may consider themselves lucky if they get even one solitary piece of comfort.

Collectors of rates and rate authorities may learn something from a paragraph that appeared a few days ago in regard to a neighbouring Local Board. Over £4 600 was to be collected, and of this the officer had only received some £1 500, leaving more than £3,000 still due, and this within a fortnight of the end of the year, September 29th It appears that Mr. Collector has very rigid notions about the duties of himself and the ratepayers, and holds that having delivered the demand notes, all he has to do is to sit in his office and receive payment of the same. If he does not get the sums in at a time he himself fixes, he forthwith issues no fewer than 700 summonses. Now there is no doubt the collector has the law on his side, and when once a person has the official demand note presented, the ratepayers should as early as possible pay the same; there may probably be no clause requiring the collector to call for the money, yet it is certainly a most unpleasant mode of carrying out the law. At the same time, let us appreciate the far preferable and agreeable practice of Collectors of this neighbourhood, who do not object to call again (and again in some cases) so as to suit ratepayers.

QUID NUNC.

TRADE IN GRAVES.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

A very grave account in your last issue is bordering on the unique in the annals of trade; the sole traders in graves in Rothwell I presume, are the church authorities, the sexton I take to be the most immediate trader in that unenviable calling, yet we are informed by a Mr. J. Gibson (who surely is not a relation of mine) that a Mrs. Hannah Rawson sets herself up in this ghastly business; she claims the ownership of a grave in Rothwell churchyard, and is most anxious to sell the last resting place of her brother for a mere trifle, the deceased gentleman not being an item in the bargain is left out in the cold: affectionate Hannah, Christmas eve is coming, your brother paid £12 for his house and would you sell it for £2? I am happy to say that you won't, for my worthy acquaintance, Mr. T. Stephenson, is your dead brother's doughty champion, he has promised that until the crack of doom he will guard the stone that presses the turf over the unconscious occupant of the grave intended to be sold. Mr. Stephenson evidently intends to be the last of all living men.

I am,
Yours truly,
C. GIBSON.

THE NEW DRAINAGE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you allow me space in your valuable paper to ask if nothing can be done to prevent the bad and poisonous gases which are thrown up in our roads and lanes by the open grates from our drainage. I am afraid that the second evil is worse than the old one. Now we have the gases of a long low lying district rising in all their full force and deadly nature to the higher levels, and we breathe them into our bodies as we pass along and over them unawares, spreading sickness and death into our homes and amongst our children who play around them in their joyous glee, too young to understand their danger. Is there no cure? I think there is, and there will have to be one found sooner or later, and why lock the stable door when the horse is stolen. I am not opposed to the new drainage, for I thoroughly go in for all improvements which are good for any community of people, and I think the object was in the right direction, but it is not yet perfect. Still I am somewhat surprised that the open grates have been adopted at all, when they have been denounced by all who have made drainage their study, as throwing up the most deadly gases.

As parents, can we spare any of our dear little ones who make our homes so happy and cheerful by their joyful mirth; can they in their turn spare a dear mother or father? Then why delay any longer with this foul thing but try to find out a remedy or something better. I would adopt the following; have the gases conducted underground with 6 inch drain pipes and up the house sides by fall piping above our homesteads; then the gases would get away from us and our homes, and I think we should be out of danger. My reason for writing to you was that on last Sunday evening, I was coming home with two of my young children, and when near to Mr. Dobson's gate in Spibey Lane, the stench was something fearful, and many besides myself have found out what impure air they are compelled to breathe from these grates. Thanking you for finding room for the above,

I am,
Yours truly,
J.M.

COLLEY WELL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I should like to call the attention of the people of this town to the stoppage of the road leading down to Colly Well. I should like also to ask who has given the Flower Show Committee power to stop this road which has been open for generations.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly,
A RATEPAYER.

THE CHURCH ARMY.

15, Sheffield Terrace,
Kensington, W.,
September 11th, 1882.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

The need of some organisation has long been felt, to develop within the lines of the Church of England the work that has been regarded as the chief feature of the "Salvation Army." After careful consideration in the different parishes, a movement of this character has already been set on foot at Bristol, Oxford, Tonbridge, Richmond, and elsewhere. The services, which are usually preceded by processions and short open-air meetings, are of a bright and lively character, consisting of stirring hymns, many of them set to secular tunes, personal testimonies, and brief appeals to the irreligious to turn from the paths of sin to holiness. The tokens of Divine favour which have attended this new branch of church work, have greatly encouraged those interested in it to do all they can for its extension. The Church Parochial Mission Society (21, John Street, Adelphi, W.C.), who already have far more demands upon them than they can meet, hope, in the course of a short time, to be able to provide lay church communicants of the working classes. These will be persons of some experience, and will work under those clergymen who may desire to reach the working classes by such methods. Enclosed I send you a copy of "Church Army Songs," which is just published, the same words and music have also been issued under the title of "Church Militant Hymns," to suit the needs of some. Many thanks are due to the leaders of the "Salvation Army" and others, for their courtesy in permitting the use of many of the new pieces. Trusting that for the information of clergymen and others who may wish to extend this class of Mission work, you will kindly make it known through the medium of your Journal.

I remain,
Faithfully yours,
(Rev.) W. CARLILE,
Of the Church Parochial Mission Society

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of longstanding, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Seigel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 323, Oxford Street, London.

"Rough on Rats."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,
Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Nervous Depression, Irritability, Loss of Appetite, Heartburn, Lowness of Spirits, Giddiness, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe. As a General Family Aperient Medicine they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system. Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having Dr. Scott's Bilious and Liver Pills, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.
Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints; let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We have much pleasure in announcing that next week we shall publish the third paper on "Music"

THE CLOSE OF THE HOLIDAYS.

With the gathering in of the last load and the setting of the harvest moon, a period of the year is closed that is of interest not only to the farmer, but to everyone among us with money in his pocket and a little time to call his own. For the holiday-season is now well nigh over, and busy toilers who have indulged in the unwonted luxury of rest are returning to their counters and their counting-houses, to their desks and their benches, stimulated to renewed exertion by the relaxation they have had. It would be surprising were it not that in these days we have so many causes for surprise that we have almost ceased to feel astonishment—to mark the growth of the popular love for holidays during the past few years. Our forefathers were content with an occasional day; on days sacred to certain saints they gave themselves to revelry; and even when the word holy-day had been corrupted into holiday, and much of the true spirit of the old-time feast had departed, the English on divers days of the year proved once again the fallacy of the oft-quoted remark of Froissart, that we, as a nation, take our pleasure sadly. But these cessations from work were but for a day or for two days at most; and people never dreamt that they needed to rest for a week, or a fortnight, or mayhap a month. The increasing pressure of daily life did much to create the new want; but this in itself would not have been sufficient had not improved methods of communication come to our aid, and permitted the possibility of cheap excursions by quick trains. Half-a-century since, the man who went to the seaside for a fortnight was somewhat of a rara avis, and was seldom one of the purely commercial classes; whilst tens of thousands of persons born in the Midlands lived long lives and went down to their graves without having once seen the ocean—that greatest of England's glories and the pride of all her sons. Now all is altered; facilities are afforded by employers of labour, and are seconded by the railway companies, for enabling all but the very poorest to cease work for a few days in the autumn of each year; and the benefit that is derived from this must have a distinct effect upon the physical, and even upon the moral condition of our population. Doubtless there are drawbacks to all this, but that is only saying that which can be observed of all things human. And yet the head of a household must sometimes feel that holiday-time is a serious foe to his savings, and a dangerous enemy to his domestic peace. A great amount of money trickles through the fingers during the fortnight's absence from business; home comforts will be missed by the more delicate members of the family party; and unpropitious weather will upset arrangements for long-anticipated pleasure trips. He is held responsible for all, though actually he is accountable for none of these things; and, when matters go wrong, he is apt to long for the time of returning. While in this mood he may be tempted to peruse a newspaper as a source of relief from his miseries; but, as he does so, these are rather added to than substracted from by the first item that attracts his attention is a long and lively correspondence on "The Burglarly Season." His thoughts fly back to the house he left behind him; he cannot be quite certain whether every door was properly barred, every window securely fastened; he tortures himself with all kinds of dismal imaginings as to the ease with which the scullery can be entered after the garden wall has been scaled. But a few more hours in the open, a good appetite induced by the strengthening breeze, a sound sleep provoked by a long walk—all these combine to put him in a more comfortable frame of mind. And, although as he nears his home, when the full time of the trip has expired, he trembles a little as he applies the key to the lock, and wonders whether it has been tampered with during his absence; he is speedily reassured, nothing has been disturbed, nothing has entered the house except dust, and, as he sits with his wife and family once more around the old fireside he feels that all his worries have been as nothing compared with the satisfaction of that moment. The bright side of the holiday is the one that best bears looking at; it may not have been all sunshine, but the clouds have left no permanent darkness; health has been restored and happiness increased, and the close of the holiday season is the opening of another period of work—work that will be performed all the better and all the more briskly because of the period of rest that has preceded it.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

On Monday evening, the usual Board meeting was held, present, Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman) J. Holmes, J. Batty, J. Oliver, S. Bramley, and the clerk, collector and inspector.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and confirmed.

The compensation awarded to Mr. Bumby and Mr. King for drainage damages, was ordered to be paid.

ROTHWELL SEWAGE.—The clerk intimated that the amount of £4,750 had been received from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, being borrowed from them for Rothwell Sewage Works.

Mr. Parkinson had written stating, in regard to the complaint of Mr. Lawton, that certain private properties had been supplied with water by the Board, that nothing had been done but what was authorized at the enquiry held by J. T. Harrison, Esq., as shewn by plans, sections, and estimate for the Waterworks.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Farrer had sent cheque for £16 5s. for Royds Green Roads, being the last payment on this account; the Board is requested to clear away the grass on the sides of the roads and to otherwise put the road into proper form.

The Highway Committee arranged to go over the roads for inspection.

The secretary of the Leeds Industrial Co-operative Society writes asking whether the Board proposes to do the flagging and kerbing near their store in Rothwell, or they (the Society) have to do it. After some discussion, it was resolved that the Society have permission to kerb and flag opposite their store in Commercial Street and Church Street.

The Inspector stated in reply to a question, that about 337 yards of kerbing would be required in different parts of Commercial Street and Commercial Street, and it was finally agreed that the necessary quantity of 10 x 7 kerbing be got; and that tenders be asked of several quarry owners in the neighbourhood, to be delivered as directed at Victoria Pit, within the next six months.

A complaint was made about the way in which the contractor has left some connections at the bottom of Commercial Street.

Mr. John Holmes had sent a reply as regards his drainage, and certain nuisances reported in connection with it, and he strongly complained of the great expense to which he was being put by the various requirements of the Board. The clerk was instructed to further urge the necessity of his property being connected with the new mains.

Mr. Ransley explained certain plans for a building to be erected at his farm, but the matter was adjourned till he complies with the usual formalities in depositing block plan and tracings.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—A letter was read from the secretary of the Gulcher Electric Light Co., intimating the intention of that company to apply to the Board of Trade for a provisional order to supply the electric light for private or public use in the Rothwell Local Board's district.

The clerk suggested that a committee should go into the subject, with a view to securing the power of granting licences for the supply of the electric light themselves.

A committee was accordingly formed consisting of Messrs. W. Hargreaves, J. Turner, S. Bramley and J. Batty.

GAS.—The Leeds Corporation formally agreed to supply gas and light and extinguish the street lamps at Stourton for 35s. a lamp, during the season.

Mr. Holmes moved that the Corporation be requested to extend their mains beyond the Board School. Seconded by the chairman and carried.

Mr. Holmes was also anxious to have two or three more lamps in Stourton, but as they were thought to be on private property, the question was adjourned for further enquiry as to the law on the subject.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having received and paid into the Bank on

LOETHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night at Robin Hood School; the members present were Mr. Oliver, (chairman) Messrs. J. Armitage and Wm. Keighley, with Mr. Lee, the clerk.

The minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed and signed.

The amounts received during the month are, school fees, Robin Hood School, £6 2s. 4d., and Carlton £2 3s. 9d., which are small owing to the holidays. Cheques were signed as follows: for teachers' and officers' salaries and cleaning £54 7s. 10d.; McCorquodale & Co., desks, £27 15s., and £3 16s. for coals. Mr. Moorhouse asked the Board to purchase some suitable books by standard authors for the pupil teachers to read, and which would be a source of instruction to them. The Board granted the request and selected works to cost about £4, which is the amount of grant earned by the pupil teachers, and Mr. Moorhouse was desired to get them.

John Naylor was appointed monitor at Carlton School for three months. Miss Ledger, assistant mistress at Robin Hood School, applied for an advance of salary, but as there was not a full Board, the matter was left over until next meeting. Miss Ledger has scarcely been two years with the Board, but has had two examinations, for both of which she received most satisfactory reports, and has also obtained her certificate. There was no other business of importance.

AURORA BICYCLE CLUB.

Last night, the above club held its first tea and social in the Mechanics' Institute, Rothwell when about 40 members and their friends sat down to a most excellent and varied knife and fork tea, which was provided by Mrs. Abbishaw, of Low Shops.

After tea the chairman called upon Mr. Hedley Lunn, the secretary, to read the report, from which we learn that the first meeting of the club was held at the Bowling Green Hotel, Rothwell, in the month of June, 1881. Last year there ware only 5 members, now there are upwards of 20, 15 of whom wear the silver monogram. At the North of England Bicycle Meet held at Harrogate on August 7th, the club was represented by 11 members in the procession, as against 1 the previous year. Financially the club is in a good position, having a balance on the right side. During the year there have been two rather serious accidents, but the members to which they happened are still connected with the club, and enthusiastic cyclists as ever.

The report having been adopted the president (Mr. Ledgard) proceeded to give some excellent advice to the members, referring to the two accidents, and warning those who are in the habit of fast road riding of the danger which they run from riding fast on a macadam road.

Mr. Tennant then spoke and during an interesting speech said that he had not much actual experience of bicycling, but thought from what he had seen that it ought to be encouraged, and he was glad to see the progress which the club had made during the past year; he hoped they would still continue to prosper.

Mr J. Turner, junr., followed, and in a jocular strain referred to the dangers of bicycling. He thought the tricycle the safest machine, but after a trial of bicycling, he gave the latter machine the palm for comfort. Mr. Turner spoke of the splendid roads in France, and the facility which was now afforded for cheap touring, thanks to the Bicycle Touring Club, who had extended their field of labour across the channel. He was glad to see the club in such a flourishing condition, and wished it every success.

The captain (Mr. Middlemiss) next spoke, and, of course, defended the sport, making light of falls, and instancing one member of the club who rode two seasons without a fall of any kind. He expressed a hope of seeing some of the fair sex in the neighbourhood mounted upon a three-wheeler, either single or sociable, and thought if a trial of the latter was made a repetition of the "dose" would be desired.

Then followed speeches by Messrs. W. Hargreaves, J. R. Seanor, J. Waterhouse, F. Seanor, and C. Ward. The latter gentleman expressed his delight with tricycling and said that he found it a most easy method of travelling, he is enabled by it to get his business done more quickly. He was much pleased with what he had seen of the club, and, being a member of it, heartily wished it every success.

Votes of thanks were then passed to all who had in any way benefitted the club, after which the remainder of the evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner, fancy and trick riding, on both bicycles and tricycles, being shown by the members, while songs, bicycular readings, and dancing, pleasantly passed the time until midnight, at which hour the party broke up.

Curiosities and interesting apparatus were shown by Messrs. Hargreaves, Wright, and others.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

A special service was held in the Wesleyan Chapel, Rothwell, on Sunday evening, on behalf of the Rothwell Band of Hope. There was a good congregation, and the children sang several of their hymns under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Idle. The Rev. G. W. Russel preached a suitable sermon on the ministry of angels over children, and the punishment incurred by those who "offend one of these little ones." A collection was taken for the funds at the close of the service.

LEEDS BOARD OF GUARDIANS.—At the weekly meeting of the above Board, we are pleased to observe that Messrs. J. & J. Charlesworth have secured the order for coals and slack, and that Mr. J. Oliver, of Rothwell Haigh, has the providing of potatoes during the next three months.

THE NEW VICAR.—In connection with the Harvest Thanksgiving services at Rothwell church on Sunday, the Rev. F. Fawkes, vicar-elect, is advertised to preach in the evening.

GREAT TRADES PROCESSION AT WAKEFIELD

In connection with the inauguration of the Wakefield Tradesmen's Benevolent Institution, on Tuesday there was an unusually good and complete procession of trades, which we report as a not uninteresting item of news. Being a half-holiday by order of the Mayor, the streets everywhere wore an appearance of gladness and rejoicing, by displays of bunting from many of the houses and shops. The Institution is to provide for the latter days of poor or sick respectable tradesmen who have been residents in Wakefield for not less than five years, or for widows of such persons.

The great feature of the day's proceedings was the procession, which was marshalled by the Chief Constable, Mr. C. T. Clarkson, starting from the bottom of Westgate, and proceeding to the Town Hall.

During the time the procession was passing along, the streets were crowded with spectators, who viewed the imposing spectacle from every point of vantage.

The greatest admiration was expressed at the length of the procession, and the variety of industries represented. It was several times remarked in our hearing that never before in the history of Wakefield had such a sight been witnessed.

The cavalcade was accompanied by four bands placed at convenient distances from each other, viz., Wakefield Military Band, Ossett United, Rothwell Temperance and Whitwood Bands. A start was made from the rendezvous shortly before two o'clock, the Military Band leading the way, followed by members of the Tradesmen's Association and the members of the Benevolent Institution Committee; next came the members of the Wakefield Old District of the Ancient Order of Foresters, headed by their banner. The Foresters excited considerable attention through having among them a car laden with emblems of the Foresters' craft.

Several carriages followed, containing gentlemen of the town, including the Mayor, with his chain of office; the Borough member, Mr. R B. Mackie; the town Clerk, Mr. H. Morgan; and members of the Corporation.

The Royal Antedeluvian Order of Buffaloes came next, and immediately behind them came the members and the exhibits of the Paxton Society, which created a very favourable impression.

Then succeeded a long string of every class of business, including a hairdresser who had on a large dray between 30 and 40 boys and girls dressed in wigs and beards, representing different characters, with two young men attired as niggers: a bill-poster, evidently determined to demonstrate the value of his calling, had present an improvised hoarding and men at work thereon. Mr. Metcalf, rag and mungo merchant, was represented by a cart load of his own class of material, in charge of several women professedly to sort the same.

Representing the Butchers' Association, in suitable waggons were two pens of fat beasts, two pens of sheep, and two pens of pigs, tended by between twenty and thirty men and lads neatly attired in trade costume. They were followed by about a score traps conveying the master butchers of the town and district. An immense pork-pie was to be seen in charge of Mr. A. Gosney, confectioner, Northgate, so famous for his succulent delicacies.

Then followed machinery of all kinds, and several drays of beer-barrels and temperance beverages. Traeds-people were represented in the procession, with specimens of their respective merchandise, including some forty different descriptions. A capital symbol of the corn-grinding process was supplied in a windmill of considerable size prepared for the occasion, and in operation. The "staff of life" was embodied in a monster loaf containing a bag of flour, and in a kindred line of business, Mr. J. F. Whitley, of Bread Street, displayed an elaborate and beautiful bride's cake weighing 85 lbs., and a quantity of his celebrated speciality—Wakefield gingerbread.

Messrs. R. Hudson and Co., colliery proprietors, Stanley, contributed a block of coal 2½ tons in weight from their Ferry Pit, accompanied by two workmen; and immediately following was a cart full of alum, from the works of Messrs. J. H. Cookson & Co., of Outwood.

The president of the Tradesmen's Association, Mr. J. Whiteley, Westgate, had a dray-full of the merchandise in which he deals, a principal feature of which was a variety of fireworks, the whole being guarded by four volunteers in uniform.

The Operative Joiners made a capital show with a bench and men at work and several articles in different stages of construction.

A procession showing what could be done in Wakefield would be incomplete had not the Yorkshire Football Challenge Cup been exhibited, and this was carried by the present holders of it, the Thornes Football Club, who, wearing their colours, occupied a waggonette, and were everywhere favourably received.

The Borough Fire Brigade, headed by Captain Thresh, were also present; and the Sanitary department of the Corporation was fully represented by Mr. J. Savile and his men, who drove their water-barrels, large sweeping brush, etc.

Much amusement was caused by 'Francis,' the well-known out porter at Westgate Station, who, drawn in a handcart by two of his fellows, carried a couple of dummy parcels, one in front and another at his back, labelled "outporter." In order that all branches of 'trade' might be represented, a worthy old lady who deals in "hot pies," was present with a perambulator, on which were placed the cans she uses in her business.

The procession was about a mile and a half in length, and general astonishment has been expressed that so large and imposing a cavalcade could be arranged for in Wakefield, the reality having far exceeded the anticipations formed.

A meeting was afterwards held, under the presidency of the Mayor, when a number of excellent speeches bearing on the subject of the Institution were given.

CO-OPERATIVE STORE.—We understand that the new stores here will be opened in the course of a fortnight or three weeks.

THANKGIVINGS for the success of our arms in Egypt and the speedy termination of the war, in accordance with the wish of the Archbishops, were rendered to Almighty God in most of the churches of this neighbourhood last Sunday morning. In many of the chapels special mention was also made of the fact during the opening prayer.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There is a moderate attendance at our market this morning. The wheat trade remains inactive at a reduction on last week's rate of 1s per qr. Maize and beans easier. Peas steady. Flour unchanged.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2, 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The fat beasts penned to-day numbered 280 more than last week. They included 100 Canadian cattle, the remainder being principally from Lincolnshire and Ireland. There were about 100 more sheep and lambs than last week, and for mutton and lamb we cannot quote any alteration in the prices obtained. We had a larger supply of milch cows and lean beasts. For milch cows there was a better demand, and rates ruled in favour of sellers. There was a larger show of pigs than last week.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	2300	last week,	2020
,, sheep	,,	4300,	,,	4200
,, pigs	,,	350,	,,	320
,, milch cows &c	,,	116,	,,	83

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 7½d to 8¾d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £16 each.
Milch cows, £14 to £28 each.
Fat calves, 8½d to 9d per lb.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Lambs, 10½d to 11d per lb
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
,, store, 40s to 60s.
,, fat, 7/- to 8/2 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.40. p.m.—There is a little better tone in the wheat trade this morning, and last Friday's prices are maintained. Maltsters are only disposed to buy English barley at the low prices current. Foreign is neglected. Beans, oats and maize lower. Weather to-day is much better, colder and rather dull.

THE ALLEGED MURDER AT HUNSLET.

The adjourned inquest on the body of James Richardson, (24) glass-blower, of Taylor Place, Hunslet Carr, was held yesterday evening at the Wellington Inn, Hunslet. It will be remembered that a woman named Mary Fitzpatrick was recently committed for trial for the wilful murder of Richardson. The deceased was last seen alive on the night of Tuesday, August 15th, when he was in the company of the accused. On the following Saturday his body was found in the Old Mill Dam, Hunslet, and it was subsequently ascertained that his watch and guard had been pawned by Fitzpatrick. The jury returned a verdict of "Wilful murder against some person or persons unknown"

NORMANTON COAL TRADE.—On Saturday the topmen employed by Messrs. Henry Briggs, Sons, and Co. Limited, resumed full time, after working short weeks since last winter.

PRICE OF COAL.—At a large meeting of the coalowners of the West Yorkshire district, held on Tuesday in Leeds, it was unanimously resolved to make the usual winter advance in the price of house coal of 1s. per ton, thereby returning to the prices ruling previous to April last for that description of coal. It was also decided to advance engine coal 6d. per ton.

CRICKET NOTE.

We learn that Mr. Frank S. Lockwood, who it will be remembered was for some time captain of the Woodlesford and Oulton cricket teams, has been selected to play with the Canadian Eleven in the International match against the United States, at Philadelphia this year. Mr. Lockwood went out to Canada in the spring of the present year, and we understand that his performances in the weekly fixtures at Brampton, Toronto and other Canadian towns attracted the notice of the Dominion Association and led to his being selected for this post of honor.

CRICKET.

Last Saturday, the Rothwell Club concluded its fixtures for the season, the first eleven playing Oulton at Oulton, while the second were engaged with Glass Houghton at home. After the magnificent performances of both teams during the summer, it is cheering to see them finish the games as they did on Saturday, the first winning by 1 run, when the most sanguine expected a defeat. To bring about this result Lunn and Ellis were top scorers with 14 and 12 respectively, while G. Gibson contributed 7 not out, towards a total of 43. For Oulton T. West was the only one who reached double figures making 24, when by a sharp piece of fielding on the part of A. Batty, he was run out. In the bowling department Lunn proved the best, taking 4 wickets 15 runs. For the second eleven Chadwick and Horner bowled splendid, the former taking 2 wickets for 6 runs, while the latters average is, 3 overs, 3 runs, 3 wickets, time, however, being called before the game could be finished, it stood Rothwell 57, Glass Houghton 31 for 8 wickets.

FOOTBALL.

NOTICE.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

THE HALLAMSHIRE (LATE SHEFFIELD) NEW ASSOCIATION CUP TIES—The Rothwell Football Club having entered for the above cup, have been drawn to play the first round against Parkwood Springs Football Club, on October 28th, and we hear that it is very probable that it will be played at Rothwell

MESSRS. JOHN BRINSMEAD & SONS, of London, have been appointed Pianoforte Manufacturers to the King of Portugal, and Mr. John Brinsmead has been elected an Honorary Member of the Musical Academy of Santa Cecilia, at Rome.—Morning Post.

DEATH.

MITH.—September 27th, Joseph Webster Smith, of Manor House, Rothwell, aged 26 years. [Friends will kindly accept this intimation.]

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our correspondents. ED.

CRICKET.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you permit me on behalf of our committee to contradict the result of a match which was played on our ground at Oulton against the Rothwell Cricket Club, on Saturday last the 23rd inst., and which was announced in the Yorkshire Post on Monday last.

I may say that a more disgraceful termination of a match than the one above named could scarcely transpire.

The Rothwell team scored 43 in their innings, our team had scored 42, when the last man appeared at the wickets; a hit was made by T West, (who I may add was batting very well, having up to that time made 24 runs) the run was attempted, and T West given run out by the Rothwell umpire, he, the said player, being behind the wicket, and looking back when the bails were disturbed.

The Rothwell team simply rushed off the ground amidst the hooting of the spectators, and disgust of those who had witnessed up to that time a very close game.

I must apologise for the length of my note, but for the sake of honour, I trust you will insert it in your issue of Friday next.

Yours truly,
B. W. HIGGINS.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of longstanding, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. LAMPLOUGH, 113 Holborn, London.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY FOR LIVER COMPLAINTS.
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS & LIVER PILLS,
Prepared without mercury, are invaluable to all who suffer from BILIOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, INDIGESTION, WIND, SPASMS, NERVOUS DEPRESSION, IRRITABILITY, LOSS OF APPETITE, HEARTBURN, LOWNESS OF SPIRITS, GIDDINESS, and all those other symptoms which none but a sufferer can describe.
AS A GENERAL FAMILY APERIENT MEDICINE they have no equal, being mild in their operation, and grateful to the stomach. They give a healthy tone and vigour to the different secretions, causing the necessary organs of the Stomach and Liver to resume their activity, thus restoring the appetite, promoting digestion, and strengthening the whole system.
Some unprincipled vendors, in order to make a larger profit, will try to persuade you to buy medicine prepared by themselves; do not do so, but insist on having DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS AND LIVER PILLS, wrapped in a square green package. These genuine Pills are prepared by W. LAMBERT, 173, Seymour Place, London, W., and sold in Boxes, at 13½d. and 2s. 9d., by all Chemists, or post free for 14 or 34 stamps. [271

THE REVENUE RETURNS.

The sarcasms which are sometimes hurled at the administration of the various Government departments for dilatoriness are by no means applicable to the Treasury in the matter of publishing the Revenue Returns. Punctually to the day and even to the hour, the Quarterly Accounts of the national receipts are issued to the public; and when it is reflected that in one branch of the tabular statement—the Customs—the returns have to come from every custom-house office in the kingdom, it may well seem surprising that the completed table can be issued in the evening of the closing day of the quarter. Yet so it is; and those sent forth last Saturday night are well worthy of a few minutes' consideration of those who have been called upon to contribute to the specified amounts.

It is less than a month since the National Temperance League held its Jubilee Celebration at the Crystal Palace after fifty years of hard work amongst various sections of the population. The temperance movement may be said to have been formally inaugurated about the time of the first Reform Bill, when, in the opinion of far-seeing people, social ameliorations should go hand-in-hand with political progress. For generations the country seemed to have stood still; the representation of the people in Parliament was a delusion, members being still returned for deserted villages and green mounds where a living soul had not resided since the time of the Tudors, while Manchester, Birmingham, and Leeds were totally without representation. The great war with France had been brought to an end half a generation before, and the people, freed from foreign distractions, turned their attention to matters which pressed heavily upon the nation. The representation of the people in Parliament having been placed upon a common-sense basis, so far as the proportion of numbers was concerned, the social reformer began his work, for which there was ample room. To be "as drunk as a lord" was considered no discredit whatever, and the example of drinking to excess, which was set by many of the higher classes, was followed by those in less exalted positions. After so many years of effort the temperance reformer thinks that he begins to see some substantial result of his arduous labours. He has been assisted from time to time by various organisations, some of them bearing strange and curious names. There were, for instance, many years ago, Rechabites, of which association very little is heard now. The United Kingdom Alliance started thirty years ago with a programme of a very sweeping character. It was nothing less than the total and immediate legislative suppression of the traffic in all intoxicating liquors. It was a bold declaration of war to make against a powerful and wealthy interest, and the Local Option measure of the Alliance has not yet received the sanction of the Legislature, More recently there have been the movements of the Blue Ribbon Army; and there are daily reports of the total abstinence pledge being taken by hundreds and even by thousands.

But how does all this affect the Revenue Returns? The answer is that the Returns are affected in a very material degree, not in the receipts from Crown lands, Post-office stamps, and miscellaneous, but in the Customs, and to a greater extent, in the Excise. If less beer and spirits are consumed, the exciseman has less to receive from the people; consequently the flow of money into the national exchequer is not so much as when the consumption of exciseable articles was at its height. The most recently-published Revenue Returns show that the yield from excise continues to fall off. The beer tax, into which Mr. Gladstone converted the malt tax two years ago, does not produce so much as its predecessor, thus showing that less malt liquor is consumed than was formerly the case. The same observation applies to spirituous drinks. Either the temperance movement is spreading widely amongst the people, or the working-classes have not so much to expend upon luxuries as they had ten years ago, when we paid for the depredations of the Alabama out of the increased yield from excise. Perhaps both causes have been in operation to account for the diminution in the exciso receipts which quarter after quarter excites so much attention. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has no longer those magnificent surpluses which he was accustomed to distribute year after year, and which were the envy of one side of the House and the admiration of the other. Three, four, and five millions at a time were given away in the remission of taxation, and at one period of his financial career, upon leaving office, his successor found six millions waiting in the Treasury for his disposal. It was a splendid inheritance such as we can scarcely expect to see repeated after such a succession of indifferent harvests and of equally indifferent trade. On the other hand, if the Treasury receipts have fallen off, as they undoubtedly have done, the social reformer has the gratification of knowing that the struggles of long years apparently on the stoniest of ground have not been in vain. His cause has had its day of hard and seemingly fruitless effort and its day of ridicule; but perseverance has not gone altogether unrewarded, and to this ample testimony is borne by the Revenue returns of the third quarter of the year.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING AT ROTHWELL PARISH CHURCH.

Amony the many innovations of the present age, there are various new forms and services in connection with the religious world, some of which meet with strong and well deserved opposition, while others commend themselves warmly to most unbiassed minds. Included in this last class, is the now general harvest thanksgiving service, which is held in nearly every church and in many chapels at this time of the year, and what can be more appropriate and beautiful than, at the close of the year's toil, when the crops and fruit are gathered in, and the heart of the husbandman is gladdened with these tokens of God's bounty and mercy, that all the people should join in a chorus of praise and thanksgiving in the temples set apart for divine worship.

In accordance with the usage of several years past, the Harvest Thanksgiving was celebrated at Rothwell Parish Church last Sunday, the fine old church being profusely decorated, and the services specially adapted for the occasion.

The morning service was suitably and efficiently conducted by the Rev. J C. Lees, the vicar also taking part of the work; the principal attraction, however, was in the evening, when the Rev. F. Fawkes, vicar of Woolley, and vicar elect of Rothwell, led the devotions.

Before referring further to the service, we must devote a few lines to the very tasteful and pleasing decorations which adorned the prominent parts of the building, and while a feeling of delicacy prevents the mention of any names in particular, we are sure that, done as a token of love to the Saviour, and thanksgiving to God, those ladies who have worked so hard will have the reward of a good conscience in their own bosoms. The members of the Vicar's family, the Sunday School teachers, and a few ladies of the congregation gladly and heartily threw themselves into the work, extending into the early hours of Saturday morning, and on till late on Saturday night.

On the communion table was placed a large dish of luscious fruits, flanked by bouquets of rare and delicate hothouse flowers, while a large cross of ears of corn looked down from the reredos, in the centre of which hung a huge cluster of black grapes, encircled with flowers. The gaseliers within the cummunion rails and in the chancel were richly garnished with dahlias, hothouse flowers, grapes, and other fruits, while ears of corn completely covered the body of the standards, at the foot of which were several plants and fruits. A beautifully trimmed arch of grain was fixed over the organ, bearing the appropriate text, "Sing, rejoice, and give thanks". The taste and effect displayed in the charming arrangement of fruits, flowers and corn, about the pulpit, reading desks and lectern, were simply perfect in their beauty. The pew heads, were adorned with garden and field produce, and added greatly to the attractiveness of the view, the gas brackets down the centre aisle being also very neatly wreathed with harvest products. At the font, however, the most lavish profusion of nature's bounties were seen, the sacred place being completely hidden by the decorative skill of some fair fingers. At the base, on a soft moss bed, lay fruit of the more hardy kinds mingled with floral specimens and potted ferns, stalks of corn tastefully adorned climbed up to the basin, which was filled with moss cushions from which grew delicate flowers of various hues, while the centre was crowded with grapes and hothouse flowers, the whole surmounted with a neatly decorated cross.

Although the time of service was not till half-past six o'clock, persons began wending their way to the church a little after five, and, as may be supposed, every available seat was occupied before that time, many people being unable to secure sitting room.

Previous to the commencement of the service, Mr. Henry Sheldon, who presided at the organ throughout, played several voluntaries. Shortly after six o'clock, the Rev. F. Fawkes, accompanied by Mr. Calverley, the patron of the living, entered by the chancel door, and at the appointed time, the gladsome harvest hymn, "We plough the fields, and scatter," was announced, and sung by the large congregation with evident pleasure. The choir was in good voice, and were ably led by Mr. Wilson, their master. Ebdon's Magnificat and Nunc Dimitis, were given with considerable effect and power. The anthem selected was Sir John Goss's "Praise the Lord," and although difficult and touchy in some parts by reason of the many accidentals introduced, was most creditably rendered. The unison stanza for basses and tenors was simply grand, the volume of men's voices making a capital impression. The last chorus went on like an avalanche, gaining fresh impetus as it proceeds, and at the conclusion one was strongly tempted to give an encore plaudit. The other hymns selected were Nos. 381 and 365.

In commencing the service, the new minister was evidently labouring under strong emotions; a large church filled with a crowded congregation, every eye and ear critically fixed on him as the future pastor; all this and other peculiar circumstances were sufficient to account for the tremor exhibited in the early part of the proceedings. Before sermon time, Mr. Fawkes had, however, regained his strength, and in addressing the people spoke in steady, clear accent, and with a pleasing voice which all could comfortably hear. The text selected was part of the 22nd verse of the 3rd chapter of Lamentations "His compassions fail not." In addressing his future parishioners, the preacher stated that he had been requested by several of them to take part in the harvest thanksgiving service, and he gladly joined them in showing their gratitude and thanks to the Lord of the harvest for his goodness. As they looked up from nature to nature's God, it had occurred to him that his present text was a suitable subject for meditation in relation to this harvest festival. He rejoiced to know that the anxiety and hard work of the farmer had been rewarded this year by more abundant crops than had been gathered for some years, and it was their duty to join in the public acknowledgement of God's bounty. It was also well that in token of their gratitude they should deck their beautiful church with flowers and fruit. Last Sunday they had rendered public thanksgiving to God for giving our arms so signal a victory in Egypt. Whether for a bountiful harvest, for victory in battle, or for staying disease and pestilence in our midst, it was right to render public thanksgiving to God.

New mercies each returning day,
Hover around us while we pray;
New perils past, new sins forgiven,
New thoughts of God, new hopes of heaven.

At the same time, he urged the duty of private and social remembrance of God's goodness, and as individuals, at all times and in all places, to render thanks and prayers to God for his mercy and help. However, engaged, nothing can forbid or prevent our wedging in a thought of God or a prayer for his help, or a sentiment of thanksgiving; these would not disturb our proceedings in any way at any time. There was a danger lest the individual offering of praise should be lost in the general thanksgiving. In concluding an exhortation that their hearts should overflow with thanksgiving, he urged that the claims of the Leeds Infirmary and the Scarborough Convalescent Hospital should be remembered, and prayed that as they were met to-day to join in a harvest thanksgiving, so by God's grace, they might gradually ripen for the angels' harvest home, and be all gathered in to the heavenly garner.

A collection was made for the above institutions, which with the morning's amount, made £12 16s. 10d., being a little more than last year.

The old Hundredth was then sung and the benediction pronounced.

The "Hallelujah Chorus" and other selections from the oratorios were played on the organ.

Many persons remained behind, to inspect the decorations and it was not till nearly nine o'clock that the church could be closed.

MUSIC.

AN OCCASIONAL PAPER.

No. 3.

The last paper on this subject treated, to some extent, on the general advantages offered by organisations for systematic training in vocal music. Of course the existence and continued success of choral societies, &c., depend entirely on the persevering efforts of those who are chiefly interested in the objects aimed at by such societies; those who possess some degree of vocal ability, and sufficient knowledge and love of music to seek to enlarge their experience of its influence.

Where a Choral Society already exists, no efforts should be spared to keep alive and stimulate the public interest in its prosperity and success. And in connection therewith there should always be formed, a class for instruction in the elements of music. Of all branches of the art, vocal music is perhaps the most easily attainable, and it is generally held to be most effective in attracting and keeping the attention of an audience.

Of course it falls to the lot of but few to possess the priceless gift of an exceptionally good voice, but again, there are still fewer who do not possess a voice which with patient cultivation, would enable its possession to derive and communicate enjoyment from its use in part singing, &c. The means for cultivating the voice are now placed within easy reach of everybody, and we may reasonably hope that the time is not far distant when it will be considered nearly as much a reproach, not to be able to take an intelligent part in harmonised singing, as it is now not to be able to read or write.

This may appear to be putting the case rather strongly, but it is only looking forward to a restoration of the position held by the art in olden times, before the days of the Puritans. It would appear that even in the 16th and 17th centuries, singing was a much more universal accomplishment that it is at present with all our boasted civilization and refinement. There are abundant allusions in the writings of Shakespeare which go to show that part-singing was understood and much practised by the "common people" in his time. This indeed may be considered to have been the "golden age" both of literature and music.

Singing is now becoming more extensively and thoroughly taught in elementary schools. Parents should encourage those of their children who evince liking or aptitude for music, to practice regularly at home. Household music could be made very interesting by the setting apart of one or more evenings a week, for the practice of simple songs with harmonised choruses' easy part songs, etc. a well-selected stock of which may be obtained for a very modest outlay indeed. By the adoption of some such system children would grow up in the knowledge and love of music, home would be rendered more attractive, and the younger members of the family circle would be less disposed to seek amusement of a more doubtful character abroad.

Boys exhibiting special aptitude for music should be drafted into the village choir, where they will be offered facilities for training and developing both voice and ear. Now that the Royal College of Music is assuming definite shape and about to be established, the village choir or choral society may be the first stepping-stone to the very highest positions in the musical world. One of the special purposes desired to be served by the promoters of the Royal College of Music is "That those to whom nature has bountifully given a good ear for music, or a good voice, but to whom she has been niggardly in worldly fortunes, should be sought out in their obscurity, and given an opportunity of distinction by facilities for a proper course of training." The foundation of the college is to be for at least one hundred scholars, of whom fifty are to have education free, and fifty are to be maintained as well as educated. The latter are to be selected by competition throughout the United Kingdom. A system of examination is to be organised, by which, in every town and every village opportunities may be offered for participating in the College instruction. Where conspicuous ability is found in the village choir, promising pupils will be taken to London, and offered full opportunity of advancement.

As Rothwell and neighbourhood, in common with other districts, will share in the advantages offered by this praiseworthy scheme, I think that it would not be out of place here to suggest that those amongst us who are able should participate in the honor of promoting what is correctly described as a truly national object, by offering subscriptions towards the necessary funds for the foundation of the College.

POLYHYMNIA.

ACCIDENT TO AN OULTON MINER.

A somewhat serious accident occurred to a well-known resident of this neighbourhood, on Tuesday morning, at half-past nine o'clock. Major Sheldon, (64) of Vince Cottages, Oulton, was working as usual at Glass Houghton Colliery, belonging to Messrs. J. D. Thorpe and Co., when the roof fell in, fracturing his right leg and several ribs. He was removed during the day to the Leeds Infirmary, where he still lies.

A STORY OF THE CRIMEAN WAR.

During the night which followed the engagement fought at the bridge of Traktir, the commanding officer of the Russian engineers employed on this service passed on foot along the French and German lines, with all the plans which had been drawn by his subalterns, comparing them, as he proceeded, with the appearance of the positions. He trusted that the faint starlight, which sufficed for his purpose, would not be bright enough to enable the sentries to see him. When he reached the Sardinian lines, however, he was seen by the retired officer of English Dragoons, who was standing sentry in front of an outlying picket. He did not challenge, but, after laying down his rifle, he advanced slowly and stealthily with only his sword-bayonet in his hand. On coming near the small mound on which the Russian Colonel stood examining the plans, he crept on his hands and knees, then suddenly started up and ran at him, placing his bayonet on the officer's breast, and calling upon him, in such French as he was master of, to surrender. The Russian tried to draw his sword, but was prevented by the Irishman. He refused, however, to surrender, but seized his adversary round the waist, vainly trying to throw him to the ground. They were both strong and active men, and, neither of them being in the least wanting in courage, a fierce struggle ensued. The dawn was begining to break, but they were not near enough to attract the notice of the Sardinian guard, who slept in full reliance on their sentry. Many hard blows were dealt on both sides, but still the Russian kept hold of the bayonet with his left hand and did not succumb. At last the Irishman wrenched the bayonet from the Russian's grasp, and flung it away, contriving at the same time to get his adversary's head under his left arm, when he pommelled it so lustily with his right fist, that the punishment soon became too severe for the officer's further endurance. He surrendered, and gave his word of honour not to attempt to escape, while he handed his sword to his conqueror. They walked to the out-post, the Irishman talking all the time in his broken French, and laughing very heartily as he spoke of their morning's adventure, which he treated as an excellent joke. The officer in command of the outlying picket sent the Russian colonel under a strong escort to General Durando, with the Irishman to tell his own story. The plans were found to be most accurate and complete, and the service rendered in intercepting them was so much thought of, that General de la Marmora got an officer's commission for the young Irishman, and took him on his staff as an aide-de-camp. An attempt was made to treat the Russian engineer as a spy; but his captor came forward and saved his life by declaring that he had never entered the Sardinian lines, and that he had been attacked and made prisoner at a distance of more than two hundred yards from them. His evidence was accepted as conclusive, and the colonel was accordingly sent to Constantinople as a prisioner of war. He bore no ill will for his capture, which he attributed solely to the Irishman's superior knowledge of the British science of boxing; and he spoke in the highest terms of his opponent's chivalrous conduct in throwing away his sword-bayonet when he might have stabbed him to the heart with it, so helpless was he with his head in so awkward a predicament. He also praised the Irishman for relying on his parole instead of binding his arms ignominiously, and for preventing his being shot as a spy.

LITERARY NOTICE.—We have great pleasure in drawing the attention of our readers to a recently published pamphlet by Mr John Batty, F.R.H.S., on the "Scope and Charm of Antiquarian Study." To the amateur or young student it cannot be too highly commended. All the different branches of antiquarian research are brought before the reader in a compressed, but clear, graphic and comprehensive style. The observations under each heading embrace original views as to the utility of the pursuit, and show how one's leisure time may be usefully and pleasantly spent in amassing information, which, if duly recorded, might be of the greatest service to posterity. The remarks on place-names, parochial records, and village customs are well worthy of the attention of the local antiquarian. Within the boundaries of a parish there are many who possess wills, deeds, manuscript books, and other documents which, if looked over and judiciously annotated, would throw considerable light on family history, ancient customs, social changes and the like, and we feel sure that if these could be drawn from their obscurity, and placed in the hands of the author of this pamphlet, or other kindred investigators, they could not fail to be of the greatest value in the elucidation of parochial history. We cannot conclude this brief notice without urging upon those who may happen to possess documents or papers of this kind, to allow transcripts or certain extracts to be made before time or accident should render them irretrievable, such a course would be creditable to the givers, and would prove of great benefit to all who are interested in local records.

THE STRANGER IN LONDON.—That the great City will ere long be hardly recognisable by its former denizens, all the world has heard. The visitor passing up the Thames now finds his eye gratified by the many handsome edifices recently erected. As he reaches the famous Victoria Embankment, there rises over him on the right hand the new Times office, and on the left hand the new tower crowned works of MESSRS. JAMES EPPS & Co., both phases of Italian architecture. It may be said that these two buildings are types of the far-reaching business energy of the nineteenth century, for it has resulted from such means that these two establishments have brought themselves to the fore, and that the annual issue of each has come to be estimated by millions. During the last year, the number of copies of the Times issued is estimated at 16,275,000, while the number of packets of EPPS' COCOA sent off in the same period is computed at 14,740,895. The latter is a large total, when it is borne in mind that in 1830 the consumption of Cocoa throughout the whole kingdom was but 425,382 lbs., there then existing no preparation of it such as this, which by the simple addition of boiling water would yield a palatable drink. Truly time may be said to work many changes.

A German Temperance Society is about to be formed, whose chief object it is to introduce cheap coffee-taverns, after the English pattern, for the poorer classes. The first meeting in connection with the movement will take place on the 8th of October, at Frankfort-on-the-Main. On the same day the German Association for the Relief of the Poor will open its annual congress at Darmstadt.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING COURT.—Monday.

Before MR. W. H. LEATHAM, M.P., MR. R. B. MACKIE, M.P., and MR. W. T. MARRIOTT.

GARDEN THIEVES.—Matthew Hayes and George Smith, two Leeds men, were charged with having stolen on the 1st inst, two cabbages, the property of James Plowes, miner, Lofthouse, and also with having stolen a quantity of herbs, the property of William Knee, of Ouzlewell Green.—The evidence of Police-Constable MacLaren and other witnesses was to the effect that on Sunday the prisoners were in the vicinity of Lofthouse, and under the influence of beer. They took the cabbages and some flowers from Plowes' garden, and the herbs from Knee's garden. Knee saw the prisoners taking the flowers, and on speaking to them Smith threatened to stab him with a knife. The same prosecutor followed the men to Robin Hood, and subsequently Police-constables MacLaren and Slimmon took the men into custody, when they admitted the charge.—Prisoners said they were drunk at the time of the offence, and would not have done anything of the kind if they had been sober.—Smith was committed to prison for a month, and 14 days further in default of not paying 25s 11d costs; Hayes was fined 10s and 25s 11d costs, or 14 days imprisonment.

ANOTHER OF THE GANG IN CONNECTION WITH THE OULTON POACHING AFFRAY.—Thomas Povey, collier, Denaby, was charged with having, at Oulton, about twelve o'clock on the night of the 21st July, entered on land in the occupation of Messrs. Thomas and Robert William Bowers, and along with other persons, taking eight rabbits, and with assaulting Police-constable Slimmon and others.—Mr Williams appeared on behalf of the police, and stated that the prisoner was apprehended at Barnsley on the 28th ult., and was handed over to Police-sergeant Turton subsequently. He then said in reply to the charge, 'Yes, I was there; I don't intend denying it, and you must tell them not to swear so hard against me'—Police-sergeant Turton and Police-constable Slimmon, and the gamekeeper, gave the same evidence which has already appeared in our columns, and spoke to the prisoner as one of those who took part in the affray. Prisoner, who urged that he never took any part in the assault on the police, was committed to prison for a month for the assault on the police, a month for trespassing, and a month in default of paying the expenses; also to find two sureties in £5 each, and to be bound over in his own recognisances of £10 to keep the peace for six months, and in default of finding sureties to that amount six months imprisonment.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Our market to-day has been better attended than for some time past, and the demand for wheat shows an improvement at last week's rates. Maize, oats, and beans easier. Peas steady. Flour unchanged.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2, 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—We had a smaller supply of stock than last week, and a good clearance was effected of all kinds. The fat beasts included 60 Canadian cattle of very good quality, the remainder being principally Lincolnshire and Irish beasts. There was nearly 1000 less sheep than last week. There was a fair supply of fat calves and a good trade at rather higher prices. The milch cows and lean beasts were not so numerous as last week. Pig trade slow at the following prices.

		this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,		2010		2300
,,	sheep	,, 3450,	,,	4300
,,	pigs	,, 420,	,,	350
,,	milch cows &c	,, 58,	,,	116

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 7½d to 8¾d per lb.
Lean beasts, £10 to £15 each.
Milch cows, £18 to £30 each.
Fat calves, 9d to 9½d per lb.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
,, store, 40s to 60s.
,, fat, 7/- to 8/2 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.46. p.m.—There is more demand for wheat this morning, and last week's prices are readily paid. Indian sorts having recovered the undue depression of the last few weeks. There is a good inquiry for all useful English barley, but foreign does not meet with attention. Maize and oats steady. Beans in buyers' favour. Weather bright and fine.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

SURELY with the means now in use for the suppression or mitigation of the drinking evil there should be a marked change for the better, soon or late. Societies for the promotion of abstinence under one name or another are very numerous, and some of them very aggressive, but I cannot see much good in the organization for promoting temperance only alias moderation. Who is to draw the line or fix the standard? Verily every member may be a law to himself, and excess with some would be moderation to others. This is a useless measure. The "Band of Hope" seems the most promising association, influencing as it does the youthful mind when most impressible. These societies are quite common in our villages, and if managed with discretion and a reasonable degree of intelligence (qualities not always found in country leaders and organizers) may be made a source of pleasant social enjoyment going hand in hand with the specific object in view. I saw an exhibition the other day in one of our towns which gave an impulse to my temperance sympathies. A policeman was taking a respectably dressed man to the lock-up in a handcart, the man being too drunk to walk even with assistance, and this between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock at mid-day. "Oh, it was pitiful." This incident should form an excellent text for some of the glib orators on alcoholic abstinence.

BY whose mistake or mismanagement was Woodlesford Church left without a minister last Sunday evening week? The vicar was away and no one turned up to take his place for the evening service, and the congregation had to break up without the usual spiritual repast. "The beaten track" in Church of England ministrations admits of no deviation, whatever the emergency may be. The Wesleyans would have held a prayer meeting and probably turned to profit this very misadventure, but the Church has no alternative, no duly ordained preacher—ordinary or extraordinary—then no service of any sort and the congregation are sent empty away. Cannot the ecclesiastical cords be lengthened a bit to meet such a case—half-way at least—a hymn or two might have been sung, concluding with the doxology; but alas for stereotyped prejudice.

You do not hold yourself responsible, Mr. Editor, for the views and sentiments of your epistolatory correspondents, and you certainly ought to be glad that you are likewise not responsible for the composition and style of some of them. The letter signed "B. W. Higgins" in last week's Times for instance, is not a production which an Editor would much wish to be responsible for. The writer wishes on behalf of the Oulton Cricket Club committee, of which I presume he is one of the shining lights, to contradict the result of a recent match. Now a result is usually considered to be a fact, which one may deplore but cannot logically contradict. It is also difficult for an ordinary intelligence to take in and clearly understand the following explanation, "A hit was made by T. West, the run was attempted, and T West given run out by the Rothwell umpire, he the said player being behind the wickets and looking back when the bails were disturbed." A foot note explanation of this paragraph and what it was intended to convey certainly seemed necessary; B. W. H. also wishes for the "sake of honour" you will insert his letter. What honour and whose honour? Does he mean honour in the abstract or the honour he hoped to acquire by appearing in print. The honours of the game seem to have been pretty equally divided between the contending elevens, although B. W. H. does not appear to have contributed much to the scoring, and he certainly has not made a literary "hit" by his letter. He must really leave it to the Secretary, whose proper function it is to write, next time there is anything to complain about, or a "result" to "contradict." Some folks will be to the front even at the risk of looking ever so foolish whenever they get there.

IT was a capital hit of the Churchwardens at Rothwell to invite their new Vicar to conduct the harvest-thanksgiving service on Sunday night. As might be expected, everybody was wishful to hear and see the spiritual shepherd who had been placed over them, and will probably remain vicar of Rothwell as long as he lives, unless the great disestablishment question advances rapidly, and does away with the outrageous sale and gift of livings. To all appearance, however, the future pastor is likely to gain the good will of his parishioners. First impressions are a great deal thought of, although they are frequently misleading. Mr. Fawkes is physically strong and healthy; his voice is clear and pleasing, without so much of the "sing" as one sometimes finds; my impression is that he will take a more active part in public affairs than even the present esteemed vicar, and that he will enter heartily into the recreations and pursuits of the young. I can imagine him being very chatty and sociable among the working men always ready for a joke and a bit of kindly advice. Whether he will be so deeply religious in his visits to the sick bed, and so gentle and tender to the poor and needy is yet to be seen, though one can hardly expect to have a second vicar so able and so willing to open his generous hand as Mr. Heberden has been. The sermon on Sunday night was not one to be judged by, and people must wait and hear half a dozen subjects treated before they can say what sort of a preacher he is.

I SEE the Millenarians are to be at Rothwell on Sunday. There is one sign of the dawn of that happy day on their bills—there is to be no collection. All haste the day, when every church will support its own organization, out of freewill offerings thankfully rendered to God.

QUID NUNC.

CRICKET.

OULTON v. ROTHWELL.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir.

In your last issue there appeared a letter respecting the match played between the above clubs on Saturday September 23rd, which, I, as secretary of the Rothwell Cricket Club, cannot allow to go unchallenged, seeing that it contains statements which are not correct, but intended to greatly injure our club both in public, and privately.

Had this excellent and valuable missive been written by a general spectator, one not so closely interested in the game as was the author of the letter, little notice would have been taken of it, as we should have merely put it down to "the hairbrained chatter of irresponsible frivolity," but when the writer states "permit me on behalf of our committee to contradict" of course, it at once assumes an official aspect which cannot be overlooked. I am sure the Oulton Committee are to be congratulated that they have amongst their number so able a champion to defend their cause, as Mr. B. W. Higgins, for the amount of time and labour expended in concocting such statements as the letter contains must have been enormous, and a heavy strain on the mental capabilities of their author.

In the first place, why should it be necessary "to contradict the result? Surely the Oulton Cricket Club do not want to say the match was not lost by them? As the report shows, Rothwell scored 43; when the last man belonging to Oulton was given out, 42 appeared to their credit. It does not require such a large amount of arithmetical knowledge to subtract the two numbers, which necessarily proves the home team to be losers by one run.

Your correspondent states that "a more disgraceful termination of a match than the one named, could hardly transpire." In my opinion that would have been better left out, as he certainly leaves himself open to condemnation, for really he would not have us to suppose all the disgrace came from one side only? We are quite aware of the fact that we may not be so far advanced in civilization at Rothwell, as our more correct friends at Oulton, but I ask Mr. B W Higgins, or anyone else to say, whether it was not disgraceful on their part to hoot our bowler when he changed ends? We have heard of howling dervishes &c., &c., and experienced in our time awful noises, but never such a row as was then, in fact, a wild beast menagerie would be a perfect paradise in comparison to the yell which was given at the time.

For my own part I happened the same misfortune as T West, being given run out by the Oulton umpire, and whatever doubts I might have had as to the decision, did not question it, but came out, not without being subjected to the, of course playful remarks, of a certain section of not disgraceful but model spectators.

There is every credit due to Mr. West, for the able manner in which he, by sound cricket, endeavoured to gain the victory for his own side, but the statement that he was behind the wickets and looking back, is a deliberate falsehood, and if he will speak truly and fairly in the matter he will certainly contradict it. For whatever decision be given by an umpire should in every instance be final, and a real cricketer would naturally abide by it, at whatever cost.

It is quite refreshing to find that the reason Mr. Higgins sends the valuable contribution is "for the sake of honour." Honour indeed! I should fancy the Rothwell players have as much honour about them as others, and most assuredly can play a losing game better than—well, no names mentioned. However to avoid a repetition of such alas! disgraceful proceedings, it will perhaps be better for the future for us to arrange with clubs of higher standing than Oulton, the members of which may not have such fine feelings as to propriety, but play better cricket.

Yours faithfully,
A. BATTY,
Secretary.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS SHOULD NOT BE NEGLECTED.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system; and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering. The disease is often mistaken for other complaints; but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling, attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the sides or back? Is there a fulness about the right side as if the liver were enlarging? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from an horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses. If the case be one of longstanding, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered with a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonising disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipiency. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure, and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all chemists and medicine vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White, Limited, 21, Farringdon-road, London, E.C. This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system. Ask your chemist for Siegel's Curative Syrup.

The genuine Seigel's Syrup and Pills have the words "A. J. White, Limited," engraved in the Government Stamp affixed to each Bottle and Box.

[illegible]MATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take [illegible]COCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures [illegible] Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woolcock, High-street, Lincoln

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. LAMPLOUGH, 113 Holborn, London.

TOMLINSON & CO.'S BUTTER POWDER. Brings the Butter quickly, removing all unpleasant flavours of Turnips, Cake, Mangolds, Wild Garlic, Sour Grass, Leeks, Dead Leaves, &c. BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.
Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

A meeting of the Local Board was held on Monday, present—J. Charlesworth, Esq., (chairman); Messrs. W. Hargreaves, J. Hargreaves, J. Oliver, J. Batty, J. Sanderson, S. Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector, medical officer, and surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

HEALTH REPORT.—The medical officer, Dr. Glaister, presented his monthly report from which it appears:—

To the chairman and members of the Rothwell Local Board.

Gentlemen,

During the past four weeks there have been 5 births, (all male) and 14 deaths (8 male and 6 female), against 11 births and 8 deaths in the corresponding period last year. The causes of death were, 1 female, 2½ years, scarlet fever; 1 male, 5 years, scarlet fever; 1 male, 2 years, scarlet fever; 1 female, 7 months, bronchitis; 1 female, 37 years, puerperal convulsions; 1 female, 11 months, ulcerated stomatitis; 1 male, 1½ years, ulcerated stomatitis; 1 male, 9 years, typhoid fever; 1 female, 6 years, congestion of lungs; 1 male, 60 years, pneumonia; 1 male, 26 years, intestine obstruction; 1 male, 8 months, marasmus; 1 female, 55 years, phthisis; 1 male, 15 years, tubes mesenterica. At present there are 6 cases of scarlet fever in the town, and one of typhoid.

In reply to the chairman, Dr. Glaister stated that every means was being taken to prevent the spread of the epidemics mentioned. Typhoid fever is only very slightly infectious, so far as the person and their clothes are concerned. As to scarlet fever, the cases were, as far as possible, isolated, though this was often a difficult matter in cottage houses. There was very little fever now in Rothwell, but in Robin Hood and Carlton he could count over twenty cases himself.

The chairman thought the Wakefield Sanitary Authority should be written to on the subject, and their immediate attention called to the state of health in their neighbourhood. The clerk was instructed to write accordingly.

A conversation followed on the causes of scarlet fever, the Doctor strongly maintaining his previous assertion that bad drainage, etc., has nothing to do with the spread of scarlet fever, although bad smells and defective drainage might increase its virulence. The disease was always transmitted from case to case by small and subtle germs emanating from the person suffering from it. The chairman instanced a perfectly healthy, clean town, situate some miles from any infected place, and asked how the disease could have reached there. The Doctor further remarked that the germs might be carried by letter or parcel, or in the clothes of some person coming from an infected locality.

Mr. J. Hargreaves pointed out the difficulty there was in isolating cases in the small houses occupied by many working men, and felt constrained to say that he believed the disease was mostly spread by persons visiting infected houses, and carrying away with them that which produced the disease in their own persons or families,

Other members corroborated this statement, and deeply grieved over the foolhardiness of many people in this matter.

The medical officer further referred to the many complaints there were of the disagreeable smells proceeding from the new sewers, He, however, said that the smell was comparatively harmless, but along with the air proceeding from the sewers were often carried the germs of disease.

The chairman was strongly in favour of some ventilation, either by shafts on the higher levels, or by a cupola shaft at Rothwell Haigh to force good ventilation. Further discussion ensued on the subject, which was ultimately referred to the Sanitary Committee.

WATER.—Mr. Sanderson, (who came in at this moment), enquired whether the Doctor had seen the water at Royds Green. He understood he had condemned the water used by one of his patients. The Doctor replied that the water used by Smith, the gamekeeper, was certainly unfit for drinking purposes. There was no doubt they required a better supply of water at Royds Green than they now had. Mr. W. Hargreaves asked if Doctor Glaister had seen the water which was being sent on from Spenser Pit. He had taken pains to have a quantity of good water standing on the line near the Pit, which could be had by anyone for fetching, as desired by the Board. Nobody ought to be drinking bad water when they had this so near them. Everybody is at liberty to have it, if they only keep off the wagon road as directed by the man in charge. Dr. Glaister had not seen the water referred to, as it was some three weeks since he had spoken on the subject.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Holmes, chairman of the Highways Committee, not being present, Mr. W. Hargreaves reported that the Committee had inspected the Leeds and Pontefract Road, and that it was in fair repair. Mr. Jowitt had promised to attend to it specially, and make it as good as possible. The Wakefield Road was also improved when they saw it, but was as bad again now.

Mr. Turner was wishful to know something about the theory of macadamising and road-making, and what makes the stones set with each other. He believed limestone to the only thing to make the road good and firm. The chairman agreed with Mr. Turner so far, but when traffic was constantly passing, the water which would otherwise assist in causing the stone to adhere to each other, only washed away the lime. They required something else to produce a good road besides limestone. Lime was used for building purposes, but it would not do without sand to harden the mortar. If they could stop the traffic for a month, and have the road fairly rolled and watered, they would get good results. They had never had a chance, however, as when the trusts were given up, the road was in a shocking state, and had never been really good since. Mr. Turner suggested a stone breaking machine being erected at Rothwell Haigh, and the using of lime stone, and the sand which comes from the machine, for making the stone set.

The chairman further replied that, owing to the traffic, there was no time to set. If the Board wished to save money, the best thing was to put down a tramway, as has been several times suggested before. Mr. J. Hargreaves would be glad to support a tramway, but he saw very great danger to horses in tramways. If they went in for properly repairing the road with good material, and used a heavy roller they would have better results; there was sadly too much patching.

Mr. W Hargreaves explained that macadam was the uniting of two things together, and that 2/3rds dross and 1/3rd limestone well rolled with a heavy roller would make the best possible road, the Committee were going in more for dross now. He still held however that the most economical way would be to put down a tramway. There had been a tramway laid in Bradford in the Bowling Road for many years, and what was good for them would certainly be good for us. As to a steam-breaking machine, the Board, at its first formation, purchased ready broken stone, but soon found that the even, regular surface of the stone supplied wore away directly, and this material was very speedily discarded on account of its expense and want of endurance.

Mr. J. Hargreaves would suggest to the Highways Committee that the other side of Bell Hill be paved. Mr. Oliver thought that would be the best thing they could do.

A discussion followed on getting the road declared a main road, the chairman stating that as soon as Stanley got their road into good repair, it was declared a main road, and it would be the same with us.

Mr. Oliver coincided, and said it would be a step in the right direction, if they could only get the road declared. Our road was as good as the Carlton portion, and they had got their road declared. Several members expressed a hope that the Board would be more efficiently represented when the next application was made.

In regard to the tenders asked for from several quarry owners for Bradford stone for kerbing, a discussion arose as to the necessity for purchasing so expensive a material, and Mr. Sanderson suggested that Robin Hood stone would be good enough, and much less cost. He gave notice of his intention to move the rescinding of the resolution referring to the purchase of Bradford stone.

The clerk read a letter from the Co-operative Society requesting the Board to undertake the kerbing and flagging near their property as speedily as possible.

ROTHWELL SEWAGE.—The treasurer having received the money for this work from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, a cheque for the amount temporarily borrowed, was agreed to.

Mr. Holmes, of Roundhay, wrote again in reply to the clerk, as regards the drain running into Mr. Barrett's land, asking how the Board know it is his drainage which causes the nuisance as there are several property owners draining into the same ditch. He thought it was the Board's duty to clean out the ditch. Before the Board was formed, he said there was no property so well drained and supplied with water, &c., as his was.

It was finally agreed that all the property owners draining into Barrett's ditch have notice to allow Mr. Brayshaw to connect their drains with the main trunk. Mr. Batty neutral.

Mr. J. Hargreaves mentioned that when Brayshaw was clearing out the manholes up Wood Lane, the other day, he found them full of ashes, &c., which had been thrown in by children; he thought something should be done to prevent such wilful mischief.

WATER.—The clerk read the letter of Messrs. Bromet and Taylor, which was adjourned to this meeting, as regards Mr. Lawton's water supply, and threatening further proceedings unless supplied at once. After discussion, the clerk was instructed to inform Messrs. Bromet and Taylor that the Board cannot see its way to do anything further in the matter.

Mr. Sanderson again brought up the Royds Green application for water, but nothing further was done, the chairman intimating that by far the best way would be to get water from the Wakefield Waterworks now in progress.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Mr. J. Hargreaves gave notice that one month hence he should move a resolution to oppose the application of the Gulcher Electric Light Company for the supply of the Electric light in this Board's district.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The ordinary monthly meeting of the Board was held on Monday, the 2nd October, Mr. Jackson in the chair, Messrs. Mason and Nowell were also present. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, The clerk reported that he had forwarded to Mr. Longbottom a copy of the testimonial adopted at the last meeting, and produced a letter from Mr. Longbottom which was read.

An estimate of the income and expenditure of the Board was submitted which showed that it would be necessary to issue a precept to the Overseers for £200 to cover expenses to 25th March, 1883. A precept for that amount was decided to be issued. The usual salaries were ordered to be paid and the requirements of the schools to be supplied.

A special meeting was held on Friday evening last, Mr. Jackson presiding, and the Rev. A. Irvin, Messrs. Bentley and Mason were also present. The accounts of the Board made up to the 29th September were examined and passed, the financial statement being signed by the chairman, the balance in the hands of the treasurer was shewn to be £80 8s. 6d.

It was resolved that night schools should be commenced for males and females, Mr. Green and Miss Abbey having expressed their willingness to take charge of them; the weekly fee was fixed at 3d, the classes to commence on Monday 9th October, and to be held three nights per week. Prizes will be given for good attendance and results of examination.

Mr. Longbottom having instituted proceedings in the Wakefield County Court for the recovery of £10 for a month's salary and 16s. for house rent from 6th August to 16th September, 1882, the Board have placed the matter in the hands of their solicitor, Mr. Warren, who will defend the action, which will be tried on the 24th instant.

OPENING OF THE ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

Wednesday was a red-letter day for the Temperance Society at Rothwell, and although the weather was seriously against the out-door demonstration. the rain which fell heavily all the morning, ceased before three o'clock, and was restrained most of the day, enabling the promoters to carry out their programme complete.

The room is situate in Holmes Square, and has at one time been used as a match factory, and for other purposes. By hard work and careful thought and tact, the otherwise broken down old place has been wonderfully transformed into quite a pleasant-looking room, well-suited for the object in view. It has been fitted with modern windows, new doors, the walls renovated and plastered, the roof of the building hidden by a ceiling of stained boarding, from which depend several gas-lights What was formerly an old outhouse adjoining, has been remodelled into a nice snug little platform room, and the whole has been thoroughly cleansed and beautified. The Hall will seat about 250, while some 20 persons could comfortably find room on the platform.

As advertised, a procession was formed at three o'clock at the Hall, headed by the banner of the Society and the Temperance Band, followed by members of the Society, and the Band of Hope children. The procession marched through the principal streets of the town, the Band playing suitable music, and arrived again at the Hall shortly before half-past three.

The room was speedily filled with adults, and a little after the hour specified, his worship the Mayor of Leeds, Alderman Tatham, entered, wearing his chain of office, accompanied by an inspector of police, and by Mr. B. Clark, president of the Society, Mr. W. Batty, the secretary, and other prominent members, Immediately on the arrival of his worship, the band outside struck up the "Hallelujah Chorus," which they played very nicely.

The first of Gospel Temperance Hymns having been sung, the Rev. C. A. Collingwood engaged in prayer for the divine blessing, after which the secretary was called on to make a report.

Mr. W. Batty, the secretary, stated that six months ago, there was no one on their committee had any idea of this Hall becoming the place it was and being their own. The room was rented for "band" practice.

They then thought, why not alter it so as to do for meetings, etc., which they believed might be done for an expenditure of some £40. They were considering about taking the place on a lease, but eventually they decided to purchase the property, encouraged by the enthusiasm of the people. The price asked by Mr. Holmes was £200, but considering the object of the Society, he let them have it for £170; the probable total cost would be £250. All the labour had been given, the value of which, according to a contractor, would be something like £70. They had not yet asked the public for anything, having so recently subscribed toward the purchase of the Band's instruments; but by weekly subscriptions among themselves, they had raised about £16 in two months. The Society were very thankful to all who had helped, and he might name several, but there was one whose name he must mention, who had been at it early and late, working hard and superintending the whole affair; he referred to their worthy president, who, he hoped, would remain in that position as long as he lived.

The Mayor, on rising, was received with continued applause, and said that when he visited Rothwell on a previous occasion, he had no idea that he would so soon have the pleasure of seeing them again. He believed in assisting every object which tended to promote life, health and happiness among his fellow-men, and held that teetotalism was calculated to do this. While drink was proved to be the cause of a large proportion of crime, lunacy and pauperism, he had heard it stated that there was not one total abstainer in 10,000 among criminals. They might save all the sorrow and evil which they had also to pay so heavily for, by becoming abstainers. After referring to the great agitation in the public mind over the slaughter of 2,000 men in the late Egyptian war, he besought them to remember that drink was killing this number of people every week, and yet the traffic still went on. He had no fear in saying that the condition and position of England was never better than it was to-day. He held that working men were never so well off, considering all things, than they were at present, but if there was not so much money to pay for the effects of drink, in how much better condition should we all be. His worship referred to a grocer's bill he had found belonging to his father, dated 1814, in which everything was from three to ten times more money than they are now. He believed in men getting good wages, and having their goods as cheaply as possible, but the great thing was to use well that which was earned.

As shewing the advance made by total abstinence principles in a certain circle, the name of which it was not very difficult to determine, his worship said that about three years ago, the dinner bill of a number of gentlemen cost 15s. per head, and 14s. for wine; the next year it was agreed that, as some of those partaking of dinner did not use wine, that each person should pay for his own, and the average cost came down to 3/9, and the following year to 2/1 each. In referring to the former opposition of "doctors and parsons," the Mayor told a capital story on the text that "doctor should know best." He also returned to a remark made by him some weeks ago respecting the Australian cricketers, who, he found on further enquiry, though not pledged abstainers, were yet very abstemious, and seldom or never took anything intoxicating while engaged in matches, whereas the English cricketer too frequently visited the "spirit" tent, and to this cause he put down the shameful defeats we had sustained at the hands of our stalwart sons. He was glad to find at Scarbro', instead of 'spirits' in Lord Londesborough's tent, that tea and coffee were this year provided. After 50 years observation, he was perfectly satisfied with the progress made, and looked forward in the early future to being relieved of the £120,000,000 which burdened the country, because of drink; and when, by the erection of temperance halls and the spread of total abstinence principles, they would bring about the glory of God and the advancement of mankind generally.

He now declared the Hall open.

The choir then sang the anthem "Cry out and shout."

Mr. John Holmes, of Roundhay, next addressed the meeting, and while approving warmly of the present movement, thought there were other evils against which they should fight, especially the betting practices of many working men. In erecting and opening this place, they were doing a good work, and would be all the happier for it, but he urged them still to go forward, and by education, thrift and useful work, to improve themselves more and more.

Mr. P. Laycock, of Leeds, then gave a short address, assuring the working men that they were never in better condition than now, and entreating them to take care of their money and advance, looking forward to the time when every house in Rothwell would be a temperance house. The afternoon meeting then closed.

Tea was provided in the Primitive Methodist School Room, when between 300 and 400 sat down from 5 to 7 o'clock, the waiting people amusing themselves in the chapel very agreeably by singing and speechifying.

It was intended to hold the meeting in the Hall, but owing to the unexpected number of persons, by the kind permission of the trustees, the public meeting was held at 7 o'clock in the Primitive Methodist Chapel, which was crowded in every part by an enthusiastic congregation.

Mr. B. Clark, the president, having announced the sixth hymn in the Gospel Temperance hymn book, the congregation joined in singing, after which Mr. Waring engaged in prayer.

Mr. Clark then introduced Alderman Scarr, who took the chair and conducted the meeting.

The chairman, after expressing his pleasure in being present, referred to his long experience of 35 years as an abstainer, during which time he had the best of health, although his work had been laborious of a certain kind. He challenged contradiction when he said that drink had caused greater loss to Rothwell than slackness of trade and visitations of sickness put together. He was glad of their success, and trusted they would soon see the day when there will not be a public house between Rothwell and Leeds.

Mr. Wallis, of Wakefield, referred to this year being the jubilee of temperance, and suggested the opening of this hall being commemorative of that event. He held that temperance, to be successful, must always go hand in hand with the gospel.

Mr. Gilston, of Hunslet, followed with a characteristic address, into which he contrived to introduce several anecdotes and interesting remarks. He looked to the children as the hope of the future, and guarded all against deceiving children in anything. All good men were sober men, no drunkard ever became great or noble. Let everyone endeavour to make the world better for living in it.

Mr. W. Cave, of Leeds, continued in a similar strain and gave an excellent address.

Mr. P. Laycock next spoke of his early family connection with Rothwell, and attributed much of his success to a fulfilment of the promise made to those who honour their parents, and to his total abstinence principles.

Mr. W. Waring gave the closing speech, in which he represented this Temperance Hall as a protest against the public-houses of Rothwell, and as a protest against the inactivity of the churches in this matter. He trusted their motto would ever be like that of the Eddystone lighthouse "To give light, and to save life."

Several hymns were sung between the addresses, and at the close of Mr. Waring's speech, Miss Day sang with considerable feeling and taste "Where is my wandering boy to-night."

Mr. W. Batty and Mr. Berry moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, which was heartily carried and kindly responded to.

Mr. J. R. Seanor and Mr. Hampson gave thanks to the ladies and to the trustees of the chapel.

Collections were made at the two meetings, realising about £7. As most of the provisions were given, about £10 was realised by the tea.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

In proof of the religious zeal and increasing earnestness in home mission work, by which the present times are distinguished, a reference to such work at Scarbro may not be uninteresting to some of the readers of Rothwell Times. I leave out of question the "Salvation Army" people who muster strongly at Scarbro, and whose system and mode of operation are to some extent phenomenal, and the results fluctuating, and refer particularly to the Wesleyans who are doing good work among the people whom it is often difficult to reach, either by ordinary means or extraordinary outward demonstrations. The result of quiet but persistent effort has been the erection of a commodious mission chapel, numerously attended, a good list of members, a prosperous Sunday School, and a staff of earnest workers, who work with a definite aim and will, and with increasing good results. Out-door services, and house-to-house visiting are among the agencies, and the Mission Chapel takes its place as one of the circuit chapels, while preserving its particular character for doing special mission work. I was in Scarbro' on Monday evening when the annual meeting was held, for the review of the past year's work and promotion of the agency, and I attended the meeting. The chairman was W. S. Caine, Esq., one of the borough members, and in addition to two of the circuit ministers, (including the Rev. J. Walker, the venerable superintendent, late of Leeds,) were a Mr. Calvert, solicitor, of York and Scarbro, Mr. Jasper, architect, Councillor Hutton and others. Some excellent speeches were made; the chairman who is in thorough sympathy with home mission work of every description which is likely to be of religious and social advantage, contributing a very interesting speech based on a large experience and wide observation and delivered with the clearness and force of a practised speaker. But not the least interesting feature of the evening was the appearance of the other member for the Borough, the Right Hon. J. G. Dodson, President of the Poor Law Board, a Cabinet Minister in the present Government, who, speaking as a churchman, expressed his hearty sympathy and best wishes for the work in hand. His speech was a sample of concise wisdom having reference to the importance socially and morally of such efforts as those which the meeting was held to promote and which had a claim to the assistance or approval of every right minded man who cherished a thought or a desire for the general good. In conjunction with excellent sentiment there was that unaffected air of refinement in manner and delivery which makes a speech from such a source an intellectual treat as well a judicious homily, and the Scarbro' Wesleyans are to be congratulated on their good fortune in securing the presence of a gentleman holding such a high position in the national councils at a homely meeting of the kind described, which had about it none of the attractiveness which fashion, or science, or art, or literature gives but was only held in support of a work which many would call common-place or perhaps fanatical, but which is in its success sufficient reward to the unselfish workers,

THE VICAR OF ROTHWELL.—We understand that the Rev. Mr. Heberden left Rothwell on Tuesday morning very quietly, the majority of his parishioners being unaware of his so early departure. We are pleased to know he is so very much restored, and sincerely trust his life may yet be long spared for good to others.

TESTIMONIAL.—It has also transpired that a very handsome testimonial was presented to him privately last week, as a grateful token from his parishioners, of their esteem and regard. It is gratifying to learn that many dissenters joined in the presentation, which consisted of a silver server, fruit basket and an urn of very handsome design. The Sunday school teachers and scholars also presented a dozen silver fish-eaters, nearly every child in the school contributing a trifle. These articles will be exhibited to-morrow only, at the shop of Mr. Marshall, stationer, when a letter of thanks to the many contributors can also be obtained free.

On Tuesday evening the opening lecture in the Coal Mining Department of the Yorkshire College was delivered in the Philosophical Hall, by Mr Arnold Lupton, the subject being "Coal getting by the Lime Process."

FOOTBALL.—To-morrow, the semi-final tie for the Oulton challenge cup will be played at Oulton as announced elsewhere.

MEETING OF MINERS AT HUNSLET.

On Tuesday night a large meeting of the miners of Messrs. Charlesworth was held at the Queen's Hotel, Thwaite Gate, Hunslet, on the advance question. Mr. E. Cowey and Mr. Pickard addressed the meeting, after which resolutions were agreed to, to join the Yorkshire Miners' Association, and officials were appointed pro tem to carry on the business of the association, and to arrange for a mass meeting of the miners next Monday, and a meeting of the Rothwell miners at the earliest possible moment. The meeting also agreed to use every means to secure the advance of 15 per cent. now demanded by the Yorkshire miners and those of other counties. The following is a copy of the resolution passed at the meeting of masters' and mens' delegates at Leeds yesterday:

"That this meeting of coalowners of West Yorkshire does not consider itself sufficiently representative to come to any decision on the question of wages, but hereby instructs the secretary to convene a general meeting of West Yorkshire coalowners on Tuesday next, when the representations of the miners, as submitted to-day, will be fully considered, and the decision arrived at communicated to the secretary of the Miners' Association."

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There has been a good attendance at our market to-day, and wheat has changed hands at 1s to 1s 6d per qr. advance. More inquiries have been made for barley, which has sold at firm rates. Maize 2s to 3s dearer. No change in oats, or beans. Flour unchanged.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2, 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—With extremely wet weather prevailing the market to-day had a lot guid tone throughout. This was noticeable especially in the sheep department, where, although, there was a smaller supply than last week, trade dragged slowly, and dealers were not able to secure much advance on late rates. The supply of fat beasts was somewhat larger, and included a number of heifers of excellent quality. The butchers had the turn in their favour, although not to any great extent. Very little doing in fat calves, and late rates must be quoted. A fair trade in milch cows and lean beats. A slow trade in pigs at the following prices.

	this week,	last week,
No. of fat beasts,	2330	2010
,, sheep ,,	3390,	,, 3450
,, pigs ,,	364,	,, 420
,, milch cows &c ,,	80,	,, 58

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 7½d to 8½d per lb.
Lean beasts, £10 to £16 each.
Milch cows, £18 to £30 each.
Fat calves, 9d to 9½d per lb.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 15s to 20s.
,, store, 40s to 60s.
,, fat, 7/- to 8/2 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.46. p.m.—There is a good attendance at our market this morning, foreign wheat makes 1s per qr. more money, but English sells slowly at late rates. English barley is in request at really last week's prices, foreign quiet. Beans rather dearer. Oats steady. Maize scarce, and 3s per qr higher. Weather dull and damp but warm.

FOOTBALL.

NOTICE.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

TO-MORROW'S MATCHES.

At Rothwell, Rothwell 2nd, v. Board School
At Meanwood, Harmonic v. Meanwood
At Oulton, (Cup Tie), Harmonic v. Mechanics

ROTHWELL v. MONK BRETTON.

The Rothwell Club travelled last Saturday to Monk Bretton, to meet the winners of the Barnsley Challenge Cup. The field was in bad condition, the grass being very long and slippery. During the first half the visitors played up-hill. The leather was set in motion by the Rothwell captain, and being badly returned, the visitors were within an ace of scoring. The free kick was well followed up by the home team, who came down the hill with a rush, disabling two of the Rothwellians, one of whom came into collision with the Monk Bretton captain, and both received severe cuts and bruises on his nasal organ. The other unfortunately repaired to the goal-keeper to have his leg rubbed, and while this performance was going on, the home team put the ball between the uprights. After this, play was more even until another calamity happened, the visitors were working hard in the home goal, when the ball, which had previously cracked its outer shell, announced by a loud report that its inside had also given way. However, a new one was soon in motion, but just as half-time was called this also shared the fate of its predecessor. A search was made for another ball without success, and the game was drawn, greatly in favour of the visitors, who would have had little trouble in scoring down-hill. Score, Monk Bretton 1 goal, Rothwell nil. Although the game came to a premature end, the first 'off' of the season was very much enjoyed.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC 2nd v. ROTHWELL BOARD SCHOOL.

On Saturday last, the opening match of the above clubs was brought off on the ground of the former. At four o'clock the navy blue's entered the field, when their captain won the toss, and decided to defend the pavilion end. Shortly after the time stated, the Harmonic captain kicked off, but it was speedily returned by the visitor's backs, and by a splendid piece of passing on the part of their forwards, it was taken straight up to their opponent's end, where a fine goal was scored by Bennett. The sphere being again set rolling, Brown (Harmonic) got possession of the ball, and shortly afterwards placed it between the uprights, thus equalising matters. The ball being once more set in motion, a bit of even play ensued, Ellis showing up prominently, and shortly before half-time a second goal was obtained by the visitors, thus leaving the score two goals to one. After a few minutes rest, the players again formed line, and some play ensued in the Harmonic goal-mouth; a goal was then claimed by the visitors, but the umpire not being near, could not give a decided answer. For about a quarter of an hour play was of an even character, N Bennett and H Harrison doing some good work for the visitors, passing in splendid style, while Brown and Hopton played a plucky game for the home team. However, just before time was called, a goal was got by the Harmonic forwards, and at the call of time the score stood 2 goals each, thus resulting in a tie. The following is the Board School team:—W Tiffany, goal; R Lewis, (capt) J Hopton, backs; R Longley, H Lee, J Ellis, half-backs; N Bennett, H Harrison, S Warwick, C G Harms, J Harrison, forwards.

CUP TIES AT OULTON.

STOURTON ROVERS v. HUNSLET WESLEYANS.—The first round for the above cup was played last Saturday in the Oulton Football Field. The grass was very long and slippery, and a very poor exhibition of the game resulted. The Wesleyans and Stourton Rovers occupied the field first. During the first half, the Wesleyans secured 1 goal to the Rovers nil. In the second part of the game the Rovers played better and with more spirit, but were continually spoiling each other's kicks; however, several corner kicks were obtained, but were thrown away by bad judgment, and several good chances of scoring were missed. The Wesleyans ultimately won by 1 goal to nil.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. OULTON VICTORIA.—These clubs followed immediately after the above, and resulted in a victory for the Harmonic by 2 goals to nil. The Oulton lads played a very good and plucky game.

FATAL ACCIDENT BY LIGHTNING.—The fearful storm of Saturday night and Sunday morning has unhappily caused serious loss to one of our most highly respected farmers, Mr John Oliver. Having several horses in a field at Rothwell Haigh, the lightning unfortunately fell where they were, and struck one dead, while another was severely injured and a third slightly so. The animals were valuable ones, and although we are glad to learn that the loss is covered by insurance, it is nevertheless a considerable misfortune to the above-named gentleman, a member of our Local Board.

THE APOSTOLIC CHURCH.—As worded by the handbill, a solemn testimony was delivered to the inhabitants of Rothwell last Sunday afternoon, in the Mechanics' Hall, by Mr. Waddington. The adherents of this sect of christians have, for some months, met in a cottage, but have this season, resolved on coming out more prominently. As is advertised each week the first of a series of services was held last Sunday, and the Hall was about half full, a very fair beginning. The proceedings commenced at half-past two with a short prayer, after which the lecturer spoke for more than an hour on the "Second personal coming of our Lord Jesus Christ now at hand," seeking to prove his arguments by numerous passages of Scripture, and by the present state of the world. He was attentively listened to, and those present were invited to come the following Sunday, when the subject will be "The many signs that indicate the Lord's coming to be very nigh." The doxology was then sung, and the benediction pronounced.

DEATH.

CROSSLEY.—Oct. 11th, Edith Annis, daughter of William and Mary Ann Crossley, Lofthouse, aged 1 year 3 months.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

I HEARD rather a good joke the other day in connection with last Monday evening's meeting of the Leeds Wesleyan Missionary Society which was one of a series held in the town during the past week. Mr. Waddy, Q.C., in the course of his speech, referred to Mr. Smith and Mr. Roodhouse, two Leeds gentlemen of rather advanced years, and who for a long time had been active supporters of the mission cause, as still having about them a juvenescence which time had very slightly impaired, remarking of Mr. Roodhouse that his golden locks had not lost one jot of their pristine colour. A prolonged titter followed the reference, it being known to many in the audience that Mr. Roodhouse had for many years worn a wig, and that consequently he might reach a much more advanced age yet without showing even one single "silver thread among the golden."

OH! the perversity of human nature. Last week we were rejoicing in the near approach of millenial times, as typified by the understanding that the descendants of the twelve apostles who are trying to convert the Rothwellites on a Sunday afternoon would have no collection. Well; they had no collection, and we were admitted free, but like brother Jonathan and his exhibition, we had to pay to go out, under the new-fangled name of an offertory. So it seems the happy day has not yet arrived when halls can be used for nothing and when people can hear for nothing. Some folks are always looking out for cheap religion. Well, I believe the religion which is got for nothing is worth nothing, and that those persons who button up their pockets and call themselves pattern Christians, are precious little worth to anybody, either God, man or devil; it's all self. What's worth having costs something.

THE Mayor of Leeds with the magnificent insignia of his office, opened the Temperance Hall at Rothwell on Wednesday. Verily the cold water folks are to be congratulated on their luck. Except on one occasion in connection with the Mechanics' Institution, Rothwell has only seen a live mayor twice, and both times on behalf of the temperance cause. Although a little bit of a place comparatively, yet seemingly suitable for the purpose, and their own,—the Temperance Hall will provide work and interest for many who have hitherto had little to engage their time or thought beyond the lower pursuits of life. Hurrah then for the Temperance Society, and I give you a hearty invitation to Woodlesford and Oulton.

WHAT are Rothwell miners going to do about an advance of wages? No doubt Messrs. Charlesworth will act as they have before and willingly concede to their men what their fellow-owners do. I sincerely trust the miners in this neighbourhood will not be carried away by any smooth-spoken miners' advocate, but use their own steady common sense, and keep their money among themselves.—"There's a better time coming boys; wait a little longer."

THE ADVANCE OF MINERS' WAGES.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

With your kind indulgence I will say a few words to my fellow work-mates on the one all absorbing question just now amongst miners; namely, the proposed demand for an advance of fifteen per cent on the present rate of wages.

Fellow-workingmen, my object in appearing in print is to appeal to you in the present crisis, and ask you what Rothwell miners are going to do towards helping to attain the object aimed at by nearly the whole of the mining population of the kingdom. You cannot be ignorant of the resolution that was passed recently at the miners' conference in Manchester, namely, that we as miners of this county should use all the legitimate means in our power to command an advance on our wages to the amount of 15 per cent. And no doubt you will have seen in the papers with what spirit and enthusiasm that resolution has been taken up by the miners of every mining county in England, and how determined are the character of the resolutions that have been passed at the various collieries. Is it not time that the miners of this locality were up and doing something with regard to this question it cannot be that we are satisfied with the miserable pittance that has been doled out to us at the pay office that has scarcely been sufficient to keep soul and body together for the last two years; when I have thought over our condition I have often been driven to the conclusion that the laws of political economy were suspended and that in their absence labour is remunerated from a wrong stand point. I have been tempted to believe that the prevailing idea amongst capitalists have been to find out what was the minimum rate of wage that a working man and his family could subsist on, and that they had decided to pay that rate and pay no more; the standard to pay labour by ought to be its value and if it was judged by this standard at the present time the miners in this locality would be paid more than 10½d per ton for getting coals. There is not an employer of miners at the present time, but who knows that the men are not much above half paid for their labour, they readily acknowledge that the condition of the men is one of extreme suffering and there is no way out of the difficulty, mates, but falling back upon ourselves and be firm in our demands for the 15 per cent. Fellow-working-men, then let us unite and take part in the battle now raging in behalf of the rights of labour, and do not let us play the despicable part of idle spectators to the warfare by standing neutral when our support might be the means of securing the victory; by all means if a strike becomes general do not let us cut the throats of those that are fighting in our behalf by continuing to work and supplying the coal market on the strength of abiding by the decision of the district, too much of this kind of thing has been done in the past, it has often reminded me when I have thought of it of two lines contained in one of Burns poems:—

Man's inhumanity to man
Makes countless thousands mourn.

In conclusion let us have some meeting in our midst and let us have the moral courage to take a dignified stand in this matter by standing shoulder to shoulder with those that are in the van, in demanding something more than starvation remuneration for risking our lives and straining every muscle in the laborious occupation of coal winning, and depend upon it that justice in the struggle will get its reward.

I remain,

Oct. 9th, 1882. A MINER.

THE STRANGER IN LONDON.—That the great City will ere long be hardly recognisable by its former denizens, all the world has heard. The visitor passing up the Thames now finds his eye gratified by the many handsome edifices recently erected. As he reaches the famous Victoria Embankment, there rises over him on the right hand the new Times office, and on the left hand the new tower-crowned works of Messrs. JAMES EPPS & Co., both phases of Italian architecture. It may be said that these two buildings are types of the far-reaching business energy of the nineteenth century, for it has resulted from such means that these two establishments have brought themselves to the fore, and that the annual issue of each has come to be estimated by millions. During the last year, the number of copies of the Times issued is estimated at 16,275,000, while the number of packets of EPPS' COCOA sent off in the same period is computed at 14,749,895. The latter is a large total, when it is borne in mind that in 1830 the consumption of Cocoa throughout the whole kingdom was but 425,382 lbs., there then existing no preparation of it such as this, which by the simple addition of boiling water would yield a palatable drink. Truly time may be said to work many changes.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/0 & 2/0, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/0 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES, and follow the advice of the eminent Doctors Prout, Stevens, Morgan, Turley, Dowsing, Gibbon, Sparks, &c., who have borne unqualified testimony to the value of LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE. It gives instant relief in headache, sea or bilious sickness, constipation, heartburn, scarlet and other fevers, smallpox, measles, eruptive and skin complaints. Use no substitute. H. LAMPLOUGH, 113 Holborn, London.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy. Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world,

MINERS' MEETING AT ROTHWELL.

A mass meeting of the miners employed under Messrs. J. and J. Charlesworth was held on Monday afternoon in the Football Field at Sty Bank, when a large number of men were present. The meeting was called for two o'clock, but it was fully half-past before the proceedings commenced, as men continued to come into the field up to that time, and it was desired that a full meeting should be assembled before any resolution was proposed.

Mr. B. Pickard and Mr. J. Parrott were present, representing the Miners' Union, and they, with several check-weighmen, occupied the wagon used as a platform.

On the motion of Mr. Jos. Stead, junr., Mr. W. W. Harrison was proposed as chairman of the meeting; Mr. Harrison proposed Mr. M. Ramsden; on being put to the vote, Mr. Harrison was declared elected, and he accordingly took that position.

The chairman, in addressing his fellow-workmen, stated that the object of the meeting was to better their condition as miners, they all knew their present condition was low enough. He thought there were three reasons why they found themselves where there were: 1st, disorganization; 2nd, great monopoly exercised by the coal-agents; 3rd, the masters, instead of taking contracts that would pay them, were giving away the coals to Gas Companies, Railway Companies, and others, who could afford to pay dividends getting on to 25 per cent. This selling below cost not only affected the masters, but the labourers like themselves. They had borne this sort of thing long enough, and must try to get out of the dilemma, and they wished to find the best and most straightforward way of doing it. Was it best to do as others were doing and work for an advance; or should they stand by, and wait till others had fought the battle? He hoped that in discussing this matter, every man would be allowed a fair hearing, and that which ever way the majority decided, that they should accept that ruling.

Mr. R. Sykes was then called upon, and after correcting some reports as to his declining to call a meeting, went on to speak on the subject of their low wages. While agreeing with the chairman as to the causes he specified, he held that over-production was also a great reason of their wages being so low, and contended that so long as men stayed in the pit till four o'clock and later, wages would never rise; so long as they continued to glut the market, prices would not advance. He believed they would get an advance now, but if they produced too large a quantity, they would soon lose it again. He thought they could not do much more to-night until they had seen the masters; they did not know whether Messrs. Charlesworth would grant an advance or not as they had never yet been asked; they should first send a deputation, and then they could decide. They had an agreement with the masters and they ought to stick to it. (This statement was challenged, some holding that there was no agreement on this subject)

Mr. A. Steel in proposing the first resolution pointed out that the present question was one of great importance to every miner, and whether they considered it seriously or indifferently, they were being watched by Yorkshire and other counties. It was agreed that their condition was too low, that they were insufficiently paid, and this was a most opportune time for them to say whether they should try to get an advance. It was folly to expect that others would look after their interests, if they sat down quietly and took no interest in the matter. He believed the public was prepared to pay a reasonable rate for coal, but they wished to see the miner getting his fair share of the rise, and being as fairly paid as other artizans. All they asked was, "a fair day's wage for a fair day's work." Let them be determined to flock back again to the Union, and if they could obtain the advance, endeavour to keep it. Although they were late in coming out, let them now stand shoulder to shoulder and secure the object by being united. If they stood still, other collieries would point to them and say to their men, "look at Messrs. Charlesworths' men, they are holding back, you do so too, and see how things turn out." Let them be men and stand boldly together. He proposed "That in the opinion of this meeting the miners of Messrs. Charlesworth, agree to go with the District in trying to secure an advance of 15 per cent. on our present rate of wages."

Mr. Chas. Green seconded the resolution which was supported by Mr. B. Pickard in a lengthy speech.

Mr. Pickard mentioned the doings of the great Union meeting in Manchester, when a scheme was proposed that all miners in the United Kingdom should go in for 15 per cent. advance. This, however, was found impracticable, some collieries having sliding scale arrangements with the masters. He held that they were not bound by a sliding scale for ever, and could not accept the objection. There was no way of getting the advance but by saying plainly, if we cannot have the 15 per cent., we will lay the pits idle. Nine counties had agreed to go in for this advance. It was rather a dangerous step to take. They all knew the bad results of a strike, especially if it failed, but were they still to go on at starvation prices. At the Manchester conference, it was agreed that circulars should be sent to every colliery in the kingdom, in order to get to know whether the men were willing to go in for an advance or not. Somehow there had not been a circular received at Rothwell, and therefore they held this hurried meeting. At Rotherham a large meeting had been held, and as a result, 27,674 men had individually voted in favour of going in for 15 per cent. advance; he hoped they would do the same, and send delegates to the next conference. At Sheffield, the owners had only offered 2½ for every 4d. advance in prices. They had tried arbitration, and failed to get much good out of it. An inspection of the books for the last 3 months had been offered, but what was the use of them looking into the master's books, when they were plainly told, that there was nothing shown for them. They could not accept any of these proposals. Let them go with their fellow-miners for this advance, and when they had got that, they could talk about the out-put. Other owners were asking what Messrs. Charlesworths' men were going to do. At Micklefield, they were going to pay 10 per cent. at the end of next week. If all employers throughout Yorshire would make an offer like that, and begin paying at once, it would then be a question whether they should try for another 5 per cent. or not. It was said that the more work a man did, the more money he got; but in 1874 they sent up 367 tons a man, whereas in 1881 they got 452 tons, and less money for it. In 1874 they got 2s. a ton per man, in 1881 they only received 1s. 6d., thus giving away some 4½ millions of money. After further references to the low rate at which gas companies supply gas, as compared with the value at which coal is sold, Mr. Pickard instanced several counties where offers have already been made, Derbyshire of 10 to 15 per cent.; Staffordshire and other counties where they are working on 15 per cent. advance. He urged them at once to resolve, and if they stood together, they would certainly get what they asked. He cordially supported the resolution.

One voice asked for a deputation to the masters first, he was not in for a strike, he knew too much of strikes; what they were doing meant going into the Union.

On the motion being put, it was declared carried unanimously, there being none against.

The chairman then read a seconded resolution which was afterwards combined with a third, the two being to the following effect. "That a deputation be appointed to see the masters, and ask for the advance of 15 per cent.; should they decline, to ascertain whether they would accept a "pit head" notice; and if not, that they individually give in a 14 days notice."

This was moved by Mr. James Hopton, and seconded. Mr. Parrot in supporting the same, said a question had been asked as to when the notices should be in; it was agreed that from the 16th to the 19th of this month all notices should be delivered. As the two Yorkshire Associations were now amalgamated, there was less expense, and they could now work altogether As the owners had advanced their coal, the miners wanted higher wages; it had been a miserable past, and they looked for better times in the future. They submitted to a reduction when coal went down, and they ought to have a fair share when it goes up. It was no use saying, dont threaten to strike; if they got the advance, all right; if they did'nt, they must strike, though he deplored strikes as much as anyone. He was glad to see so many at the meeting; let them remember that if the advance was obtained, the Union will have got it, and he trusted that they would at once join again. This resolution was also passed unanimously.

The following persons were appointed the deputation:—Messrs. W. W. Harrison, Jos. Stead, Junr., Chas. Green, W. Plowes, J. Gilbert, J. Sanderson, E. Whittlestone, and J Barker.

The chairman then asked for a show of hands whether they should not join the Miners' Union; it was only 2s. 6d. entrance, and there was no widow and orphan's fund attached to it; it was mostly for protection of labour. A call being made, the majority of hands were held up in favour of joining the Union.

The meeting shortly after broke up.

MEETING OF COAL-OWNERS.

A meeting of the West Yorkshire Coalowners Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the Great Northern Hotel, Leeds, to consider what steps should be taken with reference to the application placed before them by the Miners Union for an advance of 15 per cent. on the present rate of wages paid to workmen. There was a large and a fairly representative meeting, there being present colliery proprietors from all parts of the West Yorkshire district. The following resolution was unanimously agreed to:—

> That the West Yorkshire coalowners, having considered the request of the West Yorkshire miners for an advance of 15 per cent. on wages, regret that the state of trade will not enable them to give such an advance at the present time. The coalowners are, however, willing for the men to participate in any future improvement of trade, and are willing to meet a deputation of West Yorkshire miners at an early date to discuss the question more fully. In the meantime, if the miners are not satisfied with this statement, the owners are willing either to refer the whole question to arbitration, or to investigation under the recent sliding-scale agreement.

It is generally admitted that in the West Yorkshire district the present price of coal is not larger than at the corresponding period of last year; and the coalowners maintain that the advance in the price of coal which has recently been made is in proportion merely to the decrease which took place last April. They urge therefore that the object of the increase is not in order that a corresponding advance may be made in wages, but as a matter of custom and of necessity in order to maintain the present rate of wages. They say, "With the present advance of prices the average for this year will not be more than the average for last year, but it is likely to be less; we are therefore bound to make this advance in order to maintain the rate of wages now existing." They deny, moreover, that the workmen have any ground for demanding the advance, and urge that it would be more satisfactory to the employers if they gave their reasons. Their wages, they assert, are higher by 3·36 per cent. than in 1871; and those who are householders have the advantage of being able to purchase one ton of coal per month at 2s. per ton, with a charge of from 1s. to 1s. 6d. for leading, making the cost to them merely nominal. While, according to the owners, the present average earnings at some of the leading collieries in West Yorkshire are 5s. 2 1-16d. per day, the workmen considerably curtail their earning by working short time. The only remedy which appears feasible to the owners for the settlement of the difficulty is a limitation of the number of workmen.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

In continuation of the opening of the above hall, a miscellaneous entertainment was given on Saturday evening, by the band, the choir, and several members of the Society, consisting of instrumental and vocal music, recitations and readings.

There was a large attendance, all seeming satisfied with the programme provided.

On Sunday, Mr. John Andrew, of Leeds, (the first pledged teetotaller in that town), preached two temperance sermons in the same room, collections being made on behalf of the building fund.

Last night, Mr. R. Clough amused the listeners with his humorous remarks and anecdotes, a collection being afterwards made. There was a good audience.

ROBIN HOOD.

By direction of the School Board, the school at Robin Hood is closed this week and next, in consequence of fever in this district; as many of the children come from a distance it was thought advisable to take this step, in order to prevent the disease being carried to other neighbourhoods.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE REV. G HEBERDEN

By general desire, the splendid testimonial privately presented to the vicar, was exhibited on Saturday last, in the window of Mr. Marshall, stationer and printer. From the first moment when the presents arrived till the last vestige of them had disappeared, a constantly changing crowd of interested persons from every grade of society, viewed the several articles, and general admiration of the testimonial, and approval of its presentation were frequently manifested and expressed.

The centre of attraction was an elegant, heart shaped, silver plated urn, of Grecian pattern, and of the best and most valuable material. The square rested on four carved feet, from which rises in perfect proportion, the handsomely shaped body of the urn, flanked on either side by artistically formed handles. The lid, which is of an elongated description, is a delicate piece of work and accorded with the general character of the urn, an ivory handled tap completing this useful piece of plate, which is 21 inches high. The engraving is tastefully worked on the urn in a floral pattern of very chaste design, the body of the urn bearing the inscription below:—

Presented to the
REV. GEORGE HEBERDEN, M.A.
Vicar of Rothwell,
By his parishioners, on his resignation, October, 1882

A second item in the presents, is a solid silver fruit dish, with gold-plated silver sugar and cream basins attached, and spoons to match. The handle and four feet are of a pretty rustic pattern, the whole suitably and tastefully engraved in a neat ivy leaf design, and bearing the initials of the vicar.

The most valuable item in the present, however, is a massive solid silver salver, of oval form, with carved handles, and weighing 106 ounces. The body is beautifully engraved with a broad border of circular foliage, within there is a similar inscription as is on the urn, the outer rim being carved in scroll work and an inner border of chaste engraving.

These constitute the testimonial of the parishioners, and besides their great intrinsic value, may be accepted by the gentleman to whom they have been presented, as a small token of the esteem he has won among all classes of the community, and will doubtless be highly prized more on this account, than on account of their real worth.

A smaller but no less gratifying presentation that has been made by the teachers and scholars of the Sunday School, was also exhibited with the above. This testimonial consists of one dozen silver fish-eating knives and forks, the handles being of ivory, and the silver delicately engraved in a chaste and beautiful design. They are contained in a neat case, containing two blue lined drawers. Each fork is engraved with Mr. Heberden's monogram, the whole being a most appropriate and handsome gift. On the lid of the case is engraved the following inscription:—

Presented to the
REV. GEORGE HEBERDEN, M.A.
From the Teachers and Scholars of the Parish Church Sunday School, October, 1882.

We understand that the cost of the parishioners' presents was nearly £60, and while a most magnificent gift, they will ever remind the late vicar of the many friends he has left in Rothwell, and that his name will be had "in everlasing remembrance" by the many poor whom he befriended, by the sick whom he succoured with good things, and the bereaved into whose ears he so tenderly poured the consolations of the gospel.

The family of the Vicar took their final leave of Rothwell this (Friday) morning, for Folkestone, where they rejoin Mr. Heberden, followed by the many good wishes of those who have known them. As shewing the mildness of the weather in the south, a correspondent states that primroses are in bloom in Folkestone. With such a favouring climate, and a short sojourn on the continent, we sincerely hope the late Vicar may fully recover his accustomed health and that we may soon hear of his complete restoration.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

Last Monday evening, the members of the above Society held their first meeting this session, when over 20 were present. Mr. J. A. Harms was unanimously re-elected president, a position which he kindly accepted. Mr. W. Batty had sent a note resigning his office as secretary, but the Society, feeling his great value to them, re-elected him, with an urgent request that he would retain that post.

Mr. B. Batty brought forward his motion to rescind the rule, excluding political subjects of debate, which after considerable discussion, was lost, eleven voting for the rule as it now stands, and seven for the alteration.

A project is also on foot for the benefit of Mr. Kirkby, the founder of the original class, but was adjourned to the next meeting.

LOFTHOUSE HARVEST THANKSGIVING.

On Sunday last, the annual Harvest Thanksgiving services were held in the Parish Church, which had been very neatly and tastefully decorated by willing and skilful hands for the occasion. As the helpers were many in number and each strove to give a pleasing effect to their work, it is needless to add that the result was most satisfactory as was proved by the admiration and delight which the large congregation expressed upon seeing them. Texts were rather conspicuous by their scarcity and though this might be a failing in the eyes of some, yet perhaps it is not too much to say that the sacred edifice never presented a neater or more attractive appearance upon a similar occasion.

The sermons in the morning and evening were preached by the venerable and respected vicar, who chose for his text in the morning, Psalm LXV and 11th verse, "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness" and in the evening Psalm CXLV, 15 and 16 verses, and upon both occasions delivered earnest, suitable and impressive sermons to the congregations, the church in the evening being crowded, despite the most unfavourable weather. The vicar, during his discourses expressed his warmest gratitude to all who had so liberally supplied such abundance of materials for decoration, including fruit, vegetables and flowers; as well as to members of his congregation for so willingly aiding to decorate. The collections amounted a little over £5, which considering that they were in aid of the National Schools, an object seldom appealed for, can scarcely be thought satisfactory, as by being carried on as at present, they relieve the ratepayers in general to a considerable extent.

WOODLESFORD HARVEST FESTIVAL

The Harvest Festival was held at Woodlesford Church, on Wednesday last, St. Luke's Day, and was attended by a large congregation. The church was beautifully decorated with a profusion of choice flowers and fruit, foliage and grain, etc. The choir, which was augmented for the occasion, was under the direction of Mr. G. A. Atkinson; Mr. W. Lockwood, the church organist, presiding at the organ.

In the morning there were morning prayers and Holy Communion. In the evening there was full cathedral service, the Magnificat and Nunc Dimitis were sung to music by Berthold Tours, inscribed to Chas. Gounod. The anthem taken was "The earth is the Lord's," by Albert Lowe. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. L. Barnett, from the text "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?"—St. Luke, XVII, 17. The preacher enjoined in an eloquent and impressive manner the duty of gratitude, instancing many peculiar reasons, in addition to the common mercy of redemption from the leprosy of sin, why English people were specially called upon to show gratitude to Almighty God.

The thank offerings were given to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

OULTON METHODIST FREE CHURCH.

A lecture was given in the Chapel at Oulton on Saturday evening last by Mr. A. R. Ford, of Leeds, on "Battle Fields and the hardships of campaigning." The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Flockton, who after a reference to the Methodist Free Church Community as being quite abreast of any other denomination in earnest evangelistic work, and a few congratulatory words to the people attending the chapel at Oulton, on the special efforts they had from time to time made for the spiritual advantage of the neighbourhood, he said with respect to the subject of the lecture that he trusted every one present deplored the necessity for war, with its accessories of wounds and death, of privation and misery in many forms, and in stupendous measure, and that their aspirations were for that happy period when the "sword should be beaten into a ploughshare and the spear into a pruning hook," and when the "nations shall learn war no more," when all international difficulties would be settled by the more rational means of peaceful arbitration, and the only wars we should have to wage would be with national evils, and social and moral delinquencies; but as it was likely we were a long way off that happy period, and as war was indispensable, he was certain so long we should all feel a warm regard and admiration for our brave soldiers and sailors who went forth with their lives in their hands to fight our battles and maintain the honour and interests of our country, prepared to endure all the privations and dangers which war entails. He then introduced the lecturer who gave his experiences as a soldier on active service in Afghanistan, and during the Crimean war and Indian mutiny, relating many incidents, chronicled and unchronicled, of which he was an eyewitness; the "hair breadth 'scapes," the flush of victory, and the terrible tale of women and death after the battle. He also referred to some of the well-remembered officers commanding in those campaigns, and to some of the more prominent engagements.

The lecturer had served in the Horse Artillery, and had been frequently wounded. He is a member of the Methodist Free Church.

A hearty vote of thanks to him and to the chairman was given at the close of the lecture, to the former on the motion of Mr. Myton, seconded by Mr Whitehead, and to latter on the motion of the lecturer, seconded by Mr. Myton.

The lecture was for the benefit of the Oulton Sunday School.

A SPECIAL SERVICE of an interesting and profitable character was conducted in the school-room at Rothwell, on Sunday afternoon, Mr. Wakenshaw, of Headingley College leading it.

CO-OPERATIVE MEETING.

The opening of the New Store at Rothwell, was celebrated on Saturday by the holding of a public tea and meeting, in the Mechanics' Hall. The tea tables were crowded, and many were unable to secure a share in the excellent things provided. After tea, a public meeting was held in the Hall, over which Mr Wilberforce, president of the Society, acted as chairman. He thought the Rothwell people were to be congratulated on their new premises, and fully anticipated a large increase in the turnover. While urging the members to hold to their own shop, he contended that a store in the town was an advantage to others who were not co-operators, as regulating the prices of other shopkeepers.

Mr Dockrey placed Mechanics' Institutes, Temperance Societies and Co-operative Societies all in the same category, as means of elevating the working classes. He also urged the advantage of co-operation for productive objects, as well as for distributing purposes, and looked forward to the time when they would use their joint monies for producing goods.

Mr Webster and other directors also addressed the meeting.

Mr Thos. Whitehead said he was not a co-operator simply for the bonus, although he knew very well that the sum laid by by some members had greatly helped them in these bad times. He suggested that some of them did not spend all their money at the Store, and calculated that every 1s a week spent by the 20,000 members of the Society, meant a turnover of £52,000 a year, which might make all the difference between profit and loss. He thought a Society like theirs ought to contribute largely to charitable institutions, and not have it said that they were miserly.

Mr J W Fawcett, the able secretary, whose name will always be associated with Rothwell co-operators having laid the foundation stone of the new store, also addressed the meeting. He congratulated them on the opening of their new store, and trusted it would increase very largely. He also referred to the heavy responsibilities of their society, amounting to £127,000 in freehold property besides the great quantities of stock, &c., and urged every member to do his best to advance the interests of the society.

The Rothwell Brass Band paraded the streets previous to the tea and also played during the evening. Thanks were passed to the ladies and the Band, after which the meeting was brought to a close.

ROTHWELL MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

We are glad to hear of recent efforts 'upwards' in our Institute. The Library has been well weeded, an operation sorely needed for some time. Over a hundred old and comparatively worthless volumes have been withdrawn from circulation, and some of them are now being offered for sale by private treaty at what is somewhat artfully termed 'ruination prices.' New books have been added, and ere long the Committee feel certain of being able still further to replenish the stock. So much for this branch.

Next thing we hear of is an attempt to resuscitate the lecture system. This we hail with applause, as being another step towards showing the vitality which ought to exist in the educational motives of our Institute. More will be known in a week or two.

The platform debt still remains in part undefrayed. This is mainly owing to the lateness of the only date open last Session for the second entertainment offered by the promoters of the platform scheme. The entertainment was accordingly held over, and is now we understand in active rehearsal. We may be abusing confidence if we say too much, but we may perhaps hint that the probable date of the entertainment is Nov. 13th, and that it will consist of a dramatic performance combined with really good instrumental music. We did hear that two pieces are to be given on one night, and that the music is to be rendered by a Leeds Amateur Orchestra. We hope this is so, and that the good efforts will meet with the substantial recognition they would seem to deserve.

We however, hope to have soon more definite information for our readers.

PRESENTATION TO MR. F. DIX.

Owing to the regretted resignation of our highly esteemed vicar, the Rev. G. Heberden, it also becomes necessary for the removal of Mr F Dix, who has acted as coachman, etc., to the above-named gentleman. During his ten years' residence in the village he has gained the respect of many by his uniform goodwill and kindness. It was therefore determined by a few friends to get up a testimonial, in order to show their esteem for himself and family.

Subscriptions were accordingly raised, and an amount obtained far exceeding the expectations of the promoters, which enabled them to purchase a handsome timepiece (supplied by Mr B Hopton, Normanton;) also what, if not so ornamental, perhaps quite as useful, a pair each of good blankets and sheets.

The presentation was made on Wednesday evening last, at the 'Black Bull,' a numerous company being present. Mr W Andrews, who has been prime mover in the affair, was unanimously chosen as chairman. After a few introductory remarks, he called upon Mr A Batty to make the presentation, who, whilst feeling honoured in being selected to perform such a pleasing duty, expressed the general regret of all that Mr Dix should be forced to leave, and sincerely wished himself and family health and prosperity in their new home.

Mr Dix feelingly replied, and heartily thanked those who had subscribed for the handsome presents he had received, and whilst being sorry that it was necessary for him to leave, yet he should never forget the friends he had made in Yorkshire, but more especially in 'Old Rothwell.'

The rest of the evening was spent in a convivial manner.

OULTON.

Sunday last being the day set apart for special recognition of the Sunday Schools in connection with Wesleyan Methodism—the services on such occasions having reference mainly to the work carried on, and invoking the Divine favour in their behalf—a Sunday scholars service was held in the school-room attached to the Oulton Wesleyan Chapel, at which by invitation the scholars from the Woodlesford Wesleyan Chapel and the Oulton Methodist Free Church were also present. Mr Poulter, from the Oxford-place circuit, Leeds, who was the preacher at the morning service, gave a suitable and very interesting address, and special hymns were sung by the children. Members from each congregation were present, and the service was an exceedingly enjoyable one throughout, and not too long to become tedious to the children.

A BAZAAR towards reducing the debt still remaining on the newly-erected Wesleyan Chapel, at Rothwell, is to be held on Wednesday and Thursday next, and both from the announcements and reports, it appears probable that a very pleasing and interesting number of attractions will be on the programme, while a large and varied quantity of articles for sale will grace the stalls presided over by the several ladies engaged. Mr Ward, of Dewsbury, who is a native of Rothwell, and has been remarkably successful in business, is to open the proceedings on Wednesday, when it is anticipated a goodly number of friends will help forward the work

LECTURES ON THE MILLENIUM.—The second of these lectures by Mr Waddington, was delivered in the Mechanics' Institute, on Sunday last, subject—"The many signs that indicate the coming of our Lord to be very nigh"

ERRATA.—In our report of the Local Board meeting last week, we transposed the actual statement of Mr W Hargreaves as regards the best combination for a good road macadam. Instead of '2.3rds dross and 1.3rd limestone,' as reported, Mr Hargreaves actually said 1.3rd dross and 2.3rds limestone' well rolled with a heavy roller would make the best possible road.

FOOTBALL.

NOTICE.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

TO-MORROW'S MATCHES.

At Rothwell, Board School v. Meanwood
Mechanics' v. Harmonic 2nd
At Oulton, Oulton v. Sheffield Wednesday, (Cup Tie)
At Hunslet, Hunslet Wesleyans v. Rothwell 2nd

ROTHWELL 2nd v. ROTHWELL BOARD SCHOOL.

Last Saturday, the above teams met in the Football Field, Royds Lane. The visitors won the toss, and chose to play with the slight wind in their favour. During the first part of the game the home citadel was several times in danger, and two corner-kicks were taken by J Harrison and R Longley; the backs, however, were on the alert and returned the ball to the centre of the field. A run up by the home forwards secured a goal, which proved to be the only point obtained by either side before the call of 'half-time.' Ends were changed, and hostilities again resumed, the home team soon after adding other two goals to their score. The 'free kicks' failed to relieve, and the visitors were hard pressed, but a little good luck was in store for them, as the custodian for the home team was playing half way up the field, when the Board School forwards broke away past him, and he not being very fleet of foot failed to overtake them, the result being that the visitors secured their first and only goal easily Shortly after, 'no-side' was called, the score being Rothwell 3 goals, Board School 1 goal.

The following were the teams:—Rothwell: goal, J W Wright; backs, A Cromach, H Wormald; half-backs J Verity, (capt) W Higgins, A Ward; forwards, M Fowler, A Pape, B Lees, A Green, W Richardson. Board School: goal, W Tiffany; backs, R H Lewis, (capt) J Hopton; half-backs, R Longley, J Ellis, H Lee; forwards, N Bennett, H Harrison, A Kilburn, G Harms, J Harrison.

OULTON (Cup Ties).
ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. MECHANICS'.

The second round for the silver cup offered by the Oulton Football Club, was played in their field, Methley Lane, last Saturday, when two Rothwell clubs met to try conclusions, the Harmonic and the Mechanics; the Hunslet Wesleyans having a bye. The field was in a bit better condition than last week, but was still very heavy, owing to the long grass and the recent heavy rains. The game was commenced by the Mechanics' kicking off. The ball was well returned, and soon found its way into the blue and whites territory, where numerous shies and several corner kicks were made without scoring. At the end of 20 minutes play the Mechanics' invaded their opponents quarters for the first time, and succeeded in scoring the first goal. The ball was again kicked off, and immediately afterwards the Harmonic colours were again lowered for the second time. This reverse caused J. W. Blakey to take the custody of the goal instead of W Blackburn, as well as stirring up the scarlet and blacks, who played better, and soon secured their first goal. Just before half-time Taylor by a splendid shy secured the second goal, which made the game even. Ends were changed and the Harmonic were quickly at work in their opponents goal, but without success. After about 10 minutes give and take play, in all parts of the field, the leather was once more in dangerous proximity to the Mechanics' goal, where Jackson missed a splendid chance, this, however, did not matter so much, as Taylor shortly after secured the third goal. The kick from the centre failed to relieve, as W Ward did the needful towards the fourth goal, repeating his performance a few minutes afterwards. When time was called the Harmonic were declared victors by 5 goals to 2, they will, therefore, meet the Hunslet Wesleyans in the final, on October 28th. For the Harmonic H Taylor, and J W Hopton were especially prominent, while W Ward and J W Blakey played in good style. The pick of the Mechanics' team was W I Taylor, R Beckwith, and H Greenwood; I Berry also played a plucky, but rather dangerous game in the goal.

OULTON v. SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY.

The celebrated Sheffield Wednesday will visit Oulton to-morrow, to play the first round for the Sheffield Challenge Cup. If the weather prove favourable a game worth seeing may be expected. Such names as Mosforth, Gregory, and others of the team, are sure to "draw" a good gate.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—The market to-day was well attended, and a more active demand for wheat, which commands the full prices of last week, and in some cases a slight advance has to be given. Oats firm. Beans and maize 1s to 2s dearer. Peas steady. Flour unchanged.—No. 1, 34s 6d; No. 2, 31s 6d; No. 3, 30s.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—We had a fair average supply of stock to-day. The fat beasts included 14 pens of Canadian cattle. Prices were in favour of the dealers to a slight extent, they being able to secure an advance on late rates. There were 90 more sheep than last week, and an active trade prevailed. There was a better show of milch cows and lean beasts. We had more activity to-day with the pig trade than for some time past, and a good trade at the following rates.

		this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,		2500		2230
,,	sheep	3480,	,,	3390
,,	pigs	364,	,,	420
,,	milch cows &c ,,	120,	,,	80

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 8d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts, £12 to £15 each.
Milch cows, £16 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 12s to 20s.
,, store, 50s to 50s.
,, fat, 7/- to 7/9 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.46. p.m.—There is a firmer tone in the wheat trade this morning, and factors are able to establish an advance of 6d to 1s per qr on last week's rates. Fine English barley sells readily at full prices, general runs are 1s per qr lower. Foreign in moderate request. Beans, oats and maize, in selling favor.

DEATH.

NEWBOLD—Oct. 15th, Mark Newbold, Lee Moor, aged 66 years.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE football season has now fairly commenced, and our local teams are about getting over the stiffness which always follows the first turn-out either at football or cricket. The chief feature of interest so far has been the competition for the Oulton cup, but in the games which have been played, no very great amount of skill has been exhibited by the rival players, and on the whole the venture cannot be said to be a success, as something extra in the way of play is generally looked for in these contests. Perhaps the game between the Harmonic and Oulton Victoria was productive of the greatest amount of good play as it undoubtedly was of local interest and excitement. The Oulton youths showed a good knowledge of the game, but were deficient in that combined play which is such an essential feature of the Association game, and as was to be expected the greater experience of their opponents eventually secured the victory; but let it be fairly understood, that the play of the Rothwell men was far inferior to what ought to be shewn by such a club, and in each of the games which the Harmonic have already played, their score ought to have been increased by four goals at the very least, so numerous were their chances of scoring that were lost by the men not following up at the proper time. This is a highly important point, and one that is sadly neglected by the players in this locality, it being pitiable to see the meritorious efforts of one or another of the members of a team entirely neutralized at the critical moment by his forwards not having followed up in order to be in readiness for the final shot at the goal. Before taking leave of the cup competition, it may be freely acknowledged that the trophy for which the 'kickists' are striving is not 'Ichabod,' but is as much superior to him in value and appearance as was the play of the Oulton men to that of the Harmonic on the occasion of their second encounter last year, and as it will be when they next meet. It is extremely probable that the Oulton team will have to take a very subordinate position when they meet the Sheffield Wednesday in the first round for the Sheffield Challenge Cup at Oulton to-morrow, but whatever may be the result some fine play will be shewn, and that not by one side alone, and it will be worth while any and every admirer of the game paying a visit to the scene of action to-morrow afternoon.

So there is to be a fight for it after all, and Mr. Longbottom is going to try his luck in the County Court as plaintiff in the great case of Longbottom v. the Woodlesford School Board. The reason of Mr. Longbottom's dismissal has never been made public, and the question at issue seems to be whether the School Board were justified in ignoring what is said to be the usual practice where no agreement exists of giving and requiring three months' notice. It would be out of place, now that the question is to come before a court, to pass any opinion upon it, but probably those interested in the business who take the trouble to look into the court on Tuesday next will not find their curiosity in vain. It may be safely inferred that in addition to Mr. Warren, of Leeds, the School Board will be represented by their clerk, and as that gentleman and Mr. Longbottom have (as may perhaps still be fresh in the minds of the readers of the Rothwell Times) done a little pugilistic correspondence therein aforetime, it will be interesting to note how they deport themselves in the witness-box. Both have visited the Court previously; but in reverse positions, Mr. Simth as plaintiff (for the School Board) and Mr. Longbottom as defendant (for himself) not of course in the some action; the former being victorious and the latter the reverse. Will the result be different when they change sides? We shall see.

ERE these lines are in the hands of the public, the bete noir of our good doctor will have paid another visit to these parts. Let us hope that nothing will be said this time to make the hair of our respected disciple of Esculapius curl the wrong way, and compel him to pour out the vials of his wrath upon the devoted head of the vicar of Woodlesford, and thereby give rise to another outbreak of infantile pettishness. Mr. Barnett is a good speaker, and it would be a pity if the contretemps of last year were repeated.

IT is all nonsense for the Mayor of Leeds to go about the country spouting about the Australian cricketers being teetotallers, and at the same time branding our own players as gluttons and drunkards. Let the Mayor stick to something with which he is well acquainted, and not interfere with things of which he is lamentably ignorant. The Australians are not teetotallers, neither are English cricketers as a body, intemperate men; there are exceptions we well know, as there are also black sheep, but the proportion is about the same.

QUID NUNC.

THE STRANGER IN LONDON.—That the great City will ere long be hardly recognisable by its former denizens, all the world has heard. The visitor passing up the Thames now finds his eye gratified by the many handsome edifices recently erected. As he reaches the famous Victoria Embankment, there rises over him on the right hand the new Times office, and on the left hand the new tower crowned works of Messrs. JAMES EPPS & Co., both phases of Italian architecture. It may be said that these two buildings are types of the far-reaching business energy of the nineteenth century, for it has resulted from such means that these two establishments have brought themselves to the fore, and that the annual issue of each has come to be estimated by millions. During the last year, the number of copies of the Times issued is estimated at 16,275,000, while the number of packets of EPPS' COCOA sent off in the same period is computed at 14,749,893. The latter is a large total, when it is borne in mind that in 1830 the consumption of Cocoa throughout the whole kingdom was but 425,382 lbs., there then existing no preparation of it such as this, which by the simple addition of boiling water would yield a palatable drink. Truly time may be said to work many changes.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloways Pills.—Changes of temperature and weather frequently upset persons who are most careful of their health and particular in their diet. These corrective, purifying, and gentle aperient Pills are the best remedy for all defective action of the digestive organs. They augment the appetite, strengthen the stomach, correct billiousness, and carry off all that is noxious from the system. Holloway's Pills are composed of rare balsams, unmixed with baser matter, and on that account are peculiarly well adapted for the young, delicate and aged. As this peerless medicine has gained fame in the past, so will it preserve it in the future by its renovating and invigorating qualities, and the impossibility of its doing harm.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.
10, Cross Kiln Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds, Feb. 13th, 1881

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.
17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881

Mr Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

Worth a Guinea a Box.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

BEECHAM'S PATENT PILLS. ST. HELENS LANCASHIRE

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c, &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints Let any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The ordinary meeting of the Board was held on Monday evening. Until some minutes after six it was feared that there would not be a quorum, Mr. Batty and Mr. Turner being the sole representatives of the ratepayers present at the usual hour. Mr. Sanderson, however, came in and completed the magic number necessary, the clerk, collector, and inspector, being also in their places.

On the proposal of Mr. Batty, seconded by Mr. Turner, Mr. Sanderson was voted to the chair, and the business proceeded.

The minutes of last meeting and several Committee meetings were then read, and on the motion of Mr. Batty, seconded by Mr. Turner, were confirmed.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Sanderson's motion to rescind the resolution 'asking for tenders for kerbing with Bradford stone' was at his request, adjourned to a larger meeting. The clerk was instructed, however, to obtain prices for Robin Hood stone of the same description.

DIVIDED PARISHES ACT.—It having been reported that the Hunslet Sanitary Authority intended having an Inspector from the Local Government Board, to arrange the anticipated alterations under this Act, the clerk suggested the advisability of having some one present to watch the interests of the Board at the enquiry.

The matter not being yet ripe, was adjourned till further particulars are known.

TELEPHONE.—Messrs. Charlesworth applied for the Board's permission to cross the road with a wire, and erect a pole near Kendrew's house, as part of the telephonic communication to be completed between Newmarket Colliery and Lofthouse.

After some discussion, it was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Turner, that Messrs. Charlesworth be allowed to erect a pole and cross the road with a telephone wire near Kendrew's house, on payment of an acknowledgement of 6d. a year; seconded by Mr. Batty, and carried.

The clerk read a letter from the Local Government Board in reply to his enquiry regarding the £250,000 reserved in the last Budget for the aid of dis-turnpiked roads. The department had forwarded a form to be filled up by the Board, but as the grant only appears to relate to such roads as are under the county, it was feared little can be expected for Rothwell. The clerk, however, proposes to write the Local Government Board, explaining the position of the Board in regard to this matter, and to try to obtain some assistance.

The chairman wished to know if there was truth in the report that, instead of scraping off the dirt on Bell Hill, it was being scraped into the ruts. The inspector complained that such reports should be circulated, and stated that he believed he was a most reliable man whom they employed, and that he was doing the best he possibly could with the road; sometimes the dirt and stone got so mixed together on this road that it was impossible to separate them entirely.

A letter was read from Mr. Geo. Lockwood, stating that he was appointed by Mr. S. Bramley to value on his behalf for compensation due to him by the main sewer going through his land. This matter was adjourned.

The inspector stated that Messrs. Stainer and Verity had finished the building of the Church Street bridge, and the work was satisfactory. The members fully coincided in the remark, and thought they had made an excellent job of it.

HOSPITAL.—In reply to the clerk's request to the Leeds Corporation, to allow any cases of small pox or other serious infectious disease, to be removed to Leeds, the Sanitary Committee replied that they only had a temporary hospital at present, and that is too small to accommodate their own patients.

A letter was read from Mr. Bulmer, calling attention to the bad state in which the trenches are left, beneath which the main sewer runs, and asking that they may be put in proper condition, so that he may be able to keep the roads and streets in repair.

The chairman suggested that a letter be sent to Mr. Brayshaw, to pave the part referred to, as it was in a shocking condition.

Mr. Turner thought it would not be wise to pave it yet, and it was eventually agreed that Mr. Brayshaw shall be asked to keep these trenches in a very much better manner than hitherto, and in as good repair as possible.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having collected

General District Rate	9	18	8
Water Rents	23	12	9
	£33	11	5

SANITARY.—A complaint from four property owners in Gillet Lane, as to a nuisance running past their land, was referred to the sanitary committee.

Dr. Wood, medical officer to the Wakefield Sanitary Authority, wrote thanking the Board for directing attention to the outbreak of disease at Robin Hood, but stated that he had previously taken precautions, and visited every infected house.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The School Board met on Friday afternoon, present, Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman) J. R. Seanor, J. Batty, J. G Turner, J. Parker, and the clerk, treasurer, and attendance officer. The five head teachers also attended according to a resolution of the Board.

The minutes were read and confirmed, after which the clerk reported his appointment of Mrs. Jackson for three months to assist Mrs. Dobson in the Infant's department at Rothwell Haigh School, at a salary of £7 10s. for the term. On the motion of Mr. Seanor, seconded by Mr. Parker, the appointment was confirmed.

An estimate having been received from Mr. D. Speight, contractor, for the paving and asphalting of a portion of the boys' and girls' play-ground at Rothwell Haigh Schools, at 2/4 a yard, it was resolved, on the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Seanor, that the tender be accepted.

The clerk presented the books kept by himself and the treasurer, and a Committee was appointed to examine and pass them.

The Clerk presented the following estimate of expenditure for the present half-year, ended March 25th, 1883.

Salaries of officers	27	10	0
Repayment of principal	95	0	0
Interest on loans	240	0	0
Expenses of Administration	10	0	0
Salaries of teachers	350	0	0
Books, apparatus & stationery	25	0	0
Fuel and light	25	0	0
Repairs to buildings and furniture	40	0	0
Rates, taxes, and insurance	8	0	0
Cleaning, and expenses of maintenance	30	0	0
	£850	10	0
Fees, Grants, etc. ...	495	10	0
	£355	0	0

After a little discussion, it was proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. Parker and carried, "That a precept for £350 be served on the overseers for Rothwell, payable on the first of December, to meet the deficiency necessary for carrying on the work of the Board during the half-year ended March 25th, 1883."

A similar resolution was also passed for a precept of £5 on the overseers of Temple Newsam. This being equal to 3½d. in the £, makes the cost of the schools about 6½d. in the £ for the present year.

The head teachers severally had a short interview with the Board, but nothing of public interest transpired.

Accounts to the amount of £357 were passed, including teachers' salaries, £65 6s. 2d.; repayment of loan and interest, £106 12s. 2d.; contractors, £170; small accounts, £15.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Our market to-day, despite the wet weather, has been largely attended. For wheat there has been a fair demand, at the extreme prices of last week. Maize and beans 1s per qr dearer. Oats and peas firm. No change in flour—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—As usual at this season of the year, the number of fat beasts penned has begun to decline. With a fair demand, dealers were able to secure an advance of a farthing per lb on late rates, and a speedy clearance was effected. We had a larger supply of sheep, and an active demand for small weights, nice crossbreds easily realising a farthing advance. There was about the same number of milch cows and lean beasts as last week. There was a fair trade in pigs at late rates.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	2040	last week,	2500
" sheep	"	3720,	"	3480
" pigs	"	364,	"	364
" milch cows &c	"	112,	"	120

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 8d to 9½d per lb.
" beasts, £9 to £17 each.
Milch cows, £16 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8¾d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 12s to 20s.
" store, 50s to 70s.
" fat, 7/- to 7/9 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.42. p.m.—There is a good attendance at our market this morning The wheat trade is quiet without material change in value Barley is in fair request at last week's prices Beans, oats and maize steady Weather to-day fine and mild.

ROTHWELL WESLEYAN BAZAAR.

A third bazaar and sale of work in connection with the new Wesleyan Chapel at Rothwell, was held on Wednesday and Thursday in the school-room adjoining, and has proved an eminent success.

The neat and commodious chapel was opened in January, 1880, the total cost being £2250. Bazaars have also been held in October, 1879, and April, 1881, when £148 and £66 were netted, respectively, and placed to the credit of the Building Committee. Other means of obtaining small sums by Christmas trees, entertainments, sermons, lectures, and Christmas singing, added to the large and small subscriptions, had brought down the total present indebtedness of the Trustees to about £400. To further reduce this incubus, the members of the ladies' sewing meeting have met fortnightly for a year past, and made a large number of useful articles; many fancy cushions, antimacassars, &c., have also been worked at home and presented by the ladies or their friends; these have again been added to by other friends and well-wishers, who have furnished every description of saleable goods, not even excluding live fowls, the whole making a grand total as displayed in the room during the present week.

During the first two days of the week, willing hands were busily engaged in fixing up the stalls, Messrs. Seanor very generously supplying both material and labour, while the general superintendence and decorations were undertaken by the Rev. C. A. Collingwood, Mr. S. Seanor, Mr. Marshall, and others, several of the lady stall-holders adding the more delicate finishing touches.

On entering the school-room, the general effect was most pleasing, and impressed one with the feeling that much time, thought and labour had been expended in preparing it. The stalls were all of the same pattern, varying a little in size, but each being after the grotto or gable fashion. The wooden frame being covered with pink, a most elegant and tasteful effect was produced by curtains hanging from the apex of the gable, falling in graceful folds towards either side of the stall, where they were neatly looped up with pink bows and flowers, the centre open space bearing a shield or other suitable adornment. The ladies' stalls extended the entire length of the room on the east side, in three divisions, and filled with every conceivable item of useful or fancy goods for personal or home use, some of the articles being of rare and difficult needlework, while hand painted pictures and other works of art varied the display. At this stall, Mrs. Collingwood, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Jas. Hargreaves, Mrs. S Seanor, and Mrs. Marshall presided. The Sunday School stall was placed on the opposite side of the room, in the north corner, and was under the superintendence of Mr. and Mrs. Butterick, who deserve a special meed of honourable mention, having undertaken the oversight of a juvenile weekly meeting for the production of smaller and less intricate needlework, while Miss Pennington, Misses Brown, Miss Dale, Miss M. H. Hargreaves and others ably assisted them at the stall, which was literally crowded with all manner of goods, too numerous to mention. The Refreshment stall stood at the opposite corner of the room, the following ladies attending to the wants of the inner man with that attractive cordiality which goes so far to make this department successful: Mrs. Roodhouse, Mrs. Armitage, Mrs. J. R. Seanor, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. A. Ward, Mrs. J. Abbishaw, Mrs. Lunn, Mrs. Tilley, and Miss M. L. Hargreaves. For this department every article has been given, and the many hours consumed and visits paid can only be understood by those who have had experience of the same. Everywhere, however, these ladies have been received with the utmost kindness, and both members of the Church of England, and those unconnected with any church, have vied with the Wesleyans in pouring into the storeroom every variety of non-intoxicating drinks, grapes, apples, pears, jellies, blanc manges, pork pies, hams, cakes, tarts, buns, &c., &c. Tea and coffee were provided any hour after five o'clock. The platform between the refreshment and Sunday School stalls was neatly and agreeably adorned with flowering plants from Mr. Clayton and Mr. Priestley, a valuable piano kindly lent by Mrs. Clarkson occupying this space. From the ceiling of the room hung variously designed flags, while other flags hung in suitable positions from the walls.

At half-past two, there was a most respectable audience present, quite as numerous as was expected, and shortly after that hour, the Rev. C. A. Collingwood announced the 592nd hymn, which was sung, followed with prayer by the Rev. G. W. Russell, of Wakefield.

Mr. Collingwood, in congratulatory terms opened the proceedings. He stated that the debt still remaining on the chapel was £400, including £100 loan without interest, repayable within ten years. He hoped that if they could raise the balance necessary, they would receive a further loan of £100 and a grant of £30 from the Manchester Committee, their object was therefore to obtain £170 so as to secure this amount. By means of this bazaar and some subscriptions promised, he thought they would be able to relieve the chapel of the entire debt, with the exception of the £200 repayable in equal instalments of £20 a year. He did not know that he had been connected with any bazaar where the friends had worked so heartily and unitedly, and he was sure if this effort proved successful financially, it would also be very profitable spiritually. He very warmly congratulated the ladies on the appearance of the stalls, which he knew meant weeks and weeks of hard work. He was extremely thankful for the beautiful day; some of them had been concerned about the weather, but God had given a favourable day, after yesterday's storm, and he had no doubt of their success. He then called on Mr. Cookson, their senior circuit steward, from Stanley

Mr. Cookson was greatly pleased with what he saw around him, in this effort to extinguish the chapel debt. He was very glad of the success which had attended their labours in the past, and Rothwell had done a great deal of late. He had always been an advocate for a resident minister at Rothwell, and anticipated its being the head of a circuit some day. He was also very pleased to meet with the gentleman who was to open the bazaar, and he had no doubt it would prove successful.

The Rev. G. W. Russell also offered a few remarks, explaining that friends from Wakefield would have been present, but were prevented by a Bazaar being held at West Parade on the same day; the Rothwell friends, however, had the sympathy and best wishes of his colleagues and the Wakefield people. He was particularly glad to be able to renew his intimacy with the Rothwell society, and to take part on this auspicious occasion.

Mr. Collingwood then introduced Mr. Seth Ward, of Dewsbury, who was most warmly applauded.

Mr. Ward, in addressing those present expressed his very great pleasure at the honour they had done him, by asking him to open their bazaar. He knew something about bazaars, and the hard work there was in connection with them. Their fathers used to think debt was a good thing for keeping the society together; they believed, however, in clearing debt out of the way, and leaving themselves open for other and better work. He looked forward to a better and brighter day for Methodism. Instead of sewing meetings for chapel building, he hoped they would be giving and working for the poor, to spread the gospel among those who attend no place of worship, to become home missionaries, and lay visitors. The church of England was doing a great work in this way; at Dewsbury every house had been visited both dissenters and church people, and good had been realized. If they wished to get good themselves, let them try to benefit others by visitation and help. No doubt there were many houses in Rothwell whose inmates took no interest in religion and never entered a place of worship. Let them not be an isolated association, but let them go out and talk to the people in their houses and shew sympathy and interest in them. He believed they would pay off this debt as Mr. Collingwood had explained, and then when they got clear, let them turn their attention to higher and better work still. He was sure there was evidence before him of very great taste, and of much time spent by the ladies, and in declaring the bazaar open, he would be glad to give £10. (Loud applause.)

The business of buying and selling at once commenced, and was continued all day.

At half-past four, a splendid tea was provided in the Band-room, to which a good number sat down.

A galvanic battery, kindly lent by Mr. S. Seanor, provided amusement in the room. In an adjoining class-room, Mr. Seanor also exhibited several scientific and electrical apparatus.

In another class-room, the mechanical steamboat plied its tiny voyage, and the swimming lady displayed her powers with graceful precision. The Zoetrope, and other minor attractions afforded pleasure to others.

In the Band-room, Mr. Collingwood kindly gave half-hour magic lantern entertainments, incluidng the history of coal, several juvenile stories, views in Ireland, phantasmagoria, &c. to the intense amusement and pleasure of old and young.

A very great acquisition was also afforded by the pianoforte recitals of Miss Atha, and the singing of this young lady and of Mrs. Collingwood, who very kindly performed several pieces in such a manner as to command general attention and applause. A string quartette band, including Messrs. J. R. Seanor, W. Steel, S. Morton and C. Ward, also played two or three times during the evening, followed by a glee party, who gave several part songs in a pleasing manner.

Yesterday, with a fine day, the bazaar was re-opened at three o'clock, but was not largely attended till towards evening, when the room again assumed a most animated appearance, the various amusements provoking laughter and interest, while an unexpected amount of business was transacted, thanks to those who have been warm and liberal friends throughout. The musical programme was most enjoyable, two ladies especially contributing piano and vocal recitals, while the string quartette and glee party rendered several pieces most agreeably. At about ten o'clock the total result of the two days was announced by Mr. Collingwood, quite surpassing the fondest anticipations of the promoters. The details are as follows: Mr. Ward's donation, £10; entrance money, £8 12s. 11d.; ladies' stalls, £63 7s. 5d.; Sunday school stall, £25 15s. 10d.; refreshment stall, £15 15s.; magic lantern entertainments, £1 5s. 4d.; scientific room, £1 4s 7d.; total £124 1s. 1d.

The greatest satisfaction and congratulation was expressed, and most gladsomely the friends sang together the "Praise God" doxology, followed by the benediction.

The Committee most gratefully thank all who have so generously and willingly contributed in any way towards the grand result of the effort.

OULTON.

The annual services in aid of Foreign Missions were held in the Wesleyan Chapel, on Sunday last, the preacher being Mr. Bradfield, of Headingley College, whose sermons were strikingly original and thoughtful, and put the scope and purpose of missionary effort among heathen peoples in aspects which if not new are not often presented and are of increased interest, and he shewed from scriptural ordinances how much it is our duty as professed christians to carry the light of the gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth. On Monday evening the public meeting was held, the chairman being Mr. T. Allcock, of Wakefield, in the absence of Mr. James Hargreaves, who was expected to preside but was prevented. The principal speakers were the Revs. Jas. Hind and C. A. Collingwood, who supported the cause with earnest eloquence and persuasive facts. Mr. Hind's speech comprised a vigorous denunciation of popery and its abominations, the speaker expressing his satisfaction that popery was being met in its very strongholds by the genial and spiritualizing influences of protestantism, and stating that either at home or abroad the more the knowledge of the Bible by direct teaching or individual reading of it becomes known, the less chance had popery, whose purpose was to conceal such knowledge and substitute priestcraft, of making any headway. A vote of thanks was given to the chairman. The total collections and donations were in advance of last years' by £11 15s. 0d., as against £9 odd, which was a very satisfactory result and proves that Oulton has done her part towards making up last years deficiency in the general mission fund. The congregations at each service were fairly numerous.

THE MINERS' AGITATION.

The general effort of the miners to obtain an advance on the present rate of wages has deepened and extended greatly, and the meeting last week was only a sample of similar gatherings all over the coal producing counties.

On Friday afternoon, the eight men appointed to meet Messrs. Charlesworth, their employers, went to Lofthouse, and were cordially received by Messrs. J. Charlesworth, C. Charlesworth, and W. Hargreaves.

The result of the interview was an offer by the firm of ten per cent. advance on their rate of payment, to commence at once. The deputation considered this a very reasonable and generous proposal, and promising to submit it to a mass meeting of the men, thanked the masters, and withdrew.

A general meeting of the men was accordingly called on Saturday, and was held at two o'clock, in the field adjoining the Queen Hotel, Carlton. There was a good attendance, and Mr. T. Kale was chosen chairman. After a few remarks from the chairman, Mr. J. Stead, Junr., on behalf of the deputation reported the result of the interview with the masters, offering an advance of ten per cent. on the present rate of wages, to commence on Friday, Oct. 20th, providing the men accept the proposal at once. The deputation were also informed that if this is not accepted, the masters will take a 14 days' notice.

There was some discussion on the subject, a resolution being proposed to adjourn the decision; this, however, was not seconded, and it was unanimously agreed to accept the terms offered.

A motion was then made to join the district Union, but after several had made remarks for and against, this suggestion was declined, and it was resolved that the workpeople employed under Messrs. J. and J. Charlesworth, form a Union of their own; entrance 1s. and a weekly payment of 3d.

Mr. Alfred Steel was elected secretary pro tem. About 100 men gave in their names to the New Union.

The generous example set by the Messrs Charlesworth was yesterday followed by the West Yorkshire Coalowners' Association who offer 10 per cent advance. They, however, give warning that another 1s. per ton must be put upon coal. As the offer will probably be accepted, the anticipated strike, so far as West Yorkshire is concerned, may be considered at an end. We believe that the public will not object to pay a little more for coal, if the miners' condition is only improved.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

On Saturday evening last, the opening services of the Rothwell Temperance Hall were continued, when a miscellaneous entertainment was given by the members of the Hunslet Temperance Choir; the room was quite packed, and many had to be refused admission.

The first and last items of the programme were selections by the Rothwell Temperance Band; and part songs, glees, duetts, and anthems were well rendered by the Hunslet friends. The duett "Matrimony" by Miss Lindley and Mr. Rawcliffe, and the comic song "Beautiful Baby," by Mr. A. W. Moss, who was attired in long flowing gown and white cap, with a large wax doll in his arms, seemed to take the best with the audience, and throughout the pieces were well rendered.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

A meeting of this Society was held on Wednesday evening, in the Mechanics' Institute. There was not a large attendance owing to the attractions at the Wesleyan Bazaar. The earlier portion of the meeting was occupied in determining suitable subjects of debate, and it was arranged that the subject for next week be "Is the co-operative system as at present worked a benefit to the working classes." The remainder of the evening was then spent as a social meeting, when Messrs. W. Wright, G. Armitage, and J. Hirst gave several readings and recitations.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A very sudden death occurred early on Wednesday morning in Rothwell. It appears that Thomas Clarke, aged 45, living in Shore Ditch, has been more or less unwell for about a year, and he has been an out-patient of the Leeds General Infirmary for some time past; he has, however, been able to attend to his ordinary work, and seemed to be much as usual on Tuesday, retiring to rest about 9 o'clock the same evening; however, between 12 and 1 o'clock on Wednesday morning his wife was awakened by hearing him making a very strange noise; she at once got up and called in some friends, but he died immediately. The inquest was held at 5 o'clock yesterday, before Thomas Taylor, Esq. coroner, at the Hare and Hounds Inn, the verdict returned being "Died from heart disease and bronchitis." Deceased leaves a wife and four or five children.

PICKPOCKET.—During the Entertainment at the Temperance Hall on Saturday evening, James Hepton a lad 17 years of age, was discovered picking the pocket of Miss Annie Eliza Lunn, of Rothwell. Soon after the entertainment had commenced, Miss Lunn observed the lad take his hand out of her pocket and leave the room. On examining her pocket she found her purse open and two shillings missing, and at once made the affair known. The report had evidently reached the ears of Hepton, for at the close of the entertainment, he returned the money to its lawful owner; he was however taken to gaol on Sunday morning, and was brought up on Tuesday and remanded until to-day.

ACCIDENT IN THE FOOTBALL FIELD.—Last Saturday an unfortunate accident happened to James Fielding, a Rothwell young man, by which his collar-bone was broken. During a game at football in Sty Bank between the Harmonic 2nd and the Mechanics', (the latter club of which he is a member) he came into violent contact with a player of the opposite side, which caused the accident.

WE are sorry to learn that Major Sheldon, of Oulton, who happened an accident in the pit a week or two ago, succumbed to his injuries in the Leeds General Infirmary on Monday last.

WE understand that yesterday the Bishop of Ripon instituted the Rev Frederick Fawkes, clerk, to the Vicarage of Rothwell, and according to present arrangements Mr Fawkes will be inducted to-morrow, and read himself in on Sunday morning.

ACCIDENT.—This morning at about two o'clock, an accident occurred at the Midland Pit, Rothwell Haigh, to a hurrier named Harry Pape Smith, son of William Smith, of Rothwell, whereby his leg was severely crushed, it being "jammed" between a corf and the side. He was conveyed home at five o'clock in a cart.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

WE hope next week to publish No. 5 of "Villiage Churches," Stanley.

WE have pleasure in announcing that the Aurora Bicycle Club will hold their concert shortly after the Dramatic performance announced last week; probably December 4th. Several old favourites will appear, amongst the number Mr Walter Radley, (of the Blackpool Winter Garden Concerts). Something novel may also be expected from the members of the Club.

FOOTBALL.

NOTICE.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

TO-MORROW'S MATCHES.

At Rothwell, Rothwell v. Parkwood Springs, (Cup Ties)

At Rothwell, Harmonic 2nd v. Hopetown

At Oulton, Oulton v. Stourton Rovers

At Oulton, Rothwell Harmonic v. Hunslet Wesleyans, (Cup Ties,) Final

SHEFFIELD ASSOCIATION CHALLENGE CUP.

The first round of ties resulted on Saturday in several exciting games. The following is a summary of the matches:—

Middlesbro' beat Redcar by five to two

Surrey beat Park Grange by three to one

Rotherham and All Saints played a tie—3 goals each

Pyebank beat Barnsley Wanderers by six to none

Notts Trent beat Hallam by two to none

Walkley beat Burton Star by one to none

Heeley beat Eckington by three to one

Attercliffe beat Thurlstone by six to none

Wednesday beat Oulton by eight to none

OULTON v. SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY.

(CUP TIES).

Last Saturday the above teams met at Oulton to play their tie in the first round of the Sheffield Challenge Cup. A fair company of spectators were present considering the weather. Shortly after three o'clock West started the ball from the centre, the visitors, however, proved too good for the home team, placing goal after goal to their credit, without ever having their own citadel in danger, and when time was called, Sheffield had scored 8 goals to Oulton nil. For Oulton, Bradley, in the goal, played very well. Teams:—Oulton—Bradley, goal; Wilmot, R Jowitt, backs; W Hutchinson, capt., Key, F Parkinson, half-backs; T West, G Abbey, A Gosney, J Clarkson, Britton. Sheffield—H Ledger, goal; J Stevens, C Stratford, backs; A Malpas, J Hudson, half-backs; J Newbould, H Newbould, G Anthony, H Wilkinson, W Mosforth, R Gregory, capt., forwards

OULTON VICTORIA v. KNOTTINGLEY

Played at Knottingley on Saturday, and resulted in a win for Oulton by 2 goals to 1. Oulton kicked off down hill but the ball was quickly returned by one of the Knottingley backs, and the forwards following well up, sent the ball through the uprights. Oulton kicked off again, and held their own until call of half-time. The home team kicked off and the Victorians by a piece of good passing on the part of Crawford, Higgins and Moore, enabled Lee to equalise matters. Knottingley restarted, and Newbold quickly returned, and the ball was passed to Lee who again lowered the home citadel. A bit of rough play followed, the Oulton backs being fully employed, the visitors' goalman being sent flying through the goal. Time being now called the game ended as stated above.

ROTHWELL v. PARKWOOD SPRINGS.—Next Saturday the football field in Royds Green Lane, will be the scene of an encounter between the above teams, it being the first round for the Hallamshire Challenge Cup. As the Parkwood Springs Club hail from the great Yorkshire centre of the Association code (Sheffield), good play, will, no doubt, repay the spectators who visit the pleasant field of the Rothwell Football Club.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. HUNSLET WESLEYANS.—The above clubs meet in the Oulton Football Field, next Saturday, to play the final of the Oulton Cup Ties. As both clubs are confident of success, some interest will attach itself to the game.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—'By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.'—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'JAMES EPPS & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY BRAIN RESTORATIVE v. ALCOHOL.

THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY BRAIN RESTORATIVE has been introduced and perfected by the Proprietors to supply the craving for stimulants which exists after the cessation from taking intoxicating liquors, and the terrible malady Dipsomania has been cured in many cases by the use of the medicine. After taking two or three doses of

THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY BRAIN RESTORATIVE the craving for stimulants is abated, and if persevered with, a cure is effected. All who have friends suffering from this frightful disease should purchase a bottle, and induce them to try the Medicine.

THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY BRAIN RESTORATIVE has cured cases where men have afterwards risen to great eminence and usefulness. It is also extremely valuable (WHERE TOTAL ABSTINENCE IS NOT REQUIRED) in cases of General Debility, arising from excesses in living, overwork, mental anxiety, &c. It improves the tone of the system, and a course of the medicine will wonderfully restore the general health of the patient.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

One teaspoonful three times a day. If this medicine is taken, the use of alcoholic stimulants may be at once completely abandoned; it is better for the patient to do entirely without alcoholic stimulants, and take Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, &c.

THE BLUE RIBBON ARMY BRAIN RESTORATIVE
Is sold in Bottles at 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., or 11s., by all Chemists in the United Kingdom, or free on receipt of 33, 60, and 108 Stamps, or Post-office Order for 11s., by the Manager, Blue Ribbon Army Brain Restorative Depôt, Bishopgate Street, Norwich.

World Known—World Tried!!

For strengthening a debilitated constitution, these Pills are more efficacious than any other medicine. Persons of a nervous habit of body, and all who are suffering from weak digestive organs, or whose health has become deranged from whatever cause, should lose no time in giving these Pills a fair trial; their action is immediate, beneficial, and lasting, restoring order, health, and vigor in every case.

For Disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels.

These purifying Pills are confidently recommended as the most simple and certain remedy for Indigestion, Flatulency, Acidity, Constipation, and all Disorders resulting from disordered Stomach or Bowels. They act as purifiers, alteratives, and strengtheners of the stomach. Though powerfully tonic and satisfactorily aperient, they are mild in their operation and beneficial to the whole system.

Weakness and Debility—Nervous Irritability and Low Spirits.

The wholesome effect exercised by these admirable Pills over the Blood and Fluids generally, is like a charm in dispelling low spirits and restoring cheerfulness. Their general aperient qualities well fit them for a domestic medicine, particularly for females of all ages and periods of life. They quickly eject all impurities from the system, and regulate every function of the body, giving wonderful tone and energy to weak and debilitated constitutions.

Old Coughs, Colds and Asthmatic Affections.

These Pills, assisted in their action by rubbing Holloway's Ointment very effectually twice a day on the Throat and Chest, and keeping those parts covered with the preparation, will be found the most effective remedy for Asthma, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Influenza. They tranquillise the hurried breathing, soothe the irritated air-tubes, and assist in dislodging the phlegm which stops up the air passages. This treatment has proved wonderfully efficient, in not only curing old settled coughs and colds, but even asthma of many years' standing.

Complaints of Women and Children.

Any mother, nurse, or young person guided by the directions which accompany each box of Holloway's Pills, has at once available means for checking disease, purifying the blood, and expelling from the system all gross humours.

The Pills and Ointment are sold at Professor HOLLOWAY'S Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London: also by nearly every respectable Vender of Medicine throughout the Civilized World, in Boxes and Pots, at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 33s. each.

Full printed directions are affixed to each Box and Pot, and can be had in any language.

N.B.—Advice can be obtained, free of charge, by applying at the above address, daily, between the hours of 11 and 4, or by letter.

Worth a Guinea a Box.
BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above A GUINEA A BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain at the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness, and Swelling after meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. &c. The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame.

These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

Are a remedy for Coughs in general, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Shortness in Breath, Tightness and Oppression of the Chest, Wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled for anyone labouring under any of the above complaints need only try One Box, to prove that they are the best ever offered to the Public for Asthmatic and Consumptive Coughs, Hoarseness, and Oppression of the Chest. They speedily remove the sense of oppression and Difficulty of Breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. They give almost instant relief and comfort to those afflicted with the above distressing and, when neglected, dangerous complaints that any person troubled with any of the above complaints give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial.

The most violent Cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "BEECHAM'S PILLS, St. Helen's," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the Pills; if not on, they are forgery.

OUR NINTH BIRTHDAY.

The anniversary of the natal day is always considered a suitable subject for congratulation, and especially so, if the recipient of the congratulations is an only child.

We offer little apology for saying that it is now nine years since the Rothwell Times was born, as probably few will have become so impressed with the date of that important event, as to recollect the anniversary without being reminded. But most of our readers will pardon the warm exuberance of a parent's feelings, and excuse the public announcement of this auspicious day.

There is also a second cause for salaams, this being the completion of our first year as an eight-page journal. Commencing as a four page, (just half the present size), on November 1st, 1873, we extended our borders to a larger sheet, about weaning-time; when three years old, we advanced further, to a six-sheeter; and last November we celebrated the first week of our ninth year by turning out as a full-blown eight-page newspaper. This, our last step forward was warmly welcomed, and although we have not quite reached our anticipated increase, we are nevertheless, greatly obliged to the new friends who have become subscribers to the Rothwell Times.

May we ask, however, that the number of our subscribers may be still further enlarged. The mental strain, the consumption of time, the constant watchfulness, and the financial burden of supporting a good independent newspaper in a country village is no small matter, and we have already proved our desire to extend and improve the journal so that it shall be worthy of its native town and district, worthy of its subscribers, advertisers and correspondents, and worthy of its sire. We trust those who have hitherto only used the paper occasionally, may at once become regular supporters of the Rothwell Times.

In every movement, personal, social or national, we have ever used our influence for the benefit of those most concerned; our columns are always open for the discussion of general or local public matters, and the publication of events transpiring in our midst; and our only desire is, that still further use may be made of our journal for the dissemination of knowledge, for the correction of abuses, and for the general advancement and improvement of all classes, especially our working classes.

We had the pleasure of bringing before our readers in our first enlarged number the proposed railway for Rothwell and district, and although the project failed this year, it is not impossible that the scheme is far from defunct, and may yet rise again. A harvest of over average yield has rejoiced the hearts of the farmers. Increased activity in the coal and iron trade, and a consequent advance in wages has provided a more reasonable means of subsistence for the miners and artizan. A tide of social and temperance advancement has changed the homes and characters of many into a happier aspect.

In commencing our tenth year, therefore, we are beckoned onward by a prospect of better times, more work, higher wages, and an improved condition of society.

As a newspaper can only live by the food and favour the public bestow, we repeat our request, that everybody, not only in Rothwell, but in the other villages round us, will use the Rothwell Times more freely, read it regularly, and advertise in it whenever necessary. If the public will do this, we will still hold to our motto, "giving full money's worth" and pressing forward in new ventures and improved features.

LOETHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of this Board was held on Wednesday night at Carlton School, the members present were Mr. Oliver (chairman). Messrs. J. Appleyard, T. Hargreaves and W. Keightley, with the clerk, Mr. Lee. The receipts since last meeting are school fees, £19 6s. 6d.; books sold, £2 5s. 1d. Cheques were signed for £33 6s. 0d. the month's salaries and cleaning.

The salary of Miss Ledger, the assistant mistress at Robin Hood School, was advanced to £55 per year. Mr. W. A. Mirfin, of Oulton, was appointed assistant master at Robin Hood School at £40 per year.

The Board signed a precept upon the overseers for the amount required up to March next, which will require a rate of 5d. in the £. One application for remission of fees was made and granted. The clerk laid before the Board the accounts made up to the end of September, which were duly inspected and signed by the chairman. Robin Hood Schools will be opened on Monday next having been closed a fortnight owing to fever in the village.

CONCERT AT OULTON.

A concert for the benefit of the Church choir fund, was given in the Church Schoolroom, Oulton, on Friday evening last. There was quite a formidable list of amateurs announced to take part, viz:—Mrs. Lees and Mr. Lees, junr., (of Rothwell); Miss Stead, Woodlesford; Miss Smith and Miss Fergie, Oulton; and Messrs. T. West and C. Grosvenor, vocalists; who each sang one or more pieces, except the two last named ladies who were to sing a duet, but were prevented by one of the ladies having a cold. The Misses Stead, of Oulton; Mr. W. G. Smith, of the same place, and Mrs. Lees, as instrumentalists, each of whom gave piano selections, either solo or duet, Mr. Smith also accompanying the songs.

The playing of the Misses Stead in a concerted piece was especially good, and received a well-merited encore.

The choicest items in the programme were however, two violin solos by Mr. J. W. Acomb, of Leeds, who was professionally engaged, and the rendering of several glees, by the Church choir also deserves favourable mention. The programme was a very long one, but the encores were nevertheless frequent, and not always discriminating. The room was decorated with plants and other embellishments. The audience was however sparse in number, and after payment of expenses there would not, it is to be feared, be much left for the augmentation of the choir fund. The Rev. R. H. Hamilton presided.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

On Wednesday evening, notwithstanding the inclement weather, about 14 members turned up for the debate on "Is the Co-operative system, as at present carried out, beneficial to the working classes?"

The president, Mr. Harms was in the chair. The affirmative side was taken by Messrs. B. Batty, Whitehead and Denton, Messrs. James and Geo. Armitage, Jun., supporting the negative reply; some excellent arguments being used on eitherside. On the vote being called, the numbers were equal, the chairman declining to give a casting vote either way.

OUR VILLAGE CHURCHES AND THEIR SERVICES.

No. 5, STANLEY.

Another of the villages which lie on the route of the Wakefield and Aberford Road, and are contiguous to the valley of the Calder, is Stanley. It is part of the township of Stanley-cum-Wrenthorpe, which is a wide and comprensive district, adjoining the parish of Rothwell on one side, and running so close to Wakefield on the other that part of it, (East Moor) is actually in the borough, while south-eastwardly it is only separated by the river from Altofts and Normanton. It comprises in all a dozen differently named villages or hamlets, and within its bounds, in the vicinity of Wakefield, is the extensive West Riding Lunatic Asylum. It is chiefly a coal district, Messrs. Charlesworth, and Messrs. Hudson & Co. being the principal colliery proprietors, but there is also a twine spinning mill, of considerable dimensions, at or near Lofthouse Gate. At Lake Lock, too, the Aire and Calder Navigation Company have some rather extensive workshops, which some years ago constituted their chief plant for engineering purposes and for boat-building in connection with their very important carrying system, but these industries have in a great measure been transferred to Goole, and the use and importance of the Lake Lock establishment has become very limited. The district varies in the matter of rural attractions; some parts are not particularly fascinating, while others are considerably so, the portions which lie on the Wakefield and Aberford Road between Oulton and Wakefield presenting perhaps some of the most pleasing landscape pictures to be seen in the district. In this respect Lake Lock is a point of vantage from which views reaching almost to Pontefract and to the suburban portions of Wakefield, not to mention other distant places, can be seen and, on fine days enjoyed. Beyond Stanley village, from the higher level reached by the steep hill on the high road, pleasing and extended views may part be had occassionally, especially from the named Pindar's Fields, which locality has traditional associations with Robin Hood and his lusty followers and the Pindar of Wakefield of that period. From this point too, is obtained perhaps the most interesting view of the church about which I am writing, and which is a little more than a mile distant. The original water works for the supply of Wakefield, established nearly 50 years ago are at Stanley, but a new scheme is now in progress for a supply from a distant source will soon shut up this earlier, and in its day useful enterprise, which has, however, for a long time by reason of the increasing impurity of the Calder, been ill adapted to the requirements of Wakefield or any other place. At Stanley Ferry, which takes its name from the old flat ferry boat, which was until the recent erection of a bridge, the medium for traffic across the Calder, coal in considerable quantity from the collieries in the district, is shipped aboard the canal boats, a dock or basin, diverging from the canal with shoots or staiths at various points, being provided for the purpose, and the coal is brought to the place along railways worked by locomotive engines.

At the same place a very interesting piece of engineering skill may be seen in the aqueduct, which carries the canal over the river. It is a sort of huge open cistern, with roadways on each side, and relieved by two parallel arches in segments, extending longitudinally from end to end, and containing other structural devices and arrangements for strengthening and embellishing the work. It is elegant in appearance, skillful in design, and well adapted to its special purpose, and was deemed to be of sufficient general interest to warrant its being shown at the first International Exhibition held at London, in 1851, in the form of an admirable model, made to an exact scale, and shewing every detail of the structure just as it stands.

There are no residential mansions of very imposing character in the township. Stanley Hall is a plain stone building with a limited park; and Hatfield Hall, while perhaps a little more interesting architecturally has a still more limited domain, and is too near the collieries.

The Lunatic Asylum already mentioned, is one of the largest places of its kind, and has more than doubled in size during the last 40 years. Its inmates average from 1500 to 2000. There are a good many acres of ground for industrial and recreative purposes, while indoors provision is made for almost every kind of amusement likely to mitigate the capricious and always distressing malady which is dealt with at the place, and to excite as far as possible a rational interest.

Stanley Church (Saint Peter's) occupies an elevated situation at Lake Lock, (once a Roman station), the grave yard being bounded on one side by the public road, but at a considerably higher level than the road. It was built or rather completed in 1825, and is in the perpendicular style. It is a very substantial building, and in excellent condition. At the west end are two octagonal towers or turrets, one of which contains the only bell there is at this church, which has a tinkling treble rather than a resonant tone.

The building is under one continuous roof, and was formerly rather a desolate looking place as far as the interior was concerned, having a large gallery running along the west end and the two sides, and altogether much too large for the number then attending its services. The organ was in the gallery, and the choir also such as it was, while the clerk of other days—a now defunct species—led the responses, and slept in undisturbed quietude during the sermon, in his reading desk below the parson, attired in the characteristic black gown. The west or end gallery only now remains, and the removal of the side galleries and the erection of two rows of columns and arches have much diminished the sitting accommodation, and corrected the disproportion between space provided and appropriated. These alterations have been long in existence, and a large proportion of the cost was borne by the late John Maude, a wealthy resident living at Moor House. Much more recently the choir has been isolated from the congregation by a memorial screen. The organ stands on the north side of the choir, and the reading desk and pulpit in front, the latter being the original pulpit cut down and altered to quite stunted proportions.

The east window is of stained glass, representing scriptural subjects, and there is a little coloured glass in the west window over the gallery, and one or two small memorial tablets, of no general interest, comprise the monumental records within the building. The vault or crypt below the floor was formerly used for interments, and could be used by anybody willing to pay extra fees for the doubtful advantage of having their friends "cribbed, cabined, and confined" in brick and stone tombs, within the dismal subchamber. There is an ample space of graveyard attached to this church, considerable additions having been made from time to time, some of them being the burial ground for such of the deceased inmates of the Lunatic Asylum as are not removed for burial by their friends. For these a space is allotted, and they rest chiefly in nameless graves, "heirs but to some six feet of sod," very few of the mounds having any record of who rests below.

At the time of the terrible cholera outbreak in 1848, about 100 of the asylum inmates who died from that disease were buried here, nearly a score having been brought for interment in a single day, when the scourge was at its worst. A small plain stone records the number buried, who died from cholera at that time. The yearly value of the living is between £200 and £300 with residence. The living is in the gift of the Vicar of Wakefield for the time being, and has been held by the present Incumbent, the Rev. Richard Burrell, M.A., of Christ's College, Cambridge, for about 28 years. Mr. Burrell is a high churchman of a marked type. He was previously curate at Horbury under the Rev. Jno. Sharp, whose doctrines and style he seems to have wholly imbibed He therefore went to Stanley, an apt and confirmed disciple of the ritualistic school, and one important result of his going was a split in the congregation.

The ministrations had for some time previously been conducted by a curate in charge, the Rev. Robert Bickerdike, a low and broad churchman of the true evangelistic kind, free from narrow bigotry and intolerance, yet withal a good churchman. Many of the congregation would have rejoiced in the appointment of Mr. Bickerdike to the vacant living, but the oppressive system of church patronage which gives the congregation neither choice nor potent voice in the matter, of course prevailed, and a full-blown high churchman was thrust on a congregation whose previous experience gave them little knowledge of the sort of service Mr. Burrell would be likely to introduce. When, therefore, he appeared at the "reading in" service well nigh half the assembled congregation rose and left the church as a protest against the sort of Incumbent forced upon them.

The services gradually and ere long drifted away from their previous simplicity into the style of the Horbury school, the faithful residue of the congregation passively acquiescing untroubled by doctrinal scruples and thinking probably that attendance at church once or twice each Sunday was the sum total of their duty, no matter in what guise the spiritual repast was served. This it need scarcely be said is still the kind of service at Stanley Church, the "education" of the congregation and confirmation and developement of the style, aided as Mr. Burrell has been by faithful curates of his own school, being an easy matter.

One result soon accomplished was the formation of a greatly superior choir, the style of the service as well as Mr. Burrell's musical instincts naturally leading to this result. For a very long time, therefore, Stanley Church has been noted for its high ceremonial, its creditable music, its typical symbols and embellishments, its almost childish regard for saints' days and its gregorian chants.

The churchyard gives no less palpable evidence of the high church spirit, crosses and other fantastic devices of various kinds, and grave stone inscriptions savouring somewhat of Romish doctrine and faith, having greatly superseded the plain stone, simple, if some times illiterate, records of former days.

The sort of service prevalent at this church is already sufficiently indicated by the above remarks. The choir, although not much seen, can be heard to considerable advantage, and their efforts are well supported by the organist, who is a professional or semi-professional from a distant town. Mr. Burrell's preaching presents no particularly noticeable feature. It is intelligible and sufficiently practical. His voice is not unmusical, but the intonation is rather too much like his intoning of the service, and there is a sort of mannerism in his enunciation.

Personally he is deservedly esteemed by a good number of parishioners, and by some who have no liking for his doctrinal views and demonstrative ceremonial, for he possesses all the zeal for doing good and making himself useful among the people of his congregation and beyond those limits—from his points of view of course—which is usuallly found in the religious devotee, especially if he be of the thorough going high church kind.

Where we differ we have no right to condemn, as if there were no virtue and no merit on the other side, especially when it may truly be said of our opponent or the one whom we would criticise, that > "He is serious in a serious cause,

> And understands too well the weighty terms
> That he has taken in charge."

I will now conclude my notice of Stanley Church and its services, and as regards the latter will leave them with their merits and demerits and the good or indifferent spiritual and moral influences they may exert, viewed as they must be from differing standpoints with feelings governed, it may be in a great measure, by preconceived notions; and I sincerely trust that Mr. Burrell may live many years to do his duty in his sphere and calling in the way which his conscience dictates, and his preferences incline him, whatever differences of opinion there must be as to his method and the relative or comparative merits of it.

PULLMAN CAR INQUEST.

A full report of this sad accident is given in page 7. Further evidence was taken on Wednesday, when the enquiry was adjourned till Tuesday, for the attendance of the late Dr. Arthur's three companions in the car.

THE CLOSURE.

The concluding speeches on this important question were delivered last night, Sir Stafford Northcote finishing up the opposition, Lord Hartington replying on behalf of the Government. There was a full house, and the vote was taken shortly before one o'clock, when the numbers recorded were:—

For Mr. Gibson's Amendment	238
Against	322
Majority for the Government	84

THE MINERS' AGITATION.

It is gratifying to know that the South Yorkshire owners have conceded the 10 per cent., with a view of averting the impending strike, and that taken generally, all miners are now working at better wages. The public, however, are having to pay another advance of 1s. a ton. A better and more confident business tone is manifesting itself throughout the country, and a gradual improvement is taking place.

WAKEFIELD COUNTY COURT.

(From our Wakefield correspondent.)

LONGBOTTOM v. THE OULTON WITH WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

(BEFORE MR. W. T. GREENHOW, JUDGE.)

On Tuesday last, an action was brought by Mr. John Longbottom, formerly master of the Boys Department of the Woodlesford Board School against the School Board to recover the sum of £10 for one month's salary in lieu of sufficient notice given to terminate his engagement, and 16s for damages from being deprived of the enjoyment of a dwelling-house for the greater part of the same month. Mr. Wm. Wright, solicitor, of Rothwell, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Warren, (Messrs. Ford and Warren, Leeds,) for the defendants.

On opening the case for the plaintiff, Mr. Wright stated that his client was appointed master of the Woodlesford School in November 1879, and commenced his duties at the school on the 1st February 1880, and continued to hold the appointment until the 6th of June in the present year, when he received notice from the Board to terminate his engagement two months from that date, no reason being given at the time, nor had any since been given by the defendants to his client. On the 14th of June plaintiff wrote to the Board claiming the customary three months' notice, and requested to be allowed to have an interview with the Board; this request was not granted for some time, but at length the plaintiff obtained an interview, and was proceeding to state his case to the Board, when the chairman told him that unless he could confine himself to ten minutes, he, the chairman, should not remain in the room; plaintiff was unable to do this and the interview came to an end, and the present proceedings had been instituted. The Board had since granted a testimonial to the plaintiff. Mr. Longbottom had given up possession of the school-house and other property of the Board on the 12th of August under protest. The learned judge decided at the outset that the claim for house rent could not be sustained.

Mr. John Longbottom was examined, and stated that no agreement had been made between himself and the Board as to the conditions of his engagement, although he had several times drawn the attention of the defendants to this fact, and on one occasion had offered to submit a form of agreement to them. On many occasions his salary which was due on the first day of each month, had not been paid until the 8th or 10th and even the 11th of the month, and he had frequently complained about it. He had been a schoolmaster for a long time, and had invariably given three months notice which according to his experience was the custom.

Cross-examined by Mr. Warren.—He had never been in the service of a School Board before coming to Woodlesford, and had no experience whatever of the practice of School Boards in respect to notices. It was his duty to keep an account of the school fees received by him every week, and repay them to the person appointed to receive them. He did not admit that it was his duty to obey the order of the Local Government Board which is printed on the first page of the School Fees Book, and which directs that the fees shall be paid over every week. He was aware that the Auditor had complained more than once of his irregularity in paying over the school fees, and he had also been instructed by the Board to pay them regularly; the clerk had frequently written to him requesting him to be more regular in his payments. The auditor had also complained of the schoolmistresses. He had been summoned before the Board for being intoxicated, and had admitted the charge to a certain extent.

Re-examined by Mr. Wright.—The reports concerning his intoxication referred to a period in 1881, when the schools were closed for the holidays.

Mr. Robert J. Smith, clerk to the School Board, stated that plaintiff had very frequently neglected to pay over the school fees when due, and between March 1880, and June 1882, there were about 18 cases of irregularity occurring at intervals. On one occasion plaintiff had withheld the fees for 6 weeks, and twice for 4 weeks, and on many times had been two and three weeks behindhand in his payments. He had written repeatedly to the plaintiff about his irregularity.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wright.—The plaintiff's salary was not paid on the day on which it was due, would not swear that it had not been paid as late as the 11th of the month, but would swear that such had only once been the case. The Board had not dismissed plaintiff summarily, and had not given instructions that he should be informed that such was the case He had informed the plaintiff in a letter that it was entirely out of consideration of himself that he had received two months notice instead of one. A testimonial had been given to the plaintiff by the Board in September last. (Mr. Warren.—The plaintiff has some excellent testimonials, it appears that he can sing the "Village Blacksmith" remarkably well).

The meetings of the Board were held on the first Monday in the month, and the salaries were usually paid to the teachers on the following day. Since the complaint of the auditor in January 1881, the schoolmistresses had always paid over their fees when due.

The learned judge was of opinion that as the plaintiff had not been dismissed summarily, and had since received a testimonial from defendants, the plea of justification could not be entertained.

Mr. Warren contended that his clients were entitled to bring forward any plea they thought fit, and quoted authorities in support of his contention, moreover the Education Act showed that a schoolmaster held his appointment at the pleasure of the Board, and might be dismissed without notice. He would however show that by "custom" the plaintiff was only entitled to one months notice.

Mr. Sidney Smith clerk to the School Management Committee of the Leeds School Board, stated that there were over 400 teachers under that School Board, and that on only one occasion had more than one months notice been given or received. They have teachers coming from all parts of the country, and they invariably stated the practice of School Boards to be to give and receive one month's notice.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wright,—He had had no experience under any but the Leeds School Board.

This evidence completed the case, and Mr. Wright sought to prove that plaintiff was entitled to three month's notice. The judge said that the case seemed to be whether a reasonable notice had been given, and from the evidence brought it appeared to be the practice of School Boards to give and take one month's notice, also that the master held his appointment at the pleasure of the Board. The defendants might have given one month's notice, which under the circumstances was a reasonable one, but had very generously given the plaintiff two months, which was more than he was entitled to. He therefore gave a verdict for the defendants.

The case created considerable interest in the Court.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—There has been a good attendance at to-day's market. The demand for wheat, however, has not been brisk, and holders for some classes have had to submit to lower prices. Maize, beans, peas, oats, and flour without change. Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—We had rather a larger supply of fat beasts on offer to-day, among them were 50 Canadian cattle, the remainder being Irish and Lincolnshire beasts. We must note a decline, especially for rough sorts, on last week's rates There were 90 more sheep than last week, but the high prices that have prevailed for some time past were still maintained. There was a larger show of milch cows and lean beasts, and a slow trade prevailed at late rates. There was an average trade in pigs at the following rates.

No. of		this week,		last week,
fat beasts,		2300		2040
,, sheep	,,	3810,	,,	3720
,, pigs	,,	430,	,,	364
,, milch cows &c	,,	130,	,,	112

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 7½d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £17 each.
Milch cows, £16 to £26 each.
Sheep, 8½d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 12s to 20s.
,, store, 50s to 70s.
,, fat, 7/- to 7/9 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN. Friday, 12.47. p.m.—There is a firmer tone in wheat trade this morning, and moderate business is passing without alteration in price. Small supply of English wheat at previous rates. Foreign barley in limited supply meets a fair enquiry. Good English barley in demand, secondary sorts are a slow sale. Beans, maize and oats firm. Weather fine and bright, and much milder than during the early part of the week.

LOFTHOUSE CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.

(COMMUNICATED.)

The members and a few friends of this association had a supper at the Rose and Crown Inn, on Saturday evening last, when a goodly number sat down to the excellent supper provided by Mrs. Steele. Supper being over, Mr. J. H. Lee was voted to the chair, whence he gave the toast of the "Queen and Royal family,' and urged our constant loyalty to the throne as being the cheapest, as well as by far the most stable and liberal of all kinds of government. Mr. W. Webster gave 'The Army and Navy' and dwelt upon our recent successes in Egypt, and pointed out that it was the most crucial test that the 'Short Service' system had undergone, and though introduced by the Liberal party, he was glad to admit that it had been a success.

Other toasts followed, amongst them being 'The Conservative cause,' which was given by Mr. H. Moorhouse, who contrasted the natural timidity of the party in general after the severe defeat upon the last general election, with their buoyant spirits, spirited speeches, and hopeful prospects after two years of rule by the Ministry of all the talents, and he also referred to the consistent and patriotic course followed by the Conservative leaders throughout their whole career, as compared with the members of the present cabinet, particularly referring to the rapid developement of revolutionary principles in Mr. Gladstone, as instanced in his Irish Church Dis-establishment and Irish Land Acts, and the inconsistency of Mr. Chamberlain remaining in a cabinet which passes coercion acts, increases taxation and launches into war to suppress any tendency towards Republicanism in a country other than his own, The toast, which was enthusiastically received, was responded to by Mr E Hartley, of Wakefield, who began by stating that Liberals were often asking what the Conservative programme was, and he said this only shewed their lack or ignorance of historical knowledge, for it was now as it had been for hundreds of years, to 'uphold our constitution as at present it exists in its general outline, yet they are ever ready to repair or improve in any way that the nation may think desirable, so long as the main bulwarks of the Throne, House of Lords, Established Church, and the Empire remains entire, and he dwelt upon the House of Lords in particular, shewing their freedom of thought as compared with the Commons, where the members are bound in their action by their constituents to a large extent. He also contrasted the superior debating power and extensive knowledge of the Peers over the Commons, inasmuch as nearly al the men who excel in the Commons are translated into the Lords, and the born Peers are in a majority of cases trained specially for the future duties they will be called upon to perform, whilst the majority of the Commons are merchants or men of other businesses, and who consequently cannot devote that extended study to politics which is practised by the Peers. He then contrasted the expenditure of the present government with the last Conservative, shewing an increase of several millions, and this was not due to any extraordinary cause, for the civil estimates, which are not subject to any capricious influences, have exceeded the last Tory expenses by over one million and a half. The Egyptian war, he stated, was a preventable one if it had been properly met, but as the present members of the government when out of office were anxious not to suppress, but encourage rising nationalities, this policy or apparent policy had instigated the Egyptians to rebellion, but only to find that their language was one thing and their actions, as is generally the case, quite the reverse. He also referred to the criminal neglect of the present government in not providing, as Lord Charles Beresford said a short time ago, a landing party after the storming of Alexandria to prevent the massacres and robbery which was practised upon the harmless and helpless citizens, and he ended a stirring speech by exhorting all the persons present to exert their whole power in striving to expel the present ministry from office. The toast of 'Success to the Lofthouse Conservative Association' was proposed by Mr. J. J. Dunn, of Wakefield, and after urging upon the members the duty of each man taking an active part himself, not only in the Association, but amongst his neighbours, spoke on the probable bad result of the Grand Committee clause in the Rules of Procedure.

The toast was suitably responded to by Mr. C. H. Green. The evening's enjoyment, which had been interspersed with songs and recitations from various members, was finally closed by a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman for presiding.

THE LATE MRS. CRAVEN.

Few attain the age of the lately deceased Mrs. Craven, and being the oldest inhabitant in Rothwell, and well known to most of the adults living here, we think a more than passing notice should be preserved of her. Mrs. Craven was born in 1797 at Lofthouse, the grand-daughter of Mrs. Wilson, and daughter of Mr. Dickinson, maltster. Mr. Dickinson inherited the Old Gaol property in Commercial St., and a good story is told how Mrs. Wilson, his mother-in-law, brought the purchase money in a white apron, all in silver half-crowns; she was dressed in a short bed gown and frilled cap, and came in that style all the way from Long Lofthouse to Rothwell. This property eventually came into the hands of Mr. Dickinson's children, the late Mr. John Dickinson and Mrs. Craven. For many years the husband of Mrs. Craven carried on business as a tanner on land now occupied by Messrs. Chapman's property in Commercial St. They afterwards removed for several years to Leeds, where Mr. Craven died about twelve years ago, and the old lady returned to Rothwell, where she found a comfortable home with Mrs. Benj. Asquith, at whose house she died about half-past ten on Sunday night, in her 86th year.

For nearly 70 years the deceased has been a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Society, during the greater portion of which she has actively engaged in various good works. Although very deaf during the last few years, she has regularly attended chapel, and until within a few months of her death, was conducted to her pew at least once on the Sunday.

She has outlived her day, but many will remember the kind old lady who first led them in the right way, as long as they live.

The funeral took place yesterday at 12.30.

FOOTBALL.

NOTICE.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

TO-MORROW'S MATCHES.

At Rothwell, Rothwell Harmonic v. Hunslet.
At Stourton, Stourton Rovers 2nd v. Rothwell B. S.
At Mexbro', Mexbro' v. Rothwell.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v HUNSLET WESLEYANS. (Cup Ties.)

The above match was played last Saturday, on the Oulton Football ground, before a large number of spectators. Owing to the previous game between Oulton and Stourton Rovers, the ball was not started until after four o'clock. From the commencement the game was very fast and exciting. The Harmonic were the first to attack, and quickly took the leather into their opponents' territory, very near the goal, but without any result; the Wesleyans forwards retaliated by a splendid run, in which they showed their superiority of speed, and after a little play in the Harmonic goal, the first point was secured through the instrumentality of Stead. The globe was again started, and play was for some time pretty evenly distributed over the field, neither side appearing to have much advantage. Hollings, for the Wesleyans, doing some excellent work back. Just before half-time H Taylor equalized things by a splendid screw kick which just dropped the ball under the bar. Ends were changed and hostilities again commenced. The Wesleyan forwards, led by Kelly, soon showed up in the Harmonic quarters, and for some time the backs had to do all they knew; Blakey worked hard and was a host in himself, the tide was at length stemmed, and the ball was taken to the other end of the field, where the Wesleyans had their work set to keep their opponents from scoring. It was now getting dark, and the ball was very seldom seen by the spectators. Just before time was up chances to score were offered at both ends but not accepted, and when 'no-side' was called the ball was in neutral ground, each side having scored 1 goal each. The tie will therefore have to be played off at some future time.

ROTHWELL v. PARKWOOD SPRINGS.—The above match was played last Saturday on the ground of the former, Royds Lane. Shortly after three o'clock the game was commenced, when it soon became apparent to all observers that the visitors would return defeated, 7 goals being scored by the home team, to the 'blades' one, during the first half. No more, however, were scored during the second half, so that the game ended as stated above. Pape, Wilson and Chadwick played well forward, while A Ward and Rawson were the pick of the backs. The following composed the Rothwell team: J R Seanor, goal; F Seanor, W Hartley, backs; A Ward, W Harrison, J Rawson, half-backs; G Dobson, A Green, A Pape, J W Chadwick, (capt) J Wilson, forwards.

OULTON v. STOURTON ROVERS.—Played at Oulton and resulted in a victory for the home team by 5 goals to nil.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC 2nd v. HOPETOWN.—Played at Rothwell last Saturday, and ended in a tie, both sides scoring 1 goal each.

POLICE NEWS.

WEST RIDING POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY

POCKET PICKING AT THE ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL—A lad named James Hopton, who has been previously convicted of felony, was brought up in custody on remand from Monday on a charge of stealing 2s 2d, the property of Miss Ann Eliza Lunn. The parties live at Rothwell, and it seemed that a fortnight ago they were present at an entertainment at the Rothwell Temperance Hall. The prosecutrix bought a penny book and changed half-a-crown to pay for it in the presence of the prisoner, who sat next to her. Miss Lunn placed two shillings in silver and fivepence in copper in her pocket, and shortly afterwards she missed it, and the prisoner had also left. She gave information to Police-constable Clarke, and the same night a mate of the prisoner's named William Fox took the money to Miss Lunn and told her that the prisoner had sent it, and that he had found it on a bench and took it— The prisoner now admitted that he picked the prosecutrix's pocket, and it was reported against him that he had been previously charged with stealing pigeons and saucers—He was sentenced to two months' imprisonment with hard labour, and Mr Gurney Leatham told him that he hoped it would be a lesson to him, and cause him to turn over a new leaf.

SAD CASE AGAINST AN OULTON WOMAN AND HER SON—Admiral Brear, joiner and cowkeeper, Oulton, charged Arthur Wilson, a lad eleven years of age, with stealing a silver lever watch and a chain, of the value of £3, and Ann Wilson, his mother, was charged with receiving the watch, knowing it to be stolen—It seemed that Mr Brear missed his watch on the morning of the 10th inst, and subsequently the female prisoner tried to pledge it at Leeds, where she represented that it belonged to Charles Parker, of Commercial Street, Rothwell. The boy admitted stealing the watch, and said that his mother knew where he got it from; and she said she was sorry she had not returned the watch to prosecutor—The female prisoner was further charged with stealing two table knives, of the value of 1s 6d, from St James's Dining Hall, at Leeds, the property of Mr William James Armitage and others—The woman, who was in the habit of supplying the institution with milk curds, said that a waiter gave her the knives—The boy admitted stealing the watch, and his mother said she knew he had stolen it—Superintendent Hall said the husband and father of the prisoners was a very decent man, and was employed at Messrs Bentley's brewery—Wilson confirmed this statement, and said he had been in the employ of Sir Charles Lowther for over thirty years.—The mother was sent to prison for a month, and the lad was ordered to receive six strokes from a birch rod by Police-sergeant Turton.

MONDAY

STEALING FROM HIS MOTHER.—Albert Hopkinson Hartley, a youth, 18 years of age, was charged with stealing a pair of drawers and other articles, the property of his mother, Mrs Harriet Hodge. The prosecutrix is a widow, and she said that the prisoner had been away for some weeks until Friday, 20th October On Tuesday, 24, he left again taking the articles mentioned with him, and he pawned them at Leeds. He returned on Friday last, when he was apprehended by Police-constable Wilson—Police-sergeant Turton gave a sad account of the prisoner, and said instead of being a help to his mother he robbed her all he could. The manager of Messrs Charlesworth's pits told the officer that they had tried the defendant all they could, but could not manage him—He was sent to prison for three months.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.—Persons wishing to have views taken of their residences, places of business, &c may have them at the following terms—cabinet size at 6s, the half-dozen, cartes de visite 6s. the dozen. As arrangements have been made for a good photographer to come over the beginning of next week, all orders should be given no later than Monday morning, to A. Marshall, Rothwell. Groupes and individual portraits undertaken.

ON Saturday last the Rev. F. Fawkes, our new vicar, was inducted with the usual ancient formalities, and on Sunday afternoon Mr. Fawkes read instead of his sermon the thirty-nine Articles, this ceremony being the only alteration in the ordinary service.

THROAT IRRITATION.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s. 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases, 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. THE ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD AND THE GULCHER ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Many of your readers are doubtless aware that a notice has been received by the Rothwell Local Board from the Gulcher Electric Light Company informing them that the Company intends to apply for a provisional order authorising them to supply electricity in our district, and that at a sub-committee meeting of our local authorities a resolution was solemnly carried to take up arms to repel the intruders, in other words that the application of the company should if necessary, be opposed in Parliament at the expense of the Rothwell ratepayers.

I can well understand, Sir, that the Gulcher application must have been a matter of amazement, even to the most sanguine believers amongst us, in the triumphs of science and the general progress of events, and I confess myself that I fear the Gulcher Company's operations will never pass the preliminary stage already arrived at, and therefore that the Local Board will never have the opportunity they so earnestly desire of combating those who contemplate bringing such a boon to our village.

But however visionary the idea may seem to Rothwell being electrically lighted, and however distant we may in our calmer moments place the day of such a revolution, the fact remains that the Gulcher Company's notice has been received and that it becomes our duty to consider seriously what action should be taken by our local authorities upon the question. I have, moreover, since I conceived the idea of writing to you, learned that a special meeting of our Board is convened for the 17th of this month to determine what course shall be pursued in the matter.

Now Sir, I am quite ready at the outset of admit that in almost every case where a Gulcher or other notice has been received, the local authorities of the town or district in question have resolved to oppose the application of the Company. But I have very little hesitation in saying that the reasons which have dictated this policy in other places do not apply here. The chief reason, no doubt, in almost all cases has been that the prospect of a Company with management and headquarters in London obtaining a locus standi in distant counties, and absorbing the profits arising from the public light supply and acquiring a temporary monopoly of the same has been regarded with peculiar jealousy. But how stands the case with us? I venture to think a few considerations will shew that if we reject the overtures of the Gulcher Company we shall be making a most grievous mistake.

1.—I maintain that the principle upon which the majority of local authorities have refused to receive London Companies, namely, that the profits of electric light supply should be retained in the district has no bearing on our case. We have a Gas Company which includes amongst its shareholders most of those people in our neighbourhood who would, but for its existence, be at all likely to provide capital for any similar undertaking. Is there the least probability that these people would ever promote a Company for the express purpose of competing with the Gas Company? I leave this question to the judgment of your readers. For my part, I fear that the interests connected with the Gas Company are so influential that Rothwell's chance of having an Electric Light Company of its own is very small indeed. And if I am right, Sir, if this is so, why should we be so anxious to exclude an outside Company? Surely the next best thing to providing ourselves with such a magnificent improvement is to have somebody else who will be content to incur the expense of providing it for us.

2.—But, Sir, the principle of excluding strangers as suppliers of light or of any other commodity is altogether bad. In cases where the strangers acquire no monopolies, this proposition needs no demonstration, and where monopolies are acquired they are for the future, so circumscribed and curtailed by parliamentary provisions that the hardships they work are reduced to a minimum. Shares in all Electric Light Companies are to be bought in the open market, so that Rothwell people might if they chose become participators in the profits (?) of illuminating our village, just as (tho' with far greater facility than) any Londoner may purchase shares in the Rothwell Gas Company. Moreover the electricity would be either produced on the spot or brought from a distance; if it were produced here, the employment of local labour would be a benefit to the working classes and everybody else, and if the electricity were conveyed from elsewhere that would only be because it could be procured more cheaply so; thus in either case the public would derive benefit.

3.—I need not dilate upon the effect competition has had in cheapening the necessaries of life. Any struggle that the Gas Co. might have to encounter with a rival illuminating Company could not fail to result in a great advantage to the inhabitants, while for my part I believe that so far from doing the Gas Co. any injury, the very reverse would eventually be the case. Indeed I have the fullest confidence in the value of gas shares, a confidence which has been most amply justified up to the present moment.

4.—Now Sir, in the event of the Rothwell Local Board doing anything so egregiously foolish as to squander and dissipate the rates in opposing the Gulcher Company, the inhabitants should demand and insist most strenuously upon their seeing their way to undertaking to supply the electric light themselves within a limited time. The cost of erecting plant to illuminate our main streets would be a small matter compared with that of parliamentary opposition, and unless the Board will consent to give this undertaking, an irresistible protest should be made against their opposing the Gulcher Company.

5.—But Sir, I would be the last person to advocate our Board applying for an act of its own. The whole question is far too unripe for any such proceedings. Existing patents are being rapidly superseded and any step in this direction would probably be attended with most grevious burdens to the ratepayers and swallow up a large portion of our revenues which in a poor district like this, we can ill afford to spare.

6.—Returning to the policy of opposing the Gulcher Company, I may, Sir, remind your readers that we have no security that after opposing and defeating the Gulcher Company, we may not find ourselves compelled to take up arms against the Swan Co., the Brush Co., the Hammond Co., the Edison Co., the Jablokoff Co., and all the rest of them, and that at the expense of the Rothwell ratepayers.

Last, Sir, but not least of the reasons why our Local Board should forbear from opposing is—that the cost of such a thing, if it is to be, should at least be borne by the Gas Company.

I now pass to the conditions and provisions for the protection of the public from monopolies, &c., contained in the Act of Parliament, passed last August, entitled the Electric Lighting Act, 1882. The following is a slight sketch of the Act:—

Sec. 2.—Two kinds of applications seem to be contemplated by the Act:—(1) for licenses (2) for provisional orders.

Sec. 3.—Licenses. The Board of Trade may authorise any local authority, company, or person, to supply electricity in any locality, subject to the following provisions:—

I.—The consent of the Local Board must be obtained.
II.—The period shall be seven years, renewable from time to time with the Local Board's consent.
VI. & VII.—Local Boards may obtain licenses.
VIII.—The Board of Trade may prescribe conditions for ensuring that the licensees shall perform their duties.

Sec. 4.—Provisional orders.—The Board of Trade may grant provisional orders authorising any local authority, company, or person, to supply electricity in any locality without the consent of the Local Board of that district, and for any period limited or unlimited, as the Board of Trade may think proper.

II.—No provisional order shall possess any force unless it is confirmed by Act of Parliament.
III.—Petitioners against the granting of the Act shall be allowed to appear in Parliament and oppose as in the case of private bills.

Sec. 5.—The Board of Trade may make rules which shall have the same force as if contained in this Act.

Sec. 6.—Regulations and conditions shall be inserted in all licences, provisional orders, or special Acts as to

(d) the limitation of the prices to be charged for electricity.
(e) the authorising inspection and enquiry from time to time by the Board of Trade and by the Local Board of the district.

The only other section of the Act which need be mentioned is the 27th, which relates to the purchase of the undertaking by the local authority and is perhaps the most important of all. Sec. 27.—Where a company is authorised by a provisional order or special Act to supply electricity within an area, any Local Board may within six months after the expiration of a period of 21 years, or such shorter period as is specified in that behalf in the application for the provisional order or in the special Act from the date of the passing of the Act confirming such provisional order require such company to sell, and and thereupon such company shall sell to them their undertaking upon terms of paying the value of all lands, buildings, works, material and plant. Provided that the value shall be deemed to be the fair market value at the time of purchase, but without any addition in respect of compulsory purchase, or of any profits which may or might have been or be made from the undertaking or of any similar considerations.

So much, Sir, for the Act. The Gulcher Company propose to apply not for a license (for which the consent of the Rothwell Local Board would be necessary) but for a provisional order for which no such consent is necessary. I think I have set forth quite enough of the Act to shew that Parliament is determined that for the future no oppressive monoplies shall be created like the water and gas monopolies under which London groans at present.

I remain,
Yours Truly,
COMPETITION.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble which really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

MR. CLAFTON'S Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful Miracles he has wrought.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,

C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,

JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,

FRANCIS H MARSDEN.
17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The ordinary meeting of the above Board was held on Monday evening, present,—Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman), J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Batty, J. Oliver, J. Sanderson, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector, and medical officer.

The minutes of last meetings were read and confirmed.

HIGHWAYS.—Mr. Worth, the surveyor being ill, was not present, and the Board felt themselves placed in a difficult position, having no one to take the oversight of the roads, and to report thereon. The state of Wakefield Road, as testified by several members is simply unbearable, and a lengthy and sometimes stormy discussion followed on the best means of tackling successfully with this very heavy and difficult piece of work. Mr. J. Hargreaves urged the necessity for a more energetic and experienced foreman on the road, and said it was a question with him whether it would not pay better to have the offices of surveyor and inspector divided. Mr. Oliver rather inclined to the same idea, but felt convinced that to attend to the work properly, the surveyor of roads should live at Stourton. Mr. Holmes, as chairman of the Highways Committee, had often felt his position a most unpleasant one, and strongly felt the need for a responsible person being on the road when work was commenced in a morning. The chairman said he was resolved some steps should be taken at once to alter the present state of things, and instanced cases of downright idleness and waste of time which he had himself observed. Mr. Oliver suggested that the Board should pave the other side of Bell Hill, and also lay a tramway from the paving to as far as the Railway bridge. He was aware that some of the causes of the bad roads had been already stated, but believed that the "extraordinary" traffic had also a great deal to do with it; there were a large number of traction engines and heavy waggons passing along, and greatly damaged the roads. The chairman said that when first the Board was formed, he advocated the laying of plates down Bell Hill, and if that advice had been taken it would have saved hundreds, perhaps thousands of pounds to the ratepayers. In reply to some remarks by Mr. J. Hargreaves and others, as to the danger of tram plates to other conveyances, the chairman suggested a plan he had seen adopted in London, of laying a line of plates down either side of a road and leaving the centre open for light vehicles. He was quite aware that these proposals could not all be carried out in one year, but it was necessary to use some other means than they had at present.

Mr. J. Hargreaves asked how it was that there were 2½ inch wheeled carts taking 34 cwt along the road, entirely contravening their byelaws; and he proposed that Mr. Hall be written to, asking him to instruct the police to take up any persons so offending.

Mr. Turner approved of the motion, but wished to know where the carts could be weighed, (the chairman, "Beeston pit,") but what was there beyond that towards Leeds, ("Mellor's is the next.") While he had no doubt the causes already adduced tended to the present state of the roads, he believed they did not adopt the proper mode of repairing them; by putting scrapings or other dirt or rubbish on the road, he held that they injured it.

The chairman moved "that tenders be advertised for, for paving the other side of Bell Hill as far as Carr Lane."

Mr. J. Hargreaves asked if any one had seconded his motion, on which Mr. Sanderson expressed his pleasure in doing so. He did not suppose Messrs. Charlesworth wished anyone to take over-weight. Mr. Batty thought it was a pity to have to call the police, when they ought to be able to use their own men for the purpose. Mr. Holmes doubted whether they could call in the police for this work. He also slyly hinted that perhaps they were casting a slur on Mr. Oliver who had undertaken this work, and did it well at first.

Mr. Oliver said he had done what he was required to do, and expected the surveyor would carry it out; he was sure, however, that their surveyor could not do this and attend to all his other duties properly; he supported the motion, which was then carried, the clerk at the same time intimating that the police already had instructions.

The chairman having again proposed the paving of Bell Hill, Mr. Oliver had pleasure in seconding the motion, it had long wanted doing. Mr. Holmes also supported it. On being put Mr. Batty and Mr. Turner were neutral, the other members voting in favour.

Mr. Sanderson in supporting the paving of this road had always been anxious to get good roads, but both the Board and the Highway Committee had failed hitherto; no doubt the great difficulty was the heavy traffic passing over it. As regards Mr. Turner's remarks, Mr. Sanderson explained the necessity for putting something on the top of the stone to make them hold together, one thing they wanted was a heavier roller. He then referred to the good road-making of Mr. Baildon and Mr. Morton. Mr. Batty believed that the material was sufficient in quantity, but deficient in quality.

Mr. Holmes pointed out that there was no comparison between the traffic on the roads Mr. Sanderson had referred to, (kept by the late Mr. Baildon and Mr. Morton), and the Wakefield Road. It did not matter what quantity or quality of material they put on, when 1400 carts a day were passing over it, they would never get a road at all. He also joked Mr. Sanderson on passing a vote of censure on the Highway Committee, of which he himself was a member, but Mr. Sanderson still maintained that, while not passing a vote of censure on anyone, the fact was there that they had not got a good road yet.

Mr. J. Hargreaves moved that their surveyor being ill, Mr. Jowitt be instructed to prepare specifications for letting and paving Bell Hill, and that the Committee meet him on Friday afternoon, to complete the same. Mr. Oliver seconded the motion, which was carried, Mr. Batty and Mr. Turner being neutral.

The chairman then gave fourteen days notice that at next meeting he will move—That the Board take into consideration the laying of iron plates from Old Engine to the Railway Bridge on Leeds and Wakefield Road.

REMOVAL OF SCRAPINGS.—In reply to tenders, as advertised for in the Rothwell Times, Mr. Bleasby's estimate was accepted for the removal of road scrapings and sweepings, etc., on the Leeds and Wakefield Road, up to March 25th, for the sum of £80. Mr. Oliver seconded, and Mr. Holmes in supporting bore testimony to the appliances in horses and "tips" which Mr. Bleasby possessed. Carried.

HEALTH REPORT.—The medical officer then made his monthly report ending Nov. 4th, from which it appears there have been 14 births, (8 males, 6 females), and 8 deaths, against 14 births and 9 deaths, the corresponding month of last year. The causes of death were as follows:—

Male, 3½ years, scarlet fever; male, 2½ years, croup, female, 74 years, cancer of uteris; female, 7 years, general tubercolosis; male, 76 years, hemipligia; female, 6 years, nephritis; male, 45 years, heart disease; female, 85 years, senile decay.

He was glad to say that the scarlet fever is subsiding, there being only one case in Rothwell; there is also a decrease in Robin Hood and Carlton, but a few cases are found in Lofthouse. There are two cases of typhoid fever at present, all the persons who have suffered from this disease living near the Cross.

TENDERS FOR KERBING.—Mr. Sanderson, having given previous notice, now moved—"That the resolution asking for tenders for kerbing, from owners of Bradford stone quarries, be rescinded." He believed that Robin Hood stone would do very well, was much less expensive, and he wished to give people at home a chance of supplying; it might not be so durable as Bradford stone, but it would last a long time. The chairman seconded the resolution, on the understanding that Robin Hood stone be used for straight work, and Bradford stone for the curved or circular work.

Mr. Holmes wished to know, before he decided, what was the exact price for which they could obtain Robin Hood kerbing. He had been told that Robin Hood stone was only half the cost of Bradford stone, which he very much doubted, as he had bought thousands of tons.

The tenders from four Robin Hood owners were read, as well as those for Bradford stone, and the difference between the lowest for Bradford stone, and the lowest for Robin Hood was only 6d. per yard.

Mr. Holmes therefore moved as an amendment—That the resolution stands as before "for the Bradford stone kerbing." Mr. Turner seconded the amendment, which was also supported by Mr. Batty, on the score of durability, and being cheapest in the end.

The resolution to rescind was also supported by three members, the chairman, Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Oliver. The votes being equal, the chairman gave his "cast" in favour of rescinding the resolution. Mr. James Hargreaves remained neutral.

It was then proposed by Mr. James Hargreaves—That the tender of Messrs. Whiteley be accepted for Robin Hood straight kerbing at 1/7, and Bradford circular at 2/9 a yard. Seconded by Mr. Batty and carried.

ESTIMATE OF EXPENDITURE.—The clerk read the estimated expenditure for the current half-year, as agreed by the Finance Committee.

Salaries	110
Street Lighting	80
Nuisance Removal	40
Repairs of Highways	750
Half year's Repayment of Principal and Interest	260
Election Expenses	10
Establishment Charges	20
Sewage Treating	143
Miscellaneous Charges	10
	£1423

It was remarked by the members that in the estimate for highways, the proposed paving had not been included, so that this item will be increased when final steps are taken.

Mr. Oliver, chairman of the Finance Committee, said they had not been able to recommend any rate yet, as the valuation list on which their rate was based, had not been completed yet.

Mr. Sanderson.—It is deposited to-day.

Mr. James Hargreaves thought, as it will be a fortnight or a month before it is finished, the matter might stand over:—agreed.

WATER.—The clerk read the following report of analysis made by Mr. Fairley, on certain water collected at Royds Green.

16, East Parade, Leeds,
October 23rd, 1882.

Analysis of Water from Royds Green.

This sample contains in Grains per gallon:—

(1)	Chloride of Sodium	4.10
(2)	Nitrates of Lime, e.c., ...	none
	Other substances, Salts of Lime, Magnesia, etc., ..	25.92
(3)	Volatile and Organic Matter ..	0.78
	Total dissolved Solids ..	30.80
	Containing lead or other poisonous metals ..	none
(1)	,, Chlorine	2.48
(2)	,, Nitric Acid	none
(3)	,, Ammonia	0.004
	,, also Organic Ammonia	0.007

The analysis shows that the water cannot be at present recommended as good for drinking purposes. The amount of impurity is just at the limit allowed in drinking water, and is more than is found in good water.

THOMAS FAIRLEY.

Mr. Sanderson enquired whether, in the event of Royds Green applying for water from the new Wakefield system, the Board would assist them in obtaining such a supply. He also wished to know whether this Board would be prepared to carry out the proposal for Mr. Lawton's water supply, if Mr. Bromet returned to his previous offer of paying half the cost. He had heard that an enquiry was being applied for, and if some arrangement could be come to he should be glad. It would no doubt, incur a deal of expense to bring water from Rothwell to Royds Green, and he would be glad to have the Board's assistance in getting a supply, as suggested by Mr. Charlesworth.

The chairman was quite sure the Board would be willing to assist Royds Green in getting a supply as indicated.

The clerk corrected Mr. Sanderson as regards Mr. Bromet's previous proposal; he offered to pay a third of the cost of laying Mr. Lawton's pipes, and the Board in reply proposed his paying half the cost, which was declined.

SEWAGE.—In the matter of compensation for owners' damages, the Board made an offer to Mr. Bramley in settlement.

RATES.—The collector reported having received and paid over to the bankers the following sums during the fortnight:—

	£	s.	d.
General District Rate	8	4	10
Water Rents	20	1	10
	28	6	8

Mr. Holmes reported having visited Keighley, and inspected a large roller 7 feet 11-in. in length, by 2 feet 6-in. in depth. No decision was come to, as to purchasing it.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

The meeting of the above Society was held in the club-room of the Mechanics' Institute, last Wednesday evening. The president, Mr. Harms, was in the chair, and 11 members were present.

A letter was received from Mr. W. Batty, in which he especially thanked the members for having elected him again, but stated his inability for certain reasons to retain the office of secretary. Mr. Harms, having expressed his sorrow at losing such a good and able secretary, and then proposed—That Mr. W. J. Knowlson be elected to that office; seconded by Mr. G. Armitage, and carried.

The subject for debate was the question "Ought compulsory education to be free." The affirmative view of the question was ably argued by Mr. W. Denton, who was well-supported by Mr. B. Batty. Mr. Denton's remarks were opposed by Mr. G. Armitage. As the proceedings began later than usual, there was no time left to admit of more speakers. In consequence of this the debate was adjourned to the following Wednesday, when a very interesting discussion is expected to take place

SUDDEN DEATH AT ROTHWELL.

A somewhat sad and sudden death occurred this morning in Armitage's Yard, Commercial Street. The deceased, Jane Ward, widow, has been ill for some months, and was left apparently no worse than usual last night. She spoke about half-past five this morning, but soon after was found dead in bed by her daughter

ELECTION OF MAYORS.

Yesterday the election of Mayors took place throughout the country. Councillor Edwin Woodhouse was unanimously elected Mayor of Leeds, many complimentary remarks being also made on the past services of Ald. Tatham. The Lord Mayor of London is Alderman Knight, and of York, Mr. Thos. Varey. Wakefield has chosen Mr. Geo. Mander, and Pontefract has re-elected Ald. Rhodes for the third time.

WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

The monthly meeting of the Board was held on Monday evening last, Mr. Jackson presiding, the other members present being the Rev. A. J. Irvin, Mr. Mason and Mr. Nowell. The clerk and attendance officer were also present.

The minutes of the preceding meeting having received confirmation, it was reported that night schools had been commenced by Mr. Green and Miss Abbey on the 9th October 1882, but in neither case had the attendance been sufficiently large to justify their continuance, and the teachers therefore wished to close after this week. The Board thought that a further effort ought to be made before finally closing the schools, and resolved to continue them for another month, in the hope that there may be considerable increase in the attendance, otherwise they will be discontinued at the end of November. It was also desirable that the pupils attending, should be urged to secure the attendance of others in order that the full benefit might be derived from the schools.

The clerk reported the result of Mr. Longbottom's recent action against the Board, in which a verdict had been given for the defendants, on the ground that the notice given was a reasonable one.

The clerk further reported that he had instituted proceedings before the Wakefield magistrates against Richard Biscomb, Edward Dennison, Wm. H. Hoyle and Jane Ward of Woodlesford; John Atkinson, New Woodlesford; Hannah Ingham, Oulton; and George Dickinson and Eliza Cockerham, of Fleet, for the non-attendance of their children at school; the cases were heard on Friday the 3rd instant. Fines of 5/- were inflicted in the cases of Biscomb, Hoyle (both of whom had been previously fined) and Denison; an attendance order was made in the case of Jane Ward, the summons against Atkinson was dismissed, and the remaining three were adjourned for a month.

Cheques were drawn for the usual salaries, and several accounts and the requirements of the school were ordered to be supplied. Remission of school fees was granted in one case until Christmas.

The Board decided to allow the Mechanics' Institution the use of the Girls school-room for an Art class for 1s per night, with fire and gas, four lights only to be used.

WESLEYAN MISSIONARY MEETING.

The annual sermons on behalf of the Wesleyan Foreign Missionary Society were preached at Rothwell on Sunday last, by the Rev, C. A. Collingwood, that in the morning being a most delightsome and profitable discourse on "I will be as the dew unto Israel, he shall grow as the lily, and cast out his roots as Lebanon."—Hosea, xiv, 5. The references to the dew, and the many illustrations of the Christian life drawn from its formation, its influence, and its character, were most tasteful and effective; the beauty and magnificence of the eastern lily, and the strength and stability of the Lebanon cedars, also set forth the distinctive beauty and stability of the Christian life in the individual and in the church. Mr. Collingwood's well known power and gifts as a preacher have seldom been more thoroughly demonstrated than on Sunday morning last. In the evening, the Rev. gentleman spoke on the year of jubilee, its origin, its characteristics, the mode of its being proclaimed, and its gladsome results; and very forcefully used the various points in the ancient jubilee of the Israelites, in exemplification of the grander continuous jubilee proclaimed in the gospel.

On Tuesday evening, the usual public meeting was held in the chapel. After singing and prayer, the Rev. Mr. Collingwood felicitously but briefly introduced Mr. George Lister, of Leeds, who had kindly promised to take the chair.

Mr. Lister, on accepting the honour, was cordially received, and after expressing his pleasure in being present, made some thoughtful and suitable remarks on the complaint "Why send missionaries to the heathen abroad, when there are so many at home? Had they not, he asked, the gospel preached at their very doors, they had the gospel sung in their streets; on the other hand, the people abroad had not heard of the Saviour, and were they to prevent missionaries going to them, because the people at home did not listen to the gospel? He warmly encouraged the young collectors, by boxes and by cards, and asked that when his hearers were confronted by a juvenile collector, that they would not turn them away with an unkind word, but if even they did not always give a trifle, they would at any rate help them with a smile and an encouraging word.

Mr. Collingwood then gave a short summary of the report for the past year, showing that the income of the Society was £130,093 0s. 3d., the expenditure being £143,215 10s. 10d. This deficiency of £13,000 had, by the liberality of certain gentlemen and grant from the Thanksgiving fund been cleared off, and now the committee earnestly desired that in order to meet the expenditure of the present year, an advance of at least five per cent. should be made on last year. This had been more than accomplished at the previous meetings in the circuit, and he trusted Rothwell would not be behind.

The amount contributed by the Wakefield circuit was £252 11s. 1d., in which Rothwell is included for £16 15s. 5d. There are 2439 chapels and preaching places, 531 missionaries, over 10,000 local preachers, teachers, &c., nearly 90,000 members and 12,934 on trial.

Although much had been done, there were still the many millions of India, of China, of Africa, who had not yet heard anything of Jesus and his gospel. To meet these great populations, they were establishing schools and training colleges, sending out lady missionaries who penetrated into the 'zenana' and instructed the women, and so by these native agencies, they hoped more speedily to reach these teeming masses of people.

Another hymn having been sung, the Rev. Joseph Olphert, of Dewsbury, delivered a capital address, which, while instructive and full of the true missionary spirit, was made thoroughly interesting and pleasing, by numerous apt anecdotes and witticisms, all illustrating or impressing the truths enunciated. He held that, accepting the motto "Charity begins at home" that being all one family and praying to "Our Father," every man and woman had a claim to the knowledge of the gospel sent by Jesus Christ, and it was our duty to send that gospel all over the world. Referring to the Zenana work in India, he reminded his hearers that 50 years ago not a woman dare sing in India; now ladies were going out as missionaries to these poor women and taking them the news of salvation. From the figures in the report it appeared that £127,000 had been raised last year on the mission field for the support of their own work; there were 12,000 persons on trial for church membership, four pentecosts in one year. Of the £130,000 raised for foreign missions, £17,000 was collected by juveniles, and he warmly encouraged those dear young people. In some remarks on giving, Mr. Olphert said the Bible plan was to do it with "simplicity," but there were some, of whom he gave instances, who gave with "duplicity," others for "publicity." He then reviewed some of the results of missionary labour, and in an eloquent peroration, pointed to the glorious coming of the Saviour as the king of kings, having "the heathen for his inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession." The usual votes of thanks having been presented to Mr. Lister and Mr. Olphert, the meeting closed with the benediction. The total collections on Sunday and Tuesday amounted to £8 3s. 7d. being 25s. more than last year.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—Our market to-day has been fairly attended, but the wheat trade has not been animated, and low prices have been taken to effect sales. Maize 1s to 2s dearer, and very scarce. Beans and oats firm, and flour without change. Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—We had a smaller supply of fat beasts to-day. There were four pens of Canadian cattle, the remainder being Irish and Lincolnshire beasts, and the quality generally was good. There was a good demand for all classes of mutton, but we cannot note any alteration on last week's prices. There were a few fat calves on offer. There was a fair trade in milch cows and lean beasts. We had a smaller supply of pigs, and no alteration on late rates.

	this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,	2150		2300
„ sheep	3300,	„	3810
„ pigs	420,	„	430
„ milch cows &c „	28,	„	130

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts,	7½d to 9d per lb.
Lean beasts,	£10 to £16 each.
Milch cows,	£14 to £28 each.
Sheep,	8¾d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small,	12s to 20s.
„ store,	50s to 70s.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield, Corn, Friday, 12, p.m.—There is a better enquiry for wheat this morning, last week's prices are maintained. English barley in limited request at rates in buyer's favour. For foreign there is still a moderate demand, but prices are rather above buyers' view. Beans and oats firm. Maize 6d. per quarter dearer. Weather cold, and rain falls intermittently.

LOFTHOUSE CRICKET CLUB.

The annual meeting of this club was held on Saturday last, at Mr. J. Steele's, the Rose and Crown Inn; as usual a most substantial supper was provided, to which a goodly number sat down.

Mr. Moorhouse presided over the meeting. Mr. Lee, the hon. secretary and treasurer, gave a report of the work done by the committee and the club generally through the year. The committee last winter thought it desirable that a professional should be engaged, the club being in want of bowlers, the young players also requiring some one to coach them in practice. Mr. J Charlesworth, with his usual generosity, said he would give a sum which enabled the committee to carry out the idea. In the spring an extra portion of ground was taken up and levelled, at a cost of £14; this addition has been most useful both for matches and practise; the appearance of the field is also much improved.

30 matches have been played by the 1st eleven, 11 won, 12 lost, 7 drawn, the result is much better than last year. John Noble has the best average for batting viz. 12¼, and H. Noble the average for bowling, viz. 6¼, this is a much better average than has been for some years. The 2nd eleven have played 20 matches, won 13, lost 5, and 2 drawn, this is also an improvement on last year. J. Newbould has the best average for batting, viz. 8½. W. Atkinson has the average for bowling with 4 runs per wicket.

The financial condition of the club is not satisfactory, the amount of subscriptions are much less, the gatemoney, also, the members responded very badly to the appeal towards the cost of ground levelling. The total income for the year is £62 10s. 10d., and the expenses £70 4s. 9d. Votes of thanks were given to the Secretary, Committee, Umpires, Scorers and Gatekeeper for their services. "Success to the Lofthouse Cricket Club" coupled with the name of "Mr. Charlesworth," president of the club was proposed by Mr. Moorhouse, who shewed the members that with them rested whether the club (which as a village club ranked high) should continue to hold its position, regular practise was required, good feeling, control of temper, and willingness by each one to do all they could to ensure the success of the club; the chairman reminded the members of the exceptional advantages they had in having such a president as Mr. Charlesworth, whose kindness and liberality to the club in many ways was so great; the toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiasm. Mr. Lee was re-appointed Secretary and Treasurer, Messrs. H. Moorhouse, B. Colley, W. Atkinson, J. Chadwick, W. Whittlestone, Thomas Whittlestone and Geo. Dewse are the committee for the ensuing year. At the close of the business a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman.

FEARFUL COLLIERY EXPLOSION AT CLAY CROSS.

A full report of this sad calamity is given in page 2. An inquest on the bodies was opened yesterday, when 32 bodies were identified; it is feared that the total number of deaths will nearly reach fifty. The inquest is adjourned till the 22nd inst.

LINES TO A MOTHER.

Forget thee! never while I've breath,
Should I forgetful be;
I'd sooner yield myself to death,
Than cease from loving thee,
My mother.

Music.—We have great pleasure in announcing that a fourth paper on 'Music' will appear in next week's issue.

Mechanics' Institute.—As advertised in another column, several ladies and gentlemen purpose giving a dramatic entertainment on Monday next in our public Hall, and we have no doubt a great treat is in store for those who may attend. An additional attraction, one which in itself should draw a large house, is the kind offer of the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society to give selections of music during the evening.

Cheap Advertising.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

KAY'S COMPOUND for Colds and Coughs, cures nine cases out of ten. Sold by Chemists.

FOOTBALL.

Notice.—We shall be glad to receive as early as possible from Hon. Secretaries a complete list of matches arranged for the ensuing season so that we may announce them week by week under the head of "Coming Events."

ROTHWELL v. MEXBORO'

The Rothwell team journeyed last Saturday to Mexboro' to bring off their fixture with that club. The home team having won the toss, chose to play with the wind in their favour. J. R. Seanor started the ball for Rothwell and a brief visit into their opponents' territory took place. The Mexboro' forwards retaliated by some splendid shots at the Rothwell goal, but the backs and custodian were equal to the occasion and once more the Mexboro' goal was endangered by Dobson, a six yards, however, placed the "bone of contention" at the opposite end of the field, and a sharp, low shot, captured the Rothwell citadel for the first time. Several times the home custodian had to use his hands, but each time the ball was returned in safety to neutral ground. Shortly before the end of the first "forty" Mexboro' again scored, and when ends were changed the home team had scored 2 goals to nil; considering that they had been playing with the wind in their favour and down hill there was nothing to dishearten the Rothwellians, and when the leather was once more started some fast play ensued; gradually, however, the visitors were driven back towards their own goal, and with two or three exceptions, remained there until the termination of the game, a severe bombardment of the Rothwell citadel being sustained throughout, resulting in the home team placing other seven goals to their credit, making the score for the home team 9 goals to the visitors nothing. For Rothwell, J. W. Wright played a splendid game between the posts, his handling and 'drop-kicks' being magnificent, and he deserves the highest praise for the manner in which he kept the goal, especially during the first half, which reminded one of his exploits at Altofts some two years ago, when the 2nd team of that club was playing Rothwell Mechanics'.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. HUNSLET.

The above clubs met at Rothwell on Saturday, the weather of the previous week rendered the ground very bad for running, at the same time there was some rare dribbling shown by both teams. Hunslet lost the toss and the home team chose to play with the wind in their favour. Pearson kicking off for the visitors, the ball was well returned by Swift; for some time play was kept in the visitors' quarters and the home forwads well aided by Taylor, Ward and Jackson, made several attacks on the visitors' citadel, but the fine play of the visitors' backs thwarted all their attempts to score, until by a determined rush they were rewarded by Ward scoring a magnificent goal. On the ball being restarted, the visitors seemed determined to equalise matters by their forwards making a raid on the home fortress, this bringing about half-time. On changing ends the Hunsletites with the wind in their favour played with increased vigour and several times besieged the Rothwell fortress and by good combined play on the part of Pearson and Gillings, the latter succeeded in equalising matters. The ball being once more in motion, Martin (of Sheffield renown) who played brilliantly throughout gained possession and ran the ball in splendid style through the thick of his opponents and succeeded in scoring the 2nd goal for the visitors, after which the home team seemed determined to score, making several attempts on the Hunslet fortress but by the good goal-keeping of Godson he averted the threatened score. Shortly before the call of time Kilburn obtained possession and passing to Harrison he succeeded in lowering the home team's colours for the 3rd time, thus leaving the visitors victorious by 3 goals to one. Nunns, Taylor, Swift and Ward played best for Rothwell; Martin, Pearson, Hawden, Harrison and Gillings being the pick of the Hunslet team. Teams:—Rothwell Harmonic. Brown, goal; Baines, Swift, backs; Hopkinson, Wright, half backs; Taylor, Jackson, (right wing) Ward, Blackburn, (left wing) Whitehead and Nunns (centres) forwards. Hunslet. Godson, goal; Stringer, Frith, backs; Hawden, Rollinson, half-backs; Harrison and Gillings, (left wing) Martin, Kilburn, (right wing) Pearson, Hindle, (centres) forwards.

STOURTON ROVERS 2nd v. ROTHWELL B. S.

This fixture was brought off at Stourton last Saturday, in very unfavourable weather. The visitors arrived in good time, and having won the toss, selected to play with the wind (which was very strong) in their favour. The ball was put in motion, and was soon in the home goal, where shies and corner-kicks were the order of the day, but without material result, the Stourton backs, Horn and Hutchinson, doing good work. After a time, however, the home forwards broke away with the ball, and Nash getting possession of it, took it nearly to the visitors' goal, and their custodian being a good way in front of his own goal, Nash kicked the ball past him, thus scoring the first goal, this being the only time, with one exception, that the visitors' goal was in danger.

The ball was again started, and taken into the home goal-mouth, more scrimmaging ensued, and ultimately a good shy by H Harrison equalized matters. Shortly after this occurence, Ellis (Board School) had another shot at the home citadel, but the ball striking the post and rebounding into play, the backs got it safely away. Half-time was soon after called, and after a few minutes respite, the ball was set rolling, and was quickly in the visitors' goal, the wind blowing harder than ever, but the Rothwell backs and goalman were equal to the occasion, Tiffany (the custodian) especially, making amends for his past bad play. The ball was run up the field several times by the Rothwell forwards, C G Harms and J Harrison showing up prominently in this work, and in one run up, a shot was made at the home goal, and one of the Stourton men fouling the ball, a free kick was obtained by the visitors, and after a bit of good passing, was neatly put through by Ellis. The sphere being again kicked off, shies were frequent at the visitors' goal, and at last one of the Stourton players, the Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, succeeded in placing it between the posts, thus making the score equal. Several shies and corner kicks were made by Stourton, but were of no avail, the good back play of Lewis and R W H Longley proving effective, and at the call of time the score stood 2 goals each, thus ending in a tie. The following is the Board School team:—Goal, W Tiffany; backs, R Lewis, R W H Longley; half-backs, J Speight, J Ellis, S Warwick; forwards, N Bennett, H Harrison, J Hopton, C G Harms, J Harrison.

OULTON VICTORIA v. ROTHWELL MECHANICS

Played at Oulton on Saturday and resulted in a win for the Victorians by 3 goals to 1. Oulton won the toss, and selected to play down hill and with the wind in their favour, and succeeded in lowering the visitors' colours three times in the first half. Ends being changed, the visitors only managed to lower the Oulton colours once, the game thus terminating as stated above. For Oulton Newbold and Bradley back, and A Ellis, T Higgins and Crawford (capt) forwards, played well, as did Ward, Hopton, and Ellis for Rothwell.

LECTURE ON CHINA.

Last Friday evening, the Rev. C. A. Collingwood delivered his lecture on "China and the Chinese," in the Club room of the Mechanics' Institute, Rothwell. Owing to the very stormy weather, the attendance was miserably small. Mr. J. Hargreaves occupied the chair, and introduced the lecturer. Mr. Collingwood then gave his lecture on the ancient descent, traditions and customs of the people, and the vastness, productions, and institutions of the empire. The wretched weather, and consequent small attendance, caused the rev. gentleman very much to curtail the address, but many interesting facts were stated in a pleasing manner to the evident satisfaction of those present. The usual vote of thanks was presented at the close

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

I notice on the walls prominent placards announcing that the dramatic entertainment for the benefit of the Rothwell Mechanics Institute, which I referred to some time ago, is to be given on Monday evening next. I hope the laudable efforts of the promoters will be properly rewarded by a good audience, and that the entertainment will in every sense be a success. The dramatic pieces are, I think, well chosen, and the intermixture of good music will give a most pleasing variety. We may therefore, I think, fairly calculate on a very enjoyable evening, and I trust that all the ladies and gentlemen who are to take part will be in good form, and shew to the best advantage.

I do not hear much of the Woodlesford Choral Society, but understand the members have begun the attack on Mozart's Twelfth Mass. I hope the result will not be a massacre in whole or in part of that fine but not easily mastered composition. There is musical capacity enough in the Society to ensure a creditable rendering of it, if regular attendance at rehearsals, and care and application in rehearsing are shewn. Of the doings of the Minstrel section I hear nothing. Is the newly formed Rothwell connection engrossing all the attention of one of the most prominent members, so that he is neglecting his "first love?" Or is he as I have hinted before, casting the "Minstrel" garb and foreswearing the complexion of "utter darkness" necessary to the genuine 'Christy.' I hope he will again enter the lists, even if this time is to be the "Last lay of the Minstrel," if I may be allowed thus to alter the words of 'Sir Walter.' (Please note that the rhyme is quite an accident. My line is prose, perhaps sometimes prosiness.)

'No 5, Stanley' of our Village Churches has at last appeared, after considerable delay and several postponements. Well, better, much better late than never. The writer possesses, I should say, much more than a general knowledge of his subject, some of the details and facts being as full and apparently authoritative as they are certainly interesting, and in all other respects the paper lacks none of those qualities which have marked the previous ones. I must congratulate you, Sir, and the writer, whoever he may be, and not less the readers, on the publication of these most interesting contributions.

As might have been expected, Mr Longbottom was defeated in his trial with his former employers last week. Although the School Board plainly showed that it had sufficient cause for dismissing Mr. Longbottom, yet the case does not appear to have been decided on that issue, but simply that the Board's notice was sufficient for the purpose. It has generally been thought that the charge against Mr. Longbottom was that of intoxication and similar misconduct, but a considerably graver fault seems to have been laid to his charge, viz., that of retaining money belonging to the Board, despite regulations and orders to the contrary; such being the case, one naturally wonders why he was not instantly dismissed, and shows his conduct in bringing an action after such unwonted and undeserved leniency in a remarkably bad light and deserving of the severest reprobation.

Several highly interesting football matches were brought off last Saturday, but so far as the Rothwell Clubs were concerned, with rather unsatisfactory results. Following up their previous week's success in the competition for the Hallamshire Cup, the Rothwell club journeyed to Mexbro', play the club representing that grimy village, which in point of general unpicturesqueness and dirt may be classed on an equality with 'Old Roddill,' and they returned woefully defeated by nine goals to nothing; but don't be crestfallen my boys, you cannot expect to beat better players than yourselves. The Harmonic also had to knock under to Hunslet by three goals to one, although the former had secured the services of Swift, one of the best players in Rothwell. Our neighbours at Oulton were also busily engaged; the senior club having a fixture with Heeley, the holders of the Sheffield Challenge Cup. Although neither team was representative, the game was a tough one, and Oulton were only beaten by one goal to nothing, a result which, considering the calibre of their opponents, is very gratifying to the villagers, who quite expected a good beating. The Oulton Victoria administered a decisive defeat to the Rothwell Mechanics'. There are some promising lads in this club, who will ere long be of great service to the older organization.

To-morrow afternoon those old antagonists the Harmonic and Oulton have to meet at Oulton for the first time this season, and it is to be hoped that the day and the ground may be favourable. It is much to be regretted that a large amount of rancour is always earned by these inter-village matches, but what reason there can be for such a feeling it would be difficult to discover. Let us hope that the game may be carried out with a becoming spirit of courtesy and good feeling, both on the part of players and spectators, and that nothing may be said or done which may afterwards be regretted, and that a more kindly feeling may be established on both sides.

QUID NUNC.

Throat Irritation.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s 1½d., labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, Gordon Holmes, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

"Rough on Rats."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimple Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY'S COMPOUND, a demulcent expectorant and anodyne, for Coughs and Colds. Sold by all Chemists.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

KAY'S TIC PILLS, a specific for Neuralgia, Face-ache, &c., 9½d., 1s. 1½d.; postage 1d. Of Chemists. Kay Bros., Stockport.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its [illegible] action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d and 1s. The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Sold by all Chemists.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

DR. PALMER'S HEPATINE.
THE UNIVERSAL HEALTH RESTORER.

TESTIMONIALS.
To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds
Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

The first dose will give relief in twenty minutes.

This is no fiction, for they have done in thousands of cases. The Proprietor of these Pills having obtained (at great expense) a Patent for them, he challenges the whole world to produce a medicine equal to them for removing the above named complaints, and restoring the patient to sound and lasting health.

Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be
WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these Pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no remedy to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstructions or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak Stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the Liver, they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the ROSEBUD of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. —These are "FACTS" admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of Society, and one of the best guarantees to the Nervous Debilitated is, BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT.

Those who were present last year, at the representation of "Mrs. Green's snug little business" would no doubt put in an appearance on Monday evening, when a second and thoroughly successful dramatic and musical entertainment was given by the same clever artists, assisted by other ladies and gentlemen.

The doors were open before seven, and by half-past, the hour announced for commencing, the room was quite filled with a large and highly respectable company, the new vicar (Rev. F. Fawkes) and his lady, making their first public appearance.

Shortly after the stated time the members of the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society entered the room, and having got settled down in the seats provided just in front of the curtained stage, rendered the overture to Auber's "Fra Diavolo," the finale being especially fine. This was followed by the less showy but more delightsome valse "My Queen" by Coote.

The drama selected for representation was Fawcett's "Bubbles" the ladies and gentlemen taking part in it being Mr. W. Wright as Christopher Hogg, Esq., a retired pork butcher; Mr. G. Armitage, Bob, his son; Mr. W. Flockton, as Sir Thyngummy Tallboys, Bart. chairman of the Trans-Atlantic Balloon Service Co.; Mr. W. T. Hirst, Smees, a servant, Miss Castle, Adele, Tallboy's daughter; Miss S. Craven, Polly, Hogg's Neice; Miss Kidd, Mrs. Hogg.

The story opens with a room in Mr. Hogg's villa, where Mrs. Hogg and he are partaking of the morning meal, with Polly, their neice and maid. Mr. Hogg, who is hardly recognisable as Mr. W. Wright, being still deeply interested in the markets specially bearing on his former business, reads aloud from his newspaper the latest quotations, a subject which his lady considers he should now leave alone, and rather remember that they are gentle people, who ought to move in higher society. The bald-headed, drab-trousered, old gentleman cannot see eye to eye with his lady, and his son Bob entering just then, and hearing the theme of conversation, takes up his mother's views warmly, and acting in a most cantankerous and reckless manner snubs the family all round for not cultivating higher society and moving in more genteel company, during which Mr. Hogg leaves the room in disgust. Shortly after the subject is resumed between Mr. Hogg and his son, who has induced his father to invest largely in Sir Thyngummy Tallboy's Trans-Atlantic Balloon Service Company, a scheme in which the old gentleman has little faith, ("knowing balloons sometimes burst,") but upon the success of which Bob builds the highest hopes, and feels very proud of his new friendship with the high-born baronet. Bob moreover intimates to his father his decided preference for Adele, the baronet's daughter, much to the grief and disappointment of Mr. Hogg who has always cherished the hope of the gentle domesticated Polly becoming his daughter-in-law. During the morning Sir Thyngummy Tallboy and his daughter are ushered into the best room, Mrs. Hogg at once rushing upstairs to her dressing-room, where she may suitably prepare herself for the reception of such noble friends of her son. Bob, on entering the room, is extremely proud of the honour paid him by the visit of his friend and Miss Tallboy's. Mr. Hogg, who has been at his favourite pastime, gardening, enters in his shirt sleeves, and is mistaken for the gardener by the aristocratic old chairman of the Balloon Company, an error which Bob very shame-facedly corrects, and introduces his father to the baronet. On Polly coming in from the kitchen with her hands all floury, Sir Thyngummy, supposing she is the cook, makes some unpleasant remarks about her, for which he receives a pretty straight lecturing from Mr. Hogg. The two old gentlemen then retire for a stroll in the garden, that Sir Thyngummy may see Mr. Hogg's "rhode-dandy-rums," leaving Bob and Adele "all alone." Bob now makes most desperate attempts at love-making, all his advances being received by Miss Tallboys in the most frigid and distant manner possible, until he acknowleges to himself and to her, the bitter irony of destiny, which has not ordered their fates to run together. Miss Castle's freezing replies and action were most effective, while Mr. Armitage's vain struggles to come to the point were quite equal to the occasion. Mr. Hogg re-enters with Sir Thyngummy, when the defeat of Bob is glumly narrated by him, and the stiff, grey-haired aristocrat makes his bow and leaves along with his daughter, Mrs. Hogg appearing in her best "bit and tucker," just as their shadows vanish away. Mrs. Hogg now urges that Polly shall be sent to service, but her uncle won't hear of it, and a pathetic scene follows, in the interview between the old man and his affectionate neice, who can see no fault in Bob, and seems unconscious of her love for him until the fact is brought out by old Hogg's queries. Polly having gone out, Bob rushes in with a telegram, which told of the "bursting of the Balloon Company" and his consequent ruin. Sir Thyngummy Tallboys and his daughter shortly afterwards called, and some plain speaking ensued between the two elder men. Mr. Hogg reminding Sir Thyngummy Tallboys that the Company not being duly registered, he had no further claim for the unpaid up shares which he had taken and ushering out the crest fallen stock jobber and his proud daughter, leaving Bob and Polly forgiving and happy.

Of Mr. Wright, it is needless to say, his part was perfectly played, his get-up was faultless, while his facial contortions were remarkable. Miss Kidd ably sustained her part as matron, especially as being her first appearance. Mr. Flockton, whom we have previously known in comic representations, acted the aristocratic old stock-jobber to a "t," while Miss S. Craven, as Polly, proved herself fully equal to the part she took, and although also a novice in this class of amusement, shewed an excellent memory and a close attention to the requirements of her part. Mr. W. T. Hirst filled up his place as Smees, a servant, well. Of Miss Castle we have already written, her stately carriage and unbending demeanour as well as her biting sarcasm and cold-hearted conversation were most effective. On Mr. Armitage's acting we have also remarked, and he certainly deserves as large a meed of praise as the lady he desired to win.

The view of the garden and the church in the distance, as painted by Mr. Wright, added very largely to the completeness of the stage arrangements, and deserves every commendation.

The Band brought the first part to a conclusion by their capital rendering of "The farewell" symphony by Haydn, composed, as Mr. Jones, the conductor explained, to shew the effect of gradually withdrawing one member after another from the band, until the conductor is left wielding his baton to an invisible orchestra.

The second part opened with a selection from Thomas's "Le Caid," followed by Dunster's "Gavotte in B flat," the playing of both of which received loud praise from the audience.

The second piece performed by the dramatists was Buckstone's Comic Drama "Good for Nothing" in which Mr. Harms appeared as Tom Dibbles, a gardener; Mr. Flockton, Harry Collier, a railway fireman; Mr. Armitage, Charley, a carpenter; Mr. Hirst, Young Mr. Simpson; Mr. Doublem, servant; Mr. Wright, Nan.

The story is as follows:—Tom and Harry rented rooms of Mr. Simpson, Nan being their protegé, a daughter of a deceased fellow-workman. Being behind with their rent, young Mr. Simpson calls with the message that if not paid at once, they would be sold up. Nan, who is always in mischief, a tall, dirty, ragged, rough haired girl, hears them speak of their difficulties, but having been thoroughly neglected, any help from her, they think, is out of the question. Young Mr. Simpson rushes in with battered hat, torn coat, dirtied trousers, in a state of great excitement, and demands Nan's immediate punishment. She eventually appears, and from first to last of the cross-examination respecting Mr. Simpson's dilapidated condition, her lugubrious contortions, her witty replies, and her sly looks at the highly offended delicate young gentleman, were such as few could have surpassed. Instead of getting a good thrashing, everybody save the poor object of her rough behaviour, was convulsed with laughter, including Nan herself. After many fruitless endeavours to get the money the men return home again thoroughly disheartened. Meanwhile, Nan has taken and paid the rent with certain money put by for her benefit, and is also discovered to have saved a child from drowning, for which a gift of £5 is sent by the parents. Charley, who has along maintained that Nan would be a good girl, if only rightly managed, now proposes to put her apprentice with his sister, and eventually marries her. Though apparently 'good for nothing,' when rightly managed she became a useful member of the society.

Next to Nan, who was so well impersonated by Mr. Wright, each of the other characters, taken by Mr. Harms, Mr. Flockton, Mr. Armitage, and Mr. Hirst were equally excellent, Mr. Hirst making a successful debut in this, his first appearance.

The thanks of the promoters and the audience were cordially presented to the band, who, by the influence of Mr. Flockton, had so kindly given their services.

The nett proceeds go towards the extinction of the expense of enlarging the platform and adding ante-rooms.

Every praise is due to Mr. Wm. Wright and his co-adjutors, for their disinterested efforts to complete the payment of the cost of this advantageous addition to the Mechanics' Institute.

MUSIC.
AN OCCASIONAL PAPER
No. 4.

In a former paper I have endeavoured to point out, how in the homes of the very poorest amongst us as well as the better-to do, vocal music may contribute its charm to while away the dull cares of everyday life. In this, my last paper on the subject, I propose to notice very briefly the leading characteristics of instrumental music in its most familiar forms.

There is an innate desire in all educated persons to adorn their homes with the products of art. Music may be considered to contribute most largely to this feeling of home luxury simply because it is most easily attainable. It also appeals more closely to one's sympathies from another point of view. The picture which we hang upon our walls, or the statuette or vase that decorates the shelf or corner of our room, is a finished work; its beauty is gratifying to the eye, but we are denied the satisfaction of ourselves contributing to, or in some measure earning our pleasurable sensations It is otherwise in music. When the composer's work is done, there still remains to the practical musician the delightful task of intrepreting his ideas, of

> "Untwisting all the chains that tie
> The hidden soul of harmony."

Perhaps of all instrumentalists, the organ student is in the best position for most fully realising what is meant by this. He has at his command the resources of an instrument combining the essential qualities of a full orchestra; and he has thus the means of giving every variety of effect to almost any class of musical composition. To attain eminence as an organist, however, calls for the possession of musical qualities of a very high order, indeed the bare enumeration of some of the necessary practical qualifications is sufficient to account for the dearth of really eminent organists.

The organist must bring to his task keen intelligence, quickness of comprehension, sound judgement, and good taste; he has not only to acquire a free articulation of the fingers, a difficulty complicated by the heavy resistance of the keys, but he must learn to move his feet with rapidity, as the bass part has often to be played by the feet, leaving the left hand at liberty for the intermediate parts; this double attention requires great effort. He must find out the proper use of the different key boards, and know how to unite and seperate them for effect, and be able to pass from one to another without interruption to the performance. He must have a knowledge of the effect of the different stops and taste for the invention of new combinations; above all he must be thoroughly imbued with a sense of the true style of the organ music, and never allow himself to degrade the dignity and sacred character of the instrument entrusted to his care. The organ is chiefly used as an adjunct, a very important adjunct to our public worship, and in this connection I would mention an inscription which an old German organ builder placed over the desk of his organs, which I think is worthy of a conspicuous place in the organ of every place of worship. It is this, "Thou playest not here for thyself, thou playest for the congregation, thy playing should elevate the heart, should be simple, earnest and pure."

The PIANOFORTE has nothing in common with the organ but its keyboard. The organ touch may be said to be tied; the piano touch brilliant. The indispensable requisites to effective piano playing—a pure even tone, power, grace, and expression, depend entirely on delicacy of touch and judicious use of the pedal.

The study of the pianoforte has of late years become an essential part of what is considered to be a good education, and to be able to play tolerably well, almost a universal accomplishment. It is encouraging to note the growing demand for classical pianoforte music nowadays; to the gradual extinction of pieces of the "Battle of Prague" type with its "cries of the wounded," &c.,

This is having the effect of improving the general tone of modern compositions, known as Drawing-room Pianoforte Music.

With reference to the selection of music for the piano: by all means let a correct taste be formed by the study of classical pianoforte literature, but at the same time the works selected should not be hopelessly beyond the present capacity of the player.

For instance, nothing can be more unsatisfactory and discouraging than abortive attempts to interpret such works as the "Moonlight" sonata, or the "Sonata with a funeral march," before a sufficient progress has been made to overcome pieces of even moderate difficulty. Instead of promoting a love for classical music, such a process naturally results in an unconquerable dislike to works of this character. "No one," said Beethoven, "will learn to play the piano by practising my compositions, he must learn to play first, and then they will improve him;" and Schumann says—"Take pains to play easy pieces well, and with finish; it is better than the indifferent performance of more difficult music"

The VIOLIN has perhaps next to the piano established a favourite position in musical households. Unlike the pianoforte, which as clavicorde, virginal, spinet, and harpsicorde, has passed many stages of development before attaining its present perfection, the violin has remained for ages essentially unchanged. The possessor of a Stradivarias made generations ago, justly considers himself the owner of a violin the perfections of which can at best only be imitated by all the appliances of the present day.

The violin was for a long time considered to be only a very vulgar instrument, and its use was confined to the performance of popular airs and dances. Introduced into the orchestra it speedily took, and has ever since retained a leading position. I believe Corelli was one of the first to recognise the importance of the violin as a leading instrument. Its influence was extended and exemplified by his successors Tartini and Viotti; the latter both by practical exposition and the music he wrote for the violin, attracted the attention of "men of light and leading" in the musical world of his day, to the unlimited capabilities of this hitherto neglected instrument. For grace of melody, brilliancy, and breadth of expression, the beautiful compositions of Viotti still rank amongst the finest known. From Viotti down to the time of Spohr and De Beriot might be catalogued a long list of illustrious violinists, pre-eminent amongst them like a comet in a constellation of stars of ordinary brilliancy, the magician Paganini whose marvellous performances earned for him the credit of receiving supernatural aid.

In order to attain proficiency as a violinist, it is necessary to commence practice in youth when the muscles and limbs are lithe and lissom, and the free and easy mechanical movement essential to a complete command over the instrnment can be most easily attained. The student must possess a fine ear for music, inexhaustible patience, and indomitable perseverance, and with the skilful training of a careful master, who shall say that in time he may not outrival Carrodus, or even find a place in the constellation of stars before mentioned. or may even astonish the world as comet No. 2.

The VIOLA (Tenor) is a larger kind of violin, or to speak more correctly; the violin is a diminutive viola, or viol.

The tone of the viola is rather plaintive and subdued, it lacks brilliancy and is therefore not particularly effective as a solo instrument. Its holds however a useful position in the orchestra, and has always an interesting and well defined part in the classical string quartette. It use can be easily mastered by a violin player, who will find it not only an advantage to be able to take either instrument, but the stopping of the viola being wider, stretches the fingers and will help him to attain more complete command over the finger board of the smaller instrument

Music for the viola is written in the alto cleff.

The VIOLINCELLO, not unlovingly abbreviated "cello" in the orchestra, is hardly cultivated amongst amateurs to the extent which its capabilities and attractiveness certainly merit.

Its tone is resonant and penetrating and is by some considered to bear close analogy to the human voice. It is of course indispensable in the orchestra, and in the hands of a skilful soloist it is capable of producing very charming effects alone.

The 'cello,' with two violins and viols, constitutes what is known as the string quartette, and it is perhaps in this connection that it is heard to best advantage.

There can hardly be higher intellectual enjoyment than that of taking part in quartette playing; the responsibility is so equally divided, the bond of sympathy is so close, each coadjutor is conscious both of receiving and communicating enjoyment in the performance and is incited to excel himself. The genuine 'cello player will think nothing of travelling a few miles with his somewhat lumberly instrument under his arm, exposed by the way to the playful remarks of unsympathising Philistines, in order to join congenial friends in the task of unravelling the beauties of Haydn, Mozart or Beethoven.

Where an efficient quartette is unattainable, the conjunction of violin and piano will be found a perfect combination. The beautiful effect produced by the union of the different qualities of these two instruments was fully recognised by the great masters. Some of the most exquisite fancies of Mozart and Beethoven have been preserved to us in the Sonatas for violin and piano.

The FLUTE is also very effective along with the piano; its tone is adapted to the performance of soft and sweet melodies with delicate variations.

A good ear is necessary for the flutists' guidance or he is apt to play out of tune. To attain proficiency he should also possess natural qualifications in the shape of a very flexible tongue and a favourable conformation of the lips.

An exhaustive notice of all instruments adapted for domestic use as well as for public performance is of course impossible within the limits of a single paper. One cannot, however, pass over that household instrument, the HARMONIUM.

A greater boon to the musical public than the harmonium has scarcely been devised. Its price ranging from £6 or even less, makes the possession of a keyed instrument of the piano class, a possibility in every home. The skill required in its performance is easily acquired, it is rarely out of tune and it is little liable to get out of order. Its character renders it better adapted for what is termed the legato style than any other, and peculiarly suitable to sacred music, or slow movements.

As a substitute for the organ in churches or chapels, it is always found extremely effective; indeed, the complete harmonium with a full complement of fifteen stops, is far preferable to an inefficient organ at perhaps double the cost.

In conjunction with the pianoforte it forms a perfect little drawing room orchestra, the strings of the piano imitating the whole tribe of the violin class, the reeds of the harmonium representing the entire wind band. Charming arragements are now published for piano and harmonium, the writer will be glad to furnish a list, through the Editor, to any wishful to try the effect of this combination.

I must now leave the ideas I have endeavoured to suggest, to the consideration of those interested, conscious of having only touched the fringe of the large subject in a desultory and inadequate way, but at the same time indulging in the hope that what has been said may attract more attention to the subject discussed, and help to promote the growth of a healthy love for music amongst us.

Music has become now an indispensable adjunct to our social pleasures and home enjoyment; what we enjoy ourselves we should be anxious for others to share, and it is with this desire one wishes to spread the beneficent influence of music in the home life of people about us; certain we are that the home where music is cultivated as the principal object of leisure hours, will always be found to be the home of peace and refinement.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Better demand for wheat at prices in favour of sellers. Beans a shade dearer. Oats and peas firm. Maize scarce, and rather higher. Flour without alteration. Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—The supply of fat beasts was less to-day, they were chiefly Irish animals with a few pens of Lincolnshire and six pens of American cattle. Owing no doubt to the scarcity of stock dealers were able to secure a decided advance on late rates. We had a brisk demand for mutton, and late rates were fully sustained. We had a fair trade in milch cows and lean beasts. A smaller supply of pigs, and a good trade at the following prices.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	1846	last week,	2150
,, sheep	,,	3600,	,,	3000
,, pigs	,,	360,	,,	420

Milch cows, £14 to £28 each.
Sheep, 8¾d to 10½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 12s to 20s.
,, store, 50s to 70s.
,, fat, 7/- to 7/9 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN, Friday, 1.5 p.m.—The wheat trade is firm, English being in short supply commands better prices. Foreign in fair consumptive request at fully late rates. There is a good demand for English barley; foreign steady; prices unchanged. Beans, oats and maize rather dearer, Weather is fair to-day and a little colder.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

The adjourned meeting on the question, 'Ought compulsory education to be free?' was held on Wednesday evening in the club room. Fourteen members were present, and as Mr. Harms was not able to appear, Mr. W. Batty was elected chairman. Mr. Batty having thanked the members for again electing him secretary, which he was sorry to decline, hoped they would have a better one in Mr. Knowlson.

Mr. Denton held that if education was free, many of the difficulties now experienced would disappear. The authority could then compel every child to attend, without the question of ability to pay interfering; there would be no unpleasant prying into parents' incomes, the most degraded and poor would have an opportunity of gaining a good education. He calculated that the cost of children's school pence would be about £2,300,000, a sum which could easily be raised by the taxation of some article of consumption.

Mr. G. Armitage pointed to the heavy rates now paid, and doubted whether children would attend school any better if there were no fees.

Mr. B. Batty supported the affirmative, holding that if England is to maintain as a nation her position against America and other countries, education must be free and of a higher standard. He affirmed that Mr. Forster's intention was that his bill should be for free education, but he could not get sufficient support.

Mr. James Armitage was well pleased with Mr. Denton's remarks, but could not agree with his side; from figures submitted, he shewed that in Lofthouse and Carlton, the parents were only paying about 25 per cent of the cost of education. He doubted very much if the gutter children would be any better under free education than the present system. He maintained that English children were as well educated as any other children. After further remarks he concluded that the present system was the best.

Mr. T. Whitehead, from his personal experience, went in for free schools.

Mr. Thompson, as a reason for continuing the present system, remarked that people prize most that which costs something. He thought there would be much more work to secure attendance, as when the parents pay the fees, they see that the child attends school. Voluntary schools had cost in private subscriptions £4,000,000 during the last 33 years; this with the annual donations of £500,000, would have to be borne by the tax-payers. The cost to every family for free education would be about 8s. a year. The only people free schools would benefit financially were the schoolmasters, as they would not then have to collect school-pence. As education was a marketable commodity, he did not see why it should be free any more than groceries.

Mr. R. Batty maintained that as education lessened pauperism and crime, he would rather pay an education rate than a poor rate, and that the imperial exchequer should bear the expense, whereby the farmers' disabilities would be materially lessened.

Mr. Drew reiterated the remarks of Mr. Thompson, and was sure no true Englishman would care to have his children paid for, if he could pay himself.

Mr. Stephenson supported the present system.

Mr. B. Batty, Mr. J. Armitage and Mr. Denton having replied to the arguments adduced, six voted for and six against; two being neutral. The question is therefore undecided. The debate was very animated and thoroughly interesting.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

ROTHWELL CRICKET CLUB.

The annual tea and meeting of the above club was held on Tuesday evening last, in the National Schools, when over 50 sat down to a sumptuous repast, provided by Mr. J. Ward, of the Working Man's Club. The number of members present was very good, but that was owing to the fact that very important business was to be transacted during the evening. The wants of those present were well attended to by the ladies who had kindly given their assistance.

After tea the general meeting was held, the chair being taken by the vicar, the Rev. F. Fawkes, who has accepted the presidency in the room of our late vicar, Rev. G. Heberden. The chairman, in his opening remarks, said that he undertook the duties of his office with pleasure, and having always taken a great interest in the game, should do all in his power to promote the welfare of the club. He further added that he had been informed the club was going down, but from the appearance of the meeting, had his informant been present, it was his opinion he would have thought, 'the least said soonest mended.'

The secretary, who was unable to give a financial statement owing to many of the subscriptions due not being paid, stated that the club had not succeeded so well as in former years either financially or in the arranged matches. The number of matches played by the first eleven was 22, out of which number only five were won, eleven lost, six drawn. The second eleven have not done so well, for out of 15 matches played only three were won, nine lost, drawn two, one a tie. The individual averages in bowling and batting are not so good, some of the principal players having deteriorated very much. Prizes were awarded to Messrs. Ward, Dobson, Swift and Chadwick, they having the best averages in the two elevens.

It will be observed that G. Gibson has the average for bowling in the first eleven, but as he this year received a benefit, was precluded from the prize.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Rev. F. Fawkes; vice-presidents, (additional) Mr. W. Andrews, Mr. J. Judson; committee, Messrs. J. A. Harms, C. Tiffany, R. Whiteley, T. Dobson, G. Gibson, F. Green, G. Wilson, T. Russell, T. Swift; treasurer, Mr. J. Rawling; secretary, Mr. A. Batty; assistant secretary, Mr. T. Bennett; captains, first eleven, G. Gibson, second, T. Swift; umpires, Messrs J. Whiteley and J. Rawson.

Owing to the unsuccessful season we have experienced, it was thought desirable (if the necessary funds could be raised) to engage the services of a professional, one qualified to take part in the matches, but especially to act as groundsman, and coach to the members. Over twenty applications were received, and out of the number three were finally selected, viz., J. Lunn, Hunslet, J. Webster, Pudsey, and F Lazenby York. All the above were well known to the majority of the members as being sound cricketers, and after a close run between Lunn and Lazenby, the latter was elected by a majority of three votes. It is to be hoped that the chosen professional will prove a great benefit to the club for next year.

LEEDS.

ALLEGED THEFT BY A LETTER-CARRIER.—At the West Riding Court yesterday, before Mr. Ellershaw and Mr. Ikin, a letter carrier named Robert Goward was charged with stealing a post letter which contained postage stamps and money.—Mr. Rider, who prosecuted on behalf of the Postmaster-General, said that the prisoner was a rural letter-carrier between Woodlesford Colton, and Barrowby. He had been in the service of the Post-Office about a year, part of his duty being to collect letters at Colton, and deliver them at the office at Woodlesford the same evening. Complaints were made of certain letters having been lost, and the prisoner's honesty was tried by Mr W E Houson, a clerk in the Missing Letter Branch of the Post-office, London, who posted a letter containing marked stamps and money, which were afterwards found in the possession of the prisoner.—Mr. Houson was the first witness called. He said that he was instructed to test the honesty of the prisoner. On Tuesday, the 7th inst., he posted a letter at the Colton wall letter-box. It was addressed to Mrs. Chandler, 6, Queen-street, Reading, Berks, and contained half a sovereign, a sixpence, and 66 penny postage stamps, all of which bore a private mark. On the same evening, when the letter-bag from Woodlesford arrived at the Leeds Post-Office, it was found that the letter, which ought to have been in the bag, was missing. On the following day he went to Garforth, and saw the prisoner. He asked the prisoner if he had cleared the letter-box at Colton at 4.20 on the previous afternoon, and he replied "Yes." Witness said, "A letter, addressed to Mrs. Chandler, 6, Queen-street, Reading, Berks, was posted by me at 12.15 p.m. yesterday, and it is missing. Do you know anything about it?" The prisoner replied "No; there were only two letters in the box, and I did not notice the addresses on them." Witness said the letter was missing, and asked the prisoner if he had any objection to be searched. He replied, "No." A police-constable named Moir searched the prisoner, and witness saw him take from his coat-pocket a book, between the leaves of which ten penny postage-stamps were found. From his trouser's pocket was taken a purse, which contained three postage-stamps and 5s in silver; and from the watch-pocket of his waistcoat 62 postage-stamps were taken. Witness asked the prisoner if he wished to give any explanation as to how he obtained possession of these stamps, and he replied, "I bought the whole of them from Mrs. Wm. Barker, Swillington Common." Witness applied a test to the sixty-five stamps, and found upon them his private mark. He shewed the marks to the prisoner, and told him that he could identify the stamps as those he enclosed in the missing letter he had been asking about. The prisoner made no reply. On the same day witness went with Moir to the prisoner's residence, and there a half-sovereign was found, which witness identified by a private mark as the one he had posted at Colton in the missing letter.—Matthew Moir, police-constable attached to the General Post-office, London, gave corroborative evidence.—Other witnesses were afterwards examined, and the prisoner was then remanded for a week, Mr. Rider saying there was another charge against him.

ROTHWELL BAND SUPPER.

The annual supper of the Rothwell Model Prize Brass Band took place on Saturday night at the Miners' Arms Inn, when Mr. and Mrs. Brook provided a substantial and varied repast. All the members were present, except one who is ill, besides a number of friends, and the report presented at the meeting following, shewed the band to be in a prosperous condition. Besides paying for several instruments, the members have been enabled to purchase a new outfit of a very tasteful style. The Band has also been fortunate enough to secure a larger number of engagements during the year than in any previous one. The usual programme having been gone through, the rest of the evening was spent in a convivial manner.

OULTON.

At the West Riding Court House, Wakefield, on Monday, the justices signed a sanitary rate at 1s. 2d. in the £ and a poor rate of 1s. 4d. in the £ for Oulton.

ROTHWELL v. PHŒNIX BESSEMER.

Last Saturday, Phœnix Bessemer brought a strong Sheffield team to Rothwell, to play their fixture with the Rothwell club. The visitors won the toss and Chadwick kicked off; for some time the play was very even, several shies being made at both goals, Dobson, especially, having a splendid chance which he failed to improve. During the first half the visitors secured two goals; the greater part of the second half of the game was carried on in the home territory, and the "blades" managed to lower the home colours other four times. J W Wright again played well in the goal, and Hartley, half back, did good service; all the visitors played well, Rhodes, (Pyebank), shewing up splendid. Before play commenced the field was very heavy and slippery, but after playing a short time it was almost impossible to stand, and the visitors had a great advantage over the home team as they were nearly all spiked with leather. At the close of the game the score was Rotherham 6 goals to Rothwell nil.

HUNSLET v. LEEDS.

This match was played on the ground of the former in the presence of a large number of spectators. The match was begun rather late, hence both parties played under a disadvantage during the last half. Pearson kicked off for the home team, but the ball was soon returned; the Leeds men appeared bent on scoring, making several shots at goal, but Godson's keeping was too good for them, and at the call of time neither side had scored. On re-starting, each side played hard and well together, the passing being decidedly good on each side, and after an exciting game the match ended in a draw, neither side scoring.

Teams:—Hunslet: Godson, goal; Stringer, Frith, (capt) backs; Hawden, Rollinson, half-backs; Kilburn Brigham, Coates, Roberts, Gillings, Pearson, forwards. Leeds: Reddings, goal; Ashton, Danbro, backs; Dennis, Hollings, half-backs; Smith, (capt) Stead, Archer, Calverley, Carr, Broadly, forwards.

ROTHWELL MECHANICS' v. BOARD SCHOOL.

This match was played on Saturday in the Sty Bank, the ground of the former, in fair weather. The visitors having won the toss, the ball was put in motion by the Mechanics', and was quickly worked into their opponents' goal, but was safely returned by the backs, and some play ensued in the home goal, but their custodian was in good form, and nothing resulted. Some loose play was then made, shies at either goal being frequent, but Tiffany and Berry, the custodians, were equal to the occasion, and at the call of half-time nothing had been scored. The ball was re started in partial darkness the second half, and after playing till the time was nearly up, a dispute arose, as the visitors did not care to let 'fouls' go unnoticed, nor did they intend to play on after the ball had been kicked past the flags three or four yards by the Mechanics', and then kicked in again, so the visitors left the field. The game thus ended in a draw, neither side having scored.

OULTON VICTORIA v. HUNSLET WESLEYANS

Played at Oulton on Saturday and resulted in a victory for the home team by 1 goal to nil. The Wesleyans won the toss and Oulton kicked off downhill, and after several attacks on the visitors' goal, the home team managed to put the ball through the uprights. Hunslet kicked off, and the home team put the ball through a second time, but this was objected to on the plea of half time being called. Ends were changed and the game re-started, the Wesleyans putting in all they knew to equalize matters, but without avail, owing partly to the good back play of Newbold and Higgins. Time being soon afterwards called, the game terminated as stated above. For Oulton, Newbold, Crawford and Connell played well as did Pilling, Hall and Exley for the Wesleyans.

THE WHISPERING GALLERY.

THE Dramatic and Musical Entertainment has now been given at the Rothwell Mechanics' Institute, and I am extremely glad to be able to state that the hopes and expectations to which I gave expression last week with reference to it, have been fully justified. It was indeed a success. You, Mr. Editor, will no doubt give a full and critical report of the performance, and I will not therefore trench on your province by attempting much in the way of a detailed reference to it. The result proves that histrionic talent of no mean order has been shewn; that the two pieces "Bubbles" and "Good for Nothing" have been carefully and intelligently rehearsed; and that the public of the district are after all, really alive to the interest which a high class entertainment ought to excite. Speaking generally, each lady and gentleman seemed well suited to the part assigned, the costumes and "make up" and the stage arrangements were well nigh all that could be desired. The action and elocution too were really good, the only fault, (and it is one that can be easily remedied), being, that the ladies scarcely spoke loud enough at times to be heard throughout the room. Mr. Wright as "Mr. Hogg" and "Nan" two very opposite characters was excellent. Miss Kidd was an exemplary "Mrs. Hogg." Miss S. Craven as "Polly" looked the character thoroughly. Miss Castle creditably represented "Adele" the scornful and frigid daughter of "Sir Thyngummy Tallboy," which last named character found a cool and careful interpreter in Mr. Flockton, with respect both to action and speech. Mr. Walter Hirst shewed "Simpson" to advantage, altho' he did not perhaps manifest quite enough indignation when he rushes in battered and with torn garments to complain about "Nan," while Messrs. Harms and Flockton gave a faithful and forcible representation of these two worthy, but conflicting natures "Tom Dibbles" and "Harry Collier," "Nan's" voluntary guardians. The interest in the entertainment was enhanced very considerably by the music from the numerous and capable band of the "Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society," whose voluntary services deserve particular recognition. I am sure it will be the wish of all present that a similar entertainment shall be given annually, and I doubt not, a hearty response on the part of the public may be relied on. A special word of commendation is due to Mr. W. Wright, for the admirable little scene which he painted for the occasion, and for his able management.

APROPOS of the above, two of the gentlemen who took part in the dramatic pieces, assisted on the previous Thursday at the grand performance of the Oratorio "St. Paul," given at the Leeds Town Hall, by the Leeds Philharmonic Society; Mr. Flockton as one of the viola or tenor violin executants, and Mr. Walter Hirst in the chorus. From the accounts given, it was a fine performance of one of the grandest Oratorios.

I HEAR that a great deal of "jor" was expended at the Rothwell Cricket Club meeting, last Tuesday evening, over the selection of a professional, and resulted in Lazenby securing the situation by two votes from Lunn. If Lazenby is twelve shillings per week better than Lunn, then I say they have made a wise choice, but I doubt it, and a man at £2 per week is too much for the club to pay with its finances in the present condition, as I fancy will be proved before the coming season is over. After the meeting, a general exodus to the Railway Hotel took place, and a prominent member—but that's details.

QUID NUNC.

THE "ROAD SCRAPINGS" CONTRACT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

By your report of the last Local Board meeting, I see the contract for removing the road scrapings on Wakefield road was given to Bleasby, the notorious horse-dealer of Hunslet. I see Bleasby's price is £80. One of our Rothwell contractors tells me he sent in an estimate for £75 for the same work, this Rothwell contractor has had the contract for removing the scrapings along that road before, and knows all about the work; moreover, he has always given the Board satisfaction, (when I say the Board, I except Mr. Holmes, whom no Rothwell man can satisfy). I affirm that by this action of the Board, Rothwell is £80 poorer than it need be. I prove it thus, had the Rothwell contractor got the job the work would have been done by Rothwell men, and the money spent in the village. As it is the money goes to Hunslet. We have a man on our Board who has no sympathy with Rothwell or Rothwell men, and so long as he holds a seat there, the Rothwell working men will at times suffer such injustice as is now alluded to. This is a matter which, if the working men are wise, they will rectify at the next election.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

LOCAL BOARD INJUSTICE TO ROTHWELL WORKING MEN.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I notice in your report of the Local Board meeting in last Friday's paper that the contract for removing the road scrapings on the Wakefield road was let to Bleasby, of Hunslet, for the sum of £80. This action on the part of the Local Board has given rise to much comment in the village, inasmuch as it is well known that one of our Rothwell contractors sent in a tender for £75. Why should the work be given to a Hunslet man for £80 in preference to a Rothwell man at £75? One of our Local Board men has been buttoned upon this subject, and the question put to him. His answer was that Bleasby had plenty of horses and carts to do the work, and a 'tip' to put the refuse on. Is Bleasby the only man possessed of these things? The Rothwell man, who sent in an estimate for £75, which was £5 less than that of the Hunslet man, had at his beck and call, in Rothwell, horses and carts and men sufficient to cope with a job ten times bigger than the one in question, consequently that argument won't hold water.

The working-men of Rothwell (I am not alluding to the mining population) are keenly alive to the folly of our Local Board giving work to men who will spend the money outside our district, over the heads of Rothwell men. No fault would be found at the action of the Board if contractors outside the district would do the work at a less price than our village men, but the folly of our local authorities sending £80 to Hunslet when they could have it done at Rothwell for £75 is remarkable.

Yours truly,
ROTHWELLIAN.

MR. LONGBOTTOM AND QUID NUNC.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I am just now in the midst of a most severe domestic affliction, undoubtedly brought about by such dastardly fellows as the writer of the paragraph respecting me in 'Quid Nunc' column of your last issue. I must however, in justice to myself, ask you to allow me to make the following statement.

Throughout the three years I have been at Woodlesford, I have received anything but gentlemanly treatment at the hands of a section of the Woodlesford School Board. In a few weeks,—and I wish your readers to suspend their judgment till then—I intend putting my side of the case before the public, when they will be able to form an impartial opinion.

Respecting the scandalous, libellous and cowardly attacks upon me, by contributors to 'Ajax' and 'Quid Nunc' columns, I only wish I had them within arm's length. I have systematically been pursued by them with a persistency born of hell. And yet these very men go to church or chapel, and pray: for what? Doubtless to 'thank God that they are not as other men are, nor even as this schoolmaster.' Let some of them look to the moral condition of their own homes, before sitting in judgment on others.

There is in my opinion, an undoubted direct or indirect connection between my treatment by a section of the Board and an official of it, and these continued dastardly attacks upon me in your columns. Such I think I can prove.

I must Mr. Editor, express my extreme surprise and annoyance at your allowing such matter to appear, especially at a time when one has been taken from me and mine, who can never be replaced. Besides, you personally informed me on the day of the late Mrs. Bentley's funeral, that such attacks were to cease. Surely common decency would forbid such conduct towards one in the midst of such a sad affliction as I and mine are. I have gone on 'through evil report and good report' openly, and not in the low unmanly way of my detractors. Well may they hide their heads.

I am,
Yours truly,
JOHN LONGBOTTOM.

EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—'By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.'—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'JAMES EPPS & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

KAY'S COMPOUND for Colds and Coughs, cures nine cases out of ten. Sold by Chemists.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Sold by all Chemists.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS:—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

MR. CLAFTON'S Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful Miracles he has wrought.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

IN PARLIAMENT.—SESSION 1883.

EAST AND WEST YORKSHIFE UNION RAILWAYS.

(Incorporation of Company; Construction of Railways from Leeds and Ardsley to the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway at Drax, with Junctions with other Railways, and a Branch to the Lofthouse Colliery; Compulsory Purchase of, and Special Powers as to Lands; Power to stop up Streets, &c.; Special Powers to Limited Owners; Running Powers against and Agreements with other Railway Companies; Tolls; Payment of Interest out of Capital &c., Amendments of Acts.)

Notice is hereby given, that application is intended to be made to Parliament in the ensuing session for leave to bring in a Bill for effecting the purposes or some of the purposes following (that is to say):—

1. To incorporate a Company, and to enable the Company so to be incorporated (hereinafter called 'the Company') to make and maintain the railways hereinafter mentioned, which will be wholly situate in the West Riding of the county of York, or some or one of them, or some part or parts thereof respectively, together with all necessary and convenient bridges, viaducts, rails, sidings, tunnels, junctions, stations, approaches, roads, buildings, yards, and other works and conveniences connected therewith (that is to say):

(1) A Railway, No. 1, commencing in the parish of East Ardsley, at a point immediately to the north-east of the Great Northern Railway, at or near, and on the south-east side of the bridge carrying the road from Thorpe-on-the-Hill to East Ardsley, known as Mill Lane, over the last-mentioned Railway, and terminating in the parish of Rothwell, at or near the south-west side of the Aire and Calder Navigation, at a point distant 24 chains, or thereabouts, measured in a north-westerly direction from the bridge called Fleet Bridge, which carries the road from Fleet Mills to Oulton over the said Navigation.

(1A) A Railway, No. 1A, wholly in the parish of East Ardsley, commencing by a junction with the up-running line of the Great Northern Railway, at a point about 15 chains south eastward from the bridge above mentioned carrying Mill Lane over the said railway, and running thence in a south easterly direction for about 5 chains to, and terminating by a junction with the intended Railway No. 1.

(1B) A Railway, No. 1B, wholly in the parish of East Ardsley, commencing by a junction with the down running line of the Great Northern Railway, at or near the south east side of the bridge above mentioned carrying Mill Lane over the said railway, and terminating by a junction with the intended Railway No. 1 at a point about 38 chains south-eastward from the point of the commencement of the said Railway No. 1 as above described, and about 5 chains north-eastward from the Great Northern Railway;

(2) A Railway No 2, commencing by junctions with Railway No. 1 at the termination thereof as above described, and also with the intended Railway No. 4, hereinafter described, at the termination thereof, and terminating in the parish of Drax by a junction with the Railway No. 3 authorised by the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway and Dock Act. 1880 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act of 1880') at a point about 5 chains south of the point at which Brigg Lane crosses the last-mentioned Railway;

(3) A Railway, No. 3, commencing in the parish of Rothwell by a junction with the intended Railway No. 1, in a field called 'Great Castlehead,' in the occupation of William Dawson, and situate on the north side of and adjoining Castlehead Lane, at a point about 9 chains north of the last mentioned lane, and terminating in the parish of Wakefield by a junction with the sidings of the Lofthouse Colliery at or near the northern end thereof.

(4) A Railway, No. 4, wholly in the parish of Rothwell, commencing at a point immediately adjoining, and on the east side of, the Midland Railway, and about 12 chains north-west from the bridge carrying the said Railway over a public road near the western corner of the Oulton Brewery premises, and terminating by a junction with the intended Railway No 2 at the commencement thereof as above described.

(4A) A Railway, No. 4A, wholly in the parish of Rothwell, commencing by a junction with the north eastermost line or siding of the Midland Railway, at a point about 9 chains south eastward from the bridge above mentioned in the description of Railway No. 4, and running thence in a south-easterly direction for about 6 chains to, and terminating by a junction with the intended Railway No. 4.

(5) A Railway, No. 5, commencing in the parish of Rothwell, by a junction with the intended Railway No. 1, at a point about 10 chains west of Wood Lane, and about 14 chains north-westwardly from Rothwell Parish Church and terminating on the south side of Wilson Street, Hunslet, in the parish of Leeds, at a point about 5½ chains east of the intersection of Meadow Lane and Wilson Street.

(5A) A Railway, No. 5A, wholly in the parish of Leeds aforesaid, commencing by a junction with the intended Railway No. 5, at its termination as above described, and terminating near the junction of Meadow Lane and Hunslet Lane, and about 4 chains southward from the south end of Leeds Bridge.

The said intended railways will be made to pass from, in, through, or into the following parishes, townships, extra-parochial and other places, or some of them, that is to say:—East Ardsley (township and parish), Wakefield, Wrenthorpe, Stanley-cum-Wrenthorpe, Lofthouse, Carlton, Lofthouse-with-Carlton, Thorpe, Rothwell (township and parish), Rothwell Haigh, Woodlesford, Stye Bank Quarry, Oulton, Oulton-with-Woodlesford, Swillington (township and parish) Great and Little Preston, Allerton Bywater, Kippax (township and parish), Ledstone, Ledsham (township and parish), Newton Fairburn, Fryston or Water Fryston, Ferry Fryston (township and parish), Monk Fryston (township and parish), Burton Salmon, Brotherton (township and parish) Hillam, Birkin (township and parish), West Haddlesley, Gateforth, Brayton (township and parish), Burn, Snaith, Carlton, Camblesforth, Drax (township and parish), Barlow, Long Drax, Middleton, Beeston, Hunslet, Holbeck and Leeds (township and parish), all in the West Riding of the county of York.

2. To authorise the Company to deviate laterally from the lines of the intended works to the extent shown on the plans hereinafter mentioned, or as may be provided by the Bill, and also to deviate vertically from the levels shown on the sections hereinafter mentioned.

3. To empower the Company to stop up and discontinue for public traffic, or to cover over or enclose or otherwise interfere with the following streets, roads, passages, and places in the parish and borough of Leeds, or some of them, or some part or parts thereof respectively, and to vest in the Company the sites and soil of the streets, roads, passages, and places, or parts thereof, so to be stopped up (that is to say):—Lee's Yard, Trafalgar Row, Neal's Yard, Whitechapel Yard, Noah's Ark Court, Noah's Ark Yard, South Row, North Row, Butcher's Row, the roadway of and approaches to South Market, Harrison's Yard, Eagle and Child Yard, Child Yard, Coultate's Yard, Bywater Street, School Street, Regent Street, Ivory Street, Well Street, Neesom Place, Diamond Street, Gold Street, Back Gold Street, Diamond Row, Ebony Street, Myrtle Street, Cross Myrtle Street, and Myrtle Place; and also the road in the parish of Rothwell running northwards from the school, which is situate about 9 chains north eastward from Rothwell Parish Church, and any other streets, roads, passages, places, and footways, the lands on each side of which may be acquired by the Company or which are shown on the plans to be deposited as hereinafter mentioned, as intended to be stopped up or interfered with in whole or in part.

4. To make provision as to the construction, ownership, maintenance, and user of the proposed Railway No. 2 and the Railway No. 1, authorised by the Church Fenton, Cawood, and Wistow Railway Act, 1882, at and within 30 chains in each case from the respective junctions thereof with the Railway No. 3, authorised by the Act of 1880.

5. To empower the Company to cross, open, or break up, divert, alter, or stop up, whether temporarily or permanently, all such turnpike and other roads, lanes, highways, streets, footpaths, pipes, sewers, canals, towing-paths, navigations, rivers, streams, watercourses, bridges, railways, tramways, gas, water, and other pipes, and telegraphic apparatus within the parishes, townships, extraparochial and other places aforesaid, or any of them, as it may be necessary or convenient to cross, open, break up, divert, alter, or stop up for the purposes of the intended works or of any of them, or of the Bill.

6. To authorise the Company to purchase and take by compulsion, and also by agreement, lands, houses, tenements, and hereditaments for the purposes of the intended railways and works and of the Bill, and easements or rights in, over, or affecting lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and to vary or extinguish all rights and privileges in any manner connected with the lands, houses, tenements, and hereditaments so purchased or taken.

7. To authorise the Company to purchase, by compulsion or agreement, lands, houses, and other property for the purposes of the intended railways and works, or easements, rights, or interests in, over, or affecting the same, and, notwithstanding the 92nd Section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, to empower the Company to purchase and take by compulsion or agreement any land, vaults, cellars, arches, or other offices, or parts of, or attached to, or belonging to any house, building, manufactory, or other premises, without being required or compelled to purchase the whole of such land, house, building, manufactory or premises, and to vary and extinguish all rights and privileges connected with such lands, houses, buildings, manufactories, and property, or such parts thereof as aforesaid.

8. To enable and authorise any tenant for life of, or other person having a limited estate or interest in, any lands which would or might be benefited or improved in value by or would derive facilities or accommodation from the construction or working of the intended railways, or any of them, or any part or parts thereof respectively, or from any stations, sidings, roads, approaches, buildings, works, or conveniences, connected therewith, to subscribe to and hold shares in the undertaking of the Company, and to raise the moneys necessary for that purpose by mortgage of and to charge the same upon such lands and the fee simple and inheritance thereof, and to grant and convey to the Company any lands required for the construction of the intended railways, or any of them, or any part thereof, or any such station, siding, road, approach, building, works, or conveniences, either without payment or other consideration or for such considerations, pecuniary or otherwise, and upon such terms and conditions as have been or may be agreed upon between any such person and the Company, and to sanction and confirm any agreements which have been or may be made between any such person and the Company, or any person or persons on their behalf respectively, with respect to any of the matters aforesaid.

9. To enable the Company to levy tolls, rates and duties upon or in respect of the intended railways and works, and upon and in respect of the portion hereinafter mentioned, of the railway of the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway and Dock Company, and to confer exemptions from the payment of such tolls, rates, and duties respectively.

10 To empower the Company and any company or persons for the time being working or using the railway of the Company, or any part thereof, either by agreement or otherwise, and on such terms and conditions and on payment of such tolls and rates as may be agreed on, or as may be settled by arbitration or provided by the Bill, to run over, work, and use with their engines, carriages, and waggons, officers and servants, whether in charge of engines and trains or for any other purpose whatsoever, and for the purposes of their traffic of every description.

So much of the Railway No. 3 authorised by the Act of 1880 as lies, or will lie, between the junction therewith of the intended Railway No. 2 and Drax Station, together with that station, and all roads, platforms, points, signals, water, water engines, engine sheds, standing room for engines, booking and other offices, warehouses, sidings, junctions, machinery, works, and conveniences of or connected with the said portion of railway and station;

11. To empower the Company on the one hand, and the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway and Dock Company, the Midland Railway Company, the Great Northern Railway Company, and the Church Fenton, Cawood, and Wistow Railway Company, or any or either of these Companies on the other hand, from time to time to enter into and carry into effect, vary and rescind contracts, agreements, and arrangements with respect to the following matters, or any of them (that is to say):—

The point at which the mode in which and the terms and conditions upon which any junction or junctions of the intended railways, or any of them, with the railways, or any of the railways of the said several Companies, or any of them shall be made.

The alteration, reconstruction, use, management, and maintenance of any of the stations, platforms, sidings, works, and conveniences of the aforesaid Companies, or any of them.

The construction, use, management, and maintenance of new stations, platforms, sidings, works, and conveniences upon the railways of the said Companies, or any of them.

12. To empower the Company on the one hand, and the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway and Dock Company, the Midland Railway Company, the Great Northern Railway Company, and the Church Fenton, Cawood and Wistow Railway Company, or any or either of those Companies, on the other hand, from time to time to enter into and carry into effect, and rescind contracts, agreements, and arrangements with respect to the construction, working, use, management, and maintenance by the contracting Companies, or any or either of them, of their respective railways and works, or any part or parts thereof respectively, and the management, regulation, interchange, collection, transmission, and delivery of traffic upon, or coming from, or destined for the railways of the contracting Companies, or any or either of them, the supply and maintenance of engines, stock, and plant, the fixing, collection payment, appropriation, apportionment, and distribution of tolls, rates, income, and profits arising from the respective railways and works of the contracting Companies, or any or either of them, or any part thereof, and the employment of officers and servants, and to authorise the appointment of joint committees for carrying into effect every or any such agreement as aforesaid, and to confirm any agreements which have been or may be made touching any of the matters aforesaid.

13. To enable the Company, notwithstanding anything in the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, contained to the contrary to pay out of the capital or any funds of the Company from time to time interest or dividends on any shares or stocks of the Company.

14. And the Bill will vary or extinguish all rights and privileges inconsistent with or which would or might in any way interfere with its objects, and will confer other rights or privileges.

15. And it is intended, so far as may be necessary or deemed expedient for the purposes of the Bill, to appeal, amend, alter, or extend all or some of the provisions of the local and personal Acts, hereinafter mentioned, or some or one of them (that is to say):—9 and 10 Victoria, cap. 41, and all other Acts relating to or affecting the great Northern Railway Company; 7 and 8 Victoria, cap. 18, and all other Acts relating to or affecting the Midland Railway Company; 10 and 11, Victoria, cap. 218, and all other Acts relating to or affecting the North-Eastern Railway Company; 43 and 44, Victoria, cap. 199, the Hull, Barnsley and West Riding Junction Railway and Dock (New Works) Act, 1882; and all other Acts relating to or affecting the Hull, Barnsley, and West Riding Junction Railway Railway; and the Church Fenton, Cawood, and Wistow Railway Acts, 1879 and 1882.

16. And notice is hereby also given, that on or before the 30th day of November instant, plans and sections of the railways and works proposed to be authorised by the Bill showing the lines and levels thereof, with a book of reference to such plans, and a copy of this notice as published in the London Gazette, will be deposited for public inspection with the Clerk of the Peace for the West Riding of the county of York, at his Office, at Wakefield, in that Riding, and that on or before the said 30th day of November, a copy of so much of the said plans, sections, and book of reference as relates to each parish and extra-parochial place in or through which the said railways or works, or any part thereof, are or is intended to be made, together with a copy of this notice as published in the London Gazette, will be deposited for public inspection in the case of each such parish with the parish clerk thereof, at his residence, and in the case of each such extraparochial place with the parish clerk of some parish immediately adjoining thereto, at his residence.

Printed copies of the Bill will be deposited at the Private Bill Office of the House of Commons, on or before the 21st day of December next.

Dated this 17th day of November 1882.

THE RAILWAY SCHEME.

"Never say die," is a truly English motto, whether the reference is to the "noble six hundred" in the Crimean war, or the gallant little band of soldiers who turned to flight the myriads of Egyptians at Kassassin and Tel-el-Kebir; or to those who by undaunted perseverance and patient plodding have accomplished great scientific and engineering triumphs, overcoming mountains of obstacles, undismayed by many defeats.

The splendid effort made last session for passing the East and West Yorkshire Union Railways Bill, though eventually unsuccessful, has demonstrated several facts, exposed certain flaws, and pointed out one or two improvements, which may severally be dealt with.

In our advertisement columns will be found notice of application for Parliamentary powers for another endeavour to obtain this proposed Railway, which for the sake of more clearly understanding, we will further explain, especially so far as relates to this neighbourhood.

The line from Drax joining the new Hull and Barnsley Railway remains unaltered as far as Woodlesford. Here a little variation has been made in the point at which a junction with the Midland occurs; it is, moreover, intended to erect a separate station at Woodlesford, on the east side of the present one, which will have two platforms, allowing through trains to go right forward. The route from this point to Wood Lane also diverges a little, removing the railway to a greater distance from Mr. Calverley's residence, so as to minimise any disadvantage he might have to complain of. From Wood Lane the line proceeds as before to Ardsley and Lofthouse, except that instead of a spur for Robin Hood, the line curves round so as to include those works in the main line, thereby dropping the proposed station at Howlett Cross in favour of Robin Hood.

But a novel and most attractive addition has been made to the scheme, whereby an entirely new and valuable line is proposed to Leeds, passing through comparatively unproductive property, right into the centre of the town, independent of any existing companies, and having a station and terminus on the ground now occupied by old buildings between Hunslet Lane and Meadow Lane, the corner of which is tenanted by Mr. Clayton, herbalist. The route suggested is mainly due to the warm co-operation of the Middleton Colliery Company, who are prepared to treat with the proposed railway executive for the turning over of their entire length of tramway lines and other property, as far as required, and by this means will be secured a short and easy ride into the heart of Leeds. The new railway, starting at Wood Lane, runs along the hill above the beck, thence west of the Low Shops, crossing under the Wakefield Road, near the residence of Mr. Atkinson, at which point a station is proposed, and after going through a cutting north of Mr. Grosvenor's New Hall Colliery, follows the Middleton Company's tram-way over Hunslet Moor, by bridges and banks, to the property known as the Pottery estate, near Jack Lane, close to the present Midland Hunslet station, where a goods station is proposed, thence on to the plot previously mentioned between Hunslet Lane and Meadow Lane, close on Leeds Bridge, where a terminal passenger station is to be erected It will thus be seen that an entirely new and independent railway to Leeds may be got without interfering with the rights and properties of other companies, while it will open out large tracks of land for building purposes. The collieries of the Middleton Colliery Co., and Messrs. Grosvenor's, will also have the new line to Hull and foreign ports opened out for their minerals, and direct access to the Leeds depôts, advantages which they would not possess under the last year's scheme.

We have always held that the first and most important object to be aimed at in these railway schemes is to secure improved and additional outlets and markets for our coal and stone. While the passenger business is personally advantageous, the fares of a thousand persons daily is a small consideration for railway directors, and would be precious little use in the advancement of this neighbourhood in wealth and influence. But if new and only partially supplied markets can be opened out for the consumption of our coal and stone, then more work is done, more men are employed, more money is spent, and every other trade is benefitted. The first scheme provided us with new markets for our goods, but presented very few attractions for those who desired better passenger-accommodation, and a closer connection with Leeds. In the present proposal, these wishes are fully met, while added to the Hull and foreign markets, and the manufacturing districts of Bradford and Dewsbury, we should have a direct and cheap line to Leeds within a quarter of an hour of leaving Rothwell

The more the scheme and its results are considered, the more clearly are its advantages discovered. We are just now pretty nearly overcome by the great difficulty of putting and keeping Bell Hill in repair. Would not the new scheme relieve the road of much of the extraordinary traffic which now cuts it up so much? A railway was urged last year because it would relieve the rates; by the present scheme the cost of the roads would be lessened as well, and as a larger portion of the line would be in our district, the relief would be still further felt by a larger rateable value on the railway. These are some of the additional benefits to be expected, besides all the advantages anticipated in connection with the old scheme.

Regarding the failure of last year, let us remember that the bill passed in the Commons, and was only lost by one vote in the Lords. The cause of the defeat was largely on account of our dependence on other companies at this end;—this is no longer the case—the line is from Leeds to Hull. Some unobserved flaws were picked in the arrangements for joining the companies at Woodlesford and Ardsley; these are remedied, we trust. A second effort, with improved junctions, and pre-eminently with a new independent terminal line to Leeds, we may fairly hope will succeed.

As is often the case with new schemes, the opposition of last year was strong and varied. The determined stand made against the struggling line by old and wealthy companies led one to think that there must be something inimical to their interests in the scheme, or they would not deign to use their massive power and influence for its extinguishment; there must be something worth having in this line, if it was considered worth their while to fight it so long and so fiercely.

The opposition most to be regretted was that of Mr. Calverley, the lord of the manor; and while we should not for a moment dispute his right to oppose if he felt so desirous either on personal or public grounds, we would fain hope that the new plan will have such recommendations as will enable him to place his extensive and weighty influence on our side. We have not the slightest doubt that if once Mr. Calverley sees that this line will be for the general benefit of the public, with the smallest possible interference with his property, that he will countenance the scheme, and then there willl be no question of its success. So far as one can ascertain, the promoters seem desirous of meeting Mr. Calverley's wishes as much as possible, and the additional railway proposed to Leeds will, be in accord with his ideas. After the lengthy petition in favour of the bill, signed by between one and two thousand persons, the large amount placed on the promotion of the scheme, and the resolve to again apply for the bill notwithstanding the £13,000 already swallowed up, it must be patent to everybody now, that the people want the railway, that there are gentlemen (aye, and working men too,) ready to risk their money on it, and that both people and promoters are determined to have it, if by any means it can be obtained.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

The monthly social meeting was held on Wednesday evening last, when ten members were present. The time was spent in readings, which were very interesting. Mr. G. Armitage read an extract from "Oliver Twist." Mr. Benjamin Batty read an article on a book lately written by Mr. Allen Grant, on the "Theory of Evolution." It dealt with the subject in a very able manner, illustrating the theory by references to the mental instincts of dogs now living. Mr. Denton read two pieces, one on 'Comets,' and another on the Pullman Car Accident. The former was a very instructive one, and the latter provoked considerable discussion.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The ordinary meeting of the above Board was held on Monday evening, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman) J. Oliver, J. Holmes, J. Hargreaves, J. Batty, S. Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, medical officer and collector.

The clerk read the minutes of the preceding meetings, including a special meeting of the Board held on Friday last, to consider the notice of application from the Gulcher Electric Light Company to supply the "electric light" in Rothwell. As, however, only Messrs. Sanderson, Bramley and Batty were present, the meeting was adjourned till a fuller attendance could be secured. In reply to Mr. Holmes and the chairman, the clerk stated that the Board could oppose any time within two months after the 30th of November, and that the Board cannot give notice to oppose until the order is deposited; this has not yet been done by the Co.

The minutes were then confirmed, on the motion of Mr. Batty, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves.

LETTERS ON "SCRAPINGS" CONTRACT.—Mr. Turner said no doubt the members of the Board had seen the letters on this subject in the Rothwell Times, and he certainly thought it was a matter which ought to be discussed. The contract was not let to the lowest tender, which is the rule of the Board. The chairman asked Mr. Turner how it was that if he thought Bulmer should have the work, that he did not second his (the chairman's) motion.

Mr. Holmes complained strongly that in the report of this matter, the names of Mr. Oliver and himself were published, while the proposer's name was omitted. Mr. J. Hargreaves was sorry that anyone should write so pointedly about any individual member of the Board; but said that whatever he did at that meeting he was ready to stand by, and he held that Mr. Bleasby, being a ratepayer, was the best man for the work, and would do it well. He thought Bulmer had as many irons in the fire as he could manage. Mr. Holmes wished to say that Bulmer met Bleasby last week, and told him (Bleasby) that "he was glad he had got the job, as he (Bulmer) could not have done it." The chairman expressed his sorrow that such letters should have been written, and said he had always found Mr. Holmes independent of public opinion, and trying to do what seemed best for the ratepayers. Mr. Oliver said he had seconded Mr. Bleasby because he believed him to be the best man, and a ratepayer. Perhaps the writer of the letters was quite as notorious in this district as Mr. Bleasby was in Hunslet. Mr. Turner thought perhaps they had not done the right thing. The rule was to accept the lowest tender, unless there was good reason not to do so. He asked if Bulmer was doing his work properly now. Mr. Holmes thought a look at Bulmer's roads would prove that; why did he not put on more men, if he had so many at his beck and call? He also asked whether they were to believe what Bulmer said to Bleasby or not. As to taking the lowest tender always, the Board did not do so. In letting the roads, the lowest tender was hundreds of pounds less than the man that got it, by the proposal of the very man that wrote that letter. There were also other cases he might mention. To refer to their advertisement, it was always provided "that the lowest or any tender is not necessarily accepted". In this case Mr. Bleasby is a large ratepayer, and is decidedly the best man. The chairman closed the discussion by again denouncing the letters, the writer of which, he believed, had been a member of the Board. He had proposed a resolution for Bulmer but as no one seconded it, it fell to the ground. Mr. Bleasby was a large ratepayer, and a good man for the work, and he was glad he had got the contract. The reporter expressed his regret that by some means or other, the name of the proposer of the resolution had been inadvertently omitted in the "setting up" of the report.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister, the medical officer, was sorry to come before them to make a report that several fatal cases of diphtheria had occurred in the district. Having to attend the child of Mr. Stacey, in Wood Lane, for that complaint, he ascertained that they got milk from the farm of Mr Jordan (the child died on Sunday) he, at once visited the house, and then ascertained that they had diphtheria, and have, unfortunately lost three children within a week. He desired Mr. Jordan to discontinue selling milk, which the man agreed to, and expressed his willingness to do anything to prevent the spread of the fearful disease. He ascertained that they drank water from a pond near, and he was having it analysed. There appears to be no smell about the house, but Mr. Jordan did not seem to be clear how the drainage was. Several members said it ran into a grass field, and having plenty of fall, easily got away. Mr. Oliver enquired if the infection is carried by the milk. The doctor replied that it was impossible to tell how the poison got into the milk, possibly the person who milked the cows had been nursing an infected child, or by many other means. The doctor further stated that the causes of the death of these three children were reported, respectively as diphtheria, scarlet fever followed by diphtheria, scarlet fever. Two young farmer men had been ill before, and he thought possibly theirs was the same complaint, but they recovered. He knew of no other cases in the district, besides those of Jordan and Stacey. The chairman thought the doctor had better examine the drainage, if possible, it was their duty to find out the cause of such a sad outbreak. Mr. Bramley said the water used had been drunk for generations. Mr. Batty thought the doctor would be able to form a better opinion as to the cause, after he had seen the drain.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk read a letter from F. Darwin, Esq., chairman of the committee on Highways, drawing the attention of the Board to the state of the highways, and threatening legal proceedings unless speedily improved. The chairman felt the danger they were in, and was anxious to decide on the tenders for Bell Hill paving. (This work, however, could not be let till Thursday evening, as Wednesday is only the last day.) He knew the magistrates were "down" on

M

Rothwell Local Board, although there were other roads quite as bad as Wakefield Road. Mr. Turner had been comparing the pieces of road belonging to Rothwell and to Leeds, at Thwaite Gate, and asked why we could not have as good road as theirs; there was more traffic went over their piece than over ours. Mr. Holmes explained that there was 12 inches thick of metal on Leeds road; the Board has not yet had the road twelve months, and when they took it, it was worn to nothing. If the ratepayers would allow the Board to spend as much money on the road as Leeds did, then they could have as good a road. The chairman returned to the present subject; they must grapple with this road question; they did a good stroke of work last meeting, but they must go further. He would suggest that the letter be replied to, stating that the Board is now letting contracts for the paving of Bell Hill, and that they are pushing on repairs as fast as possible. Mr. Holmes would also add in the letter that the Board had only had the road twelve months, and specify the amount of material which has been used on it. The chairman interposed "he will say it has been badly put on."

Mr. J. Hargreaves having asked if Mr. Bleasby had any carts on to-day, Mr. Holmes replied that he had had one or two on every day last week. Mr. Oliver "he had four on to-day." The chairman would not be surprised if Mr. Darwin put on twenty men before Christmas. It was finally arranged for the Highway Committee to see Mr. Bleasby about pushing on the work.

Some conversation then followed on the state of the other roads, and it was resolved to write strong letters to Mr. Bulmer and Mr. Nickols as to the condition of their several roads, and urging immediate attention thereto.

Messrs. Whiteley having enquired what quantity of kerbing was wanted, the chairman suggested 200 yards by February. Mr. Holmes thought a good ashed footpath would be best at present. Mr. Bramley also agreed with that, and then complete the road and footpath after winter. Mr. Batty reminded the Board that this was a very important corner (Church St. and Commercial St.) and wanted something doing at it, to put it in a more respectable state.

Mr. Holmes thought it would be a very little expense to put the kerbing down, and thus hold up a good ashed footpath. Mr. Bramley then proposed—That the corner of Church-street and Commercial-street be ashed and kerbed at once, and the flags removed: seconded by Mr. Turner and carried. Mr. Batty suggested that the lamp should be removed, but it was deemed best to let it remain at presen. In reply to Mr. Holmes, the clerk said this lamp was kept lighted all night, and was alight at eight o'clock that morning.

The clerk said he had seen the sergeant of police, who thought there was very little over-weight being carried on the road, but he was keeping his eye on it. Mr. Oliver said his difficulty was getting a handy weigh, there being none nearer than Mellor's, in Hunslet.

As regards the proposal for laying plates down Bell Hill, of which the chairman had given notice, he wished to postpone the motion at present, as he thought they had plenty to do just now.

ROTHWELL SEWAGE.—The clerk intimated that Mr Bramley had accepted the Board's offer as compensation for damage by main sewer passing through his land.

The clerk read a letter from Mr Schofield, asking payment of £103 due at Martinmas for sewage treating. As the time has not yet arrived, the subject was adjourned.

Mr. J. Hargreaves enquired if any persons had paid for the pipes, etc., laid to the main sewer. The clerk answered they had not, but the question was to be gone into.

WATER.—Mr. Bromet asked for the final decision of the Board as regards a water supply for Mr. Lawton. The clerk having already given a reply to the subject, Mr. Bromet was referred to the same.

FINANCE.—In passing the accounts, the clerk and committee complained very much of the late hour at which accounts were sent in; in one case, it had not yet arrived, although a monthly instalment was due. They asked that accounts should be in the clerk's hands two days before the Finance Committee meeting, (that is a week before the Board meeting.) On the motion of Mr. Oliver, seconded by Mr. J. Hargreaves, the accounts were passed.

The collector reported having received as follows, during the fortnight:—

	£	s	d.
General District Rate	7	0	8
Water Rents	33	19	1
	£40	19	9

PLAN.—Mr. J. Hargreaves moved—That the plan of a pigsty and washhouse of Mr. Bramley's be approved; he and Mr. Oliver had looked at it, there being no other members of the Committee, (Mr. Oliver is not a member.) Mr. Oliver seconded the motion, as he and Mr. James were the only members of either the Building or Finance Committee present at their meeting. Carried; Mr. Bramley, neutral.

SURVEYOR.—The continued indisposition of Mr. Worth, the surveyor of roads and inspector of nuisances, was regretfully spoken of, and as the roads are in so serious a condition, it was resolvoed to appoint Mr. Jowitt temporarily to fill his place.

The meeting was then adjourned to Thursday evening, when the contracts for supplying material and labour for paving Bell Hill will be considered; proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. Bramley, and carried.

In our report of last meeting, a slight omission occurred, which was not observed till the paper was printed. As regards the tenders for removing the road scrapings, Mr. W. Hargreaves moved that Bulmer's tender be accepted at £75. This, however, was not seconded, and consequently fell to the ground. Mr. James Hargreaves then proposed—That Mr. Bleasby's tender at £80 be accepted; which Mr. Oliver seconded, and in favour of which Mr. Holmes said a few woads. On being put, every member including the proposer of Mr. Bulmer, voted for Mr. Bleasby.

[The mention of Bulmer was considered unnecessary, as there was no seconder. The omission of Mr. James Hargreaves' name was entirely unobserved till pointed out on Saturday.]

At the meeting last evening the following tenders were accepted:—Mr. David Speight for pavers; Mr. Rowley for paving; Mr. Bleasby for leading.

WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

A special meeting of the Board was held on Monday evening, Mr. Jackson in the chair; there were also present the Rev. A. J. Irvin, Mr. Nowell, and the clerk.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and signed by the chairman. The clerk reported that he had received notice from Mr. A. G. Legard, H.M. Inspector, that the annual inspection of the Woodlesford School would be held on Monday, December 4th, the Standard examination being fixed for Friday, December 1st. There having being a change of teachers during the year, it was necessary to fill up the Managers' Return, (form ix.) accordingly.

It was resolved that prizes should be given for regularity of attendance, and that the books should be obtained from Messrs. Allman and Son, London.

It is proposed to distribute the prizes and certificates previous to the breaking up of the schools for the Christmas holidays.

LOFTHOUSE CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.

(COMMUNICATED.)

A lecture was given by Mr Jas. Lowry, Waterloo, Liverpool, under the auspices of the above association, on Tuesday evening last, upon 'Peace, Retrenchment, and Reform,' in which, after briefly referring to the severe reverses of the Conservative party at the last general election, and alluding to the political war cries of the Liberal party at that time, the chief of which was 'Peace, Retrenchment and Reform,' he read a definition of these terms as given by Mr. Gladstone in one of his speeches at West Calder, which meant generally, to increase the happiness of each individual in the nation, and the prosperity of the kingdom as a whole; and the lecturer then asked if two years of Liberal rule had produced these beneficial results, and in contradiction of this question, so far as 'peace' was concerned, he severely criticised the conduct of the government in their policy towards Ireland, which he stated was in comparative happiness upon the resignation of the late Conservative government, but in less than a year after the accession of the present government, owing to their reversing the policy of their predecessors and being heedless of their warning, Mr. Gladstone admitted that the country was in social revolt, the lecturer quoted statistics for the month of March last, when even the professed remedial measures were in operation, the number of agrarian and other crimes peculiar to the agitation of the Land League was upwards of 500. He next referred to the Transvaal question, the alluring idol of the Concert of Europe, the Dulcigno fiasco, the Egyptian war, and the Premier's humiliation by the Austrian ambassador for his wild utterances in Midlothian respecting Austria. He also mentioned that during the last half century this country had been engaged in sixteen wars, eleven of which had been carried on by the Liberals, and the remaining five by the Conservatives, and Mr. Lowry asked if these results were satisfactory and convincing evidence of the peaceful proclivities of the Liberal party. The lecturer next referred to 'retrenchment,' and after alluding to the glowing pictures drawn by the Liberals when in opposition, of the wonders they would work in this department if only they were in office, notably the curtailment of national expenditure, and the abolition of Income Tax, when lo! they had added nearly four millions per annum to the expenses which satisfied a Conservative government, and the Income Tax has received the Irishman's lower of 3d. in the £. He instanced Mr. Gladstone's love of retrenchment by his personal absorption of the salaries of both the Prime Minister and Chancellorship of the Exchequer, and an office of £1,000 per annum for his son Herbert. Upon this point he minutely described the conduct of Mr. Gladstone, in his dealing with the purchase of the Suez Canal shares by Lord Beaconsfield's government, and compared the actual cost of four millions with their present value of nearly twenty millions. He also referred to the Arrears Bill for Ireland, which discharged the Irish farmers rent liabilities by a payment of 6/8 in the £, the remaining 13/4 being paid, 6/8 by the British taxpayers, and 6/8 the landlord must forfeit, and this doubtful economy is all carried out in the name of justice.

On the subject of 'reform' he said the only fruits that had been reaped were an effort to drag Mr. Bradlaugh into Parliament by Mr. Gladstone himself, although only a few years ago, in his discussion with Cardinal Newman he said 'That the only things which render a man ineligible for the position of a member of Parliament were treason, obscenity and blasphemy,' and yet although Mr. Bradlaugh had been guilty of all three, he strained his utmost to get him admitted into Parliament; and the other piece of reform was the famous Cloture, which would render the present government immortal as being the one which was unable to transact business without gagging the legitimate criticism of their opponents. The lecturer concluded an excellent lecture by urging upon all Conservatives to carefully watch the Registration. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer by a large majority of the meeting, though an opposite vote was put, was enthusiastically carried.

As the lecturer had to leave for Wakefield by a train leaving at 9.20 p.m., and the lecture was not concluded until 8.45 p.m., he was unable from pressure of time to answer questions which it was the desire of some persons present to put.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

On Saturday evening last, the members of the Stourton Band of Hope visited the Rothwell Temperance Hall for the purpose of giving an entertertainment. The room was moderately well filled, and a good programme was gone through by the visitors. Mr. W. Varley was in the chair, and after a few remarks, he announced the first item on the programme, a glee by the choir, which was ably led by Mr. T. Kale. Dialogues, songs, recitations, &c., were then given by the members in good style, one feature being an amusing dialogue 'Dr. Quack,' which took well with the audience. The pieces were well rendered throughout, and seemed to be enjoyed by the company. The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the performers.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Fair attendance and a better demand for wheat, red winters being fully 6d. per qr. dearer. Maize firm. Oats and beans dearer, the former 1s per qr. Peas 1s. higher. Flour without alteration. Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—Although we had a larger supply of fat stock to-day, we have to report a decided advance on late rates. This was owing to the exceptional state of the sheep market, which was dearer than ever, owing to the very small supply. There was a larger supply of fat beasts, and as we have intimated the condition of the sheep market had a wonderful influence on the beef trade. Last week we reported an advance of a farthing per lb., and another farthing at least had to be paid to-day by butchers. We had a smaller supply of milch cows and lean beasts. We had about the same number of pigs on offer as last week, and prices were as follows.

	this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,	2220		1846
" sheep	3000,	"	3600
" pigs	360,	"	360
" milch cows &c	80,	"	187

Prices were as follows:—
Fat beasts, 7¾d to 9¼d per lb.
Lean beasts, £9 to £13 each.
Milch cows, £18 to £30 each.
Sheep, 9¼d to 11¼d per lb.
Pigs, small, 10s to 14s.
" store, 50s to 70s.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD, CORN, Friday, 1.5 p.m.—Wheat shows a hardening tendency, and in some cases a shilling per qr. advance on last week's prices is obtained. There is a limited demand for both English and foreign barley this morning, with but little change in values. Beans, oats and maize rather lower. Weather dull and rain threatens.

TEMPERANCE ENTERTAINMENT.

A number of young men, teachers in the Wesleyan Sunday School, gave an entertainment on Monday evening, representing a juvenile temperance meeting. The chairman (Mr. J. Goodall) takes the chair, and opens the meeting in the usual manner, after which he addresses his audience on the evils of "little drops." He is about to call on one of the speakers round him on the platform, when a youth, Daniel Darkage (Master G. W. Batty) interposes a question as to the necessity for a man who only takes a pint a day to become a teetotaler. The chairman is replying in a round about way, when Joseph Hardhit (Mr. S. Morton) asks leave to put a spoke in that wheel. The chairman wishes to stop the discussion, which idea is laughed at by Peter Marpeace (Mr. J. Gibson) who taunts them with being afraid of argument. The chairman from this moment, is constantly endeavouring to close the discussion, and is constantly interrupted by one or another of his supporters on the platform, while new opponents of temperance spring up in different parts of the room with various arguments or questions. John Shortsight (Mr. G. Sherbourn) is replied to by William Goodproof (Mr. W. Ellis.) Thomas Goodless (Mr. J. Wade) is fit up by Richard Naylor (Mr. Z. Ellis.) Samual Squaller's place was taken by Mr. Ledgard, (Mr. J. Blackburn being called away) who objects to teetotalling because of being unsociable and lifeless, Mr. Ledgard also read a selection entitled "Are you sure that you are right." Abraham Tuneful was well represented in Mr. W. Batty, who in the course of his reply, recited with rare effect "The tale of the two glasses."

George Soprano (Mr. W. Varley) also answers Squaller, and gives a specimen of the songs used by teetotallers. Peter Parley (Mr. J. Turner) rising in the audience enquires what is to be done with the barley, and is answered by Matthew Milkbody, (Mr. J. Abbishaw) in broad country dialect. A scene then occurs in a corner of the room between two Irishmen, Pat Blarney (Mr. G. Hainsworth) and Michael Malony, (Mr. T. Yowell) who cleverly impersonated the two sides of the question. Timothy Twaddle (Mr. A. Young) is replied to by Thomas Straightview, (Mr. S. Sidebottom) shewing the beneficial influence exercised by a good example; and by John Wackem (Mr. J. Butterick) who refers to several Biblical and other examples of good men falling through drink. Francis Fervent (Mr. Jas. Ellis) then brings the discussion to a close by gathering up the various arguments, and proving that teetotalism is the right thing, leading men on to religion and assisting it. Another song is then given by Mr. Soprano, and after a few closing observations from Mr. Ledgard, the meeting is brought to a close.

As being a considerable effort of memory, and containing many valuable points, the dialogue was excellent, reflecting great credit on those to whom its preparation must have been a labour, a labour of love.

The attendance was moderate, and the receipts go towards the fund for purchasing warming apparatus for the school.

We are pleased to learn that Alfred Hopton, a native of Rothwell, who has been on active service in Egypt during the late campaign, arrived at his father's house last night for a holiday; he was in the thick of the fight at Tel-el-Kebir, and we understand he is entitled to receive two medals of merit.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

ROAD CONTRACTORS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I should just like to say a word or two in reply to the two letters which appeared in last week's paper about road scrapings; all working-men like myself who have to go late and soon on the roads at present supposed to be repaired by Bulmer, will think with me that he ought to get the mud off at home instead of going further away. I defy anyone to go far on the footpaths without getting over the boot-tops, and the roads are shocking. I do not know how the payments are made to the present contractors but I think it high time that they should be stopped until we get some better roads; and the streets of Rothwell I never saw in a worse state than at present.

I am,
Yours respectfully,
A CARTMAN.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

Will you kindly allow me to make a few remarks on the two letters in your last week's issue on the above subject. It is quite as right for the Board to give the contract to one ratepayer as another, whether he resides at Stourton or Rothwell. Bleasby pays more rates than either Bulmer or 'Fair Play.' I think with the Local Board that Bulmer has more contracts than he executes in a satisfactory manner, either to the ratepayers or the Board. It is all right people taking a lot of contracts and getting money on account of them, but if they are not done well they had better not be let to such men at any price. The scrapings require a large staff of men and horses, and getting off at once, or they are a great expense to the ratepayers by keeping the water channels blocked up. The sum of eighty pounds is soon lost in the damage done to materials. The difference of five pounds which there was between the two tenders may be lost in a day. We know the last contract was done by Bulmer and not satisfactory, as the Board had to write him more than once, complaining of them being left so long in the road, some so long as three months. If he had so many horses and carts at his beck and call for a job ten times as large as this, why did he not engage them. A certain tradesman in Rothwell, no one will doubt, would receive more benefit from the contract being let to Bulmer than it is to Bleasby. But of course the Board must take into consideration all matters connected, and not one individual's interest. We cannot complain of Mr. Holmes representing Stourton; other members besides him who try their best to represent home, especially as he is the acting surveyor. The other day a Leeds contractor of roads in a large way recommended the use of a boat to get through the mud. What are we to expect if we allow this state of things to continne. I think with the Local Board at their last meeting, we require some better management, and at once.

Yours etc.,
A WORKING-MAN.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

I see in Rothwell Times of last Friday, the letter on road scrapings; the writer may well be ashamed of signing his own name, but as all other ill-disposed persons do, he would stab them in the dark to get his own ends. I hope Mr. Holmes will have the good sense to treat it with silent contempt; any person who has read it will see how deeply he is interested in Mr. contractor. No wonder our representative, Mr. Holmes, dont suit the Rothwell contractor, because he keeps them closer to their contract in carrying out their duty in cleansing the ashpits and other work at Stourton better than ever they were before, and attends to the wishes and requirements of the ratepayers here, time and attention being no object. The word buttoning fully carries out 'Fair Play's' game, he has always played his cards at Rothwell not up to the mark; the ratepayers and Local Board ought to have seen how and for what purpose he tried so hard to keep his seat on the Board, when his partner had the contract for the night soil, he would not allow him to have his name on the night soil cart (but his own.) Its plain to anyone with half an eye, that during the removing of the night soil contract he could be seen fussing about, passing his word for horses and carts; this will answer the reason that he had men at his beck and call, and if it be true what I read, in the Rothwell Times, that 'Fair Play' tried all in his power to put in extra note for road scraping, but the latter game would not fit. Why not come out as he says, 'Fair Play, and let the firm of contractors take their own names.

Stourton,
Nov. 22nd, 1882.
Yours truly,
J. PLATT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

As all public officials are liable to be shot at, it appears the choice made for the target on this occasion is myself,; so long as the range and the rifles are at such a distance I hope I shall come to no personal harm. In answer to the two scurrilous letters in the Rothwell Times on Friday last, such remarks as buttoning are below my notice, and apply more to those who use such words than to me. The question is asked how was it that Bulmer's tender for £75 was not accepted. In the first place, the Board's advertisement for tenders distinctly say they dont "necessarily accept the lowest or any tender," and another reason because there was no seconder to Bulmer's proposition, and therefore the proposer voted for the amendment of it, and it was unanimously carried. Another good reason was that the contractor had more work on his hands then than he could well manage, this was the unanimous opinion and expression of the Board. The ratepayers will endorse this by the state of all his roads and only one man working on them, this shows that the Board is not satisfied (me being excepted.) Your correspondent forgets to tell the ratepayers when the roads were let, that a Hunslet man gave a tender and he was not merely five pounds less, but an hundred pounds less than the price given to Bulmer. Again, when the widening of the road at the bottom of Marsh and Commercial Street was let, a Hunslet contractor gave a tender and was the lowest, this was also given to the Rothwell contractor, besides others I could innumerate. 'Fair Play' says that the Rothwell people will lose the £75 and it will go to Hunslet. He forgets to tell you that Mr. Bleasby is a larger ratepayer and pays more rates to Rothwell than the other contractors put together, receiving no benefit whatever either from the water, common sewer, lamps, or roads, as he has to find his own. The ratepayers as a body, I think, will be glad when this contract is finished if only for one reason, it will have a tendency to break the compact which has been carried on between the two contractors meeting at a certain public house in Rothwell to make a pie before delivering in their tenders, but the sore place is in the £75 pounds changing hands. As 'Fair Play' is so interested in this and other contracts, and more interested in himself, no wonder at his being annoyed so much with losing the large interest he has received, and throw out his venom. He has tried all that lays in his power by unfair means, which very few persons would stop to do, to remove me from a seat on the Board. My attendance at the Board and committee meetings all kinds of weather, will show that I have been watching the interests of those who sent me as their representative, and I hope I never shall betray the confidence reposed in me, nor them suffer through my failing to do my duty.

Haigh Villa,
Stourton Lodge,
Nov. 22nd, 1882.
Yours obediently,
JOSEPH HOLMES.

THE PROPOSED RAILWAY.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

With your permission I beg to offer a suggestion to the inhabitants of Rothwell and district, the importance of the subject is my apology for laying it before your numerous readers. I was agreeably surprised by seeing in the Leeds Mercury on the 18th inst. a notice of the revival of the Rothwell Railway scheme; if carried out as sketched, it will result in making Rothwell a very important centre. I think all will admit that we are not well accommodated with roads on the north side of the town; in connection with the railway scheme a favourite opportunity is presented to remedy this state of things, would it not be advisable to have the railway station near the bridge in Church St., but whether it be in Church St. or Wood Lane, it is equally important to have a good and convenient road in connection with it, even if we were to have no station at all, it is time we had a decent road out of this side of Rothwell. The following plan, if carried out, would meet either case. I am not at present going into the engineering difficulty of gradients and costs, although they are not insuperable in the hands of those who are projecting the railway, and the local authorities on the part of the town. If a new road were made between the corner of Church St. and the Cross and thence carried over the beck and the present road by two main arches and smaller lateral arches running out near Manor House and the west entrance to the church, we should not only have a good road and comparatively easy gradients, but a considerable improvement to the town, and would leave all roads and rights of way as they are, the line might run under the arch on the lower level and the proposed road would take the traffic and avoid the objection to a evel crossing, but wherever the station is, the road is really required.

I remain, Sir,
Your obliged and obedient servant,
Nov. 23rd, 1882.
GEO. LOCKWOOD.

THROAT IRRITATION.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three imes the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Sold by all Chemists.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY'S TIC PILLS, a specific for Neuralgia, Face-ache, &c., 9½d., 1s. 1½d.; postage 1d. Of Chemists. Kay Bros., Stockport.

"ROUGH ON RATS."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

KAY'S COMPOUND for Colds and Coughs, cures nine cases out of ten. Sold by Chemists.

LINES TO A MOTHER.

Forget thee! never while I've breath,
Should I forgetful be;
I'd sooner yield myself to death,
Than cease from loving thee,
My mother.

KAY'S COMPOUND, a demulcent expectorant and anodyne, for Coughs and Colds. Sold by all Chemists.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered exceruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

ENGLAND AND THE POWERS.

The Review by the Queen of the troops who have been fighting the battles of their country in Egypt is an event of very considerable public interest. The Horse Guards Parade has witnessed some historic scenes, one of the best remembered of which was that at the close of the Crimean War, when Her Majesty distributed the medals which had been won during an arduous campaign. Between the two spectacles, somewhat similar in appearance, there is a wide difference in their attendant circumstances. England at that time had been engaged nearly two years in a campaign with a colossal military Power, and after nearly forty years of peace. But we were not alone in that struggle. We were joined by France, and had also Turkey and Sardinia as our allies. It seems strange to us at this time of day that with the naval strength of England, and the armies of France, Turkey, and Sardinia, it should have taken two whole years to bring that contest to a close. But since then there have been many improvements in the material as well as in the science of war; and it is now not unusual to finish off a campaign in a few weeks. The mighty wrestle between France and Germany twelve years ago for the mastery of Continental Europe was all over in six months. The military system which France had been building up for so long was shattered by a series of heavy blows dealt with such rapidity that it was impossible to recover from one before another was delivered That campaign, too, included two great sieges—Paris and Metz, the former of which lasted four months, thus reducing the time occupied by conflicts in the fiield to two months. In the Russian struggle the time was chiefly taken up in the siege of Sebastopol, which went on for eleven long and weary months, in the face of incredible hardships on the part of the investing forces. It would be got through in much less time now.

Contrasting the conditions which preceded the distribution of the Crimean medals with those which have been won in Egypt, there is all the difference between a long struggle in a cold climate and a short campaign in a hot one. The loss of life in Egypt has been nothing like that which took place on the bleak plains of the Crimea. We have fought single-handed now, and we did so jointly then. But in two essential particulars the circumstances of 1856 and of 1882 are similar in a remarkable degree. The demonstrations of national gratitude to the soldiers on their return have been the same in both cases. There is also an equal feeling of satisfaction that the sovereign takes part in a pageant of great public interest. While the affairs of State are conducted upon the principles on which they have hitherto been based, it is impossible to avoid either wars or rumours of wars. For a nation to leave its coasts unguarded, and its frontiers uncared for, would be characterised by even a stronger term. The appearance of the Sovereign upon the scene of a military pageant is therefore well calculated to kindle the martial spirit of the people. An army it must have, and the presence of the Queen on such an occasion is a very material assistance to the means for maintaining its ranks. To Her Majesty the scene upon the Horse Guards Parade must awaken the echoes of years that have long since fled away. In 1856 she was still a young woman—only 37—with her husband by her side, and little children playing in the gardens of Buckingham Palace hard by. To-day she is in her 64th year, silvered as to hair, with the sorrows of domestic bereavements in her heart; and still with the cares of State upon her head. One-and-twenty of the years which have fled away since the close of the war with Russia have found her a lonely widow upon the Throne; and only four year ago the death of one of her married daughters, the lamented Princess Alice, once more reminded people that rank and station are not without their troubles; and that in the palaces of Kings, the castles of nobles, and the mansions of the wealthy, as well as in the cottages of the humble, the visit of the Angel of Death may be expected when the time for departure has come.

There is one point in connection with the distribution of the Egyptian medals which is worth noticing just now. The Crimean war was barren of results, comparatively speaking. The credit due to the completion of a successful campaign was not exclusively our own possession. It had to be divided between three or four other powers. After the suppression of the Indian Mutiny the disinclination to interfere in the affairs of other nations was very marked. We were averse to unnecessary military enterprise. Non-intervention was the order of the day. It thus came to pass that in the time of the Franco-German war the German press wrote openly on what they called the effacement of England, which they playfully described as an old and effete country. Now however, it will doubtless be conceded that England is quite strong enough to take care of her interests in any part of the world. The way in which the Egyptian campain was planned and carried out would have been no discredit to Germany herself, which secured such a reputation for military skill in the campaign against Austria in 1866, and France in 1870. The German or any other nation which mistakes a calm attitude of strength for pusillanimity and weakness, make a mistake. The idea of England being effete and like ancient Rome bending towards ruin beneath the weight of her own magnificence is a creation of a jealous imagination. We can not only hold our own when attacked; but we can protect our own when there is even a shadow of manace, be the continent or the hemisphere where it may.

METHLEY MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The members of this Society opened their winter session on Monday evening last, with a miscellaneous concert given in the National School.

A programme of more than average interest, which had every justice done to it, was presented to an audience both large in numbers and appreciative in character.

The part-songs given were Pearsall's—"Who will o'er the downs;" a waltz chorus, "When the summer moon is beaming," by C. E. Horsley; Smart's "Ave Maria;" and the "Fisherman's Good-night," by Bishop. The members are to be congratulated on the excellence of their part-singing. Mr. G. Atkinson conducted, and contributed two songs—"Oftentimes," Cotsford Dick, and Dibdin's ever welcome "Bay of Biscay," which was extremely well received, he also took part with Messrs. Pickersgill and Holdsworth in a humorous trio—"Sweet Dorabella," from one of Mozart's lesser known operas.

Miss C. Braime deserves warm praise for her singing of Sullivan's "Dream." In response to a well-deserved encore she gave Cowen's "Better Land." Miss Teale appeared to advantage in "The Kerry dame," substituted for "At the ferry," which was put up for her on the programme. The duet by Hullah—"Oh! that we two were Maying," Miss Teale and Mr. Savile, was also favourably received. Mr. T. West, who is to be congratulated on the possession of a fine voice of exceptional range and quality, gave an effective rendering of the "Midshipmite," and Molloy's "Skipper," the latter being encored. Mr. Taylor sang "True till death." Mr. Savile also contributed a song "I fear no foe," and assisted Miss Savile in a piano duet—"Airs from Faust," which was encored.

At the close of the concert a vote of thanks to the performers was moved by the Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Savile, and seconded by Mr. Phillips.

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The ordinary meeting of the above Board was held last Friday, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman) J. Batty, J. G. Turner, J. Parker and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. A letter was read from Mr. Harms, intimating that Miss Preston and Miss Harms have both passed successfully their examination for Queen's scholarship, and asking for a testimonial to Miss Harms' qualifications and character during her apprenticeship under this Board. A resolution was unanimously passed instructing the clerk to write a suitable testimonial.

As a vacancy will occur in Rothwell schools after Christmas, advertisements were ordered to be inserted in the Schoolmaster and Yorkshire Post for an Infants' Mistress at a salary of £60 per annum.

The clerk informed the Board that the examination will be held at Rothwell Haigh on Dec. 5th, 6th, and 7th, and at Rothwell on the 5th, 6th, and 8th.

The attendance officer presented a long list of absentee children, and after a long and careful enquiry into each case, about eighteen parents were ordered to be summoned, unless great improvement is at once made.

Accounts and salaries were passed, including teachers £65 4s. 2d; accounts £24 18s. 3d, and on account of building £12.

Mr. Richardson having desired a testimonial from the Board, for the purpose of obtaining an engagement for another Board, the clerk was directed to draw one up, stating that his work as architect had been most satisfactorily done.

The various wants were also agreed to.

The chairman had received a letter from Mr. Thos. Hargreaves, giving notice of his resignation as Treasurer to the Board, on account of pressure of business engagements. The valued services of Mr. Hargreaves were thankfully acknowledged, and his resignation accepted, to terminate as soon as may be convenient.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

The weekly meeting of the society was held on Wednesday evening, the attendance was not so large as desirable, ten members being present, Mr. Harms in the chair. The question for debate was "Ought the law with respect to a deceased wife's sister to be altered."

Mr. B. Batty, in introducing the subject, said the affirmative was supported by royalty itself. Before 1835 it was perfectly legal to marry a deceased wife's sister, but as it was contrary to church principles it was repealed. In London, he said, 3000 such marriages had taken place, and he pointed out that public opinion asked for an alteration of the law, by the fact that 1000 municipal bodies had petitioned parliament. There was a majority in the House of Commons for it. The present law was a misery to "untold numbers." When a man had asked for and obtained his sister-in-law's hand, he was told that any offspring there might be would be illegitimate. To evade this the late Dr. Punshon went to America and was married there. A marriage with a sister-in-law would mitigate the evils usually accompanying a step-mother, as the former would know and care for the children more than the latter. He quoted some step-mother characters from several novels. He wished for a change in the law because it was entirely a working-man's question. It was a great misfortune to such a one to lose his wife, and who would fill her place up so well as her sister? At present he was compellled to get a house-keeper who was worse than a step-mother. It was legal in the colonies, and yet not in the mother country, so that a man could marry his sister-in-law in one country and desert her in another, moreover such a change in the law would mitigate the agonies and cares of a mother on her death bed.

Mr. F. J. Seanor read a speech of the Bishop of Peterborough, against the innovation, not arguing, however, from a theological point of view; supposing a man could marry his sister-in-law, he would have to wait a year before he could make her his own, then when she got children of her own she would place her affections on them and not on the others.

Mr. R. Batty thought a sister-in-law would be the most likely to fill the vacant place, and he argued that the number who married in contempt of the law ought to be an incentive to its alteration; no one would take advantage of the bill in case of blood relationship.

Mr. Denton criticised some of the arguments of Mr. Batty as "weak," a law should not be altered simply because it was broken. The fact that 1000 municipal bodies had voted in favour of the alteration was no proof of the right of it. He did not at all think it necessary that a man should wait a year before he married again, also there were novels which lauded the step-mother character, so that was no proof; however he should certainly vote for a change.

Mr. Whitehead thought it would not always be wise to marry a sister-in-law.

Mr. W. J. Knowlson opposed Mr. Batty, and argued from scriptural and moral ground that the law should remain as it was; he thought the very idea aroused within them a feeling of disgust, which fact showed it was not compatible with human nature; he thought if anyone was married to a sister-in-law in Austrailia, she was his legal wife all over the world. The fact that some had married in contempt of the law was no proof for its alteration, they might alter the law with regard to murder for the same reason; he did not like the idea that a man could marry his wife's sister, who had also been his brothers wife. The practice of marrying a deceased wife's sister would tend to decrease the vitality of the nation more than blood relations did at present, the aristocracy had few children because they intermarried so much.

Mr Batty having vigorously replied to the criticisms and arguments adduced, the chairman put the question to the vote, with result; affirmative 8, negative 1.

VISIT OF THE QUEEN TO NETLEY HOSPITAL.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and the Duke of Albany, paid a visit on Wednesday to Netley Hospital, where the sick and wounded who served in the Egyptian campaign are now under treatment. Her Majesty drove from Windsor Castle to the Great Western Railway station, where the Royal party were joined by the Duke of Connaught, who drove from Bagshot Park. Her Majesty left by special train at eleven o'clock, and travelled by way of Slough and Reading to Basingstoke, and thence over the South-Western Railway to Southampton. Netley was reached at half-past twelve, and the Royal party were driven in an open carriage to the hospital. In attendance on Her Majesty were General Sir H. M. Ponsonby, Major Egerton, the Hon. A. Yorke, the Marchioness of Ely, and Lady Waterpark.

The road to the hospital was lined with spectators, and the 2nd Hants Volunteers, with their band, kept the route from the entrance gates at Netley to the hospital. On reaching the hospital, Her Majesty was received by General Sir Charles Pearson, Surgeon-General Holloway, and medical staff. The Royal party were conducted all over the buildings, and Her Majesty addressed several of the men in kindly terms, whilst she personally decorated all those who had been wounded in the campaign, pinning with her own hands the medals to the breasts of those who were unable to leave their beds. After this visit, which occupied nearly two hours, the Royal party left the hospital and drove to the residence of Sir Charles Pearson, where luncheon by the party was partaken of. Her Majesty returned from Netley at 3.45, arriving at Windsor shortly before six p.m. The weather was fine, and on the route to and from the hospital Her Majesty was heartily cheered.

OULTON BREWERY UNITED CRICKET CLUB.

The annual supper of the above club was held at the Midland Hotel, Woodlesford, on Friday the 24th inst., when about 50 persons sat down to partake of the good viands which were set before them. Mr. Hoyle, (vice-president of the club) occupied the chair.

After supper the treasurer read the balance sheet, which showed a substantial balance in hand. From the secretary's report the club had won 8 matches, lost 4, drawn 5, 1 disputed and 4 not played. Mr. Hoyle next presented the prizes, a bat to W. Hirst for batting, and a cricket belt to J. R. Hewitt for bowling. Toasts, speeches and songs concluded the night's enjoyment.

The following are the averages :—

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield Corn, Friday, 12.35 p.m.—There is a scanty supply of English wheat which sells readily at full prices of last week. Foreign in fair request at about late rates. A small show of English barley, no change in value; foreign offered freely and price rather easier. Beans, oats and maize steady. Weather cold and very foggy.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

The members of the Rothwell Temperance Society had their usual entertainment on Saturday evening last. There was a good attendance, and an excellent programme was gone through, showing that the Society possess some talent, which only wants bringing out. The entertainment opened with an overture by the band, followed by songs, etc. Two pianoforte solos were rendered by Mr. J. Naylor, in the place of Mr. Slater, of Morley, who did not appear. Two songs were given by Miss. A. E. Lunn, which were encored. Mr. R. Ellis also sang two pieces, and his daughter one. A dialogue was presented by some members of the Society, and recitations by children. Mr. W. Baty gave a reading, and several comic readings by Mr. T. Lunn, provoking considerable laughter. The entertainment closed about half-past nine, all appearing satisfied with the evening's amusement.

Sudden Death.—A very sad occurrence took place in Rothwell last Monday morning, to Joseph Young, aged 64, a spinner engaged in Mr. Wm. Armstead's bandwalk. It appears that on the morning in question deceased commenced work at seven o'clock, this hour being earlier than usual; he had been unwell for some time past, but seemed much as usual in health. He was left in charge of the walk at ten o'clock, and began to roll band in a shed, sitting on a stool near a large fire; at half-past eleven he was observed to be leaning back against the wall of the shed and to fall over; assistance was at once rendered, and a teaspoonful of brandy was given to him, but he only lived about a minute. Deceased had worked for Mr. Armstead for 30 years.

NEW MUSIC.

We have pleasure in directing the attention of our musical readers from time to time to new compositions which seem to deserve special notice. The pieces before us, 'Beautiful Snow' Valse, by H C Godfrey, 'Die Erste Liebe' (The First Love) Valse, and 'Maiglockchen' (Lily of the Valley) Galop, by W E Holbin. (F Pitman, London) appeal chiefly to that numerous class of young players who delight in the graceful rhythm of the valse, or the lively rattle of galop or polka. Without exhibiting any very novel or striking features, they are very pleasant and melodious. 'The First Love' Valses are particularly pretty. None of them present any special difficulty to players of ordinary ability. The cover of each is beautifully illustrated in colours. A 'Tarantella' in G Minor, by Etienne Claudet (R Cocks and Co.) will find appreciation with those who enjoy light music of a higher character as a relief to classical studies. The principal subject is very sprightly, and the rhythm is well marked. A noticeable feature is an episode in E flat Major, a delightful bit of melody accompanied in triplets. The piece concludes with the original subject written in the relative key of E major. It is very lively throughout, easy and showy; may well be learned by heart.

At Oulton, Rothwell Harmonic v. Hunslet Wesleyans (cup tie, final).
At Oulton, Oulton 2nd v. Hopetown Victoria.

ROTHWELL v. HUNSLET.

Last Saturday, the above teams met at Rothwell, when a good game was witnessed, both clubs being fairly well represented. During the first half Hunslet played with the wind in their favour. Rothwell kicked off, and after a run to both ends of the field a piece of splendid combined play on the part of the home forwards enabled Pape to secure the first goal. Hunslet re-started, and a visit into the Rothwell territory ensued, several corner kicks and shots at goal being made, but none were really dangerous, several good chances being thrown away by bad judgment in shying. The Rothwellians again took the leather up the field, and a magnificent scrimmage took place in the visitors' goal mouth, the ball several times appearing to be right under the cross-bar; Stringer, however, came to the rescue, and a long kick removed the struggle into neutral ground. For some time even play ensued, the ball visiting all parts of the field, and when half-time was called only Rothwell had scored. Ends were changed, and the home team, with the wind at their backs, were soon engaged dangerously close to the Hunslet citadel, Dobson being especially prominent, on the left wing. A low shot was made at the Hunslet goal, which the visitors' custodian kicked on to Stringer, and the ball rebounded off him between the posts, thus securing the second point for Rothwell. This second reverse put Hunslet on their mettle, and several times shots were made, but the custodian of the Rothwell citadel showed himself equal to the occasion. More even play ensued, and again the Rothwell fortress was endangered by a shot which hit the cross-bar, but which the goal-keeper managed to keep out. Another shy was made immediately afterwards, and being fouled by Hartley in the goal mouth, Hunslet claimed a goal, which was allowed. Nothing more of any importance took place before time was called, the game resulting in a win for Rothwell by 2 goals to 1. Stringer, Lunn and Martin were the pick of the visitors; for Rothwell the whole team played well, and it would be unfair to make special mention of anyone. The following composed the Rothwell team:—J W Wright, goal; F Seanor, S Waterhouse, backs; W Hartley, capt., A Ward, H Wormald, half backs; G Dobson, A Green, A Pape, A Chapman, J Wilson, forwards.

ROTHWELL B. S. v. HARMONIC 2nd.

The return match of the above teams was played in the Harmonic field on Saturday last, which ended in a win for the home team. During the first half the game was of a very even character, the Harmonic securing one goal to the B. S. nil. On changing ends it was thought that the visitors would gain the victory, as the ball was mostly in the home goal, while the visitors' goal was never in danger. When time was called however, the game ended as above stated.

OULTON VICTORIA v. HOPETOWN VICTORIA

Played at Oulton on Saturday, and resulted in an easy victory for the home team by 4 goals to nil. The Oulton captain lost the toss, and kicked off up hill and against the wind. T. Higgins by a splendid shot from the right wing, enabled J. Higgins to put the ball through for the first time. Hopetown kicked off, the ball being well returned by the Oulton backs, and from a scrimmage in front of the visitors goal, A. Ellis put the ball through a second time. The visitors put the ball in motion again, and made a severe attack on the home goal, but failed to score. Half-time being called ends were changed. The visitors kicked off up hill, but had no chance whatever of scoring, never getting nearer than the half-way flag, the home team working well together, and succeeded in lowering the visitors colours twice more, J. Higgins doing the needful, the latter from a splendid throw in by Tom Higgins. Time being now called the game terminated as stated above.

HUNSLET WESLEYANS v STOURON ROVERS 2nd

This match was played on the ground of the latter. The Wesleyans scored three goals to Stourton two.

Our Young Men.—We have not unfrequently had the pleasure of noting the advance of young men hailing from this neighbourhood, and shall always be glad to hear of any of our lads rising in the scale of society. In the early days of our journalistic career, we employed a youth named Ernest Hobson, as occasional reporter, a line of life which he afterwards entered into on the staff of a Wakefield contemporary. Some time ago, Mr. Hobson received an appointment on the Oldham Evening Express, where he has gradually risen to become second reporter. He has now received the offer of becoming sub editor of the Belfast Daily Post, an important Irish journal, which he has accepted at a very comfortable salary. We are sure this news must be received with gratification by all who knew our young friend, who formerly lived at Robin Hood.

Eastbourne Gazette Pictorial Supplement.—A copy of this unique and attractive sheet has just reached us, combining the advantages of advertising and information most pleasingly. An extensive and faithful view of this remarkably healthy watering place occupies the upper portion of the entire sheet, while pictorial illustrations of the principal buildings, commercial and hotel, are scattered over the remainder of both sides of the publication, judiciously interspersed with medical and press opinions as to the excellence of this delightful town as a health resort. The clearness of the views, the tasteful arrangement of the matter, and the beauty and neatness of the printing reflect every credit on the office of the Gazette.

The Bicycle Club Concert.—The young fellows composing the Aurora Bicycle Club have got together an attractive list of performers for Monday night, and the programme is nicely varied. Being their first appeal to the public, we hear that a full house may be anticipated, a large number of tickets being already disposed of.

Special Religious Services have been conducted every evening during the present week in the Wesleyan Chapel, by the Rev. John Pickup, good congregations having assembled, and an amount of good accomplished.

Rothwell Church.—From small bills distributed in the town, it appears that special preachers have been secured by our new vicar for the three Wednesday evenings previous to Christmas, commencing next week. We hope this effort to attract larger audiences at the week evening service will be successful, and beneficial to those who attend.

We learn that a testimonial is being prepared by the tenants of Mr. Calverley, for presentation on the occasion of Miss Calverley's intended marriage. We are quite sure that all who have had the honour and pleasure of knowing the young lady will heartily wish her every joy on the coming event.

"Jackdaw" will have his caw next week. Friday morning is too late for contributions.

DEATH.

Young.—Nov. 27th, Joseph Young, of Rothwell, age 64 years.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

CONTRACTS.

ROTHWELL v. HUNSLET.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I was much amused last night on reading my copy of the Rothwell Times, at the mud-throwing indulged in by your correspondents hailing from Stourton, about the road scraping contract.

Altogether four letters appeared, reflecting the opinions and policy of Mr. Holmes on that subject.

I think it fair to assume all these letters were written within a short distance of Mr. Holmes' house.

Apart from the authorship, what do the letters say? Let us go carefully through them.

Mr. 'a cartman' complains of Bulmer's roads being dirty. It may be answered roads are usually dirty in wet weather, and when frost and thaw quickly alternate; but from careful examination I can say that Bulmer's roads compare favourably with the best in the district, not excepting those under the management of the Highway committee of the Board; or Jowitt's or Nichol's. Were it not for the main sewer trench, the top of which is simply shocking, Bulmer's roads would be the cleanest of any. Now it happens Bulmer is not responsible for the condition of the top of the main sewer trench. The Rothwell Local Board, or its engineer is responsible for that; and I have no hesitation in saying that had Bleasby these roads in take, or Elliott, or any other Hunslet man, Mr. Holmes would have cried aloud about the injustice done to the contractor long since. But as a Rothwell man happens to have the roads, on that subject Mr. Holmes is dumb. He is always ready to speak, though, if he can give our village men a stab. No one knows better than Mr. Holmes that it is impossible to keep roads decent along which runs a soft spongy strip, like the top of the main sewer trench, almost a yard wide, composed of clay or rubbish worse than clay. The soft dirt from this trench ploughed by wheeled traffic, and liquified by rain oozes upon the metalled part, causing the roads to be dirty as we see them. This main sewer trench will never be in a fit state to be handed over to Bulmer until at least six inches deep of rubble stone has been laid in it. It will have to be done by somebody before a solid bottom can be got. Is it right to attempt to put the cost of this work on Bulmer, or blame him for its present condition? I say 'No,' and the member for Stourton would say 'no' if Elliott had the roads, or his friend Bleasby. So much for 'Mr. Cartman's' letter, who writes exactly as Mr. Holmes talks.

The next letter is signed "a working man" who thinks Bulmer has as many contracts as he can execute. Opinion is divided on that subject; at the same time the writer is welcome to his opinion, such as it is. I can say without fear of honest contradiction that Bulmer always gives reasonable satisfaction to reasonable men in any contract he undertakes. Can so much be said of Hunslet men? The argument of this writer applies with much more force to the contractors at present under the wing of Mr. Holmes, as I shall show later on.

"Working man" employs the following curious sentence, "A certain tradesman in Rothwell would receive more benefit from the contract being let to Bulmer than Bleasby." What an inuendo! I assert that not more than five per cent of the £80 will go to the contractor be he who he may, the bulk of the money will go to the labourers, and had the contract been given to the lowest tender the labourers would have been selected from the village. I maintain therefore that the advantage would be to Rothwell and not to any one, two, three, or any specific number of individuals. Our, 'working man' quotes a "Leeds contractor" as having recommended the "use of a boat to get though the mud." Yes! I saw that sea of mud a few days ago, it was there swimming along the sides of the road from the Jaw Bones all down Bell Hill, and right on to the 'Queen.' People were asking when Bleasby intended to remove it. Had a Rothwell contractor got the work, and delayed removing the stuff as Bleasby has done, Mr. Holmes would have fairly howled. As it is the Stourton members tone down Bleasby's neglect by saying "Oh, he has plenty of horses and carts at Hunslet." I answer what of that? The road scrapings are here, and they ought to be away, not left 14 mortal days "keeping the water channels blocked up." None but a Hunslet man and a friend of Mr. Holmes would have dared to allow that river of mud to lay a fortnight. Had a Rothwell man so neglected his duty, he would not only have been "written to by the Board," but he would have received a few personal galvanic shocks from certain individual members of the Board.

Next in order comes our friend Mr. Platt. He commences his letter in a very uncharitable vein and I am sorry to say he perseveres in it to the end. Who is the individual alluded to, as having an interest in these contracts? The writer of the letters signed "Rothwellian" has none. I will freely admit I have exerted what little influence I had in favour of our village working men. I may go further and say that my blood has sometimes boiled to see strangers doing public work on our roads, when our townsmen were ready and willing to do the work, but were not allowed. No one can truly accuse me of having any partnership in any contractor's business or speculations. I know C. Platt does not! Mr. Holmes was at one time freely accused of having an interest in Elliotts contracts. I don't believe he had. I have heard it surmised he has an interest in Bleasby's contracts now. I don't believe it. Mr. Platt may take it that the only interest I have in our Rothwell contractors springs from a neighbourly impulse to endeavour to get a fair field for their labour. I have sometimes found it needful to push their claims on Local Board work, because I have discerned a spirit manifested by Mr. Holmes to set aside Rothwell men as of no account, and puff up Hunslet men in a style I considered altogether unfair. I shall continue to stand up for our village working contractors, and I hope I have sufficient resisting power not to be intimidated or driven from my course by unkind remarks, and false accusations as to my motives. To Mr. Platt I would say, 'Charity, sweet soul!'

Next comes cautious, experienced Mr. Holmes, who fills the first part of his letter by saying over again, but in different words, what 'Cartman, Platt and Co.' had already said before. Carefully notice dear reader, how our able clever Stourton member in the ample folds of his argument tries to sweep along the other members of the Board as agreeing with him in condemning our Rothwell contractor. Ah! ah! the sly fox has often trailed that red herring across the scent of the line of thought of the members of the Board. It is his stock argument when dodging to get his friend Bleasby or some other Hunslet or Stourton contractor a job under the Board, when the tenders from Rothwell men are lowest. There's nothing in this world but thinking makes it so. To ordinary mortals there is no evading the lowest tender for a plain job out of public money, because if the work is not done satisfactorily the remedy is easy. Mr. Holmes gets over the difficulty by directing the minds of two or three members of the Board against certain individuals who are in his way. He has a ready plan of doing this first over a cigar, and when the Board meet he plies his argument. Occasionally our village members fall victims to these snares, and he gains his purpose. Mr. Holmes thinks the letting of a plain job for £80 to a Hunslet man, which will have to be paid for out of Rothwell public money, when the same work could be done at Rothwell for £75, will have a tendency to 'break a compact' amongst Rothwell working contractors. What is that compact? Mr. Holmes says 'to make a pie before delivering their tenders.' Is Bleasby in that pie or has he a finger in it? Has Bulmer or Lawton? If Bleasby sends the lowest tender the thing is safe, he has the contract; and if he is not the lowest tender he has it, so that whether Bleasby has a finger in the pie or not he gets the plums. Now my humble opinion is that instead of breaking imaginary compacts, this action of the Board, fostered by Mr. Holmes, will have a tendency to break the spirit of enterprise in the breasts of our village men, who will naturally say, 'what is the use of me sending in a tender.' Hunslet men, not Rothwell men, are the prophets in the ears of our Local Board, and have all the honour, not perhaps with every member of the Board, but most certainly with those under the influence of the Stourton member, and he is invincible. Mr. Holmes near the conclusion of his letter makes quite an untruthful assertion. He points at me, even me, 'Rothwellian,' and says I have tried all that lay in my power to get him off the Board. That is untrue. I voted for him at his last election, and persuaded a many of my friends to vote for him also, I shall certainly carefully consider my duty at his next election. I do not say I shall not vote for him, but I will say I am not likely to vote for any man who persistently does injustice to Rothwell men as I think Mr. Holmes has done, for a man who has nothing but surly words or downright abuse for them, and words of honey and commendation for those who live at Hunslet.

Rothwell, ROTHWELLIAN.
Saturday, November 25th, 1882.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Can you find a corner in your valuable paper for an inquiry if the Rothwell Local Board or its surveyor are satisfied with the manner in which the paving stones are being laid in Butcher Lane. Is it not usual when sewerage contractors are working at the streets to have their work inspected? Who is our present inspector? I am told Jowett is inspector pro tem., Mr. Worth being ill at home.

I hope there will be no offence in asking these questions.

I think there is another word in our language to describe the work of paving as Butcher Lane is being paved this week by Brayshaw. When work is done bad it is called scamping.

A CARTMAN.

DIPTHERIA.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Having this last few weeks noticed the great amount of carelessness with which many of our neighbours in this district expose themselves whilst suffering and in a convalescent state, to receive their friends in the disease known as diphtheria, possibly not knowing what danger they are doing, not only to their own families and their friends, but a whole district, as the disease is most infectious and contagious often resulting in great suffering and death. And as I am myself trying to do my best for to assist our worthy medical men to stamp out from our midst any disease which is so contagious, in my simple way as a working man; I send you a copy of a report upon the disease of diphtheria by a most able medical man, Dr. Franklin Staples, Minnesota, 1881.

DIPHTHERIA.

Dr. Franklin Staples after an extended correspondence with physicians in most of the counties of his state has published a report on diphtheria, in which he classes the disease as contagious and infectious, and demonstrates that it is on the increase, a fact due in his opinion to failure on the part of physicians in recognising its self-propagating properties, to want of systematic nursing of patients suffering from the disease, to incomplete disinfection of premises attacked and last but not least to the frequent contact of convalescents with healthy persons. He maintains that strict regulations rigidly enforced are the only means adequate to cut short its career, and since individual power is unable to cope with it urges sanitary laws, and let them be enforced by intelligent medical officers who shall make it their duty to instruct the people in sanitary rules; to guard against contamination he believes that filthy, whether home duty, rooms, soiled clothing, defective drains and cesspools, ill-ventilated rooms, poisonous inodorous gases, &c., should be regarded as conditions which invite the disease, that the apartment set apart for the patient should be divested of all furniture, carpets, curtains, and fabrics of any kind not absolutely required, that the discharges from nose, mouth, and bowels should be carefully collected and destroyed, and that all personal clothing, bed linen, &c., should be thoroughly disinfected before being sent to the general wash.

In case of death all clothing and important articles should be burned, the body should be immediately disinfected and put into its coffin, which should be kept permanently closed, there should be no public funeral. He prefers disinfection by chlorine gas, which is to be set free in the room. Ventilation for a number of hours should then be insisted upon. Precautions falling short of these, Dr. Staples considers to be useless in preventing the spread of the infection. Report on diphtheria to the Minnesota Board of Health, 1881.

Hoping you will find space in your paper for the above.

I am, yours truly,
2, Spibey Lane, J. M.

Epp's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—'By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.'—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'James Epps & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER. contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c Price Twopence.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

KAY'S COMPOUND.—Asthma and Bronchitis are immediately relieved by it. Sold by all Chemists.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY's TIC PILLS, a specific for Neuralgia, Face-ache, &c., 9½d., 1s. 1½d.; postage 1d. Of Chemists. Kay Bros., Stockport.

"Rough on Rats."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Cheap Advertising.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City, U.S.A.

MAGNETIC HEALTHER AND MEDICAL BOTANIST.
MR. CLAFTON IS NO QUACK [illegible]
Mr. Clafton's Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful cures he has wrought.
TESTIMONIALS.
To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I have been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,

'Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds
Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases. I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully.
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.
17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881
Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

THE QUEEN AND HER PEOPLE.

The opening of the Royal Courts of Justice by the Queen on Monday, was an event not of local but of national interest. Had it not been so, the presence of her Majesty would not have graced the ceremonial. Of late years the disinclination of the Sovereign for occasions of public parade has been apparent; and previously to last Monday nearly eleven years had passed since, on the 27th February, 1872, her Majesty had made her way through the Strand to St. Paul's, there to return thanks for the recovery of the Prince of Wales from a dangerous illness. Those eleven years represent nearly a quarter of her reign, and many changes have taken place in that time. In 1872 the space now occupied by the Palace of Justice was a howling wilderness. Hundreds of houses had been cleared away for the edifice which now adorns the Strand, but no commencement of operations had been made. Again, when the Queen arrived at Temple Bar, the great oaken gates, in accordance with precedent, were closed, and the monarch knocked for admittance into the city of London. The Bar is now gone, and with it has disappeared a structure which for two centuries seemed the embodiment of obstruction to the stream of traffic moving east and west. To mark the city boundaries as distinguished from those of Westminster, there is now a memorial, which has been the subject of a great deal of criticism, capped by a griffin with a convoluted tail.

These December days are full of gloomy recollections for the Sovereign of our realm; and it was therefore with all the more satisfaction that her people once more saw her in the heart of her capital in a month fraught with such sombre memories. It is now well nigh one-and-twenty years ago on the night of the 14th December, 1861, the Queen suffered a bereavement which has cast a shadow over the whole of the remainder of her life, from the effects of which she can scarcely have said to have ever recovered. At forty-two years of age, when both men and women look forward to many years of life and usefulness, her husband was taken from her side, leaving her a lonely widow upon the English Throne. It must have occurred to all the thinking portion of her people that the position of a Sovereign thus bereaved was one of peculiar solitude and desolation though, doubtless, she derived great support and consolation from the assurance of a nation's sympathy. Her loss was no ordinary one, for the Prince Consort was the Queen's assistant and really her right hand in the discharge of many a state duty in which the value of a judicious adviser was especially appreciated. Since his death she has passed through life alone, devoting herself to the performance of that which the administration of a mighty empire demands from the exalted personage who is regarded as its titular head.

Exactly a decade waned away from the time of the Prince Consort's death to the dark December days when the Prince of Wales lay battling for his life at Sandringham. In the early hours of that month in 1871, the nation was alarmed at the news that the Heir-Apparent was seriously ill from an attack of typhoid fever; and so disquieting became the intelligence day by day that the Queen journeyed from Windsor to Saudringham to watch by the bed side of the prostrate prince. Her journey through a landscape covered with snow, and interspersed with leafless trees, was one which elicited much sympathy from all classes of her people. The fever reached its crisis about the 14th of the month—the tenth anniversary of the Prince Consort's death; and it is a remarkable fact that there should have been a general expectation and belief in the public mind that if the Prince could only get over the dreaded 14th, his life would be saved. This really turned out to be so. A change for the better set in on that fateful day, and the Prince is still with us. Seven years afterwards, the 14th December once more rolled round, and the date this time was of evil omen. For some days the lamented Princess Alice who had so tenderly nursed her father in his last illness, had been ill from diphtheria, the deadly disease having been contracted while she was in attendance upon one of her children. Again the approach of the fourteenth was dreaded by some and hoped for by others. This time its associations were once more those of gloom and bereavement. On the seventeenth anniversary of her father's death the Princess was called from earth; and the date, as it annually rolls round, is therefore one fraught with melancholy recollections for the Royal Family. But the enthusiastic reception accorded to the Queen on Monday last by many thousands of her loyal subjects will, it is hoped, tend to invest the dark and gloomy month of December with brighter and more auspicious associations.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The usual fortnightly meeting of the above Board took place on Monday evening, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves, chairman; J Sanderson, J. Oliver, J. Batty, S Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector, and temporary surveyor.

The minutes of last meeting and committee meetings having been read, their confirmation was agreed to on the proposal of Mr. Bramley and Mr. Oliver.

MEDICAL OFFICER.—The clerk drew attention to the fact that under the Local Government Board's directions, the appointment of Dr Glaister, as medical officer, terminates on December 25th, and it would be necessary either to re-appoint their present officer, or advertise the appointment. It was agreed that the question be considered at the next meeting of the Board.

HIGHWAYS.—The county surveyor, having visited the Board's roads, had written complaining of certain matters on the Leeds and Barnsdale highway. He stated that the metal at the Leeds end is nearly worn through, and also that there was a large accumulation of dirt on the road side at the Oulton end, and that unless improved, he would be unable to recommend a grant from the county funds on account of this road. Mr. Jowitt, who had been out during the discussion of this subject, acknowledged that there was not much metal on the Leeds end yet, he had not had time to get covered, but having ordered a quantity of dross, he promised to have the road so that it would pass the surveyor at his next inspection. Respecting the other complaint, he declared there was not a load of scrapings on the entire road side, and that the accumulation the surveyor referred to must be what was belonging to the Oulton portion. In this the chairman agreed, and suggested that a letter be written to J. V. Edwards, Esq., explaining that the scrapings of which he complained are not in the Board's portion of the road. Mr. Batty certainly thought the clerk should put the matter right by the means proposed by the chairman. This will accordingly be done.

A further supply of material being required for the Leeds and Wakefield highway, a conversation followed as to the best stone for the purpose. The surveyor gave his opinion that it was best to mix a little dross with the Skipton stone. Mr. Turner said this was his idea too, as recommended by Macadam in his book. The chairman referred to his previous remarks, and had always held that it is necessary to have some limestone with the dross in order to make it set. He proposed that they order six cargoes of Skipton stone of Messrs. Green and Sons at 3 6, their reduced price, to be delivered as required. This was seconded by Mr. Bramley and carried.

The chairman then suggested an advertisement for the supply of 300 tons each of black and green dross (best selected) also to be delivered at such times as may be necessary. Mr. Sanderson in moving the resolution, expressed himself always willing to order dross for the roads; Mr. Oliver seconded the proposition, samples and tenders to be sent to the Board room. As regards the leading, Mr. Oliver thought it could be done cheaply now, and Mr. Batty agreed that it should be left over, and it might make a job for our local men.

In reply to the chairman's enquiry, it appears Bulmer's roads are rather better. Mr. Bramley said a gentlemen had met him, and although about to give vent to more terrifying remarks, came off with wishing every member of the Board was forced to use a scraper on the roads for a single day. Mr. Batty feared from what he had heard, that the members were about to be "Boycotted," so serious had the aspect become.

Mr. Oliver urged the necessity for some ashes being laid on the footpath near Jawbones, Mr. Turner and Mr. Sanderson supporting the suggestion, as the path is very bad there.

DISTRICT RATE.—The clerk pressed for the early laying of the new rate, the time for laying it having long passed, and Mr. Oliver (seconded by Mr. Sanderson) gave notice that a new rate will be laid on Monday, December 19th. Carried.

NEW RAILWAY.—The clerk reported, that, according to an act recently passed, the plans and reference book of the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway scheme, have been deposited with him, and might be seen by any person so desirous on a fee of one shilling. On the motion of Mr. Batty, seconded by Mr. Turner, the plans and general scheme, so far as relate to the Board's district, are referred to the Public Works Committee.

WATER.—Another letter had been received from Mr. Bromet, threatening a complaint to the Local Government Board, respecting Mr. Lawton's water supply. Mr. Oliver enquired whether the Board would be willing to stand to their previous offer of paying half the expense of laying the pipes, if Mr. Bromet was prepared to accept it. The chairman thought the Board would be prepared to do so, if they could settle it agreeably in that manner.

FINANCE.—The collector reported having received £21 6s. 4d. for water rents, during the past fortnight.

SURVEYOR.—Mr. Worth being still unable to attend to his duties, it was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Bramley and Mr. Turner, that Mr. Jowitt continue temporary surveyor and inspector for another month.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—The clerk said that as the time for depositing application for powers by the Gulcher Electric Light Company had now elapsed, and nothing further had been done, no other steps need be taken by the Board for opposing it.

THE A. B. C. CONCERT.

The full title and explanation of the above heading is that an excellent miscellaneous concert was given last Monday evening, in the Mechanics' Hall, Rothwell, by the members and friends of the Aurora Bicycle Club and the efforts of the young fellows composing this new society were rewarded, as they deserved, by a very fair, though not crowded attendance.

The club was formed in the early part of 1881, with 5 members, which number has now increased to about 18. The machines used by the members are each one's own property, but in the carrying out of concerted arrangements, the use of a room and other expenses are incurred, and for the formation of a general fund this concert was proposed and carried out, the financial result of which will, we hope form a nice substantial nest egg for such outlay as may be necessary.

Apart from the novelty of the thing, and the interest taken in the young men themselves, the names of the performers and programme to be presented, were a guarantee that a pleasant and well-spent evening might be anticipated, and in this we were not disappointed.

The opening selection was a Scotch glee from the pen of Shore, "Of a' the airts the wind can blaw" by the Harmonic Quartette party, consisting of Messrs. W. Newbold, J. Brown, J. Hammill and W. Harrision. The first piece or two in a concert is often a very thankless bit of work, but the way in which our four part singers did this glee was remarkably good, and made a capital impression which lasted all the evening. Mr. W. H. Davies followed suit with "Who's for the Queen," but, while nicely sung, and duly appreciated, a song requiring less "gusto" would have better fitted our young friend's voice. An agreeable variety was provided by Mr. Ezra Stead, who read a selection from Macklin's Comedy "The man of the world." It is always a pleasure to hear Mr. Stead, and while complimenting him on his rendering of this, he was evidently more at home in his later efforts. In consequence of his wish to leave in good time, Mr. W. Radley, the well-known singer, gave both his songs in the first part of the programme. The first was the favourite "The Midshipmite" which was thoroughly well sung, both time and tune, enunciation and emphasis, left nothing to be desired; and everybody was resolved to have at least one more song than was down for him. "Tom the Tinker" was accordingly given as an encore to the loud demands of the audience. The contrast from this light frothy song, to the beautiful "Better land" was almost too much, but after the first shock, the touching enquiry of the boy as to the whereabouts of heaven, wedded to Cowen's most appropriate music, and rendered in the clear expressive manner Miss Braime possesses, involuntarily led the mind up to higher thoughts. Succeeding the sacred song, Miss Middlemiss, always welcomed in Rothwell, played an Elizabethean Gavotte, followed by a lively selection from "Tarantelle" in which the young lady's remarkably swift digitation found a congenial sphere for display. That Mr A. Batty's localised comic song "But of course its no business of mine" was sure to take might be put down as a dead certainty, and the various hits at the Local Board, Rothwell Times, and Quid Nunc, were loudly cheered, and the demand for his return was satisfied by an encore verse. Mr. Radley then gave his second song "The Gauntlet" which was attentively listened to and warmly applauded. The sweet but hopeful song "When night is darkest" well suited Miss Teale's mellow voice, which, though not strong is always pleasurable. The glee "Fill the shining goblet," was the next on the programme, and we were greatly pleased by the evident care and attention bestowed on the piece selected, by each of the four singers, the lively portions of this glee being taken up with an amount of precision and spirit which augurs well for further performances. Before singing the "Maid of Llangollen," Mr. Harms gave a little apology for taking so old a composition, (for fear Quid Nunc should growl again about the constant reproduction of such ancient subjects) and explained that he had only lately learnt that this ballad was originally written by the deceased father of Mr. James Clarke, who formerly lived in Rothwell, and was so deeply interested in musical matters, and so highly respected by all who knew him; the piece had not been sung in Rothwell for the last nine or ten years, and being intrinsically sweet and good, he had resolved to present it to the public himself on the first opportunity. Mr Harms then sang the ballad in excellent style, and though not difficult or unusual, there is a plaintive melody about it which stirs the better feelings of one's soul, and thanks are due to Mr. Harms for telling us over again the story of "The maid of Llangollen."

The curtain then fell, and its rising displayed part of the members of the Bicycle Club, suitably arranged on the platform, with their accoutrements and shining machines, Messrs Walter Hargreaves, F. J. Seanor, Thomas Copley, and Hedley Lunn, standing in the front rank at equal distances, while Messrs J. Middlemiss, captain; J. Waterhouse, J. W. Wright, A. Baines, G. Wild, G. Batty, G. Blackburn, and A. Steel, filled up the spaces. They were warmly greeted, after which a bicycling song, set to music, specially composed by Mr. Harms, and entitled—"All the year round," was sung by the members of the club, Messrs. Walter Hargreaves, F. J. Seanor, T. Copley, and Hedley Lunn, respectively singing a verse representing the joys of bicycling in the four seasons of the year—Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, the whole troupe joining in the chorus:—

'Mounting readily, riding steadily,
Keeping a regular swinging glide;
Pulling together, scorning the weather,
Boldly our club for ever shall ride.

After the interval, the Quartette Party gave their last glee, and if the other two gave pleasure, this one more so. "In a cell or cavern deep "contains a variety of effects and styles, but by careful training, and a due appreciation of the properties of each singer's part, and a happy modulation in suitable places, the thing was done splendidly, and richly deserved a determined re-call; the young men are greatly to be complimented on their success. The duet (piano and violin) by Miss Middlemiss and Mr. John R. Seanor, had been looked forward to with some curiosity, the two clever executants having never previously appeared together in public. The performance consisted of a well-known air with several variations, more or less difficult, and the conclusion of the duet was applauded most loudly, and only a repetition of the concluding stanzas could satisfy the desire of the audience. When two musicans such as these are playing together, one has a treat which seldom occurs in Rothwell. Miss Braime was so successful in "Let me dream again," as to secure an encore, when the old, but ever new song—"Comin' thro' the rye" was well rendered.

In the reading, "Ebenezer Tomkins," Mr. Stead was thoroughly at home and although some of the "hits" were missed by the audience, there were sufficient "patent witticisms" to delight the listeners, and a second appearance would not be dispensed with. This time "Bruver Tham's letther" was done to perfection, the entire place being convulsed with laughter, and many a one's sides would ache before Mr. Stead disappeared from the platform. Godfrey Mark's new ballad "Sailing" was very effectively and perfectly sung by Mr. Harms, who was in excellent voice, and but that the hour was getting late, richly deserved a repeat. The ludicrous trio "Nice young gentlemen" by Messrs. Davies, Middlemiss and Waterhouse, pleased the younkers, and served as a variety, and as a cause for laughter. Miss Teale was very well received in "At the Ferry" and her re-call being earnestly demanded, she sang "Kerry dance." "Little Billee" (by request) by Mr. A. Batty, brought this very enjoyable concert to a close. The national anthem was then sung, and the audience dismissed.

A special meed of thanks is due to Miss Middlemiss, who accompanied most of the songs, and used every means in her power for the success of the concert.

THE SNOWSTORM.

Following soon after the late comet and other unusual sights in the heavens, one of the most severe and disastrous snow storms experienced for many years, commenced on Wednesday afternoon, just when the transit of Venus was taking place, and continued with terrible fury till 8 or 9 o'clock. Accompanied by a strong wind, the snow and sleet fell heavily and constantly all over the country, the more exposed portions of England and the whole of Scotland still feeling the effects of it, in wrecks at sea, blocked trains, the stoppage of all vehicles, and in the loss of many persons in the snow drifts, with the account of which the daily journals abound.

The roads all about this neighbourhood have been completely stopped all day yesterday, the snow in some places being 7 or 8 feet high. The wagons of some of our tradesmen had to be left snowed up in the outlying districts, while many stories are told of people who have aarived at home almost exhausted, others having to stay in at some friend's house overnight. Several children were lost on their way home from Rothwell Haigh Schools, and were either found by seeking friends, or were taken in by people living on the road side. Others having to walk to Royds Green and from Woodlesford were picked up exhausted and kindly housed by people near, where restoratives were used which brought back animation A report has also been current that a scissors grinder who used to live at Rothwell had been found starved to death in the snow, but this seems to have been incorrect.

Yesterday, there was a slight thaw which has continued to-day, but snow has again commenced to fall this afternoon.

In Wakefield snow fell all the afternoon, and drifted in some places two or three feet deep. Traffic was suspended during the later part of the day, and the trains were greatly delayed Several trains were blocked by the snow in the neighbourhood of Barnsley. The delay was the greatest between Leeds and Liverpool, trains being six and seven hours late. The cuttings between Sheffield and Leeds were amongst the worst parts of the line; indeed, the snow seems to have fallen slightly heavier in the West Riding and the North of Yorkshire than in most other parts of the country. The Great Northern main line trains between Wakefield and London worked nearer to time than most other through trains, most of them being within half an hour's margin. Locally, however, this company's traffic came off no better than that of the other companies whose lines converge in Leeds. Trains between Bradford and Wakefield, and Bradford and Leeds were occasionally brought to a stand by the snow, which had to be ploughed away before they could proceed. A Castleford train was also blocked early in the evening, and a considerable time elapsed before it could move forward. Ashton-under-Lyne and district experienced a severe snowstorm accompanied by a violent East wind. Snow also fell at Scarborough and Huddersfield, causing great impediment to foot and vehicular traffic. In South Lincolnshire a considerable quantity of snow fell, and lay on the ground to a great depth. Similar reports come from several districts of Wales and various northern counties. An Aberdeen telegram says the snowstorm in the extreme north continues. The trains were considerably delayed, the traffic being sadly disaranged, some lines being completely blocked, and trains snowed in.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

This hall was nearly filled on Saturday night, to listen to the programme provided by the Temperance Society. An overture by the Band opened the proceedings, after which two songs were rendered by Miss A. Brown, and two by Miss A. E. Lunn, one of which was encored. A song was given by Mr. I. Ward, who was also recalled. The songs were accompanied by Messrs. J. Naylor and W. Steel. A dialogue was presented by several members of the Society, and Mr. Sampson recited some good pieces, Mr. T. Lunn as usual providing some amusement in comic readings. A cornet solo was performed by Mr. A. Blackburn, and between the musical parts were interspersed recitations by children. Mr. A. Cripps officiated as chairman during the evening, and a pleasant two hours were spent.

The Indian chief Waubuno, was announced to visit the Hall last Wednesday night, but owing we suppose to the weather, he did not come

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Tuesday.—Market is only thinly attended. There is not much doing in wheat, prices of which are about the same as last week. Maize lower. Beans and peas steady. Flour without alteration.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—We had a large supply of both beef and mutton to-day, and the tone of the market was somewhat dragging. For choice little beasts of better quality—which were rather scarce—last week's prices were well sustained. The mutton trade was on the whole of rather a dragging character, butchers having the advantage to the extent of about a farthing per lb. There was a smaller supply of milch cows and lean beasts. A fair show of pigs at late rates.

		this week,		last week,

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. HUNSLET WESLEYANS.

Gulton Cup Tie. (Final.)

Last Saturday a large concourse of people assembled in the football field, Mothley Lane, to witness the match between the above teams for the Oulton Cup. It will be remembered that the match between these clubs in October resulted in a tie, each team scoring 1 goal, therefore a great deal of interest centred in the game. The weather, from a footballer's point of view, was splendid, but very cold for the spectators. The Rothwell captain won the toss, and the Wesleyans kicked off with the wind in their favour; a visit to the Rothwell end took place, and for some time the scarlet and blacks were hard pressed; the ball going over the goal-line, a six-yards kick placed it once more in the centre of the field. The Wesleyans renewed the attack with spirit, and a very close shy was made, just clearing the cross-bar. After this even play was for some time indulged in, until Hollings relieved the monotony by a good run into the Rothwell quarters, where some fast play took place. Several times the Harmonic men fouled near their goal, and the splendid kicking of the backs alone saved their opponents from scoring. The Rothwell men now took the leather into the enemy's territory, but Hunslet retaliated by a run in the Harmonic quarters, brought about by the splendid passing of their forwards; the run, however, was spoiled by a foul, which gave the Harmonic a 'free kick,' and shortly after Taylor (Rothwell) made a shot which went rather wide, Ward also shied immediately after, but also missed. The 'six-yards' failed to relieve, the ball several times going into touch in the Wesleyan half, once close to the corner, but the throws in were not turned to good account, and when half-time was called the globe was in the centre of the field, neither side having scored the coveted point. Ends were changed, and Jackson (Rothwell) re-started. Stead (Hunslet) quickly made a shot, but was very wide of the mark, and a short visit into the Wesleyan territory was made by the Harmonic forwards; Hunslet returned the compliment by a run up the right side, when Swift showed a bit of excellent play in the corner, winding up by a long kick into the middle of the field, where the Rothwell forwards were on the alert and took the ball close to their opponents' goal, where it went out of bounds; the Wesleyan backs kicked rather wildly, and caused some dangerous play in their own goal-mouth. From a 'six yards,' however, the Hunslet men secured the leather, and ran it down to the other end of the field, where Kelly was entrusted with a 'corner,' which he kicked out very wide; he had another directly afterwards, and made amends for his previous bad judgment by dropping the ball right in the goal-mouth. The danger was averted by a 'six yards.' For some time after this even play ensued, the Rothwell backs kicking splendidly. Hunslet again came in with a rush, and a splendid shy was made, which only just cleared. A corner kick was taken by the Wesleyans, which was got safely away, and a visit to the other end took place, where Ward shied, but without success. Shortly after this time was called. Neither side having scored a goal, the tie will be played off on some other date. Both teams played well, the back play of the Rothwell team being especially good; the Hunslet forwards played excellent, and were a long way faster than their opponents. The following composed the Rothwell team: A Baines, goal; T Swift, G W Blakey, backs; T W Wright, (capt) G Field, C Hopkinson, half-backs; H Taylor, W H Ward, J Whitehead, W Blackburn, W Jackson, forwards.

ROTHWELL v. MEANWOOD.

The above match was played at Meanwood on Saturday last. The Rothwell team were well represented. Play was commenced at 3.30, and the ball soon travelled into the home territory, where a sharp struggle ensued but without effect, but shortly after a goal was rushed through by Chadwick. About half a dozen throws were made by Hutchinson into the goal mouth, three of which should have been converted into goals Just before half time the home team was bombarded rather hot, and another goal was obtained. After half-time the Meanwood forwards worked up and scored two goals in rapid succession, Chapman obtaining them. About 10 minutes off the close of the game two goals were got by the visitors, Green being well to the front. The match was a curious one throughout, the Rothwell custodian only once handling the ball, and his backs had only three six-yard kicks during the whole game. The game thus ended in a win for Rothwell by 4 goals to Meanwood 2. The following is the Rothwell team: J W Wright, goal; F Seanor, S Waterhouse, backs; A Ward, W Hartley, W Hutchinson, half-backs; Rawson, Green, Wilson, Dobson, Chadwick, (capt) forwards.

ROTHWELL MECHANICS v. OULTON VICTORIA

Last Saturday the above teams met at Rothwell, when a good game was witnessed, both clubs being fairly represented. During the first half Oulton played with the wind in their favour; Rothwell kicked off, and with some splendid passing enabled R Hopton to secure a goal. The ball being again set in motion, Oulton played in the home territory the rest of the first half. Ends were changed and the home team, with the wind at their backs, were soon engaged in the Oulton goal-mouth, when the sphere was well returned several times by the Oulton backs, but some more passing by the home team enabled Smith to secure the second point. The ball was re-started, but it was soon put through the uprights by Beckwith. The ball being once more set a-going, the visitors' colours were again lowered by Ward. Play being resumed, Smith made a capital shot at the enemy's goal, which was, however, disputed by the Oultonians. Time being now called, the game thus ended in a win for the home team by four goals and one disputed, to love.

SUDDEN DEATH AT ROBIN HOOD.

It is our sorrowful duty to report another sudden death, this week, at Robin Hood.

Mr. William Armitage, of Robin Hood, quarry owner, aged 61, died suddenly in his own home early on Monday morning last. It appears that Mr. Armitage has been unwell for some time, but nothing serious was anticipated, and he attended to his business at the quarry so late as Friday last, and on Sunday evening the usual religious service was held in his house, he taking a part in it; after the service, he retired to rest before the other members of his household, and nothing more was observed until half-past five the following morning, when he was heard making a curious noise in his throat, and he died immediately. It is supposed he had a stoppage in his windpipe.

DEATHS.

Armitage.—Dec. 4th, William Armitage, Robin Hood, aged 61 years.

Stead.—Dec. 5th, Wright, son of Joseph and Mary Ann Stead, Rothwell, aged 2 years.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

WHO TOOK THE COAT.

My time is limited and my pencil is very short but I have sufficient of both to tell you that during last week at a coal pit not one hundred miles from Rothwell old church, something happened that created more interest and caused more talk among some of the men than anything which has taken place since the battle of Tel el-Kebir was fought and won. All the commotion originated in one man taking another man's coat and then the general cry was raised 'who took the coat.' It seems that after the pit-hill men left work one evening, two top men 'd scended the pit to do some work in the sump, and one of them took a coat belonging to a banksman which he found hanging in the cabin Next morning, the owner of the coat, seeing it with several mud daubs on was highly incensed, and asked in a loud and imperious tone who had presumed in his absence to make use of his coat, the other men stared, but were quite unable to enlighten him on the subject. One suggested this person, another suggested the other person as the culprit, but it was impossible for them to be definite, so it was enveloped in mystery for some time. Baffled in his attempt to find out who had presumed to don his coat, he gave vent to a torrent of eloquence which was characterised more by its force than by its grace. As he proceeded, his abilities as a speaker became more and more prominent, and long before he had finished his oration he had removed every doubt and every shadow of a doubt from the minds of those around, that he had made a great mistake in chosing his present professson, in preference to that of a—not a parson, for a parson would never have used such language; but a lawyer, I dont think that even a lawyer—bad as such men are said to be—would have disgraced himself as the man I am speaking about did, and yet I feel confident that were this man a lawyer, if he could not gain his purpose by downright argument, he would accomplish it by overwhelmieg invective. Of course words are only words, still if his expressed wish could be gratified, the man who took the coat would be many, very many miles in a place which would be altogether too warm to be comfortable. Opinions respecting the value of the coat were many; I heard a man say it was worth about one potters-mould, or at most twopence, another man told me in a confidential way that it was worth only two oranges, and he told me further that the owner had a short time ago, bartered the tails of this very coat for one orange. So it appears that though the coat has caused such annoyance, it is but a tail-less one after all, yet even without tails, a coat's a coat for all that. Now certain ill-disposed persons may say that this man made a lot to do over his coat, but let those persons consider that many things are not prized by us on account of a high market value, but in consequence of them being associated in our minds with some cherished remembrances, and let them be charitable and believe such is the case in the present instance. When we look at it in this light we cannot help feeling quite concerned and even troubled about the damage the coat received; but wait, I have a dim, yet cheering recollection of something that convinces me the coat was not irreparably injured. After the man's fury had subsided and he began to look calmly over the coat, he was heard to say to a friend, "Oh! never mind J— it is'nt spoiled, its only got a few mud daubs on it, that's all." Yes! and that's all, I say, about the coat

JACKDAW.

RE ROAD SCRAPING CONTRACT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Mr. Editor,

I trust you will excuse me for writing to you, but I do crave your kind indulgence to allow me through the medium of your widely circulated paper, to make a few remarks in reference to that dirty—I mean muddy—no, muddling controversy, that has been filling the columns of your newspaper for the last few weeks. I do not purpose, sir, to tell you all I have heard this person say about that person, neither shall I surmise, and take for granted, and then through you, tell your dear readers what any person will necessarily do under certain circumstances. If you will allow me to express an opinion sir, I think that persons writing to the Editor of a newspaper for the information of the public, ought to be very careful, and be certain that their information is in accordance with facts, before sending that information for publication. Had Mr Fair Play been sufficiently well informed of the whole of the proceedings of the Local Board, in connection with this road mud removal business, I feel sure his letter would never have appeared, however it did appear, and doubtless, many persons after reading it would have an impression left on their minds that Mr. Holmes had acted to the prejudice of the Rothwell contractors. But Mr. Editor, will you kindly allow the attention of your dear readers to be called to the subsequent issue of your paper, where Mr. Holmes's version of the affair appears, then the complexion of the whole affair is changed altogether. After I had read Mr. Holmes's explanation, I came at once to the conclusion, that this unpleasant controversy had arisen from a reporter having omitted some important part of the proceedings of the Local Board, and that the objections taken to the proceedings as reported had been entirely explained away, and that everybody would be satisfied that Mr. Holmes had done his duty, both to Rothwell contractors and the ratepayers generally; however, it appears I must have calculated without our host, as this conclusion is evidently not in harmony with the wishes, and probably the interests of your Rothwellian correspondent, who takes the liberty of addressing your dear readers in your last week's issue. I may tell you sir, that I read that epistle, and I must say that the impression left on my mind after reading it, was, that Mr. Holmes is in some way an obstacle in the path of Mr. Rothwellian, if not, why then is he so dull as not to understand the situation. I venture to suggest a question, is it explanation that Mr. Rothwellian wants, or is it something more substantial? I wonder how a seat on the Rothwell Local Board would suit him, have you any idea, Mr. Editor, if that is what he was fishing for in that river of mud he mentions, and was he baiting his line with the veritable red herring? Well, now let us see how far Mr. Rothwellian has succeeded in his attempt to damage the reputation of our intelligent representative, Mr. Holmes. I maintain that it would be hard to imagine a better testimonial than that penned by Mr. Rothwellian as speaking to the ability and integrity of Mr. Holmes; he makes him to be the mouthpiece of the whole Board, and the only acting member of the Board; where are all the other members Mr. Rothwellian, what are they doing, do you mean to tell us there are no other intelligent members of the Board. Messrs. the other members, where are you, how do you like this, is Mr. Holmes the only member of the Board who can deal with a question of road scraping removal contract? if so, then I would say, "Charity, sweet soul," do not remove him from the Board for the ratepayers' sake.

By the bye, I note that Mr. Rothwellian says he voted for Mr. Holmes at his last election, and persuaded many of his friends to do so; may I ask, was Mr. Rothwellian canvassing for Mr. Holmes? if so, was this anything like the way he voted for him.

Scene:—A cottage at Stourton.

Enter Mr. R. and party

Mr. R.—Now Ma'am, we have just called to see if we can prevail upon you to persuade your husband to give his vote in favour of——

Ma'am.—Oh! my husband is going to vote for Mr. Holmes.

Mr. R.—All right Ma'am, we are canvassing for Mr. Holmes; is your voting paper filled up?

Ma'am.—No Sir!

Mr. R.—Then let us have the voting paper, and we will fill it up for you for Mr. Holmes.

Ma'am gives the voting paper to the party, and did Mr. R. fill in the voting with one vote for Mr. Holmes, and the other votes for their own party. However, the husband returns home in the evening, and finds his voting paper filled in as stated; he had intended voting for Mr. Holmes alone, he simply takes the voting paper and throws it into the fire, and then applies for a fresh paper. I ask you Mr. Editor to assure your dear readers, that I will try to be consistent. I won't say that Mr. Rothwellian voted for Mr. Holmes in the fashion here represented, but there is perhaps no one who knows better than himself how he did vote for Mr. Holmes.

I would like to recommend Mr. Rothwellian to peruse the following lines, by a well known writer, before he sends any more letters to the papers.

'Who steals my purse steals trash; tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed.'

Now, Mr. Editor, in conclusion, I will say that this letter has been written in my own house, and that house is not far from Mr. Holmes's house; and further, I will say that I have not heard Mr. Holmes's voice nor seen him for many a day; and further, I don't know that I ever saw Mr. Holmes's handwriting, so I think Mr. Rothwellian will be able to judge from this, how far Mr. Holmes has dictated to me. I write this letter, sir, simply because I believe that a dutiful and faithful representative of the ratepayers has been shamefully abused, and I can only say, that if Mr. Holmes is from any cause removed from a seat on the Rothwell Local Board, it will not only be a calamity to Stourton, but to the ratepayers at large.

KARMBRIKY.

Stourton, Dec. 6th, 1882.

[We are sorry that the liberty which we desire to allow everyone in the matter of correspondence is sometimes taken advantage of, and personalities are indulged in, which are most distasteful and objectionable to us and others. Perhaps some good may follow the correspondence so far as regards better attention to the roads by contractors generally; we feel, however, that it is due to Mr. Holmes to state that the supervision he has exercised over the roads, both in the Board room and particularly on the roads themselves has, we doubt not, been of very great financial advantage to the ratepayers, his leisure time and his long experience being willingly rendered for the public benefit. As the object of the first letters is probably accomplished, we think it well that the correspondence on this subject should now cease. Ed]

ROAD CONTRACTORS.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

In reply to Mr. Newsome's vindictive letter in the Rothwell Times of Friday last, I beg to inform him that the imputations which he has made against me are entirely false and without foundation, and which I most emphatically deny. Mr. Newsome says I am cautious, experienced and invincible, therefore I would say—'Charity, sweet soul,'

False friend, I have seen enough of thee,
I value not what thou can'st say of me;
Thy smiles I count not, all's one to me,
What faults thou'st seen in me take care to shun,
And look at home, there's something to be done.

Yours obediently,
Haigh Villa, JOSEPH HOLMES.
Stourton, December 6th, 1882.

Throat Irritation.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s 1½d., labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, Gordon Holmes, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Dangerous Chest Complaints.—The enumeration of these diseases is scarcely necessary, as, unfortunately, the inhabitants of those islands know them to their cost. Coughs, colds, influenza, bronchitis, asthma, pleurisy, inflamation of the lungs, and even consumption in its early stages, are best treated by rubbing Holloway's Ointment upon the chest and between the shoulders. It penetrates internally, checks the cold shiverings, relieves the over-gorged lungs, gradually removes the oppression from the chest, and restores the obstructed respiration, hitherto so fearfully distressing and so highly dangerous. In treating this class of diseases, Holloway's Pills should always be taken while using his Ointment; they purify the blood, promote prespiration, and allay dangerous irritations.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY's TIC PILLS, a specific for Neuralgia, Face-ache, &c., 9½d., 1s. 1½d.; postage 1d. Of Chemists. Kay Bros., Stockport.

"Rough on Rats."—The thing desired found at last. Ask chemists, grocers or oilmen, for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, beetles, roaches, flies, bedbugs, insects, ground moles, &c. 7½d and 1s. boxes.

Cheap Advertising.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 3d a line.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER. contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut-out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c Price Twopence.

KAY'S COMPOUND, a demulcent expectorant and anodyne, for Coughs and Colds. Sold by all Chemists.

£25 REWARD
Will be given to any person who can prove, after a fair trial, that
"Bell's Patent Life Pills and Ointment"

Will not cure the worst forms of Liver complaints, General Debility, Indigestion Bile, Disordered Stomach Costiveness, all Female complaints, Ulcers, Cancers Abscesses, Piles, Cuts, Burns, Boils, and every form of Skin Disease and Eruption. When all other medicine fails this will positively cure. Sold by all Chemists, in 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. boxes and pots. Post free for 15 or 36 stamps from sole manufacturers, W. Bell & Co., Reading, Berks. If your Chemist does not keep them he can get them in a few hours.

Epp's Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—'By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.'—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'James Epps & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman. Station D, New York City, U.S.A.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

MR. CLAFTON
MAGNETIC HEALTHER AND MEDICAL BOTANIST.

MR. CLAFTON IS NO QUACK DOCTOR

Mr. Clafton's Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful Miracles he has wrought.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him I then heard of you and resolved to try you and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,

C. ROBINSON.

10, Cross Kiln Street Beeston Hill, Leeds, Feb. 13th, 1881

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,

JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,

FRANCIS H MARSDEN.

17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

THE PREVENTION OF FIRES.

It has from of old time been the habit of mankind to extract as much consolation as possible from the ills to which flesh is heir; and the proverb, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," is an exemplification of that state of mind which sees a silver lining to every cloud. It is because of this cheery optimism that even before the embers of the greatest conflagrations which for many years have visited London have had time to cool, many are found to express the opinion that good will come out of the great disasters which have occurred. On the face of it, whether viewed from an economic or a humanitarian stand-point, this is hard to believe. In the case of the Alhambra Theatre a large number of persons have been thrown out of work by the fire, and this at a time when the pinch of hunger is at its keenest; and in that of the wholesale destruction of mercantile premises in the heart of the City of London a great quantity of valuable stuffs has been absorbed by the element to which the appellation 'devouring' has most fitly been given. The misfortune is so extensive as to overshadow for the moment the countervailing good. But there is such a good, and it is this: that these conflagrations may be the means of preventing other and more disastrous ones, and this not in London alone, but throughout the country. When on two mornings in succession, the whole forces of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade are called into requisition, and when it is found that despite the most strenuous exertions, and the most copious supply of water, nothing can be done to save premises once seized, the question occurs not only to the scientific but to the business man, "Can nothing be done to prevent a repetition of this?" When the members of the brigade are doing their utmost to pour water upon the flames, and bystanders by the thousand cheer them for their efforts, it is sometimes forgotten that water does not always quench flame. It is a matter of very old experiment that in certain cases the fluid which is poured upon fire for the purpose of extinguishing it, actually aids its progress and assists it to spread. Certain chemical substances which play an important part in modern mercantile economy are set on fire by the action of water; burning oils are helped along to destroy as yet untouched portions of the building by the stream propelled for their extinction, and it is because of these facts that many a building has been sacrificed despite the overwhelming quantity of water poured upon it. To a great number of persons these are but truisms, but their repetition is necessary as long as it is imagined that a copious supply of water and some powerful engines are all the necessities for putting out a fire. That they are most useful none will deny; that they are practically essential to stop the progress of the flames may be admitted; but the fact to be faced is that, when once the fire has fairly taken hold, it is comparatively seldom that it can be extinguished before considerable damage has been wrought; and the question of the future is that of devising some method by which the flames may be checked in their very inception. To those who have little knowledge of the wonders of modern science, or who have little faith in its development, this may sound a hopeless conception, born in Utopia, and threatening nowhere to blossom. But, however difficult the task may be, it will yet be accomplished. It is little to say that the man who invents some efficacious method of subduing fires will speedily win both fame and fortune. He who will do this will not only deserve but will merit the remembrance of mankind as one of its truest benefactors. The disasters from fire which now occur are so many and so wide reaching in their effects that there will be a general hope that this coming benefactor will soon come. Casualties of some kind we shall always have with us; it should be our object to encourage every effort to render them as small in number as possible.

FIRE AT HAMPTON COURT PALACE.

Hampton Court Palace, which is so rich in historical associations, and whose walls are graced by the masterpieces of Vandyck and other great artistes, was yesterday morning the scene of a serious fire. It occurred shortly after seven o'clock in an appartment occupied by a lady named Crofton, which overlooks Bushey Park, and spread to the drawing-room and dining-room. The Palace fire-men, a contingent of the 4th Hussars, and the Hampton Fire Brigade were promptly in attendance, and soon arrested the progress of the flames. A domestic named Lucas, who ran up to the room where the outbreak occurred to give the alarm, was afterwards found suffocated. The carved panels and ceiling of the suite of rooms penetrated by the fire were irretrievably damaged, and two pictures. Rich and valuable tapestry was also destroyed, and much damage was caused by the stream of water poured on to the stately edifice. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the upsetting of a benzoline lamp.

The Queen sent a message expressing her regret at the occurrence, and a telegram was forwarded assuring Her Majesty that the fire was not so serious as had been stated in the early part of the day. The damage will amount to several thousand pounds.

WAKEFIELD AND ABERFORD TURNPIKE.

Yesterday morning, at the Midland Hotel, Woodlesford, the trustees for the Wakefield and Aberford Turnpike Road, held a meeting for the purpose of paying over to representatives of the various authorities concerned, the proportionate amounts due to them on the winding up of this trust. There were present, the following trustees:—E. Calverley, Esq., C. E. Charlesworth, Esq., V. Atkinson, Esq., (of Barrowby Hall) and the Rev. R. Burrell, with Mr. Farrar, surveyor, and Mr. Marsden, clerk.

The following gentlemen were present and received the amount due to their respective authorities, being about 87 per cent. on the yearly payment hitherto made by the Trustees. Mr. J. G. Scriven, Aberford; Mr. Thirkell, Parlington; Mr. B. Nicholson; Mr. Vince, Garforth; Messrs. Bartle and Cranby, Swillington; Mr. A. B. Flint, Woodlesford; Mr. A. E. Flint, Oulton; Mr. A. Marshall, Rothwell; Mr. M. Pape, Stanley.

WORKING MAN'S CLUB.

The annual tea and meeting in connection with the above club was held last Tuesday evening, in the club room, Oulton Lane, when about 25 members and friends partook of a most substantial knife and folk tea provided by the house keeper, Mr. Joseph Ward.

After tea, the annual meeting was held in the large room upstairs, under the presidency of the Rev. F. Fawkes, vicar. During his opening address, the president announced his intention of keeping the club on, but hoped that each individual member of the institution would do his best to further its welfare. He had had several suggestions made to him to make the place a conservative club, or a church institute, but he preferred that it should remain as it was, a Working Man's Club.

The assistant secretary then read a short report of the past year's work, after which a lengthy discussion took place as to the advisability of introducing apparatus for athletic exercises; it was ultimately decided that it was not desirable unless better accommodation than that at present afforded could be secured.

Up to the present time the clubs using the rooms have not been charged for such use, but it was decided that from the commencement of 1883 a charge of 10 shillings per annum be made to the three clubs who use the room regularly, viz:—The Cricket Club, Football Club, and Bicycle Club.

The officers for the coming year were then elected, with the following result,
President:—Rev. F. Fawkes.
Committee:—Messrs. J. A. Harms, R. Rodley, J. Verity, G. Wilson, F. Seanor, and J. W. Chadwick.
Treasurer:—Mr. H. Thompson.
Secretary:—Mr. Hedley Lunn.

Votes of thanks to the ladies and president brought the meeting to a close.

The remainder of a very pleasant evening was spent in a jovial manner.

KAY'S COMPOUND, a demulcent expectorant and anodyne, for Coughs and Colds. Sold by all Chemists.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

On Wednesday evening the society met to discuss the question—"Is vegetarianism to be preferred to a flesh diet?" As, however, the members did not turn up well till very late, it was deemed advisable to adjourn the debate to the following Wednesday, when the question will be debated, irrespective of numbers.

Mr. J. Turner kindly exhibited some curiosities in platinum and aluminium, which are respectively the heaviest and lightest materials known. A new process has been discovered by which the latter metal can be made in much larger quantities and with far less cost of production. Mr. Turner explained the high properties of aluminium, and anticipated it would be applied to very many useful purposes.

EAST ARDSLEY SCHOOL BOARD.

HOW THE COAL BILL WAS REDUCED.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

By C. Gibson, London.

The fire in the old kitchen grate never did burn more cheerful, for Robin Hood had supplied the coals; the plates and great dishes fairly glistened in the firelight, for Martha Winkup had washed and polished them; she also had poked the fire; the old and faithful dog never slept more soundly on the comfortable hearth which was as white as the snow that clothed the roof and surroundings of Inglewood House.

Eighty winters had appeared with their usual cool attendants during the life of Fenton Coldstream, Esq., still the old gentleman lived, and for a long period James Gimcrack the coachman had driven him here and there with a weak-knee'd old horse and an antiquated vehicle which had once been a coach.

James and Martha had long since passed the meridian of life; still they woo'd in the kitchen, James smoked his pipe and Martha darned stockings many a time and oft when the Robin Hood coals glowed in the long hours of the night.

Fenton Coldstream, Esq., jealous and economical in disposition, elevated his eyebrows very often when Martha presented him with the coal bill; he had on several occasions promised to revive in his house an obsolete English custom known as the 'Curfew,' but happily for the cook and coachman, his promises had so far proved to be very "pie crustian."

It was the eve of Christmas, and the fire before-mentioned burnt and roared up the chimney fiercer than ever; James Gimcrack had attended to the wants of his horse, and was now seated in the chimney corner, and Martha was seriously studying the restoration of a dilapidated stocking; the master of the house was supposed to be enjoying an elysian slumber in his downy blankets and snowy pillows; a very boisterous gentleman poetically known as 'Rude Boreas' was whistling a merry tune through the great oak trees and round the curiously shaped chimney pots of the old house.

"And now," said James to Martha with a knowing leer "as sure as Christmas Eve never yet appeared in the daytime, and as certain as our master is fast asleep we'll this night enjoy ourselves, and while I smoke my pipe and you are mending that stocking we'll also have our annual Christmas story."

"That's right, James, but you must speak low and you must not frighten me." The coachman promised to duly respect the tender susceptibilities of his very scanty audience, and then proceeded.

"Well, you knew my old aunt who lived at Kippax," (Martha assented with a nod,) "she was Mr. Coldstream's cook some forty years ago," (that gentleman had just come noiselessly downstairs, and was doing a little eaves-dropping behind the kitchen door in the passage; knowing the story he softly crept upstairs to don a suitable costume.) "and she was the funniest of funny old women and superstitious as an ancient Briton; the poor old dame, I shall never see her more, she is mouldering in the dust of Swillington churchyard. But to my tale; one night many years ago I had to go to Kippax; it was winter time, and as dark and windy as a coal-pit; I had a chat with my old gossip Timothy the toll-man on Swillington Bridge, who stated that he had seen a mysterious object one night by Sir John Lowther's dog kennels, and he cautioned me not to come back that way from Kippax; I laughed at him you know Martha." (That worthy lady was now becoming interested.) "At what hour I was returning home" continued James "I forget, but when within a hundred yards of the old dog kennels something passed me with the speed of the wind, with a whirr-whirr-whirring, and my hair went up for an instant, and there stood by my side—who do you think, Martha?"

"Goodness knows," she answered, sitting erect in her chair as if she had had an icicle thrust down her back.

"Why, my old aunt, with a large white apron and a tally-ironed cap on with at the least a hundred frills on it."

"Goodness gracious," shrieked Martha, "she's there!"

James, who was no knight-errant, bolted into the pantry, a second appearance of his defunct relative was certainly too much for him.

Martha stood terrified until Mr. Coldstream assured her that he had adopted his present appropriate costume for the express purpose of reducing his coal-bill.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'JAMES EPPS & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epp's Chocolate Essence.

THE FATAL AFFRAY IN LEEDS.

At the Leeds Borough Police Court on Tuesday —before Mr. Bruce—John Storey, described as a gentleman of Newcastle, and John Dolan Brown, of Rothwell, Leeds, were charged with the manslaughter of Luke Walsh, commission agent, Trafalgar Street, Leeds. The Town Clerk (Mr. G. W. Morrison) prosecuted on behalf of the Chief Constable; Mr. Warren appeared for Storey, and Mr. Mellor, barrister, for Brown. Mr. Child watched the case on behalf of the relatives of the deceased.

The Town Clerk said that since the case was previously before the court Walsh had, unfortunately, died, and the case had therefore assumed a more serious aspect. He proposed, with his Worship's permission, to abandon the charge of assault, and to go through the evidence which had already been given. He then proceeded to call witnesses.

The case as stated by one of the witnesses, Martin Casey, is as follows:—On Monday evening, December 4th, he was with the deceased at the Catholic Club, Park Row, from about eight o'clock until a few minutes past twelve. After leaving the club they went up Park Row along with some other men, including Thomas Winter, James Galli, Wm. Thompson, Arthur Champion, George Rowe, Patrick Walsh, and James Henry. They walked up Park Row in twos and threes, the deceased, Thompson, and witness walking last. Whilst walking under the portico of the Philosophical Hall, witness noticed three men whom he did not know coming towards them arm-in-arm, and occupying the whole breadth of the causeway. One of three men pushed against Champion, who was nearly knocked over. The three men, who were calling them "Patsy," and "Irish," rushed forward about twenty yards, and then returned with their sticks raised. Storey, who was one of the three, struck with his stick at Luke Walsh, who raised his umbrella with his left arm to parry the blow, and struck out at Storey with his right hand, and, he believed hit him in the face. A medical student named Chepmell, who was with the prisoner, made as if he was about to strike at witness, but he did not do so. Witness then saw Luke Walsh lying on the ground, and he heard Winter, who was raising him up, saying to Storey, "Don't strike the man; he's down." The deceased exclaimed, "Oh dear, oh dear, I'm done for." After the deceased had been placed against the wall, witness, addressing Storey, said, "You've done it," and Storey replied, "Yes, I've done it, and I'm prepared to stand by it if it is manslaughter." Winter remarked, "No, you have not done it; your friend Brown has done it. Where is he?" Storey replied, "He has run away." Winter said, "Brown has run away, and if he has not got an unmanly stick, with an iron point and a brass handle, there will be nothing to do about it, but if he has then there will" Storey repeated that he had "done it with this stick" (a hazel stick), and was "prepared to stand it." Witness asked Storey for his card or address, and they exchanged cards. Walsh was removed in a cab to the Infirmary. Witness and his companions were all sober. He thought the prisoners and their companions were slightly the worse for liquor.

Thomas Winter, Wm. Thompson, Arther Champion, J. P. Bowling, James Galli and Thomas Ingleson also gave corroborative evidence.

Charles Wm. James Chepmell also gave evidence of a similar nature adding that they found Brown's stick at the Griffin Hotel. Brown had run down as fast as he could to the Griffin Hotel and came out again without his stick. Brown took a cab to Rothwell, and Storey and witness slept at the Griffin. At half-past five they were aroused by the police. Witness and the prisoners were perfectly sober on the Monday night.

The statement of the deceased, made on oath, was as follows:—

'I am a commission agent, and reside at 17, Trafalgar Street, Leeds. Last night, December 4th, I went to the Catholic Club, in Park Row, about seven o'clock or half-past, and remained there all night. I met with several friends there, Casey being one, and I remained there until closing time. Ten or twelve left the club together with me. I walked amongst the lot up Park Row. When we had got opposite the Philosophical Hall three gentlemen were coming down. They seemed to me to be fresh the way they walked. So one little friend asked them if they wanted the whole causeway, or something to that effect. I didn't catch what was said. So they walked up, and one of them said "Who has said that?" Some one said "That little fellow," so they turned back, and with that Thompson and one of them started scuffling. Two of them were getting on to Thompson, and I interfered by going in between. I had my umbrella in my hand and flourished it out, and I then got a crack on the head that knocked the life out of me almost, and I thought I was dead. I fell on my back straight. I remember being picked up by my friends and put against the wall, and then being put into a cab and brought here. I could not tell what I was struck with, as I did not see it; it must have been a big stick or a loaded whip. I cannot say who struck me, but it must have been one of the three men we met. Thompson was one of our party, and a friend of mine. The prisoner Brown is one of the three we met. I would not like to swear I ever saw the prisoner Storey before this present time. I had had two bottles of stout all the evening, and was sober. I don't think I was struck but once. Cross-examined for Storey: Thompson and the other were mauling each other before I was struck. Then the other went, and I got between them. I cannot tell whether it was the first or second man who struck me. I do not remember striking anyone with my fist. I was struck silly. Cross-examined for Brown: I had no ill-feeling with Brown. I had known him before. Re-examined: I would not like to say I did not hit some one with my umbrella.'

At the inquest held the same afternoon, Mr. E. Ward, house surgeon at the Leeds Infirmary reported the condition of Walsh on arriving there, and also in the post-mortem examination conducted by him in the presence of Mr. McGill, of Leeds, and Mr. Glaister, of Rothwell, who were acting on behalf of Brown, one of the persons charged with the offence.

The following verdict was returned, "That death was due to the fracture of the skull, and that the injury was received in the affray in Park Row, on Monday night, December 4th.

The trial was resumed yesterday, when Mr. T. P. Teale, honorary surgeon at Leeds Infirmary, was examined as to the injuries inflicted, which he said were most likely to be caused by such an instrument as the buck-horn handle of the stick produced. Mr. Chepmell was cross-examined as to his evidence, and acknowledged that he had told several persons that he saw Storey strike Walsh.

Sergeant Gatehouse deposed to meeting the three friends about one o'clock on Tuesday morning, when Brown said, "Feel at my head." He did so, and told Brown that there was a large lump on the top; he must have had a knock. Brown said, "Yes, I have," and showed him his hat. Storey had a handkerchief round his head, and it was covered with blood. Seeing this, he remarked, "You look as if you had been in a row," and he was then told that they had been set upon by eight men in Park-row. Brown said, 'There was nine; one big——came at me, but I let him have one and knocked him down." Brown added that he had hit the man on the head. Storey had a stick in his hand, but Brown had none.

Henry Schofield, night porter at the Griffin, said that Brown came in without hat about 12.15, and after ordering a room, went out and returned with Storey and Chepmell at one, when he took rooms for his two companions also. They went out again for half-an hour, when Storey and Chepmell alone returned and retired to bed.

Police constable Allen entered the Hotel about four o'clock and charged Storey with having violently assaulted Luke Walsh, with intent to do him grevious bodily harm. Storey replied, "He struck me, and I struck him in self defence."

Mr. Edward Ward gave medical evidence, and Thos Winter was re-called and repeated Storey's assertion that he had done it, although witness (Winter) contradicted him and said, "Brown's done it and run away." Storey repeated that he had done it, and he could do wonders by holding it in that way and he had a very powerful wrist.

This concluded the case for the prosecution.

The prisoners, on being formally charged with the manslaughter of Walsh, pleaded "Not guilty."

Mr. MELLOR remarked that the evidence was that only one blow was struck, and if the imputation was that that blow had been struck by Brown, he had an answer that there was really no case against his client.

Mr. BRUCE said—Here the death of a man was caused in an affray in the street. Certain persons at present are charged with having caused the death. There is evidence proper to submit to a jury as to whether either or both of these parties were guilty. Therefore he thought he ought to commit them.

Mr. MELLOR then called Jas. Killerby, J. C. Brown, and T. E. Plint, to give evidence that Brown's stick was damaged previously, and to show that Storey and not Brown was the person who struck the blow.

The prisoners were then committed to take their trial at the assizes. Bail was accepted, each finding security to the amount of £300, and being bound in the sum of £300.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Market is only thinly attended. Fair business doing in wheat, at the full prices of last week. Maize lower; beans and peas steady. Flour without alteration.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CHRISTMAS FAT SHOW, Wednesday.—In the midst of terribly inclement weather and with a continuous downfall of snow, the annual Christmas show of fat stock took place to-day as announced. Owing no doubt to the fact that there are twelve days yet before Christmas, it was not such a large show, and did not appear to be regarded as so important an event, as on many previous occasions; and there is little doubt that many butchers held over from making their usual Christmas purchases until next week. Still, the beef market was more than usually busy, and a good trade was done for all kinds of stock. The quality generally was most satisfactory. While there was an absence of the extremely fat stock so abundant in previous years, there was yet a large supply of splendid north country and Lincolnshire beasts of first-class quality—and some of them prize animals. For those the competition was active, the number of buyers being large. There was also a good show of fine serviceable Irish beasts, which were in brisk demand, and were well cleared out. The distinguishing feature generally in the stock show was their usefulness from a butcher's point of view, and indeed it may be said that there was an entire absence of the class known as "show" beasts merely. For most qualities of beef, buyers had to give more money. The supply of sheep was exceedingly small for the time of the year. There were no lean beasts on offer, but we had a few milch cows. Very little was done in the pig trade, few being penned, and there being also an absence of buyers. No alteration on late rates.

No. of fat beasts,	this week,	3000	last week,	2110
" sheep	"	2870,	"	3000
" milch cows &c	"	64,	"	7

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 7½d to 9½d per lb.
Milch cows, £18 to £32 each.
Sheep, 9½d to 11½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 14s to 18s.
" store, 50s to 70s.
" fat, 7/- to 7/10 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD CORN, Friday, 12.45.—Wheat is firmly held at last week's prices, but millers do not buy freely. Barley in limited request. Maize rather cheaper. Beans and Oats steady. Weather to-day is comparatively mild, and rain falls steadily.

THE LOUGH MASK MURDER.—VERDICT.

The trial of Patrick Higgins for the murder of Joseph Huddy at Lough Mask, which had been proceeding during Monday and Tuesday, (reported on page 6,) was resumed and concluded in Dublin on Wednesday by a verdict of Guilty. The Judge's charge occupied about two hours and a half in its delivery. The jury retired at a quarter-past two o'clock and remained in deliberation for little over an hour.

The accused, on being informed of the verdict, appeared much agitated. Through the interpreter he said that he left it to God and the Virgin that he never lifted hand or foot on the man, and the Court might do with him what they liked.

The Judge then passed sentence of death in the usual form, the execution to take place on January 15.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

On Saturday evening, the Temperance Society presented their usual entertainment. The band opened with an overture, and vocal music, readings, etc., followed in variety. Miss A. E. Lunn gave two songs, and also joined in a duett with her brother, Mr. Joshua Lunn. Mr. Sampson and Mr. T. Lunn read some comic pieces, and Mr. W. Batty gave a comic sermon. A recitation was given by Mr. A. Cripps, and children as usual filled in with recitations between the other pieces. Two dialogues were also rendered by members of the Society. Mr. J. Naylor accompanied the songs on the piano, Mr. J. Berry presiding.

PROSECUTIONS BY THE ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.—Mr. Denton, the school attendance officer to the Rothwell School Board, appeared on their behalf to prosecute twelve persons who had neglected or refused to send their children to school regularly. In three of the cases the Bench made an order for the children to attend the school regularly and the other cases were adjourned for a month. During the hearing of the cases, which were pressed by Mr. Denton, Major Barker expressed his great surprise at the difficulty there was in inducing parents to send their children to school regularly. Attendance orders were made against George Butile, John Dixon, and Thomas Emmett, and the following cases were adjourned for a month:—James Thurwell, Thomas Watson, Squire Crossley, Ellen Jackson, John Birkenshaw, John Goodall, Edward Barge, James Walton, and Alexander Rimmington.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE HIGHWAY BYE-LAWS.—Mr. John Walton, farmer, Lofthouse, and a man named John Brownlow, a waggoner for a hay and straw dealer at Hunslet, were summoned for breaches of the West Riding Highway Bye-Laws by having heavier loads on their waggons than the bye-laws allowed.—Police-sergeant Turton proved both cases, which were admitted.—Walton had 11s. 3d. to pay, and Brownlow 14s.

INQUEST.—On Wednesday, Thomas Taylor, Esq., conducted an inquest at the Queen Hotel, Stourton, on the body of John Slingsby, a boy 9 years old, and the son of Thompson Slingsby, of Dawson St., Shipley. From the evidence adduced, we learn that deceased was on board a coal vessel at Rothwell Haigh and the captain last saw him on Tuesday at 4.45 p.m. in the cabin, and at 6.10 p.m. he found he had fallen into the canal; the captain called for assistance and had the water dragged. Caleb Patchett, coal captain, of Shipley, states he heard some one shouting there was a boy in the water. He got a flat and a boat-hook and searched the water, finding the body at 6.40 p.m. Jane Worth, of Coggill St., Stourton, who washed the body, found no marks of violence. Verdict returned, 'Accidentally drowned by falling from a canal boat into the river Aire.' The case was under the charge of P. C. John Wilson.

ACCIDENT AT WOODLESFORD STATION.—On Wednesday David Stratham, a foreman checker, employed at Woodlesford Station, was knocked down while uncoupling some waggons and run over. His left leg was severely fractured, and he had to be removed to the Leeds Infirmary.

AURORA BICYCLE CLUB.—Last night, several members of the above club were entertained to an excellent supper at head-quarters, provided by a prominent member. The evening passed very pleasantly until ten o'clock, when the 'favoured few' dispersed.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

FOOTBALL.
TO-MORROW'S MATCHES.

Rothwell.—Board Schools v. Oulton Victoria
Oulton.—Oulton v. Ellesmere
Sheffield.—Rothwell v. Clifton Rangers

Owing to the deep snow on the ground last Saturday no football matches in this neighbourhood were played, excepting the match Oulton Victoria v. Harmonic 2nd, which resulted in a win for the Oulton lads by two goals to nil.

CHRISTMASTIDE.

Of festive season 'tis confessed,
That Christmas is by far the best;
It is a time for harmless folly,
'Neath misletoe and shining holly.
A season too which doth enhance
The charm of song, and graceful dance;
The falling snow flakes, frost and rime,
(Meet visitors they of Christmas time);
Now at this season of goodwill,
Old customs linger with us still.
The burning yule-log, trimmed and dressed,
Roars still within the chimney's breast;
The evergreens still deck the wall
Of peasant's cot, or baron's hall.
The ringers climb the winding stair,
And from the belfrey, thro' the air,
Of town or village there is borne
The sweet tun'd chimes of Christmas morn.
The lusty minstrels in the street
Sing carols quaint and strangely sweet;
While thro' the trees the north wind moans,
The "Christmas table" fairly groans;
And hungry mortals find relief
In squares of pudding and rounds of beef.
The glowing lamp, trimm'd clear and bright,
Illumes the room with genial light;
Odd games are played, odd tales are told,
In various ways by young and old;
Of unsubstantial spectre gaunt,
Who nightly doth some ruin haunt;
In obscure street or country lane,
With fitful light and clanking chain.
Then in due time the scene will change,
Before the glowing yule-log range.
Tis clearly seen on the old clock's face,
That the hand of time grows on apace;
Some then depart and some remain,
Till Christmas time comes round again.

C. GIBSON,
London.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE AND SANTA CLAUS.

THEIR ANCIENT ORIGIN.

By WALTER PHELPS.

The snow-flowers wreathe the tallest spire,
Her bright tiara winter wears,
And glows again our Christmas fires,
Which e'en the poorest stranger shares.
The Yule-log and the feast once more
Make ev'ry home a festal scene,
And drops o'er many a parlour door
The mistletoe and evergreen!

Whence came these mystic rites so dear,
That long have gilded history's page?
List, little friends, and you shall hear
About the poets' golden age.
The Ygdrasil, a tree whose roots
Were hidden deeply in the ground,
But whose great top and tender shoots
In German paradise was found.

E'en in Walhalla—where when ripe
Its leaves fed goat whose milk restored
Dead heroes—was the prototype
Of laden tree by Christmas board!
And through the "Twelve Nights," long ago,
To represent the Ygdrasil
And honour Berchta—whom, you know,
Is goddess of the spring time still—

The pagans decked a fir-tree tall;
And so the Berchta tree became
Grand symbol and that loved by all!
Our Christmas tree in Jesus' name
And Santa Claus was bishop wise
Who helped the poor and penniless;
Now as a saint he leaves the skies
On Christmas eve, the young to bless!

We trace to Odin's worship, too,
The customs saved by Christian rite;
As did the Druids, still we woo
Our loved 'neath mistletoe to-night.
So the bright Yule-candles burn,
The great Yule-log crowds ev'ry hearth;
Strong hands the church bells now o'erturn,
And with their music fill the earth!

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Kindly allow me to call the attention of the ratepayers of Oulton-cum-Woodlesford to:—

1.—Inspection of all books and vouchers in the hands of the Board and its officials. It is the ratepayers' right, and it would be considerably to their advantage to exercise it, which they can do at reasonable times. Prior to audit, now pending, some days (notice of which is given in Board Room and on the principal entrance to the School) are set apart for this purpose.

2.—Publication in full of the reports of H. M. Inspector on the examinations (just over) and also those of previous years. The failings of one teacher have received the fullest publicity, while the much greater failings of others have been with-held.

A general enquiry into the work of the School Board since its formation would enlighten the minds of the ratepayers, as well as lighten the rates to a very considerable extent. Any information I can give them is at their service, in addition to the statement I have in hand.

I am,
Yours Truly,
JOHN LONGBOTTOM.

Woodlesford,
Dec. 11th, 1882.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the season good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and desponDent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

CHEAP ADVERTISING.—The cheapest way of advertising articles wanted or for sale, houses to let or required, situations wanted or vacant, is to put a notice to that effect in the columns of this journal, such advertising only costs 8d a line.

THROAT IRRITATION.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Dangerous Chest Complaints.—The enumeration of these diseases is scarcely necessary, as, unfortunately, the inhabitants of these islands know them to their cost. Coughs, colds, influenza, bronchitis, asthma, pleurisy, inflamation of the lungs, and even consumption in its early stages, are best treated by rubbing Holloway's Ointment upon the chest and between the shoulders. It penetrates internally, checks the cold shiverings, relieves the over-gorged lungs, gradually removes the oppression from the chest, and restores the obstructed respiration, hitherto so fearfully distressing and so highly dangerous. In treating this class of diseases, Holloway's Pills should always be taken while using his Ointment; they purify the blood, promote prespiration, and allay dangerous irritations.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

Mrs. LEACH'S FAMILY DRESSMAKER. contains Illustrations with Plain Descriptions, how to Cut out and make the neatest, most economical, and fashionable Costumes, Jackets, &c., for Ladies and Young Ladies. How to knit useful articles, &c. Price Twopence.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY FOR THE HAIR.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN & SONS, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A CARD.—TO ALL WHO ARE SUFFERING FROM THE errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City, U.S.A.

FLORILINE!—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. MR. CLAFTON'S Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful Miracles he has wrought.
TESTIMONIALS.
To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds
Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

CHRISTMASTIDE.

Christmas is a season which breathes peace and goodwill towards men. The adjuration was uttered a long time ago; and it must be confessed even now there is no practical realization of its entire significance. Peace does not yet prevail upon the earth; and only within the last few weeks England herself has been engaged in something which very nearly approached to war. The Prime Minister described the expedition to Egypt a matter of police; whether a matter of police or of war, the result was the same to those who lost their lives there, and to them who have since died from fell diseases contracted in that climate, or who are likely to be invalided for the rest of their lives through the same cause. However, the Egyptian difficulty was one which did not last long. The skill of the British commanders and the valour of the troops speedily overcame it, and so it comes to pass that Christmas finds England at peace, and bearing no ill-will towards the unfortunate people whom it was so recently deemed necessary that we should chastise.

The universal celebration of Christmas in all Christian lands is a remarkable feature in a pushing age. A great deal happens in two thousand years; nations flourish and decay, and dynasties rise and fall; people advance and retrograde. Yet upon both sides of the globe—in our Australian colonies as well as in the mother country, in the snows of the Canadian Dominion and in the sunlit streets of San Francisco, business is put aside and the air is laden with good wishes at Christmas time. So also is the teeming dependency of India, in whose bright cities the ruling element which represents British power so strongly preponderates, and in the ships of Christian nations which sail the seas in whatever latitude the celebration of Christmas takes for the time the place of the jealousies and resentments which too often accompany the progress of life. Upon the blue wave of the Indian Ocean or the surface of the depths of the Mediterranean, upon the tempestuous Atlantic and the calmer waters of the Pacific, amid the hot breezes of the Persian Gulf and the pestilential atmosphere of the west coast of Africa, the British flag as it is flung out upon the breeze on Christmas Day, floats over a merry company, one which seems to say, "Begone dull care!" One day at least out of the whole twelve months the anxieties which seem inseparable from our passage through this world are banished, and life's daily worries are forgotten.

To ourselves, in these latitudes, the festive season, as it is annually described, comes at a time when the days are at their shortest, when the sky is generally covered with vast banks of cloud, and when the rare appearance of the sun in a mid-winter sky tell by the oblique rays a tale of striking contrast with the vertical beams of July. In these latitudes the very gloom and discomfort of the outside surroundings suggest every effort to create more cheerfulness within. The English household is then a happy little world in itself. It resounds with the merry laughter of children and with the expressions of the juvenile joy at the sight of the Christmas-tree, gleaming with its hundred lights, and laden with its tastefully-arranged gifts for joyous recipients. It is essentially the period for in-door enjoyment as distinguished from out-door recreation. But dwellers in the Australian colonies commemorate Christmas under atmospheric conditions of a different, and as many might be disposed to think, of an incongruous character. Open windows, the sunshine of Midsummer, the passing of hot winds over a thirsty land—such are the surroundings of Christmas in the climes of the antipodes—surroundings which, on this side of the earth we find it so difficult to reconcile with a feast always pictorially represented as being associated with frost and snow.

Some philosophers in these modern days have been disposed to be critical over the universal celebration of Christmas. But that celebration is founded upon a basis against which the shafts of cynicism are hurled in vain. The sentiment by which it is suggested has survived the growth and decadence of countries, and the perishing of empires which once bade fair to rule the solid globe. It was in the days of Cæsar Augustus that "all the world" went up to Jerusalem to be taxed. The world, in the eyes of the evangelist who has given the description, was only a part of that portion of the earth subject to the sway of Imperial Rome, whose legions had subjugated all that was then known of the surface of this globe of ours. Not much of it was known besides the lands washed by the dark blue Mediterranean. Nothing had been seen of the vast outspreading Continent on the other side of the Atlantic. The world is a very different place now from what it was when a multitude of the heavenly host suddenly appeared and glorified God; but the increasing celebration of Christmas testifies to the substantial nature of the festival and to the immovable character of its base.

Turning towards home, we are glad to know, that many families will this year have a little more of the 'needful' for the Christmas plum pudding, and for the traditional accessories of the season, than they have had for some years past, and though sickness and death have unhappily, shadowed many homes, we trust all our readers will still have, if not a 'merry' yet A VERY HAPPY CHRISTMAS.

ROTHWELL LOCAL BOARD.

The Local Board met on Monday evening, present, Messrs. W. Hargreaves, (chairman) J. Holmes, J. Sanderson, J. Oliver, J. Batty, S Bramley, J. Turner, and the clerk, collector and deputy-surveyor.

The minutes of the last meeting were read over, but Mr. Oliver objected to a portion of them as incorrect. He stated that instead of making a proposition that a new District Rate would be laid, he gave notice that he would move the laying of a new district rate, but only providing the new valuation list was ready, which he understood from Mr. Sanderson would be the case. Mr. Sanderson, who seconded Mr. Oliver on this minute, endorsed all that Mr. Oliver had said, and held that the intention of the mover had not been understood. Some discussion arose on the subject, the clerk and some of the members not having understood that there was any proviso at all, while on the other hand, this was stated to be the intention of the two gentlemen named. The chairman thought there need be no difficulty about the matter, if the minutes were confirmed, with the exception of the disputed clause. In this the clerk coincided. Mr. Sanderson wished to make a further explanation as regards the present state of affairs, which appears to be as follows; that the overseers have the power of making the valuation lists, but that during the late Mr. Price's time, he had himself usually made such additions of new property as were necessary. On Mr. Price's death, the overseers thought this a good opportunity for going thoroughly into the lists and make such alterations as they deemed necessary. They had accordingly done so, raising some and reducing others, and had spent a great deal of time in this work, and to the best of their ability. They gave notice of the new valuation lists being on inspection in the Board-room, and after allowing it to remain the necessary time, submitted it to the Assessment Committee at Hunslet. The committee, however, refused to accept the list, and returned it to the overseers. Some further remarks were also made by several members bearing on the subject, and the chairman again suggested that some one should move the minutes, except the clause referred to. As no one else seemed prepared to do this, he moved himself that the minutes be confirmed with the exception of the clause proposing the laying of a new rate; seconded by Mr. Turner, and carried.

The chairman strongly advised the clerk to have all resolutions in writing. The clerk replied that he should be obliged if members would do so, as it was sometimes very difficult to get at the real purport of a motion. He had been clerk to the Board ten years, and he believed this was the first time a resolution had been disputed.

HEALTH REPORT.—Dr. Glaister, the medical officer of health, attended, and gave his report for the four weeks ending December 2nd. There have been 16 births (8 male, 8 female) and 14 deaths, against 23 births and 3 deaths, the corresponding weeks of last year. The causes of death are as follows:—1 male, 64, apoplexy; 1 female 67, senile decay; 4 diptheria, 1 male, 3 years, 3 females, 4, 8, and 15 years; 1 each f 24 days congestion of lungs; f. 22 months, enteritis; m 13, probably scarletina; f. 44, bronchitis; m. about 58, found drowned; f. 4, marasmus; f. 4, tubes mesenterica; f. 55, Bright's disease

He knew of no new case of diphtheria or scarlet fever. He had submitted a sample of the water used by Mr. Jordan's family to an analyst, and presented that gentleman's report, that the water contains 66.9 of volatile and organic matter, there being an abundance of animalculæ in it, and he considered it not quite safe for drinking purposes.

The chairman asked how diphtheria had broken out there, to which the doctor replied he could not say, but probably it arose from this water.

Mr. Batty enquired if he thought there had been prompt medical aid to the Jordan's. Dr. Glaister answered, "Oh! yes, but it is an extremely fatal disease, especially in children."

Mr. Oliver also asked about the drainage, which the doctor had examined, and it appears to run down the field.

The chairman felt thankful that the doctor had taken such speedy measures for stopping the disease, by preventing the sale of milk and other means.

The great difference in the death rate of last year and this was commented on as a most serious matter.

HIGHWAYS.—The clerk read several letters between himself and Mr. Speight, the contractor for pavers, from which it appears that there are part bad pavers among those delivered, and Mr. Holmes, chairman of the Highway Committee, suggested that the surveyor set a man to separating the bad from the good, and let the committee decide what should be done. The chairman quite agreed with the suggestion, and proposed its being carried out. Mr. Batty seconded the motion, urging the advisability of the Committee seeing all the lot now delivered.

The clerk had informed Mr. Rowley that his tender had been accepted, but he had not yet replied.

An advertisement had been inserted in the Leeds Mercury for dross, according to the Board's instructions, but the clerk stated he had not received a single tender.

From what Mr. Holmes and the chairman said, this is an article that is much sought after, and from all accounts it appeared probable that the Board will have to seek it too, and an arrangement was come to with that object.

Mr. Oliver enquired the result of the surveyor's examination of two pieces of road which he had pointed out to him, one of which is repaired with two-thirds Skipton stone and one-third dross, while the other is Skipton stone alone. The surveyor gave it as his strong opinion that the former was the best.

The clerk reported that he had received from Mr. Farrer a cheque for £5 8s. 4d., being the final payment of the Wakefield and Aberford Turnpike Trust up to the end of November. The collector had also received £29 8s. 0d. from the Trustees as the Board's proportion of the balance on winding up this Trust. The Board will therefore cease to receive any monies from this Trust.

It is anticipated that Mr. Worth, who is still ill, will resign his office as surveyor, he being unable, even when in health, to fully carry out the largely increased duties of the two offices he now holds.

The chairman, while acknowledging that some effort had been made, trusted that both Mr. Bulmer and Mr. Jowitt would endeavour to get the snow cleared off a little better another time. Mr. Jowitt stated that on the morning after the fall, he had been at work on Holmsley, before five o'clock, and had five men clearing a cart-road all day, and had to cut through sometimes a yard deep for the distance of a mile.

SEWAGE.—The cheque due to the Hunslet Rural Sanitary Authority for treating Rothwell sewage, was agreed to, payable at Martinmas.

Mr. Parkinson wrote asking an early interview with the Board, as he anticipates leaving England in about two months, to settle in America; he is accordingly desirous of making necessary arrangements as to the work under his charge. In reply to Mr. Holmes, the clerk said the present contract is not up till June, and someone must take up the work and oversight hitherto carried on by Mr. Parkinson. A meeting was accordingly arranged for Wednesday (20th).

Mr. Bramley enquired what was the price of the gullies belonging to the Board; Mr. Holmes also called attention to the large quantity of pipes now on hand; both questions will have to be answered by Mr. Parkinson. Orders were given, however, on the motion of Mr. Bramley and Mr. Batty, that Mr. Parkinson be instructed to stop the delivery of any other pipes or gullies till further notice.

WATER.—Mr. Oliver reported having seen Messrs. Bromet and Taylor, who held they were not liable to pay more than £8 13s. 4d. for Mr. Lawton's water supply, and referred to certain sections of the Acts. The clerk, however, held that these sections do not apply to the case in point, and that he is supported in part by the Local Government Board in their letters.

As, however, a resolution was passed some time ago, that no further action be taken in this matter, the discussion was at once brought to a close.

DIVIDED PARISHES ACT.—Mr. Holmes, who attended the enquiry held at Hunslet on this subject, reported that the several alterations proposed by this township were all agreed to, no objection being raised at all. The change comes into operation on the 1st of March.

RAILWAY.—The clerk had been served with notice from the solicitors for the proposed railway through Rothwell, stating that the line was intended to touch certain property belonging to the Local Board, and asking whether the Board assents or dissents to such proposals. The chairman urged an immediate necessity for the Highway Committee to meet and thoroughly consider the question, so far as it affects the various roads in the Board's district.

It was afterwards decided to hold a meeting on the same evening as the Sewage Committee.

GENERAL DISTRICT RATE.—The clerk wished to say that as the minute giving notice of the laying of a rate had not been confirmed, the notices posted on the church and chapel doors were now useless, and no rate could be laid till he received further orders from the Board. He, however, pointed out that the Board is spending money borrowed from the Public Works Loan Commissioners for certain works and any interest which might be charged by the bank would certainly be disallowed by the auditor.

Mr. Oliver said they could not lay a rate, except on the poor rate valuation, and that valuation had not been passed

The clerk, however, pointed out that the Act provides where there is no valuation list, the rate may be laid on the list last in force.

The chairman, who had been busy signing cheques, hearing the statement of the clerk, that there is actually no money in the Bank on which the ordinary expenses of the Board may be charged, strongly declined signing any more cheques, and suiting the action to the word, closed the book, and a number of the cheques remained unsigned.

Mr. Sanderson said that the valuation list had been re deposited, after revision, and would be again placed before the Assessment Committee on January 9th.

The chairman could not see why one portion of the Hunslet Union should be revalued, and all the rest go on the old basis.

Mr. Sanderson.—But the whole Union is going to be valued.

The Chairman.—I'm quite agreeable to that

The discussion was then dropped, it being agreed that the Overseers and Assessment Committee "had better fight it out." The ratepayers have therefore an unusual long time before being troubled with the visit of either poor rate collector, or the Local Board collector, as neither rate is likely to be laid for some weeks.

MEDICAL OFFICER.—A letter was read from Dr. Nowell in relation to the post of medical officer, and enclosing testimonial. On the motion of the chairman, seconded by Mr. Batty, it was resolved to advertise in the Rothwell Times for a medical officer. Mr. Holmes neutral.

RENT OF BOARD ROOM.—The clerk having received a notice from the overseers that a rent of £4 a year, will be charged from the 1st of January; It was proposed by the chairman, seconded by Mr. Oliver, that the Board pay £4 a year rent for the use of the Board-room. Carried, Messrs. Holmes and Batty neutral.

The chairman proposed amid much laughter, that £2 a year be charged to the overseers for the use of the Board's furniture.

FINANCE.—The collector had received as follows during the fortnight:—

	£	s.	d.
General District Rate		11	0½
Water Rents	2	17	5½
Royds Green Road	5	8	4
Balance of Turnpike Trust	29	8	0
	£38	4	10

ROTHWELL SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of the above Board took place on Friday afternoon, present—Messrs. W. Hargreaves (chairman) J. R. Seaner, J. Batty, J. G. Turner, J. Parker, and the clerk and attendance officer.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The clerk reported that the annual inspection of the schools took place as follows:—Rothwell Haigh on Dec. 5th, 6th, and 7th, by Mr. Tillard, assisted by Mr. Hayler; and Rothwell on Dec. 5th, 6th, and 8th, by Mr. Ledgard, assisted by Messrs. Hayler and Wade.

Mr. T. Hargreaves, the treasurer, having given notice of his resignation at the end of the year, it was agreed that arrangements be entered into with some member of Messrs. W. W. Brown & Co., to act as treasurer.

The accounts and salaries were agreed to, including £127 17s. 6d., repayment of principal and interest on loan, salaries of teachers and officers, £80 4s. 2d., and small accounts, amounting altogether to £208 2s. 8d.

The attendance officer reported having summoned several persons for neglecting to send their children to school, the cases being adjourned for a month; orders were also granted against four other persons.

A letter was read from the Rev. E. Hutchinson, curate of Middleton, asking the use of one of the schools at Rothwell Haigh for two days, in order to hold a Bazaar to assist the building of their new church at Stourton. Permission was granted for Tuesday and Wednesday, Christmas week, on the usual terms.

A letter was also read from Mr. Parker, assistant overseer, intimating that the overseers proposed charging £2 a year for the use of the Board-room. The rent was agreed to.

The clerk stated that he had received £200 on account of the precept due on the 1st inst; instructions were given to require the immediate payment of the balance.

The infants' school having now been added to the premises at Rothwell Haigh, it was agreed that the wages of the school cleaner be 12s. a week.

The several wants of the schools were approved.

A long and careful examination was then entered into, of the 22 applications sent for the vacancy of mistress of Infants' School at Rothwell, and three were finally selected to meet the Board on Saturday for a personal interview, when one of the three will be appointed. The Board rose at eight o'clock, having sat three hours.

LOFTHOUSE SCHOOL BOARD.

The usual monthly meeting of the Board was held on Wednesday night, the members present were—Mr. Oliver (chairman) Messrs. Jas. Armitage, W. Keightly, and Mr. J. H. Lee, clerk.

The minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed.

The amounts received by the treasurer are fees, Robin Hood School, £11 13s. 5d., Carlton, £8 6s. 4d. Cheques were signed for the following:—Officers and teachers salaries, £47 0s. 0d.; gas account and Insurance, £8 0s. 1d.; Public Works Loan Commissioners, £278 11s. 2d. The Board instructed the clerk to enter several people in the county court for fees owing, also to make enquiry for a suitable ex-pupil teacher for Carlton school, whose services are required at once. The schools were closed yesterday for the holidays. The attendance officer reported that he had summoned several parents for not sending their children to school, but the cases although well proved, had been adjourned for a month to see if the children attended better, which they will no doubt do for that period and fall into the old way again. The Board, however, ordered others to be summoned in the hope that they would be assisted to carry out the law, and to get up the attendance to what the Education Department required and are pressing for.

ROTHWELL DEBATING SOCIETY.

"Is Vegetarianism to be preferred to a flesh diet?" This question was introduced by Mr. B. Batty on Wednesday evening, when 11 members were present, Mr. Harms in the chair.

Mr. Batty said it was the opinion of the greatest scientific and medical men that vegetable food was the best for man. He mentioned Drs. Richardson, Thompson, Carpenter and others. The Finns, who lived on a vegetable diet, were a fine and able race of men. He thought it best to go to vegetable 'first hand,' and not 'second hand' through the cow, sheep, etc. There were 1,000,000 sheep less on last January 1st than there were on the same date a year previous, so we should soon be compelled to be more vegetarian. He read a statement that an acre would support 5 persons well on a vegetable diet, while it would only support 2 on a meat one. Of course he expected to be told that England stood preeminent on account of its roast beef, but he asserted that the men who won Waterloo and Trafalgar were brought up on a vegetable diet, as only a small part of the population could get meat then.

Mr. G. Armitage took the negative, and said his chief objection to vegetarianism was its want of variety. He thought it would be easy enough to get a list of names of great men who objected to vegetarianism. As our canine teeth are level and not jagged like those of other animals, Mr. Batty had thought that they were not intended to eat meat, but as we could prepare our food we did not want them in that state. We were more enlightened than Darwin's apes, and in no way bound to follow the practices ascribed to them in this matter. Medical men, he thought, were mostly in favor of a meat diet. He attributed sailor's scurvy to other causes than those mentioned by Mr. Batty. He would like to know what vegetables would be grown on the acre? The decrease in the number of sheep resulted from other causes. He rather thought the old soldiers did not live on a vegetarian diet.

Mr. Turner said if vegetables were cultivated more the poorer classes would be better off. Some of the things Mr. Batty had said, existed, he thought, only in his imagination. Mr. Batty made some mistakes; for instance, he had said in cold climates the people confined themselves to a vegetable diet, and the Finns were mentioned as an example. However, he had been in Finland, and from what he saw, he was of opinion that they lived largely on a meat diet. He thought it vegetarianism were adopted it would occasion a great waste of flesh, leather and wool.

Mr. R. Batty supported the affirmative on economic grounds. The large importation of meat did not appear to cheapen it. The Jews who lived in Whitechapel were entirely exempt from consumption, while the English who lived in the same neighbourhood were greatly afflicted with it. This was ascribed to the Englishman's love of pork. Tastes were created, and he thought it would open the eyes of people generally if they paid a visit to the slaughter-houses on a Thursday night. He affirmed that one animal in every ten slaughtered had a bad liver, which showed the animal was not in good condition. Why the Finns had beef when Mr. Turner was there was because they were in the habit of receiving tourists every year who wanted it.

Mr. Bennett supported Mr. Batty.

Mr. Armitage, in replying, thought the cost of the meat diet would decrease instead of increase. Children's ailments were caused by having too much meat given them.

Mr. B. Batty read some extracts proving what he had affirmed of Drs. Richardson, etc. He also pointed to the fact that when a man had a cold, and the body was in a low condition, he used gruel, porridge, etc., to increase the temperature, and not meat.

On the vote being taken, 4 were affirmative, and 6 negative. The debate was very lively and interesting. There will be no meeting next week.

NATIONAL SCHOOL CONCERT.

The seventh annual concert connected with the Rothwell National Schools, was rendered in the Mechanics' Hall on Tuesday evening last, by the scholars, led by Mr. Thompson with his usual ability, and assisted by the Rothwell Church Glee party.

The concert was quite equal to any of its predecessors, and was listened to and enjoyed by a very large audience.

Part 1 was commenced by the presentation by the Rev. F. Fawkes of the prizes earned by the children in the late examination, and for good attendance at school; followed by "Peaceful night," "Good King Wenceslas," and "Hail! smiling morn," all of which were well sung. Next came the well-worn, but pleasing duett "Chime again, beautiful Bells," by Miss Kidd and Miss M. E. Smith. After "The meeting of the Waters" had been sung, the Masters Craven gave in fine style a violin solo with piano accompaniment, greatly delighting the ears of the attentive listeners, followed by another glee, and "The Englishman" by the scholars, which brought to an end the first part.

After some refreshment had been supplied to the performers, the second part was proceeded with, three or four other songs being rendered by the scholars, and another excellent performance made on the violin and piano by the Masters Craven. Master Arthur Steel sang very sweetly "Only a little Flower," and towards the end came the favourite comic, Mr. Arthur Batty, who sang in his usual good style "Mrs. Brown's Luggage," the children taking the chorus. Another glee was followed by the round "Good Night," and the "National Anthem" closed the concert.

Press of matter and of time has necessitated a somewhat condensed report of above capital concert, for the success of which Mr. Thompson and the other teachers have worked hard.

MARKETS.

LEEDS CORN, Tuesday.—Fair attendance at today's market. Demand for wheat quiet, and prices a shade easier. Maize 1s to 2s lower, and barley 6d to 1s cheaper. Beans, peas, and oats steady. Flour without alteration.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

WAKEFIELD CATTLE, Wednesday.—We had 1000 less beasts than last week, and many of them were really splendid animals, including several prize bullocks. The supply included Lincolnshire, north country, and Irish beasts. Buyers hung back from purchasing, and were able to buy at lower rates than last week, a sluggish tone being observable throughout. There were a number of prize sheep which were much admired, and speedily picked up. A slow trade in milch cows and lean beasts at late rates. As usual at this time of the year business in the pig market was almost nil, and what was done was at prices last quoted.

		this week,		last week,
No. of	fat beasts,	2000		3000
„	sheep	2000,	„	2870
„	milch cows &c	70,	„	64

Prices were as follows:—

Fat beasts, 7d to 9d per lb.
Milch cows, £18 to £32 each.
Lean beasts, £10 to £16 each.
Sheep, 9d to 11½d per lb.
Pigs, small, 14s to 18s.
„ store, 50s to 70s.
„ fat, 7/- to 7/10 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

WAKEFIELD CORN, Friday, 12.45.—We have rather a holiday market this morning, and the little business doing is at about late rates. The low prices of Indian wheats attract buyers. Barley meets a slow trade at rather less money. Beans and oats steady. Maize a shade cheaper. Weather to-day is fair, and a little cooler.

ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE HALL.

The usual entertainment was given in this Hall on Saturday evening last, the principal feature being a dialogue by about 20 performers. The entertainment commenced with several recitations by children, and after a solo by Miss Hartley, the dialogue commenced, which occupied the rest of the evening. It was an interesting piece, most of the actors being in suitable costume. A solo by Miss Hartley completed the entertainment. Mr. J. Goodall occupied the chair.

POLICE NEWS.

Before Mr. Kendal and Dr. Holdsworth.

(Friday.)

PERMITTING DRUNKENNESS.—Wm. Hemsworth, of the Coach and Horses Inn, Rothwell Haigh, was charged with permitting drunkenness on licensed premises and with keeping his house open after the proper time. P. S. Turton and P. C. Clarke were on duty at Rothwell Haigh on the 7th inst., and visited the house at 7.30, when they found two men in the tap-room drunk and fighting; they called the landlord's attention to it, and left the house, and at 8.13 visited it again, when the same state of things was found to exist. Visits were paid again at 10.15 and 10.40, and they found the landlord drunk and asleep. P. C. Slimmon found the landlord and a man drunk in the house at a quarter past twelve. Defendant was fined fifty shillings and costs in each case, and his licence cancelled.

DRUNKENNESS.—Fred Whitehead and John Hardwick, quarrymen, and Henry Firth, quarry foreman, were each fined 10s., and 10s. costs, for being drunk at the Coach and Horses Inn, Rothwell Haigh on the night of the 7th inst.; and Jos. Ellis and John Earnshaw were each fined 5s. and costs for being drunk on licensed premises on the same night after authorised hours.

(Monday.)

A SLEEPY CAB DRIVER.—Wm. Leckenby, cab driver, was fined 5s., and 12s. costs, for being asleep in a hansom cab near John o' Gaunt's at one o'clock on the morning of the 8th inst. P. C. 129 Wilson proved the case.

LOFTHOUSE.

SERVICE OF SONG.

On Saturday night last a Service of Song entitled "A peep behind the scenes," was given in the Wesleyan chapel, by the choir. Mr. Jos Gray, of Lofthouse, presided, and the connective readings were given by Miss Foster, of Lofthouse, who read very well. Mr. Jenkins accompanied on the organ. At the finish Mr. John Keightley proposed and Mr. Thomas Frobisher seconded a vote of thanks to the reader and singers which brought the proceedings to a close.

LECTURE BY THE REV. J. HIND.

Last Monday night a lecture was delivered in the Lofthouse Wesleyan school-room, entitled "England, past and prevent," by the Rev. James Hind, of Wakefield. Councillor Tattersall, of Wakefield, presided, and said he had great pleasure in being present to preside over such a meeting as that, and was always willing and ready to do all the good he could for the Master. Mr. Tattersall then called upon the Rev. gentleman to deliver his excellent lecture. Mr. Hind dwelt upon the customs and habits in days gone by, before the invention of printing, railways, etc., and shewed how thankful we ought to be, that we live in such a noble age as this; instead of being under a popish religion and false government, we live in a golden age, where we can read the word of God under our own vine and fig-tree, none daring to make us afraid. The lecturer spoke for 90 minutes, and was listened to by a moderate audience. Mr. H wroyd proposed and Mr. Gray seconded a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and Mr. John Keightley proposed and Mr. Foster seconded a vote of thanks to the chairman. A collection was made in aid of the school funds amounting to £1 10s. 4d., and the doxology brought the meeting to a termination.

THE MINERS' CONFERENCE.—The National Miners' Conference at Leeds on Wednesday had the question of restriction of the output under consideration. The first resolution passed affirmed the general principle that in order to protect the interests of miners and raise the standard of wages still higher it was necessary to regulate the production of coal. Other motions were adopted, declaring that no miner, except in special cases mentioned, should work more than five days or shifts per week; that in counties where the pits are worked in single shifts the hours of labour shall be eight per day from bank to bank; and that in double shift pits, where there is but one shift for boys, the hours shall remain as at present. The 1st of February was suggested as a suitable time for commencing the restriction of output.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—A most mysterious affair has occurred in this district during the last fortnight. Thomas Noon, an Irishman employed on the farm of Mr. Wiley, Royds Green, and well-known as "Tommy the Milkman,' left Rothwell on Saturday week for the purpose of proceeding to Castlereagh, Ireland, and there to pay the rent for a farmstead occupied by his wife, near that town. From a letter received by his son, who is also employed by Mr. Wiley, it appears he never arrived at his destination. Enquiry was immediately made and he has been satisfactorily traced to Dublin, but this morning a short note was received at the farm, stating that he had been found drowned. No further particulars are given, and the subject is still one of mystery. The opinion that foul play has been practised on him is strongly entertained by some, and this opinion is fostered by the fact that last year, when on the same mission, he was set upon and wounded by some of the 'no rent' advocate.'

ACCIDENT.—On Monday an accident occurred on the 'run' between Beeston Pit and Rothwell Haigh coal-staith, which is of rather an unusual type. It will be remembered that the full wagons sent from Beeston draw up the empty ones over a large drum, but from some misunderstanding as to the signal the full wagons were started without the others being coupled, and the result was that the three wagons of coal came tearing down at a terrific rate; when they arrived at the curve near the Cinder Oven's Bridge, the wagons left the line, and pulling up the metals, pitched through a wood shoeing shed and also through a brick building, ploughing up some twenty yards of the field. Considerable damage is done to the wagons, but happily no lives were sacrificed.

OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD SCHOOL BOARD.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

I am not one of those who consider Mr. John Longbottom a very wise man, but I think he has done a very proper thing in calling the attention of the ratepayers of Oulton-with-Woodlesford to their interest in the Board School and its management. The members of the Board and their officers and teachers are unquestionably the ratepayers' servants, and are accountable to them for what they do. Let them then, by all means take Mr. Longbottom's advice, and make strict inquiry into their doings, and no doubt if they find that they have improperly used the ratepayers' money, they will know what to do at the next election. No doubt all public bodies are much the better for being well looked after, and, as a member of the Board I do hope that our constituents will manifest a more lively interest in our work; indeed, Sir, my main object in writing these lines is to bespeak a more general interest in what the school is doing. The school building and teaching have to be paid for largely out of the rates. Then surely it is only common sense that those who find the money should see that the best results possible are obtained, and that parents and teachers alike do their proper share. I will not further trespass on your space, but remain,

Your obedient servant,
W. MASON.

CHURCH LANE IMPROVEMENT.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir.

Should you have any more letters sent you similar to what have recently appeared in your columns disturbing the peace of our Local Board and its contractors, I most respectfully beg of you at this festive season to pass them into your waste paper basket, and allow me (an occasional correspondent) to wish your correspondents, Local Board members, and everybody else a wise and merry Christmas, a happy and prosperous New Year, and success to our new and improved railway scheme.

With these, and especially the latter, we trust that new energy, enterprise and progress will develope themselves, and metamorphise our ancient village, making it worth while for our largest land and property owners to assist the Local Board and ratepayers generally in effecting much needed improvements in our thoroughfares and also the general appearance of the place. To begin with, does not the Co-operative Store end of Church Lane seem to say, "I'm waiting for the other end to be opened," and of course everybody says what a nice curved road with easier gradients can easily be made round the grave-yard corner, if those old cottages were taken down and the debris filled into the lower part of the road. No doubt also the honorable patron of the Rothwell 'living,' and his steward, Mr. Farrer, would be interested in opening out the south front of the venerable edifice, enclosing and planting a strip of the widened road with shrubs, and making also the long spoken of new entrance to the church-yard. Our sister village, Oulton, shews what these gentlemen can do to beautify it, and why not Rothwell too, where Mr Calverley also possesses so much. Whilst subscribing my name and a small sum to the private subscription list for a tenants' present to Miss Calverley on her marriage, the thought entered into my mind, 'What a pleasing memento of that most interesting, and we trust, happy event—the marriage of our Lord of the Manor's only daughter—would be the presentation to Rothwell of those cottages, ornamentation and opening out of the front of, and a new approach to Rothwell Church.

Most respectfully and without the slightest intended impertinence I beg to suggest what would become a most memorable improvement and public benefit, trusting that it will receive his kind consideration, and will also lead other property owners to follow his good example. In conclusion I have further suggestions to offer, but leave this to honorably stand by itself, and I hope succeed in its purpose, remaining,

Yours very sincerely,
A PROPERTY OWNER.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

"BUCHUPAIBA."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

THROAT IRRITATION.—Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use Epps' Glycerine Jujubes. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. Sold only in boxes, 7½d., tins 1s 1½d., labelled "JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." A letter received: "Gentlemen,—It may perhaps interest you to know that, after an extended trial, I have found your Glycerine Jujubes of considerable benefit (with or without medical treatment) in almost all forms of throat disease. They soften and clear the voice.—Yours faithfully, GORDON HOLMES, M.D., Senior Physician to the Municipal Throat and Ear Infirmary."

THE DECLINE OF MAN!
JESSON'S
ZYMOTIC BLOOD ELIXIR!
An unfailing Remedy for
SKIN DISEASES, NERVOUS DEBILITY,
FEVERS, RHEUMATISM, & LOSS OF VITALITY

The peculiar principle of this Mixture is, that it dissolves clotted and congealed Blood within the body, and removes it with all Sallow Tinges, Spots, and Pimples, and restores the Skin to a clear, smooth, polished, and healthy hue. It CURES Scurvy, Sores, and Roughness, Ulcerated Sores on the Neck, Ulcerated Sore Legs, Cancerous Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Blackheads or Pimples on the Face.

ALSO Nervous Debility, Gloom, Palpitation, Heart Disease, Lumbago, Depression, Wind, Dyspepsia, Headache, Biliousness, Dropsy, Fevers, Wasting Strength, Sinking Sensations, Drowsiness, Langour, Melancholy, and Skin Eruptions.

Mrs. Dove, Moortown:—You have cured my husband, he has not had an attack of Indigestion and spasms since he took your medicine. In four years we spent £27 in Dr. Rooke's medicine. (This case did not cost 10s.)

W. H., Morley:—I have tried eight bottles of Clarke's Blood Mixture, but one bottle of your Zymotic has done more good than all the eight.

Sold in Bottles, 2/6 each. Prepared only by

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.
10, Cross Kiln Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds, Feb. 13th, 1881

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.
17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,

LOCAL RETROSPECT.

It seems but a short time since we wrote the words at the head of this paper twelve months ago, and as we look back, the increasing speed with which each succeeding year passes by, forcibly reminds us of the necessity of doing at once that which we purpose doing at all, and of doing that as well as we know how.

In another column we present the wider outlook from a national point of view, and simply linger to congratulate our countrymen on the speedy completion of the Egyptian campaign, and the important results which may be anticipated therefrom.

The slight improvement noticeable last year in the trade returns has been fully maintained and further advanced during 1882, while a harvest of a more satisfactory character has been reaped, and bread stuffs kept at a very low figure.

The history of our Local Parliament since the 1st of January, 1882, has been considerably varied and lively. The bill promoted by the Rothwell Gas Light Co. to secure parliamentary protection, illuminated the closing days of the old year, and was the theme of various discussions both in and out of the council chamber for the first four months of the present year. This bone of contention also became the burning question at the annual election, resulting in the defeat of Mr. Newsome, a shareholder, by Mr. Turner, one of the main opponents of the bill The other members elected with Mr. Turner were Mr. Charlesworth, the genial and influential chairman, and Mr. W. Hargreaves, who so ably fills the presidential seat in the absence of the chairman, and is so thoroughly conversant with every part of the Board's work, and both of whom have sat on the Board since its formation. The Railway Bill also occupied a considerable amount of time and interest. The sewage scheme for Rothwell has been completed during the year, so far as concerns the the main trunk of the system, and there have also been a number of connections made, but the scheme will not be in full operation for some months yet. There are few houses in Rothwell unsupplied with water, and people are wondering now however they could do so long without it. The streets are pretty well lighted, at any rate a great advance has been made, and though not sufficiently supplied in two or three corners of the town, Rothwell will compare favourably with other towns of similar size, as regards this very important matter. The highways and the cost thereof continue to exercise the minds of our local legislators severely. The new arrangement (dividing the several roads, streets and lanes into four parts, three of which are undertaken by contractors, the Wakefield Road being reserved for the Board itself) does not yet seem to have resulted much more satisfactorily than under the old system; there is, however, a large quantity of good material being put on, while heavy orders have been given for paving Bell Hill and other parts of the district, so that we may fairly hope for better things by and bye.

Last year we rejoiced in an extraordinary low death rate, and flattered ourselves, that though heavily rated, we had cause for thankfulness. This year has been unusually prolific of infectious diseases; measles, scarlet fever, diptheria and typhoid fever have each claimed their fatal cases, while bronchitis and other causes have resulted in a number of deaths. The latter part of the year has been remarkable for the fog and generally gloomy weather which has prevailed, and of course partly accounted for the large amount of sickness.

The School Board continues steadily at its work, and it is gratifying to note that the two Schools have each earned an increased grant from the '81 examination. The result of this year's inspection has not yet transpired, but it is expected that Rothwell Haigh will have secured a still higher grant; the Rothwell Schools have had to contend against the wide-spread sickness among children, which will no doubt militate against the amount of grant. Miss Jowitt having resigned, a new teacher is appointed to take charge of the infants at Rothwell from the beginning of the year. At Rothwell Haigh, the long required enlargement has taken place, and the former Infants' school has been added to the Boys' department, giving accomodation for 160 children, while a new building has been erected as an infants school and class-room, calculated for 130 scholars, making with the girls' premises for 100, a total accommodation for 490.

The National Schools maintain their position and attendance, and remain under the same teachers.

The Mechanics' Institution continues to offer many advantages, which however, are not so largely used as is desirable. The art class under Mr. H. Lockwood still holds on its way, but no other educational meetings are held. Two or three lectures have been given during the year, but there was a miserable attendance. A praiseworthy improvement has been made by the enlargement of the platform, and the addition of ante-rooms, so as to allow of a large chorus, or a dramatic representations; the expense of the alteration having been covered by the results of two excellent dramatic and musical entertainments, principally got up by the energy and influence of Mr. W. Wright, and other gentlemen, the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society kindly aiding the latter by their very enjoyable performances. The Woodlesford Minstrels and the "Christ and his soldiers" company also very kindly gave concerts in aid of the same object. The general meeting was held on July 20th, when the committee and officers for the year were elected, Mr G. Armitage, jun., and Mr. S, Morton being appointed secretaries.

The Debating Society has not flourished so well this year, the members attending its meetings having considerably decreased. Let us hope that the New Year will see an improvement in this useful and valuable society.

The Working Man's Club retains its position as a rendezvous for the football, cricket, and bicycle clubs, and is frequented by a number of young men connected with these associations.

The Liberal Association still has its headquarters near the Cross, and furnishes rooms, papers, and amusements for those who are members.

The Temperance Society has made considerable strides during the year, having acquired and renovated a building in Holmes' Square as a Temperance Hall, which was successfully opened by Alderman Tatham, the Mayor of Leeds, on the 11th of October, since which date entertainments of various descriptions have been given, and services held, the financial results of which are placed to the credit of the Building fund Committee. A bazaar has also been held this week for the same object, and very earnest efforts are being made for the payment of the purchase money. As a result of a mission held in June, the ranks of the society have been increased, while at the regular meetings new converts have also been added. At the commencement of the year, a Temperance Band was also formed, and by means of subscriptions from friends and engagements fulfilled by the Band, the cost of the instruments is being speedily raised.

The Old Brass Band has also been largely re-inforced and a new uniform been bought; the number of engagements secured this year being larger than at any previous period.

The Railway Bill, in which Rothwell and the sister villages were so largely interested, after being passed by the Committee of the House of Commons, was rejected by the Lords on August 1st, much to the chagrin and disappointment of the entire community. Our readers, however, will have noticed with satisfaction that another effort is to be made on improved lines, including a new railway to Leeds. We sincerely trust the second attempt will prove thoroughly successful.

The Bill of the Rothwell Gas Light Company after all the discussions pro and con, passed all the stages of Parliament without opposition, and became law on June 22nd.

Throughout the country, desperate efforts have been made to raise the amount of miners' wages, and generally speaking, an advance of ten per cent has been made by the masters, Messrs. Charlesworth having nobly taken the lead in this district. The National Miners' Association endeavoured to persuade the men of this locality to join the General Union, but this they (as we think) wisely declined, and rather formed a Union of their own, managed by their own leaders.

The usual trips to Scarbro and Blackpool have been indulged in, partly out of the funds of the Accident Society connected with the Collieries.

The Rothwell Flower Show Committee, notwithstanding the prophecies that last year's show was to be the last, held their Exhibition on August 7th and 8th, under very favorable weather, and receipts amounting to nearly £86.

The overseers for the township are Messrs. Jas. Hargreaves, W. Lawton and J. Sanderson, and owing to the lamented death of Mr. W. Price, for many years assistant overseer, Mr. F. Parker, of Stourton, has succeeded to that office.

At Woodlesford and Oulton, Mr. Sanderson has taken the place of Mr. Jackson as guardian along with Mr. Whitehead; the surveyors for Oulton being Mr. Jewison and Mr. Farrer; for Woodlesford, Mr. Sissons and Mr. Thompson; the overseers for this township retain their offices; Mr. Flint also continuing to hold the post of assistant overseer and assistant surveyor. Their drainage and water schemes being both complete, no public works are being carried on at present.

The School Board, through the removal of Mr. Bentley from Eshald House, may be said to consist of only four members, Mr. Smith continuing as clerk. A change has been made in the school during the year, Mr. Longbottom being replaced in the boys department by Mr. Green.

The Mechanics' Institute has hardly been heard of, but we believe it is still open.

The Woodlesford Choral Society is yet in a flourishing state. On the 30th of January, the minstrel section gave a capital concert, followed on the next day by a free repetition of it for the poor people and friends.

At Lofthouse and Carlton, Mr. Lunn remains guardian, while Mr. Jas. Armitage and Mr. Joseph North act as overseers, assisted by Mr. B. Marshall. The surveyors for Carlton are Mr. G. Armitage and Mr. R. Dobson; for Lofthouse, Mr. W. Armitage and Mr. J. Parker.

The School Board has not suffered any change in its constitution, but Mr. Ledgard having taken another school at Kippax, is replaced by Mr. R. W. Fairburn, as master at Carlton

The Rothwell Athletic Festival took place on August 19th under favourable aspects, and their was a fair attendance and some good sport.

The football clubs in this district are legion, and every week during the winter, several matches are played. The old English game of cricket holds its own bravely, and both players and gentlemen maintain a hearty interest in its support. The latest addition to athletic recreations, bicycling, is quite strong in the neighbourhood, and the members of the A. B. C. lately held a most successful annual meeting. Concerts or entertainments have been given on behalf of all three sports in and around Rothwell, and in every case, good audiences have been secured.

Concerts, services of song, entertainments, and lectures, for various religious or social objects have been held during the year, and although many of these may not be calculated largely to develop musical taste, they serve to raise a little money in an agreeable way, and bring into play the abilities and appreciation of the people,

Turning to the religious aspect of things in the neighbourhood, our first thought is, of course, the change of our spiritual shepherd. Few would have thought last Christmas that the healthy form of our late vicar would have become so shattered by sickness as to necessitate an entire removal, not only from this locality, but also from England itself, to a brighter and more genial climate. Yet so it is, and while we think with pleasing remembrance of the gentlemanly Christian who so constantly did his duty, and was so kind to those "who had none to help," we heartily welcome our new vicar, the Rev. F. Fawkes, who took charge on Oct. 28th, and who, by his Catholic spirit and general winning deportment, has already made a good impression on the people. We have also to mourn the removal of the Rev. R. W. Fawkes, of Swillington, who, by his eminently evangelistical earnest sermons, had endeared himself to all Christian people of whatever denomination. The churches of Lofthouse, Oulton, Woodlesford, and Middleton are still in charge of the same clergymen Mr. Miller, of Middleton, has, with Mr. Hutchinson, his curate, succeeded in raising a nice little congregation at Stourton, where a church is shortly to be opened for their accommodation. At Carlton, the Primitives have lately opened their new premises, and they now possess a neat and sufficiently large chapel and school.

Quite a number of Christmas Trees in connection with chapels or schools were held at the end of last year, and on the 10th and 11th April, a very satisfactory and pleasing "Old English Village" Bazaar was held by the friends of the Rothwell Church. The same days the Wesleyans at Stourton held a bazaar, the result of which cleared off their chapel debt. On the 25th July, Methley Church Bazaar was held, and on the 25th and 26th October, the Rothwell Wesleyans netted over £100 by a bazaar in aid of their new chapel fund. During the present week the Primitives have a Christmas Tree, and the Temperance Society a bazaar.

Several casualties having occurred during the year On the 14th February, a labourer, named Daniel, hung himself at Robin Hood; Mrs. Jane Harrison also died suddenly at Rothwell, of heart disease. On the 19th July, W. Gillott was killed at Robin Hood while borrowing wood. On the 27th of last month, Joseph Young, an old band-spinner, fell down and died suddenly, while at work in Mr. Armistead's walk, and a day or two afterwards, Mr. Wm. Armitage suddenly expired in his own home at Robin Hood. The most sad and most sudden death, however, was that of our highly respected and well-known townsman, Mr. William Price, for many years collector of rates, both for the Overseers and the Local Board, who, after making up his books on the 10th of June, without any warning, fell down a corpse. While these are sad enough, we are thankful to know that no serious accident has happened, involving the loss of several lives, and it is surely cause for gratitude that while some colliery districts have to mourn over the loss of many dear ones by some fearful catastrophe, we have for so long been saved from such awful misfortunes.

On the threshold of another year, we look back, and as a community have cause for deep gratitude to the Almighty One for His goodness during the past, and we look forward in trust on the Great Father, for His guidance and blessing in the future. That every blessing, for this life and for the coming life, may abide on all our readers, is the best way of wishing them

A HAPPY NEW YEAR,

CHRISTMAS.

The holiday of the year has again come and gone, and while we rejoiced in its approach, and tasted of its present gladness, we look back on the Christmases just past and long past, with remembrances of pleasure and joyous associations.

Though neither frost nor snow have been very perceptible, and the weather has rather been of a dirty, drizzling description, these outward disadvantages have not seriously interfered with the arrangements of the people. All the same, the yule log was mounted on the kitchen fire, and anon the flames roared up the chimney; the "fermity" was set to "cree" ready for Christmas night supper; the housewife had settled down in her easy rocking chair on the Christmas Sunday evening, and was glad in her heart as she looked back at the hard "cleaning down" week just past, to think that a few days of rest and pleasure were before her; her "master" scanned the newly papered walls the cleanly floor, the shining fire-irons, the few selected pictures, and his tidy wife, with the honest pride of a hard-working Englishman who has, by his own labour and God's blessing, reared a comfortable home; the children have carefully hung up their stockings where Santa Claus may easily find them, in order to fill them from his mysterious but capacious pocket, with the toys and fruit and sweets they most wish for; the spice-bread has been made, and the serious matter of selecting a bit of Christmas cheese satisfactorily decided, while a cut of prime beef is ready for the oven to-morrow, to be followed by the inevitable plum pudding. The Christmas cards have been posted to distant friends, and presents sent to nearer ones, for > "Christmas comes but once a year,

> And when he comes he brings good cheer."

The first signal of the "happy morn," was given by the Temperance Band, on Monday morning, about four o'clock, when "Christians Awake" resounded through the deserted, shadowy streets, and the youngsters began to stir in the house, and commenced operations for visiting the sleeping residents with the many varified verse, always ending with—

> "Please will you give me a Christmas box."

The Old Band was not much behind its younger competitor, and from this moment throughout the day, the old, old songs, interspersed with those of recent date, were sung, were played, were shouted, were shrieked, by professional and amateur parties in every nook and corner of the town and vicinity.

The Model Prize Brass Band divided themselves into two portions, the better to complete the circle of visits intended to be paid, and realized about £20, for the payment of some new instruments.

The Temperance Band also formed two parties, and from a very pretty card handed in to those for whose benefit they played, it appears their receipts go towards the purchase of a new uniform; we understand nearly £21 has been given to them on their rounds.

The Harmonic Glee Party have this year secured the services of Mr. Doyle, of Leeds, as conductor, with two or three other friends, and the manner in which they rendered their selections is something to be enjoyed and remembered with pleasure for many a long day.

M

The Church Singers have turned out this year in full force, and their performances have been very pleasurable to those who had the privilege of hearing them.

The Wesleyan Singers, although short of several valuable voices, (engaged in other work) made a valiant effort to maintain their character, and succeeded very well. Their object in denying themselves on those damp, wet days, was to raise money towards helping to clear off the remaining debt on the chapel, and they realized over £10.

The Primitive Choir also turned out for a similar purpose, though not receiving quite so large an amount.

The bells of our Parish Church rang merrily during the day, and the usual service was held at half-past ten. The Rev. F. Fawkes, the vicar, preached a suitable sermon, and the choral service was of an appropriate character. Thanks to a number of ladies and gentlemen, who are most indefatigable in any work they take in hand for the benefit of the church, the sacred building was artistically and beautifully decorated with evergreens and devices of various kinds. The pulpit and reading-desks exhibited tokens of great care and taste, while the communion was very fine. At either side of the chancel windows, over the organ, and on the walls of the church, were fixed suitable texts and mottoes, the preparation of which must have entailed immense labour and care.

At the Wesleyan Chapel, a Christmas service was also conducted by the Rev. C. A. Collingwood.

The collieries were closed until Thursday morning, as also was the match factory; the principal shops were shut up on Monday and Tuesday, thus giving an opportunity to both masters and assistants of having three days holiday.

ROTHWELL.

Temperance Hall Bazaar.—The members connected with the Temperance Society have been making or begging goods of various descriptions for some time, and the result of their labours was seen on Tuesday and Wednesday last in a very numerous and diversified stock of goods, which were displayed on three stalls of the 'gable' pattern, and were presided over by Mrs. E. Hampson, Mrs. T. Hampson, Mrs. Cripps, Miss Shearman, Miss Hampson, Mrs. Tilley, Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. B. Batty, Miss M. Bedford, and Mr. R. Watkin.

At the Refreshment Stall a brisk business was carried on by Mrs. Ineson, Mrs. Hatton, Mrs. Buttery, Mrs. Berry, Mr. Giles, Mr. Berry, and Mr. O. Parker, who dispensed every description of viands at reasonable prices and in plentiful measure.

A substantial and varied tea was provided in an adjoining house, where a considerable number of persons partook of the good things set before them.

Entertainment was supplied by means of galvanic battery and other attractions, while Miss Hampson, Miss C. E. Seanor, Miss Riley and Mr. Gilston, (of Hunslet), gave selections on the pianoforte.

The bazaar was opened by Mr. B. Clark, at 2.30 on Tuesday, and a large quantity of goods, mostly of a useful and inexpensive character, changed hands, and the total result amounted to £53, which will be devoted to the reduction of the payment for the Hall.

The hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens, etc., and a number of suitable mottoes were fixed on the walls.

Primitive Methodist Christmas Tree. The friends of this society held their usual Christmas Tree on Tuesday and Wednesday, in their neat and lightsome school-room. As the outcome of the hard stitching of the female members of the community and the hearty co-operation of the sterner sex, a very nice display of things, useful and ornamental, for old and young, was got together, the tree itself being decorated with toys, fancy goods and fruit, the stalls were tended by Mrs. Copley, Mrs. Beckwith, Mrs. J. Bramley, Mrs. G. Bramley, Mrs. Jno. Harrison, Misses E. Clayton, A. Bramley, L. Baines, and Messrs. J. T. Kilburn, T. Brown, and J. Myers. Refreshments of various kinds were provided during the sale, and an excellent tea was set out both days at an attractive price. During the evenings the choir sang several pieces in a pleasing style, while pianoforte recitals were given by Misses E. Clayton, A. Bramley and L. Baines. We are pleased to learn that notwithstanding the fact of the Temperance Society having a similar affair close by, the amount netted is considerably more than was anticipated. The money taken is for chapel expenses.

Mrs. Roodhouse's Treat, which has now become an annual affair, came off on Wednesday evening, and was not one whit behind previous years in the lavish benevolence and hospitality of the generous lady, who finds her greatest pleasure in pleasing others. The Wesleyan choir and Christmas singers took tea at Mrs. Roodhouse's, at 5 o'clock, to the number of about 30, after which the evening was spent in a pleasant and enjoyable manner, games, music, and other amusements following each other in endless variety, the wants of the inner man being attentively and profusely provided for, during the evening and early morning. The party did not finally break up until far into the small hours of the next day, everybody feeling deeply indebted to their kind hostess for her thoughtful attention and regard.

Last night at seven o'clock the Rothwell Church Choir, numbering about thirty persons, sat down to an excellent supper at the Vicarage, kindly provided by the Vicar. After supper the evening was spent in a convivial manner; glees, songs, duetts, etc., forming not a small part of the entertainment. At half-past ten the party broke up, all having enjoyed to the fullest extent Mr. Fawkes' generosity.

Christmas Gifts.—By the the thoughtful generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Charlesworth, a load of coals and a warm dress have been sent during the last few days, to every poor widow in the district, and this seasonable gift must have caused many a forlorn woman to have had a happy Christmas, which she could not have enjoyed but for this kind act.

The annual Christmas dole left by Joshua Crabtree, Esq., for the widows and orphans of Rothwell, was distributed on St. Thomas' Day by the vicar, to 56 widows and 7 orphan children at the rate of 8s. 0d. for adults and 4s. 6d. each for the children.

STOURTON.

St. Andrew's Church Bazaar.—After eighteen months earnest toil, the Rev. A. E. Miller, vicar of Middleton, and his energetic curate, the Rev. E. W. R. Hutchinson, with the cordial co-operation of several friends, have succeeded in gathering together a congregation at Stourton, who have worshipped in the Boys' school-room, Rothwell Haigh. For some time past, a number of ladies have worked, and solicited gifts towards the erection of a church, and during Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, they have held a sale of work in the school-room, which was effectively and tastefully decorated with evergreens, flowers, and mottoes. The stalls for the sale of clothing and other useful articles were under the charge of Mrs. Gyton, Mrs. Horn, Mrs Ross, Miss Kilburn and Mr. Bird; while the lighter and more ornamental portion was presided over by Mrs. Dobson and Mrs. Tetley. At the refreshment department, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Kirby, Mrs. Girling and Mrs. Drurey attended to the wants of the inner man, the bride-cake being superintended by Miss Gill and Miss Rathmell, and the 'sweets' stall by the Misses Holmes. Mr. Day distributed the many gifts which hung on the Christmas Tree, and Miss Lily Gill and Miss Gyton had charge of the 'bran pie.' The curiosities exhibited by Mr Gill attracted considerable notice, and were found most interesting. By the kind help of the Middleton Harmonic Union and the Stourton choir, selections of vocal music were given during the Bazaar. The Vicar opened the proceedings on Tuesday at 2.30, and closed on Wednesday evening, the financial result being about £24. A tea is to be held to-night for the workers. Having purchased a piece of ground of Mr. Shires, operations have already commenced, and it is intended to open an iron church about the beginning of February.

Wesleyan Methodist Sunday School.—A public tea was held in the above place on Christmas day, Dec. 25th, when about 120 partook of the good things provided. After tea a miscellaneous entertainment was given which, in the absence of Mr. J. F. Timmins, was presided over by Mr. A. Webber, who said it gave him great pleasure in being present to preside over such a meeting as that, and he hoped that they would have a very pleasant evening together; afterwards a very excellent programme was gone through, consisting of recitations, dialogues, solos, duetts, choruses, &c., which seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Special mention may be made of the "unknown subject" which caused much merriment amongst the audience. The choir which was assisted by a string band, was ably conducted by Mr. A. C. Smith, with Mr. F. Fatkin at the harmonium. The attendance was very good, and votes of thanks to the chairman and others taking part, brought the proceedings to a close. A collection was made on behalf of the School Fund.

METHLEY.

The services at the Church last Sunday evening were assimilated to the Christmas season by the singing of selections from the Messiah among the appropriate specialties. The fine choruses, "Glory to God" and "Hallelujah" were sung, the recitatives preceding the first named chorus being given by Miss Clara Braime, and the pastoral symphony was played as a voluntary prior to the commencement of the service. In addition to the organ, there was a small orchestra consisting of Messrs. W. Flockton, Outhwaite, Watson and Stead (Members of the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society) and Mr. Amos Ward, of Methley, who gave their services on the occasion, and effectively assisted the singing of the special pieces as well as the hymns, and along with the organist played the "pastoral symphony" as mentioned above. The Rev. Thos. Ripley intoned the service and the Hon. and Rev. P. Y. Savile was the preacher. The church was nicely decorated in Christmas fashion and there was a numerous congregation.

CARLTON.

The Primitives of this village held a Christmas Tree on Monday in aid of their new school-room, lately opened, and had very gratifying success, the room being nicely decorated, and a good number of articles sold.

EAST ARDSLEY.

East Ardsley.—A bazaar was held last Tuesday, for the benefit of St. Michael's Church, which was well attended, and realized about £23 more than the one held last year.

MARKETS.

Leeds Corn, Wednesday.—Market to-day very thinly attended, and the business passing of a limited character. Wheat unchanged in price. Oats, beans, and peas steady. Maize 6d to 1s lower. Flour without alteration.—Leeds Corn Millers' Association Report.

Wakefield Cattle, Wednesday.—Our market to-day must be reported as of quite a holiday character, both in regard to the quantity of stock penned and the attendance of buyers. Many, if indeed not most, of the butchers appeared to have made their purchases, but still dealers were able to secure an advance on last week's rates. The fat beasts included North Country, Lincolnshire, and Irish animals. There was a very small supply of sheep, and buyers had to give a halfpenny per lb. more than last week. A fair trade in milch cows and lean beasts. There was rather more activity in the pig trade, but we cannot quote any alteration on former rates.

	this week,		last week,
No. of fat beasts,	700		2000
" sheep	1000,	"	2000
" milch cows &c	50,	"	70
" pigs	180,	"

Prices were as follows:—

- Fat beasts, 8d to 9½d per lb.
- Milch cows, £16 to £28 each.
- Lean beasts, £10 to £16 each.
- Sheep, 9½d to 11½d per lb.
- Pigs, small, 14s to 18s.
- " store, 50s to 70s.
- " fat, 7/- to 7/10 per stone.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

Wakefield Corn, Friday, 12.45.—The market this morning is somewhat of a holiday character, and the wheat trade rules quiet at about late rates. English barley a shilling per qr. lower, Foreign a slow sale. Beans and oats steady, maize again lower. The day is mild and fair, though somewhat overcast.

ROTHWELL HARMONIC v. HUNSLET WESLEYANS.

Oulton Cup Ties, (Final.)

The above teams met once more at Oulton last Saturday, to try conclusions for the Oulton cup. It will be remembered that they have met twice before, and each time tied; first match, 1 goal each, second match neither side succeeded in scoring; thus a greater amount of interest centred itself in the result than is generally the case with ordinary club fixtures. The weather was all that could be desired, and the field was in a fair condition. Both sides had done their utmost to bring the best team they possibly could into the field, and several alterations had been made in the names of the players by each club. The Wesleyans won the toss and the ball was started by W Ward, for Rothwell, a run was made into the Hunslet territory, where a foul gave Rothwell a 'free kick.' A foul shortly after by Taylor, near the corner flag, gave the Wesleyans a slight advantage, and a shy was made by Kelly which went wide. A good bit of even play now took place, until Kelly broke away on the right wing, and Seanor failing to stop him he took his shy, which proved too much for the scarlet-and-black's custodian, and the next moment the sky was darkened with a shower of hats, announcing the first goal for the Wesleyans. The leather was re-started, and Dobson put in a fine useful run half the length of the field, but the ball went into touch off Hollings; the 'corner' was taken by Dobson, but he failed to improve it, and the globe was quickly run to the other end, where a low shot again captured the Harmonic citadel. The kick from the centre failed to relieve, and the Wesleyans were soon busily at work in their opponents' territory, where a corner kick was gained, which went close outside. Another disaster was in store for the Harmonic, for several of the Hunslet forwards coming down with a rush, enabled M Carr to send the leather between the posts. The Rothwell men played with dash but bad judgment, and Jackson had a splendid chance to score, which was missed. Hunslet retaliated by a run up to their opponents' goal, and a 'corner' was obtained, taken by Carr, which went between the posts, but without touching anyone. The 'six-yards' changed the scene of action for a short time, where Rothwell had a shy, but did not score. Half-time was now called, which proved to be five minutes too early, therefore the remainder of the time was played, but nothing particular took place, and the ball was in the centre of the field when half-time was called. Ends were changed and Hunslet re-started; the leather was well returned, and for some time the Wesleyan fortress was endangered, several shies being made by the Harmonic, Dobson and W Ward especially having good chances, but both shied too high. Hunslet was for some time hardly pressed, until a grand piece of combined play enabled Kelly to shy, but the ball cleared the cross-bar; however, he was not to be denied, and shortly after shot another between the posts. Just before time was called, Calverley again did the needful for Hunslet, thus leaving the Wesleyans victors by 5 goals to nil. The following are the names of the teams:—Rothwell, A Baines, goal; G W Blakey, F J Seanor, backs; G Harrison, T W Wright, (capt), A Ward, half-backs; G Dobson, J W Chadwick, H Taylor, W Jackson, W H Ward, forwards. Wesleyans:—A Broadley, goal; J Hollings, J Gouldthorpe, backs; R Reddings, J Hall, half-backs; W Kelly, (capt) M Carr, H Dewse, M Calverley, G Stead, W Broadley, forwards. Referee Mr. F Dennison.

The cup was presented to Kelly, the captain of the Hunslet Wuesleyans F. C., in the club-room of the Oulton club, by Mr. R. J. Smith. After suitable remarks, Kelly, who received quite an ovation, responded, and toasts and votes of thanks were proposed and acknowledged by members of the Wesleyans, Harmonic, and Oulton clubs.

Rothwell Harmonic v. Sheffield Princess Street.—Played at Rothwell last Tuesday, and resulted in the visitors being defeated by 8 goals (2 disputed) to 2.

Rothwell v. Conisboro'.—Played at Rothwell last Tuesday, and resulted in a win for the home team by 2 goals to nil.

Oulton Victoria v. Woodlesford.—Played at Woodlesford on Saturday, and resulted in an easy victory for Oulton by 7 goals to nil.

Oulton Victoria v. Rothwell B. S.—Played at Rothwell last Monday, and ended in the visitors scoring 1 goal to the School nil. It must, however, be mentioned that owing to some roughs interfering, the game was stopped five minutes before time was up.

Oulton Victoria v. Knottingley.—Played at Oulton on Tuesday, and resulted in an easy victory for the home team by 6 goals to Knottingley 1.

POLICE NEWS.

Game Trespasses at Rothwell.—At the West Riding Court, Wakefield, on Friday last, Joseph Hopton, market gardener, Rothwell, was fined £1 and 16s. costs, for trespassing in search of game, on land at Rothwell, in the occupation of Mrs. G. Gouldthorpe, on the 12th December. Defendant was found upon the land in question with a gun, and accompanied by a dog, and on being questioned, stated that he was in search of snipes.—Arthur Clark, John Earnshaw, and John Sykes were likewise fined and ordered to pay 11s. 8d. each for trespassing in search of game and rabbits on land on Rothwell Haigh in the occupation of Messrs. Charlesworth, on the 10th inst. The defendants were seen by one of the game watchers digging with a stake in a rabbit-hole, having with them a retriever dog. The watcher went for one of his companions, and on their approach, Sykes who was then standing on Messrs. Charlesworth's waggon way, made a sign to the other two defendants, who ran away, and laid down behind hedges; they were, however, followed by the watchers and identified. Mr. Tennant, of the firm of Tennant and Barrett, solicitors, 18, Albion St., Leeds, and Otley and Rothwell, prosecuted on behalf of the lessee of the shooting.

New Pianoforte Sonatas.—It is a remarkable thing that, notwithstanding the interest taken in the highest class of music at the present time, very few people even know of a dozen Sonatas for the Pianoforte by composers of the day. The composition of works in this form, which is decidedly the finest in every way, has, indeed, been for some time practically at a standstill. The cause of this is, no doubt, the competition in price of the cheap editions of the Old Masters. Lovers of classical music will be pleased to hear that the publication by subscription is announced by Mr. Henry W. Carte, of a series of ten Pianoforte Sonatas, by distinguished composers of the present day. The contributors are Dr. Ferdinand Hiller, Niels Gade, Grieg, Carl Reinecke, Anton Dvorak Sir Julius Benedict, Professor G. A. Macfarren, Chas. Edw. Stephens, and C. Villiers Stanford.

Porteus.—Dec. 23rd, Edward George Porteus, aged 14 years, Woodlesford.

Colley.—Dec. 27th, Elizabeth Colley, aged 6 years, Lofthouse.

Hargreaves.—Dec. 28th, Emma Hargreaves, aged 29 years, Lee Moor.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We would particularly urge our friends to send in their letters and news, as early as possible, as we cannot accept contributions later than Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, except in the case of matters occurring on Wednesday or Thursday, which should be forwarded within a short period after. Advertisements may be sent as late as Friday morning.

ROAD SCRAPINGS.

Sir,

Passing down Bell Hill yesterday, I saw the sides of the road were bordened by a large quantity of road scrapings which block up the water channels and must cause great loss to the Rothwell Local Board. In some places the men employed by the Board have shifted the scrapings and heaped them; the cost of that work will fall on the ratepayers, albeit through the contractors' neglect. Who is responsible for seeing that Bleasby attends to his duties? By the way I see the footpath is being widened between the old Engine and Wakefield bridge, and road scrapings used for the purpose; of course this saves Bleasby the trouble of leading the scraping away, but surely the widening of that footpath might have been done when the removal of the scrapings were not under contract.

I commend this point to the attention of the Highway Committee of the Board, and remain,

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

CHRISTMAS SINGING.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Dear Sir,

I should like through the medium of your valuable paper, to thank all the ladies and gentlemen who have kindly subscribed to the Rothwell Wesleyan Chapel singers this Christmas. The very bad weather which we have had has prevented our visiting many of the distant places at Rothwell Haigh, but as it is, we have realized 10 guineas, which will be devoted towards paying off the debt on the Chapel. The rest of the singers join me in wishing all a Happy New Year.

Yours etc,
A SINGER.

CHRISTMAS TREE.

To the Editor of the Rothwell Times.

Sir,

Will you kindly allow me through the medium of your paper to thank the people of Rothwell and neighbourhood for their patronage and support to the Primitive Methodists during the week. Our realizations have far exceeded our expectations, especially at our Christmas Tree and Sale of Work, held under such unfavourable circumstances. Many kind friends have, however, rallied round, and generously contributed to the success which has been given to our humble efforts. We sincerely thank all, both donors and workers, and wish all a very 'happy New Year.'

I am, Sir,
Yours, etc.,
ON BEHALF OF THE TRUSTEES.

Epps' Cocoa.—Grateful and Comforting.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in Packets, labelled, 'James Epps & Co, Homœopathic Chemists, London.' Also makers of Epps' Chocolate Essence.

Holloway's Pills.—Important for the delicate.—It is difficult to determine which is the more trying to the human constitution, the damp, cold days of autumn and winter, or the keen, dry, easterly winds of spring. Throughout the seasons good health may be maintained by occasional doses of Holloway's Pills, which purify the blood and act as wholesome stimulants to the skin, stomach, liver, bowels, and kidneys. This celebrated medicine needs but a fair trial to convince the ailing and despondent that it will restore and cheer them without danger, pain or inconvenience. No family should be without a supply of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, as by a timely recourse to them the first erring function may be reclaimed, suffering may be spared, and life saved.

The reason why so many are unable to take Cocoa is that the varieties commonly sold are mixed with starch, under the plea of rendering them soluble, while really making them thick, heavy, and indigestible. This may be easily detected, for if Cocoa thickens in the cup it proves the addition of starch. Cadbury's Cocoa Essence is genuine; it is therefore three times the strength of these Cocoas, and a refreshing beverage like tea or coffee.

"Buchupaiba."—A new, quick, complete cure for all urinary affections, (smarting, frequent or difficult) and kidney diseases. 4s. At Druggists. London Agency, No. 1, King Edward's Street.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis.—Medical testimony states that no other medicine is so effectual in the cure of these dangerous maladies. One lozenge alone gives ease, one or two at bed time ensures rest. For relieving difficulty of breathing they are invaluable. They contain no opium nor any violent drug. Sold by all Chemists in Tins, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

As a safe, permanent and warranted cure of Pimples Scrofula, Scurvy, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Disease and Sores of all kinds, we can with confidence recommend CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE.—Sold by Chemists everywhere.

KAY'S TIC PILLS, a specific in Neuralgia, Face-ache, &c. 9½d., 1s. 1½d; postage 1d. Of Chemists. Kay Bros, Stockport.

Floriline!—For the Teeth and Breath.—A few drops of the liquid "Floriline" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke, "The Fragrant Floriline," being composed in part of Honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

Throat Affections and Hoarseness.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country at 1s. 1½d. per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by John I. Brown & Sons, Boston, U.S. European depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

THE SKIN.—The Glory of Woman, the Pride of Man.—It contains the delicate lines of beauty, and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness," yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali, and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. THE ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire medical profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. A boon to sensitive skins. By all Chemists, in tablets, 6d. and 1s.—The Albion Sanitary Soap Co., 532, Oxford Street, London.

KAY'S COMPOUND, a demulcent expectorant and anodyne, for Coughs and Colds. Sold by all Chemists.

IS RHEUMATISM CURABLE? Yes, if you take WOODCOCK'S RHEUMATIC MIXTURE. Speedily cures Rheumatic Pains in the Limbs, Rheumatic Pains in the Head, Rheumatic Pains in the Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatic Gout, Rheumatic Swellings and Stiffness; in fact, every phase of Rheumatism; no matter how acute or long standing, it never fails. OBSERVE—This is not a quack remedy warranted to cure everything, but a genuine SPECIFIC FOR RHEUMATISM only. Of any Chemist. In Bottles, at 1/9 & 2/9, or sent free to any railway station in England for 25 or 38 stamps. (Three 2/9 bottles, carriage paid, for 102 stamps or P.O.O.) By the Proprietor, Page D. Woodcock, High-street, Lincoln

Advice to Mothers!—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by Medicine dealers everywhere at 1s. 1½d. per bottle.

Valuable Discovery for the Hair.—If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed. Ask your Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. Wholesale depot removed to 33, Farringdon Road, London.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City, U.S.A.

MR. CLAFTON
MAGNETIC HEALTHER AND MEDICAL BOTANIST.

MR. CLAFTON IS NO QUACK DOCTOR.
Mr. Clafton's Advice is sought from all parts of the world, in consequence of the Wonderful Miracles he has wrought.

TESTIMONIALS.

To Mr. Clafton—Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt pleasure that I write these few lines to thank you, under God's blessing, for the perfect cure you have made of me. I had been suffering for nearly five years from diseased joints, and was not able to stand on my feet, and suffered excruciating pains. I had been under a doctor, but he gave me up as incurable. I was also in the Infirmary, and they wanted to take my knee joints out, but I would not undergo the operation. I also tried a Manchester doctor, having heard of some wonderful cures he had done, but I received no benefit from him. I then heard of you and resolved to try you, and am glad to say that I am able to walk about freely and attend to my household duties. You are at liberty to make what use of this you think proper—I remain, yours truly,
C. ROBINSON.
10, Cross Kiln Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds, Feb. 13th, 1881

Dear Sir,—I take the opportunity of writing to inform you that I am cured of baldness by using two bottles of your Hair Mixture, for which I am truly thankful. You are at liberty to use this to any purpose you think proper—I am, yours truly,
JAMES SYKES, Broadway Street, Beeston Hill, Leeds

Dear Sir,—It is with pleasure that I here certify to the benefits derived by my little boy (who was suffering from the result of a severe sprain), since he was first submitted to your prescribed form of treatment. And I also beg to state that from what I have seen and heard in other cases, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending to others your method of treating disease, as producing the most gratifying results—I am, yours respectfully,
FRANCIS H MARSDEN.
17, Ashley Place, Beeston Hill, Leeds, June 20th 1881

Mr. Clafton—Sir,—Having suffered for over twelve months with a badly diseased knee, during which time I have tried all kinds of treatment, but all to no purpose, fortunately I was recommended to give you a trial. There is great credit due to you, my knee being strong again in ten weeks, and clear from all disease and pain—Remaining yours,
